Times Is Starting 1500 Subscription Campaign Today

Pupils, Teachers To Receive First Three Issues Free; Cartoonist Makes Posters

Sets 500 As Goal For Opening Day

Drive Headed By Virginia Goeglein; Room Agents, Assistants Are Listed.

Girls Obtain Honors Of Subscribing First

Honors of being the first Times and first Totem subscribers in South Side go to Julia Smith and Anna Lou Kowalski. However, Mae Persing, '38, was the first graduate to subscribe.

Today is the first day in a three weeks South Side Times campaign with the goal set at 1500 subscriptions. Five hundred of those subscriptions are expected to be obtained today, one thousand by the second week, and the final goal reached the third week.

Every student and teacher will receive the first three issues free, the last free one coming out September 15. "Times days" have been set for September 19, 20, and 21. On these days the home room period will be lengthened to give the room agents extra time for obtaining subscriptions.

Posters In Halls
Posters advertising The Times and made by The Times cartoonist, Janice Dyer, have been posted on the bulletin boards in the halls. The largest one is to be posted in the front hall over the glass show case. It shows Little Miss Muffet and safety and as more subscriptions come in, the spider is moved farther away. Today sandwichmen will traverse the halls carrying signs advertising The Times. Several agents will be stationed in the booth in the front hall to take subscriptions.

At the general room agents meeting, held September 6, pep talks were given by Mr. R. Nelson Snider, Miss Rowena Harvey, Eleanor Vesey, and Virginia Goeglein and last minute instructions were given. Immediately following this was a special freshman room agents meeting at which instructions were given about filling out blanks.

Agents Given Badges
This morning all of the room agents were supplied with their materials and each was given a badge. A prize of one dollar will be given to the agent obtaining the most subscriptions the first day and fifty cents to the next highest.

In order that the South Side alumni may subscribe to The Times conveniently, letters were sent out to them. Immediately following this, senior agents made personal calls to get their subscriptions. Those agents were Bob Robinson, Sam Bacon, Bruce Bradbury, Dick Aromhalt, Mary Ellen Heddon, and Beverly Griffith.

Virginia Goeglein heads the circulation department and is assisted by Lucy Smith, Rebecca Abbott, Emilou Allendorph, Maurine Seibert, Beverly Griffith, and Marjorie McNabb. The room agents and their respective home rooms, excluding freshmen

P.T. A. To Conduct Meeting This Fall

Committees To Begin Plans For Activities During New Term; Executives Will Be Elected.

Mrs. J. D. Bostick, president of P.T. A., announced that a meeting will be held sometime this fall at which part of their executive committee will be chosen, and the different committees will begin their plans for the new term.

A meeting was held the Saturday after school closing this spring in which the following chairmen were selected for some of the vacant offices this fall: Mrs. Clifford Matson, student aid; Mrs. A. K. Remmel, ways and means; Mrs. H. W. Garton, renamed membership; Mrs. E. L. Krauskopf, publicity; Mrs. F. G. Bowlman, renamed hospitality; Mrs. J. Brooks, program; and Mrs. Carl Hornberger, telephone.

Mrs. J. D. Bostick, president of P.T. A., announced that a meeting will be held sometime this fall at which part of their executive committee will be chosen, and the different committees will begin their plans for the new term.

Class Elections To Be In Hands Of Students
Again this year, class elections will be completely in the hands of the student body supervised by the teachers, it was specifically stated by Mr. Snider.

Home room elections will be directed by the home room and will be conducted whenever possible. Class elections will be directed by the students of the respective grades and will be held from three to four weeks after the beginning of school. The students of the home rooms will submit nominations, and three students obtaining the most nominations will be nominated for election.

Changes Are Made In Room Schedules

Several changes in schedules have been made because some rooms are not yet ready. If you are assigned to:
Room 172, go to room 85.
Room 174, go to room 10.
Room 176, go to room 102.
Room 178, go to room 112.
Room 188, go to room 98.
Room 190, go to room 114.
Room 10, go to room 108.
Room 12, go to room 110.
Room 16, go to room 12.

New Teachers Are Acquired By South Side

Physical Ed, Art, Commerce, Study, History Instructors Added To Staff

Seven new teachers have been added to the South Side faculty resulting from the reconstruction work done to the school. Most of the teachers are being transferred from other schools here in the city; however, several of them are coming from out of the city.

Miss Blanche Hutto, formerly of Forest Park School, will be substituted for Miss Mary Helen Ley, who will be promoted to Central High School. Miss Hutto received her A.B. degree at Ball State College and her M.S. degree at Columbia University.

Another new teacher this year is Mr. Clyde Raymond Pierce, who was a social science and history teacher at the Franklin School. Mr. Pierce received his A.B. degree at Ball State College and his Master's degree at Indiana University.

The substitute for Miss Virginia Montgomery, who was recently married, is Mrs. Robert Scott. Mrs. Scott, who will take charge of the study hall, has had much experience with school children as she has taught for ten years in five different cities. Mrs. Scott formerly taught English and commerce. She attended Indiana University three years and then started to teach.

To Teach Commerce
Mr. James I. Mills, who is taking Mr. Windmiller's place, will teach commerce. Mr. Mills attended Augustana College at Rock Island, Illinois, where he received his A.B. degree. He then carried on his college career by doing post graduate work at the University of Wisconsin. He attended the University of Illinois where he received his M.A. degree. Mr. Mills' teaching experience began at Carbondale, Illinois, where he was principal. He remained there for one year after which he took up basketball coaching. After coaching for a year, he went to Mattoon High School at Mattoon, Illinois. While at Mattoon, he taught civics and commerce courses. He taught there for eight years before going to Urbana, Illinois to teach bookkeeping and law at Urbana High School. He is now going to carry on his teaching career by coming to Fort Wayne to teach commerce at South Side.

Mr. Merle J. Abbott Explains Steps Leading To Construction

Mr. Merle J. Abbott

Mr. Merle J. Abbott, superintendent, explained the complicated steps leading up to our present modern school. First there had to be the presentation of the bond issue in the form of a petition. This had to be presented to the people of Fort Wayne for their approval. After this step was completed the issue was presented to the Board of Education for their approval. After this approving instructions were given to the architect to prepare plans. When every

Meet The Dean

Miss Martha Pittenger

It is thrilling to return to a bigger and better South Side. When you have settled into your new situations come to see the Dean's new quarters. I shall be happy to welcome all newcomers and pleased to renew old friendships. I am eager to help make this school year the best in South Side's history.

Martha M. Pittenger.

Gwen DeWees Is New Latin Prexy

Maurine Seibert, Jane Bowen, Jean Fortriede Are Others Named To Offices For Year.

At the June meeting of the Latin Club new officers were elected to carry on the duties of the club for the coming year. Gwendolyn DeWees will serve as president of the club; Maurine Seibert was elected to the vice-presidency; Jane Bowen was chosen secretary-treasurer. The executive council was completed by electing Jean Fortriede Inter-Club Congress representative.

The bust of Julius Caesar, which was purchased by the club last year and was presented for use in the Latin department, serves as a worthy remembrance of last year's work. The bust will be on display in the various Latin class rooms during the year.

Although the first regular meeting of the club will not be held until October 20, there will be an organization meeting in the new study hall at 3:30, September 22. All interested pupils who have completed one semester of Latin, with a grade not less than B-, are invited to attend this meeting. The purpose of the club is to enhance the cultural side of Latin study and enjoy social activities. Meetings are held once a month, and the dues are twenty-five cents for the year. A line of study has not been decided upon for this year but the executive committee will be open for suggestions at the meeting on September 22.

Mrs. Alda Jane Carson, as advisor, will be assisted by Miss Gertrude Opelt, Mrs. Grace Welty, and Mr. Earl Sterner, other teachers in the Latin department.

Teachers Manage Parks

J. H. McClure, history teacher at South Side, and Louis Briner, assistant basketball coach, were chosen to be on the park supervisory staff. Two ex-Archers were also chosen; they were Georgianna Jacobs and Marjorie Hower, both of the class of '36. Their job in general is to look after park equipment and children playing on the park grounds.

Mueller Places Second

Marcell Mueller, '37, placed second in the first grade women's division of the annual Turner's contest at Johnstown, Pennsylvania. Nadine Mueller, senior, also entered in the competition.

Mr. Merle J. Abbott Explains Steps Leading To Construction

"To the school that has no equal," is now a real salute to the new South Side, the modernized South Side. Most students know that we now have the additions that have been thought of for many years, but do these students know how we got these improvements?

small detail was worked out by the architect, these plans were offered to the Board of Education for their careful examination. Here, after much thought was given to them, the plans were accepted. Next came the advertising and selling of the bond issue. This bond was the lowest ever sold in this state.

Following the selling of the bond came the advertising of the contracts and the receiving of the bids. The lowest bidders were established and were contracted to put in the heating, lighting and plumbing systems and do the general contracting.

Mr. Abbott stated, "This school will be truly a modern one except for the auditorium which will be built later." He further stated that we now have new study halls on the second floor where we can have fresh air and plenty of light. The new study hall has proper ventilation, heat, and light, instead of the old poorly lighted, heated and ventilated one.

There are many new and modern offices for the principal, dean, and the guidance department. There are new rooms for the music department, a new Greeley Room to be used for club meetings and dramas.

These improvements added to the old South Side make the ideal school. These additions were made for the benefit of the students, and so, students, let's really appreciate what has been done for us.

Of course the faculty and student realize that the MAN responsible for all our improvements is none other than MERLE J. ABBOTT.

287 Students Are Enrolled As Freshmen

Harrison Hill Leads Group of Entrants from Grades; James H. Smart Is Second Class Is Smaller Than Last Year

Hoagland And Parochial Schools Add Large Number; New Pupils Listed

Freshman Meeting Is To Be At 11:00

Approximately three hundred new freshmen will be addressed by Mr. R. Nelson Snider, Miss Martha Pittenger, and Eleanor Vesey today at 11:00 in the old study hall on the first floor. At this meeting the incoming freshmen will be told of the rules of the school.

The clubs to which the freshmen are eligible are Sunshine, Mettetter, U. S. A., Torch, Travel, Boys' and Girls' Rifle, Wo-Ho-Ma, Marionette, Junior Math, Forum, Art, Band, Orchestra, Glee Club, and Philatelic Society. Information concerning each of these clubs will be given at this meeting. Eleanor Vesey, general manager of The Times will speak to the freshmen concerning the importance of subscribing for The Times and will talk to them about securing positions on the paper's staff.

Entering into the '38 freshman class of South Side, which is slightly smaller than last year's, are 287 students who have come from Harrison Hill, James Smart, Hoagland, and several of the parochial schools of Fort Wayne. Harrison Hill leads the grade schools in number of entrants. James Smart ranks second, and Hoagland third.

Absence and tardy regulations at South Side are to be the same this year as in former years. Pupils who have been absent are required to bring written excuses from their parents when they return. These excuses are to be taken to Mrs. Robert C. M. Scott, who has taken Miss Virginia Montgomery's place. She will be in the attendance office each morning before home room period. If the excuse is a legitimate one, the student will receive a white slip which entitles him to make up his work; otherwise he will receive a pink slip. Pupils who receive these are not allowed to make up lost work. All admit slips must be signed by the teachers from whose classes a student has been absent. All slips must then be returned to Mrs. Scott in the study hall at the end of the day. Sickness or injury to the pupil, quarantine, or death in the family are the only legitimate excuses for absence.

Tardiness is a serious school offence, rarely excused. When tardy, students must go to the office, register, and get a slip which will admit them to their class. The slip must be signed by their teacher and returned to the study hall by the end of the day. All tardy pupils are required to make up time.

Greets Students

Mr. R. Nelson Snider

"Welcome back to an enlarged and improved building. For a few weeks we shall have to be very careful about the construction work which is not completed, but within a month we should have one of the finest and most modern school buildings in the state. Until all of the work is finished, we shall need the co-operation of every student to make the class schedule run smoothly.

"Freshman students entering this fall will have the advantage of going four years in a new structure and should become acquainted immediately with the arrangement of rooms. All of the new students will find the upperclassmen ready and eager to be of service to them.

"I hope the improved building and additional equipment will make it possible for our school work to be better and more interesting for all."

Times Requested To Revive Column

Idea Is To Give Student Body Chance To Express Opinions, Add To Enjoyment Of Times

Next week a new and interesting column, called South Side Speaks, will be added to the South Side Times. This column was first originated by Reginald Gerig in 1936. It was written for one year and then dropped until last spring when The Times was requested to revive the column, but because of such a short period before school closed the column was held over until this year.

The idea of the column is to improve the reading enjoyment of The Times and give the student body a chance to express their opinions.

Each week some timely subject of interest to all will be sent to some home room or class where the teacher or adviser will read the question. The students will then write twenty-five words or more on this question. All the opinions of the different students will be sent to The Times room where they will be carefully read. Then the best ones will be picked out and put in the column. The column will also contain the percent for and against the question. Some of the questions will be for both the students and teachers, and some for the teachers or students alone.

Archer Leads Class

Ex-Archer David Parrish graduated from the Indiana University Law School on June 9 as the valedictorian of his class.

Directions For First Day

- The program for the day will be:
8:05-8:20 Home Room
8:25-8:40 1
8:45-9:00 2
9:05-9:20 3
9:25-9:40 4
9:45-10:00 5
10:05-10:20 6
10:25-10:40 7
- One bell will be sounded at the end of the period. At the beginning of each period the bell will be sounded once for the start of the period, and then sounded the number of times corresponding to the number of the period.
- Program cards are to be taken to the rooms as indicated, and are to be signed by the teacher in charge.
- All program cards must be turned in. Pupils who do not have seventh period classes must give their cards to the teachers of their last periods. Those who have seventh periods must turn in their cards then.
- a. During the lunch periods pupils must go to the gymnasium and remain there.
b. During the study periods pupils must go to their seats in the Study Hall.
c. Gymnasium pupils must report to the physical directors' office to have their cards signed.
- No programs will be changed unless an error has been made.
- During your Home Room period, FILL ALL BLANKS ON YOUR PROGRAM CARD.
- There will be a meeting of all 9B pupils in Room S at 11:00 today.
- Locks and lockers may be purchased from 10:45 to 12 and from 1:45 to 2:30 in the following rooms:

Boys	Girls
44—Box, Chappell.	146—Fortney, Hutto.
91—Heine, Mills.	10—Hornberger, Riecke.
82—Pierce, Wainwright.	6—Smeltzly, Pocock.
- Books may be purchased from 10:45 to 12 and from 1:45 to 3:00 in rooms according to lists posted in halls.
- Pupils who live outside the city limits, or whose parents live outside, must bring transfers. These should be in the office by Friday of this week.
- Pupils who do not have Glee Club, Orchestra, or Band on their cards, and who want to take one or all of these subjects should see Mr. Wainwright in room 40. Periods for these subjects can be arranged only if the pupil has a vacant period at the proper time.
- Attention of all pupils is called to the method of handling Absence Excuses. For Absence Excuses, pupils will report to the Attendance Office. A written excuse, giving the date or dates of absence, and the reason, and signed by a parent or guardian, must be brought by a pupil after an absence. Admit slips will be issued on presentation of the excuses.
- Arrangements can readily be made to secure books for those pupils who cannot buy their own at the present time. Students who want help in securing their texts should take their lists to Miss Pittenger between 1 and 3 o'clock today.
- Students who want lockers furnished them are to get Miss Pittenger's O. K. the second day of the semester. Lockers will be issued by Miss Alderdice on presentation of Miss Pittenger's O. K.

Many Alterations And Improvements Made To Building

Times Will Publish All Students' Names

A campaign is being put on by The Times staff to have every name of the 2,000 pupils in South Side published in The Times in as short a time as possible. The general manager, Eleanor Vesey, recently stated: "This year special effort is being made by the staff to publish every student's name in The Times. An exact record of the names which appear will be kept. Sometime during the year reporters will be sent to each room to ask their viewpoints on certain matters, both humorous and serious."

Improvements Mark Opening Of New Term

Contractors Triple Office Space, Move Times Room, Build New Study Halls

Tripling the size of the general offices, enlarging the press quarters, adding two study halls, constructing a new club room, adding stairs instead of ramps, and installing a new two-way, two-channel radio system are improvements that hold the interest of an entire school today, as two thousand Archers start back to work in a new second-story building.

New rooms and wide halls were added as a result of a vigorous campaign by school officials, students and parents for a larger building. Small halls, lack of an auditorium, larger classroom space were among the desired effects campaigned for last year, a campaign in which publication workers played a major part.

Improvements Continue
Additions were begun before students were dismissed last spring, and will continue throughout the next four to six weeks when the building is supposed to be completed.

Major among the improvements is the entire fleet of offices which were so badly needed by students and teachers alike. In the new set of offices, Miss Dorothy Alderdice heads the general staff. A general examination room, a radio room, and book room are included in the general offices. A private office for Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, separate offices for Mr. A. Verne Flint, vocational guidance head, and Miss Martha Pittenger, dean have been added. Mr. Benjamin Null, English department head, will remain in his office on the ground floor this year.

Vocroom Eliminated
The domestic science department will be located in the northeast corner on the ground floor next year when (Continued on page 3)

Almost Entire Second Story Is Added To South Side During Vacation Months

Will Be Finished Within Six Weeks

Improvement Include Radio System, New Classrooms, Press Rooms, Study Halls

Approximately two thousand Green Archers swung open the doors of the new South Side High School this morning, shortly before making preparations to begin another year of studying. With an almost complete second story, plans were laid to finish the rest of the building next year if possible. Only about one fourth of the new additions are ready to be used now. Completion of the present changes is expected to take from a month to six weeks.

School Opens On Time
Fears that school would not open on time, or that shifts of students would be run, were quietly dispelled several weeks ago when Merle J. Abbott, Superintendent of City Schools, announced that full time classes would be scheduled. Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, in an interview last week stated that classes would be run regularly on the ground floor and as soon as available rooms are opened, classes would be moved immediately.

The additions were voted upon last spring when it was decided that more room was needed at South Side, Central, and at numerous grade schools. Work was delayed on the South Side structure by a shipment of structural steel at the close of school last June, and by additional repairs which were required.

The additional expenses were laid before the school board in August, and it was agreed that the expenses were to be tabled on the budget for 1939.

WPA Cleans Building
Lockers were cleaned outside and in; all desks were washed by a Works Progress Administration crew, and all walls and floors were washed and cleaned.

Plaster was removed by workers and plasterers in order to remodel the entire building. Installation of a two-way, two-channel radio system, held the attention of a group of radio experts here this week. The radio system will operate from a radio room in the new fleet of offices which occupies about half of the new second floor rooms on the west side of the building.

Space for an auditorium has been provided in the school. The boys' and girls' locker rooms will be torn out along with the home economic rooms, although they will be in use this year. When school opens next year, officials plan to move the commercial department to the second story, and place the economics rooms in the northeast section of the structure.

The gym has been used as a storage room during the summer by teachers, and as a workroom by the W. P. A. crew. Numerous cases, desks, and library shelves have been placed in the gym. Miss Emma Shoup, school librarian, has had the library books moved back into the library from room 38 where they had been stored during the summer.

More Classrooms Added
Major improvements were noted among additional classroom space, new trophy cases, new press quarters, and in the new study halls. The study hall at the southeast end of the building will not be used for another year, while the study hall adjoining the cafeteria will be in use the opening day of school.

"There is absolutely no foundation for the beliefs that the new structure is unsafe, the entire structure having been passed upon by the building commission," stated Mr. Snider.

Other improvements in South Side lay in new sidewalks on the east side of the school and new firebrick being installed in the boilers.

Social Scientists To Elect Officers

First Meeting Will Be Called During Next Week Of School; Will Discuss Reorganization.

Nomination of club officers will be held at the first called meeting of Social Science which will be held some time during the second week of school. Reorganization and plans for the coming year will be discussed at this meeting.

Mr. Wilburn Wilson, club adviser, states that approximately twenty places are open to students interested in social studies and wishing to join Social Science Club.

Any junior or senior having a B average in social studies can sign up in either Miss Eleanor Smeltzly's or Mr. Wilson's room.

Library Supplements Additional Magazines

A number of additional magazines will be supplemented to the regular list which are now received by the school library. The new list includes Commonwealth, Educational Science, National Consumer News, National Sportsman, Political Science Quarterly, Proceedings of Academy, Political Science and Professional Quarterly, Public Safety, and Scout.

Miss Shoup stated that immediate action was made to the number of magazines about the first

Be Yourself, Is Advice To Freshmen

It has often been said that you can tell a freshman by his actions. If this is true, freshmen beware! Most freshmen have the idea that they will make a big hit at high school. The best way to make this big hit is merely to be yourself. Other students and the faculty always appreciate an incoming freshman who does not show off.

Several freshmen have the idea that they will make a good name for themselves right away. This good name can be obtained only through good work and interest in different outside activities. As a word of advice, don't join too many clubs. It is best to join a few clubs and gradually increase this number as you advance.

After the first day of school, if you have been pestered by upperclassmen, don't get the idea that the rest of the school year will be spent in this manner. These upperclassmen were once freshmen and had these same pranks pulled upon them. It is just their turn to get even. You will find that these fellow students do have a big heart and that they will aid you in many ways in future years. They have in the past and will in the future make you proud to say that you attend South Side.

Extra-Curricular Activities Are Part Of Education

Most freshmen have the erroneous idea that a high school education means being taught merely the fundamental 3 R's for six hours per day with an hour for lunch and then rushing home immediately after school hours. Technically speaking, this is true. But they seem to forget about extra-curricular activities and that all the good clubs South Side have to offer. Belonging to clubs gets one better acquainted with the other side of the characters of your friends and teachers. Planning programs and conducting meetings gives one experience not to be gained in any other fashion. So the best advice to you, freshmen and upperclassmen, is to take advantage of the clubs here at South Side right away.

Pay Your Check And Work Again

With the end of summer vacation one should not feel that good times are over and there is only hard work to look forward to. The realization that the waiter, "school days", is waiting for 33 weeks of work in payment for his vacation sodas seems to depress many students. However, with careful planning a program can be made, allowing time for both sodas and work. And too, there will be club meetings, tea dances, football, and basketball. Making a well-planned program and sticking to it can make school as much fun as summer vacation and still bring smiles when grades come out. The waiter must be paid, so hand over the 33 weeks of hard labor for your sodas.

In former years we could at least distinguish a senior from a freshman owing to the fact they knew their way around school. Now some other form of recognition will have to be found. Suggestion: Sign reading "I am a senior."

The new Webster's Dictionary spells politics p-o-l-i-t-i-c-s but some of the '38 grads seeking jobs seem to think that it is spelled p-u-l-l-i-t-i-c-s.

With 100 per cent co-operation of the school, this year's Times campaign should be the best and most successful ever staged.

Getting up ambition enough to get up at 7 o'clock instead of 12 is 90 per cent of the battle of coming back to school.

And still we find another school year to look forward to full of good times and entertainment, —and, oh yes, studies.

South Side welcomes its new coaches, Bill Moss and George Collyer, and hope they have a most successful season.

Even seniors are a bit confused in finding their way through the maze of our newly-made halls.

"What elevator," cry the befuddled greenies, rhines, or better-known freshmen.

Students are still humming the summer swing hits. Music appreciation?

Interesting Items . . .

Hi, all you jitterbugs, bobcats, and icky guys! Once again you've returned from your summer days—or daze (?)—and are all ripe for a bit of who's been doing what....

Dick Aronhalt's concession stand at Foster Park served as a meeting house and sewing circle for many Archers—mostly Archerettes.... Little Jeanie Weil and Betty Haney had some difficulty with Dick over some redhead.

Lake James saw many familiar Greenies.... Betty Daniels, Helen Banks, Phyllis Geller, Betty Neeb, Nadine Mueller, Anna Lou Kowalski, Margery Rapp, and Margaret Null—all at the same house party. Lucky Lake James.

Pat Seibel, Jeanne Porter, and Billie Beaver had lots of fun at 4-Way Lodge on Central Lake in Michigan.

More than a few enamoured couples survived the heat and many twangs of Cupid's bow.... Margaret Null and Marion Bell (ask them about the time they fell from a swing into the lake).... Judy Smith and Jack Bahlinger.... Jean Catlett, Bud Schmoee.... Betty Kayser, Bud Hirschy.... Barbara Roth, Paul Carr.... Phyllis Geller, "Jeepie" Schmidt.

Looking over our new crop of incoming—i beg your pardon—incoming freshies, we found two belles who really should click.... Gladys Foellinger and Phyllis (Janet Gaynor) Fager. And you hefty V-men take notice, Dan Auer, Tom Young, and John Lamont will soon menace your far-famed popularity.

Jean Weil and Alice Hall are South Side's official bachelorettes. When interviewed about this disastrous decision all they said was, "We're decidedly happy about the whole thing".... But we'll bet they don't stay that way very long.

Those eternal triangles that are always bothersome are still haunting us.... Phyllis Mueller, Paul Brown, and Barbara Brower make up an extremely amusing situation. Especially when Brownie is visited at camp by Barbara one week and by Phyllis the next. Please make us your minds.

Something new—A 4-angle! Betsy Dale of North Side surrounded by Sam Bacon, John Bonisib, and Roy Heavner. Won't you ever learn, boys?

Freshman, Junior Conversation May Give Aid To Many Freshies

It seems that incoming freshmen, by some freakish twist of fate, are unable to conduct themselves as befits a dignified freshman (which brings up the question—has anyone ever seen a dignified freshman?—which I will take up at some future date) and consequently need advice. Of course if they would look in last year's Times they would find the same thing but we wouldn't expect them to think so far ahead or back, so here goes.

I am now addressing Freddie Freshman. (Taps can be softly heard in the distance, then a crash, and Freddie sprawls at my feet) Bump (I am assuming my cloak of dignity) Freddie, my boy, we shall talk under no pretenses. I am not a preacher and don't intend to sound like one. I merely want to give you some advice.

No, advice, not lice. I've never had lice in my life. How do I know? Well.... Oh hush.

In the first place that little yellow card in your hand spells danger, humiliation, greenness, etc. Hide it someplace. Why? So you won't know where to go next. You know it's just loads of fun hunting classrooms.

Also, run up and down the inclines as much as you want but look out when you hit corners. You know a couple of teachers might (accidentally mind you) be hiding at the bottom and intercept you. What will they do? Oh just pat you on the back and tell you you are learning the tricks of the trade fast. Above all, Fredrick, get on the good side of the teachers. Bring an apple now and then. You know the old "an apple a day is the best way to snag you an A" saying? Well, it still goes.

Then too, Fredrick, there is a certain group of children over here that call themselves Seniors. But they are really only over-grown freshmen at heart. They like to think that they have some authority around the school so we have to sort of humor them. So every time you meet them in the hall, give them the old two-fingered salute (mind you, two fingers) and give a very low, sweeping, graceful bow.

Then watch out. Very often they revert back to tricks of their childhood and you might find yourself sprawled very ungracefully face down on the floor. This is of course a delicate situation but with quick thinking on your part you should be able to back gracefully out of it. You might say as how you were interested in beautiful ant life and were witnessing what happened when papa made eyes at the ballet dancing cockroach in that last night club. (Or was it two back? That last drop of nectar must have gone to my head.)

Well, you get the idea, don't you, Fredrick? Fredrick! Heavenly Jehosafat! would you look at that.... asleep. Oh well, he would have done what he wanted to anyway. This modern generation, etc., etc.

Koed Kut Ups

As impossible as it may seem, I've succeeded in digging up some dirt around the new halls of good old South Side. My hearty thanks to the gay romancers who believe that Cupid is man's best friend. Following is a dish of dirt I managed to dig up. During the long summer months our faithful steadies have still been going strong.

Those who deserve special mention are... Bea Etzler and Gene Senseny.... Jean Russ and Jim Phelps.... Betty M. and Chuck Long.... Bud Schmoee and Jean Catlett.... Billie Lou Beaver and out-of-town Miss Porter.... also our cute sophomore Alice Sweet and Bob Dahman decided to try it and found it so convenient they started on a full time schedule. All I've got to say is "more power to them all."

As I dug deeper and deeper into the dirt I found quite a few of love's eternal triangles.... It seems that Jean Weil and Dick Didier were getting along fine and dandy until Jackie Huguenard, from North Side came along. Now it's the same old story!.... Kitty Clinard and Jean Porter are rivals for the affections of handsome Jim Roth.... Little Jeanie Weil seems to have gotten mixed up in another triangle. This time Patie Seibel and Richard Gallmeier are involved. Barbara Roth seems to be on the fence about Bob Hockemeyer and Herm "Casinova" Ankenbruck.

Boys! Sit up and take notice.... Take your charms out of the mothballs and have them ready for use, for there are many cute freshies entering our portals this fall.... Four girls worth keeping your eyes on are Gloria Kramer, Evelyn Talbot, Marilyn Loomis, and Mary Sites.... Never let it be said that I didn't do justice by the girls, for here is a list of cute freshman boys. They may be a trifle green around the edges but they'll learn. Don Rietdorf, Dallas Zuber, and Jack Meyers are just a few.

Now for the more common dirt.... Barbara Brower plays tennis every day. We wonder if her interest lies in the game or the players?... The flame between Marjorie McNabb and Dick Fishing still burns.... Katie Kuntz has been sailing around with Jerry Doswell all summer.... Dickie Green waits patiently for favors from Mary Burt, a freshie. Give him a break, Mary!

Arlene Perry seems to have had a wide choice of beaux this summer so I hear.... Jane Nathan and Joe Leaming have been hitting it off together since they found mutual interests last spring.... Orchids to Miss Janice Cross who still bears the torch for Dick Baade. It is rumored about that Lois Rea has quite a few heart interests these days.... Dickie Boy Craig and Sarah Meily have found each other again last time. Fredrick, get on the good side of the teachers. Bring an apple now and then. You know the old "an apple a day is the best way to snag you an A" saying? Well, it still goes.

Then too, Fredrick, there is a certain group of children over here that call themselves Seniors. But they are really only over-grown freshmen at heart. They like to think that they have some authority around the school so we have to sort of humor them. So every time you meet them in the hall, give them the old two-fingered salute (mind you, two fingers) and give a very low, sweeping, graceful bow.

Among these inviting features would come venetian blinds, leather seats in the desks, indirect lighting, carpeted floors, volumes of reference books, and young, attractive teachers. All of these features put into a classroom would make the pupils feel more at home and thus would encourage their study. This problem of course has its disadvantages as well as its advantages.

Coming back to the modernized school we find that since it would be built on the order of a skyscraper, much land would be saved. The towns of the future are going to be overcrowded and thus the conservation of space will be very important. Since the artificial light is hard on the eyes the new solution, a mixture of real sunshine and artificial sunshine, will solve the important problem of correct lighting. If this system should prove unsuccessful, a system of indirect lighting could be used.

To get from one floor to another is a great problem, but with the modern moving halls and escalator this problem no longer is unsolved. These modern modes of travel have been very successful in large department stores. It has always been a true fact that stairs are dangerous when there are a large number of students to use them. Our inclines here at school are much safer than stairs, but with the modern age of building we must modernize our modes of travel.

Con To hear the other side of the question we can find that a school of the skyscraper type would be dangerous. What if a terrible fire should break out? Would all of the pupils be able to come out alive? In such a case as this the moving halls and escalators would not be fast enough. You say that other skyscrapers have been successful. Yes, but there are not as many in an office building as there would be in a school. Most skyscrapers today are fireproof, but are they completely fireproof?

Alumnae Attractions

South Side's interest does not cease when each year she sends out into this large and perplexing world another fine group of boys and girls, who, having adeptly completed their four high school years, go out from their mother portals into a larger and much more ruthless institution of learning.

Many times the departed grads prepare to continue their education at some university or college. While there are others who at once go forth, seeking jobs in order that they may make their own living.

Virginia Gardner, '36, is one South Side graduate of whom this school can well be proud, for she not only is an ardent student at Wisconsin University, but she has also managed really to work away these summer months.

"Ginny" has capably filled a position as an expert guide on the perplexing problems which tend to worry the mind of the young miss who, freshly graduated from the corner high school, is preparing to take up a higher education at the local university.

The pleasant surroundings of "Ginny" as a coed counsellor is at Wolf and Dessauer's in the special department for the youthful school-going young lady, known as The College Shop.

Here Ginny helpfully advises the various young students as to what clothes she will find necessary to take away with her to school. She also offers valuable information about the different universities, which proves to be a valuable asset in helping many undecided girls to make up their minds as to the school they wish to attend.

She is a helpful guide to weary mothers, who after hours of plodding through various stores, look to "Ginny" with supreme gratefulness as she is undoubtedly a faultlessly attired young lady herself, having an "eye" for good taste in clothing.

So, taking a last look at the trim appearance and wholly pleasing sight of one Virginia Gardner, we look with just a little envy at the good work she is doing—and picking up our laurels, we leave this ex-South Sider in search of another deserving graduate upon whom we can bestow an award and proudly say to, "Good work, you're another from the school of champs."

Pro and Con In a recent edition of The Times there appeared an article concerning the modernized school of 1939. A school so modern that it would have such outstanding features as moving halls, escalators, very modern decorations in the classrooms, radio system available for every classroom, modern lighting, and artificial sunshine. This school of the skyscraper type would contain beautiful teachers with very interesting methods of teaching.

It has been stated that the pupils would really enjoy coming to school. Perhaps a school on the order of South Side with a few additional features would be more practical. This sort of dream school would not be so modernistic but would be the ideal school.

Among these inviting features would come venetian blinds, leather seats in the desks, indirect lighting, carpeted floors, volumes of reference books, and young, attractive teachers. All of these features put into a classroom would make the pupils feel more at home and thus would encourage their study. This problem of course has its disadvantages as well as its advantages.

Many Schools Grant Awards To Graduates

Twenty-four To Enter Institutions For New Term, Seventeen From '38 Class

Twenty-four ex-Archers have been awarded scholarships to various universities and colleges throughout the country. Many will enter these institutions as freshmen, while others have had old scholarships renewed. DeFord Hite, '38, and Robert Hirsch, '38 are to be the recipients of the News-Sentinel scholarships. DeFord will enter Butler University at Indianapolis, and Robert will go to Tri-State at Angola.

John Bex, '37, was honored by receiving a $300 scholarship from Chicago University to cover full tuition during his sophomore year. The scholarship was awarded because of the outstanding work John did during his freshman year at the university; he was awarded a similar scholarship last year.

Archers To Northwestern

Three ex-South Siders were granted scholarships to Northwestern University; they were John H. Hines, Leslie J. Johnson, and James W. Roth. Helen Cox was also awarded a Northwestern University scholarship.

Lewis W. Squires and William C. Roy, Jr., both of '37, have both been accepted for entrance into the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. The winner of the Swarthmore Scholarship this year was Dalton McAlister. The scholarship is a one year award of $300 and is renewable if high academic standards are maintained during the freshman year.

Two past South Siders, Mary Michaels, '36, and John Bremer, '35, had their county scholarships to Ball State renewed for the next year. John will be a senior next year; Mary will be a junior.

Goy Jones, George Strom, John Lyons, and Paul Brown, have been presented four year music scholarships at the University of Miami, at Coral Gables, Florida. The scholarship pays all tuition charges, and the school guarantees either to provide a part time job to finance the scholarship student, or provide room and board free. The award was made to these boys for their outstanding ability in music.

Indiana Awards Presented

Indiana University scholarships were awarded to three former South Siders who were winners of Allen County Scholarships. Helen Louise Coil, Jean Bergquist, and Robert Schannen. Richard is now a student at the university. Helen and Jean will enroll this fall as freshmen.

A $500 fellowship in Library Science to Columbia University was granted to Robert Ake, '37. The award was based on an outstanding record made by Robert this year at Butler University.

Thomas Briegel and Leonard Koch received scholarships to the Fort Wayne Art School. Indiana Extension in Fort Wayne also awarded two scholarships to South Siders, Mary Jane Wagoner and Henry Brandt.

The alternate named to one of the Purdue Scholarships this year is Geraldine Schaefer.

The entire commercial wing will be shifted to the second story. The year, until the auditorium and new improvements are added, the economics department will remain where it is. Building a stairway at the south end of the building eliminated a ramp, home economics room 85, which was formerly used as a home room by Miss Lucy Mellen. At the other end of the building, the stairways eliminated the Voorhees Room. Because of the auditorium, several classrooms will be eliminated. Among them are the art rooms. They will be moved to the northeast part of the building as soon as the second story is completed.

The pressroom has been enlarged to make room for a second-hand press. The Times room, which now includes the Totem office, including Miss Fiedler's old room. The old Totem office was moved to permit space for the film office, headquarters of the visual education department.

The new Greeley Room has been moved farther north to make way for the new offices. In the new club room, a stage has been added, as well as a kitchenette, and another small room off both ends of the stage.

Ex-Archers Are Honored

Mary Anne Fishering and Margaret Nichols, ex-Archers, were honored at Lasell Junior College at Auburndale, Mass. Mary Anne was chosen as an attendant to the queen at a garden party at the college; she was also a speaker at the annual class night. Margaret read the class prophecy.

Alumni Attend Meeting

Virginia Fathauer, valedictorian of the class of '36, and Mary Jane Kelsey, '33, members of the Zeta Chapter of Delta Chi Sigma Sorority, attended a business meeting Monday, August 1, at the Young Men's Christian Association Building. The charity project discussed was how an emergency nursery school would improve the Neighborhood House.

Horn Reported Stolen

It was reported to the police by Robert Safer that a horn valued at sixty dollars was taken from the band room at South Side High School.

No Changes Made In Vocational Plans

Mr. R. Nelson Snider said there are to be no changes in the vocational plans of the home rooms. The safety lessons will be discussed on Fridays, and The Times will come out on Thursdays. Home room bulletins will be read every morning for the benefit of the students. Home room programs can be arranged by the teacher and pupils of the individual classrooms.

Miss Eleanor Smeltzly Visits Hawaii, Samoa, Fiji, Australia

"I like to travel. It is the most fascinating thing in my life."

This statement was made by Miss Eleanor Smeltzly, who recently returned from a 25,000 mile trip visiting Hawaii, Samoa, Fiji, New Zealand, and Australia. Miss Smeltzly, traveling with her sister, Miss Mary Catherine Smeltzly of Central High School, was routed

Sixteen Ex-Archers Bitten By Love Bug; Admit Using No Flit

An old saying that two can live as cheaply as one seems to be true. At least ten ex-archers and two teachers found it so.

Miss Virginia Montgomery and Miss Alice Patterson followed this maxim. Miss Montgomery formerly was in charge of the study hall and absent slips. Miss Patterson taught physical education until she resigned her position in 1937 to become head of the girls' athletic department at Ohio Wesleyan.

Among the Archer graduates that married are Gloria Baur, Ruth Cole, Virginia Crowdon, Marguerite Wyss, Josephine Kann, Gladys Beaver, Marjorie Homsher, Maxine Stratton, Colleen Sidell, Lieutenant Gibson Sisco, Suzanne Meyer, and George Wall. Mary Golden and Marjorie Pershing will wed this fall.

Three E's Have Meet August 24

Mae Persing Is Club's Hostess; Members Spend Day Boating, Swimming; Also Weiner Bake

An irregular meeting of Three E's, South Side's newest club, was held in the form of a picnic on Wednesday, August 24, at the cottage of Mae Persing, '38, on Blue Lake. Present were Miss Emma Kiefer, the club adviser, many '38 alumni, Betty Garton, Mae Persing, Marjorie Crago, Betty Pugh, Beatrice Fudge, Jack Horn, Dalton McAlister, and John McKay, and three '37 alumnae, Mary Ellen Kilpatrick, Rosemary Lehman, and Evelyn Kruse. Also there were two present senior members, Ruth Bade and Margaret Null, Mr. Benjamin Null, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Persing.

Starting about 1:30, the group traveled to Blue Lake and spent the afternoon swimming, boating, and canoeing. The only program was a short word game. A wiener bake was the feature of the evening.

Three E's is a club in which language and words are studied. It is open to students who have had two years of a language.

Grad Wins Tickets

In a recent Robert Taylor Hidden Title contest sponsored by the Journal-Gazette Want Ad Department, Arno Schelper, '38, was one of twenty-five winners. Arno received two guest tickets to be used at the Embroid Theater. The object of the contest was to find the hidden words of Robert Taylor's motion picture titles in the classified ads.

Scores Hole In One

Delbert Dickmeyer experienced the greatest thrill in golf June 22 at the Fort Wayne Country Club when he scored a hole in one on the 120-yard No. 3 hole. This spectacular shot was witnessed by Victor Nussbaum and Dick Means. Delbert and Victor are both graduates of South Side.

Students Attend Reunions

Several of our students have attended reunions throughout the year. Donna Colicho, a junior, attended a reunion at Pokagon State Park. Miss Edna Disler, '36, attended the Blood reunion and was elected secretary for the coming year. This reunion was held at Franke Park; Howard Blood, sophomore, also attended.

Miss Mary Helen Ley

by way of the Canadian Rockies, stopping at Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver, Seattle, Washington, down to San Francisco where they embarked on the S. S. Monterey.

To show the extensiveness of these sisters' travels, we find that they have visited every continent on the globe and many islands, have crossed the equator six times, the Arctic circle two times and the international boundary line four times.

Visits Hawaiian Paradise

"The first leg of our cruise," continued Miss Smeltzly, "was to Honolulu, the land of wonder, mystery, and romance. The lovely ukuleles, the hula dancers with their colorful leis, and the famous Royal Hawaiian Hotel furnish an unusual introduction to the lure of the Southern Seas."

"Then on to Pago Pago, the beautiful harbor of the Samoan Islands. In this city we visited the tomb of Robert Louis Stevenson, who came here to regain his health."

"Next we visited the Fiji Islands, once the land of cannibals but now a garden spot with gorgeous tropical flowers, fern trees forty feet high, native huts, and shops offering articles of lovely silver and tortoise to the travelers."

Crossing the equator offers the travelers the fun of being presented at court where King Neptune presides. Here Miss Smeltzly received another diploma to hang along side of her other six which she has received on past voyages, for crossing the equator and the Arctic circle.

On to New Zealand, the island of hot lakes and snow clad mountains that rival those of Switzerland. To show the expense of traveling in the countries we find that gasoline in Auckland sells for fifty cents a gallon, a drivers license costs fifteen dollars, and a small Ford costs $4,000.

"In Australia the people are very hospitable," remarked Miss Smeltzly. "They have a country larger than the United States with a population of six million people. English tea was served every afternoon. In Australia the 'milk bars' are quite popular. Here you can buy a large glass of milk for four pence. In this country most all of the people are employed working on roads and bridges."

Sees Sharks At Sidney

"Many beaches near Sidney cannot be used because of the man eating sharks in the water. I saw several of these large sharks. In Melbourne there is the finest race course which compares favorably with the one in Auckland."

"The schools of Sidney and Melbourne are very progressive. We visited many classes in the secondary schools and found that various methods were used. The students are all in uniform with separate schools for boys and girls. In Melbourne is located the National Museum of Australia. This museum is of international interest to all teachers of Ancient History."

Ex-Archer Given Honor

Margaret Spiegel, '32, was awarded membership as a life saving examiner and a water safety instructor by John E. Herndon, who conducted the course given by the American Red Cross this spring. Twenty-nine awards were given to other entries. Miss Spiegel is now an athletic instructor at North Side.

College Honors Ex-Archer

Georgianna Jacobs, a former South Side student, graduated with distinctive honor from Wittenberg College this spring. She illustrated a book of original poetry with her own drawings which was chosen as the best in the entire school. Georgianna is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

Archers Enter Derby

Five Archers, Jack Malkin, Dale Marschands, Cloyd Davis, Bob Ault, and Adrian Ramsey, entered the Soap Box Derby sponsored by the News-Sentinel. In the first heat Dale Marschands in class A was one of the twenty-nine boys to receive three silver dollars.

Players Elect Officers

Allen Collins, Miss Margery Suter, and Franklin Tooke were recently elected officer and board members of The Old Fort Players. Collins was elected second vice-president. Miss Suter will serve on the board for two more years, and Tooke will serve one more year.

Alumnus Wins Prize

Nelson Miller, '36, a Fort Wayne Art School student, was recently awarded the twenty-five dollar purchase prize by the Tri Kappa Sorority for the best painting of the year.

Two Ex-Archers Race With Owens

Dick Frazell, '38, Mark Gross, '34, Compete In Exhibitions Of Olympic Track Champion.

Dick Frazell, '38, and Mark Gross, '34, were pitted against Jesse Owens, Olympic world's champion runner and jumper, when Owens made his first public appearance in Fort Wayne August 15. These two boys, both good trackmen, together with alumni from North Side and Central raced against Owens in his exhibitions.

Dick Frazell has been one of the mainstays of the Archer track team for the last three years and is one of the fastest men in the state. Mark Gross, although not on a varsity track team at South Side, has made a name for himself while at Swarthmore College. Gross met Glickman of Syracuse, Owens' former teammate during the 1936 Olympic games, in the Penn A. C. meet, bettering his time in the same heat although he was eliminated by Peacock of Temple in the semi-finals of the 50-yard dash. Peacock was on the 1932 Olympic squad, but he missed the games in 1936 because of a tendon injury.

Chet Ensley, star Northwestern track man and a former Archer, was also expected to tangle with Jesse Owens but he was unable to compete because of a leg injury he suffered some time ago. Chet met Owens during the 1936 conference meets at Chicago and Ohio State University.

The other Fort Wayne stars pitted against Owens were Don Ormiston, K. Green and Rip Poorman from North Side; and Nate Buggs and Ray Varman from Central.

Operation Causes Death

Former South Side student, Joseph E. Brown, aged 21, died at an Indianapolis hospital in June. The death occurred while under an anesthetic given in a tonsil operation.

Mr. Brown played football at South Side, and later freshman football at Indiana University. He attended South Side before graduating from Shortridge High School, in Indianapolis.

Pupil Vacations At Lake

Virginia Hill, sophomore, spent the month of July at her family's cottage at Glen Lake near Traverse City, Michigan.

Grads Attend Camp

Miles Frisinger, '37, and Bud Brandt, '38, attended the C. M. T. C. camp this summer. Miles is now with the United States Army in Panama.

Eighth Periods Start On Monday Evening

Monday, September 12, eighth periods will go into effect. No exceptions will be made after this date for freshmen or any other students of the building.

Eighth periods are always assigned for disobeying South Side's rules except when given for the opportunity to make up work.

Eighth period sessions will be held in the study hall on the first floor. The assignments for eighth periods will be entirely up to the teachers giving them; they must be obeyed accordingly. Penalties for failing to report at eighth periods will also be assigned by the teacher giving the original assignment and will be from two days to a week or more.

Mr. Snider states that he does not like eighth periods but that punishment is needed and this procedure must be followed.

LeRoy Cook Is Presented With Trophy

Kenworthy Cup Given Boy Who Is Good Participant In Three Varsity Sports

LeRoy Cook, junior B, was the recipient of the Kenworthy Trophy presented by Joan Bonisob on Recognition Day last June. This trophy, given to a boy who is a very good participant in all three of the varsity sports but who does not have the opportunity to make the varsity squads in any of the sports, was awarded by Mr. Herbert Kenworthy, owner of the South Side Grill.

A committee composed of five members is to determine the winner of this trophy. Of the five members on this committee three must be teachers and two students. The teachers will be composed of the principal and two members of the school faculty which are chosen by the principal. The two students are to be the highest point holding members of The Times staff and a student of the opposite sex to be chosen by Mr. Snider. This year these two students were Dorothy Elfiner, The Times member, and John Hines, the student chosen by Mr. Snider. The winner of this award must be an outstanding participant in the three varsity sports, football, basketball and track, must have a good mental attitude as a South Side citizen and athlete, and must be a member of the classes here at school, must have the correct aggressive mental attitude, and when he is selected his playing ability is a minor consideration. No preference is given because of his advancement in school studies.

The public speaking department is to select the best speaker to present this trophy to the winner on Recognition Day. Joan Bonisob, chosen by Mrs. Herbert Rieke, made this presentation.

LeRoy's name will be engraved on the cup which will appear in the school trophy case. The awarding of the trophy will be continued in the years to come.

Hall Rules To Be Same As Before

Pupils Must Keep Out Of South End Of Building Until Construction Work Is Finished

All traffic and hall rules are to be exactly as they were last year with one exception. The new construction in the south end of the building will be shut off, and all students are asked to please keep out of that section. Pupils are asked to co-operate with the additional hall rules.

1. Pupils may enter the building when they arrive in the morning and are at liberty to go where they please until time for the first class.
- a. All teachers are responsible for orderly conduct on the part of pupils in any parts of the building.
2. No pupil is to be in the halls during a period without a hall pass, except as provided for the noon hour.

- a. Halls include locker rooms, gymnasium, ramps, etc.
- b. Pupils with hall passes must carry them where they can be seen.
- c. Hall passes.

- (1) Permanent hall passes will be issued only by Mr. R. Nelson Snider.
- (2) All hall passes must be issued by teachers.
- (3) Hall passes must be dated, tell where the pupil is going, and should give exact time of issuance.

3. Pupils who have the fourth period off are not permitted to enter the building during that hour. Classes will be in progress in the gym and elsewhere.
4. Pupils who go to the cafeteria during the fourth hour must remain there all period.

5. Pupils who have the fifth period off must remain in the gymnasium or room S during the entire period. Those entering the building during this period must come in the main north, east, or west doors to go to the gymnasium, and the main east or west doors to go to room S.

Faculty Take Trips, Work For Degrees In Summer Vacation

With summer drawing to a close, vacations end and the school term wings its way to the front again. Our teachers are home after returning from studies in various universities or travel throughout the world.

Miss Mabel Thorne and Miss Benah Rinehart studied in a geology camp in Colorado. Miss Thorne with the Misses Hazel Miller and Elizabeth Demaree also took a motor trip through West Virginia and Virginia. Among the points of interest which they visited were the National Bridge, Williamsburg, Jamestown, Yorktown, White Sulphur Springs, and Virginia Beach.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider remained in the city during the summer. Gertrude Oppelt taught Latin in the summer school course. Mr. E. S. Gould was a delegate of the National Education Association. Ora Davis spent much of the summer at Port Sheldon, Michigan.

A journey to Australia was the trip taken by Miss Eleanor Smeltz and her sister. One of the most extended trips was taken by Miss Elizabeth Kelly, who sailed from New York on June 24 via the Panama Canal to the western coast of South America. She flew over the Andes to Buenos Aires, taking the eastern coast route on her return trip.

Teachers who worked toward degrees included: Ernest L. Walker and the Misses Emma Kiefer and Gretchen Smith, Indiana University; Lucy Mellen and Mary Ley, Columbia University; Rose Mary Delancy, University of Colorado; Pearl Rehorth, Stout Institute of Home Economics; Olive Perkins, Middlebury College; Miss Margery Suter, University of Michigan; Stanley J. Post, Ball State Teachers College; Mary G. Pocock, University of Chicago; Erma Docherman, University of Minnesota.

South Side Boy Scouts Receive High Honors

Boy Scouts of the Anthony Wayne area were presented with merit badges and higher awards in a ceremony which was held on June 23 in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Star and life scout, junior assistant scoutmaster, and senior patrol leader awards were conferred.

Honored from South Side High School were Louis Swager and William Whetsel, who received star ratings.

Paul V. Noble and Jack Fyock of the Sea Scout ship Typhoon received seamanship and able seaman awards. Ten-year veteran citations were awarded to Robert F. Hirsch, William Whetsel, and Gerald Carr.

Merit badges were presented to John Davenport, of Troop 10; Don W. Greener, of Troop 14; William Whetsel, of Troop 26; Jack Fyock and Paul V. Noble, of the Sea Scout Ship Typhoon crew.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal of South Side High School, who is chairman of the committee on scout advancement, presided at the ceremony.

Dean Takes Care Of Lost And Found

Many valuables, especially money, are lost during the rush of the first day of school. Articles found are taken to the office of the dean, Miss Martha M. Pittenger. If someone loses something, his loss is reported to her. In many cases when a student loses something, he reports it and never returns to see if the article was brought to the office. Hence, the article is never claimed and Miss Pittenger must keep it in her office for an unnecessary period. All students are urged to use the lost and found department in reporting losses and inquiring as to whether they have been found.

G.A.A. Affords Sports Activity For New Girls

Prominent Organization Is Promoter Of Interest In Athletic Participation.

Variety Of Games Seen During Year

Speedball, Hockey, Volleyball, Basketball, Baseball Number Among Events.

For the past twelve years the Girls' Athletic Association has been the largest and one of the leading girls' organizations at South Side. During this time, living up to its purpose, the club has succeeded in promoting interest among the girls in wholesome gymnastic and athletic activities. It is with great pleasure at the beginning of this new semester that the club invites all freshman girls to help make this year as successful as all other years.

Activity and competition in all sports is after school on appointed days. Business meetings are called only at special occasions during the semester. The officers who were elected last spring preside at these meetings. Twenty-five points are subtracted from a member's total number if she fails to attend a business meeting.

Divided Into Squads

The girls taking part in each sport are divided into squads which are under the direction of a captain who takes charge of the score cards. All the activities are refereed by and under the supervision of student leaders.

A large variety of sports are offered by this organization, including speedball, hockey, volleyball, basketball, baseball, tumbling, track, and tennis. Added activities are swimming, hiking, and skating. Extra points are given for these provided a student leader accompanies the girl.

Before participating in these sports, all girls are required to pass a physical examination. No girl may be an active member of G. A. A. if she is not passing in all her subjects. As soon as her work is made up, she is again eligible for sports.

Use Point System

The association has a point system by which the members may gain various awards. The varsity letter S requires 1500 points; numerals require 300 points. The highest honor that a member may receive is to have her name placed on the G. A. A. plaque. To receive this distinction the girl must be a senior and have the highest number of points earned.

These awards are given at mid-semester services and at the G. A. A. breakfast. At mid-semester, serious services are held in the Greeley Room. The sportsmanship code is read at this service. The graduating seniors with the highest number of points are representative of the various sports, and are dressed accordingly. The president and the dean give short addresses after which Miss Smith awards the letters and Miss Dean the numerals. On Recognition Day, Miss Smith reveals the name of the senior girl whose name is to be placed on the plaque.

Many Events Planned

The biggest annual event of the club is the exhibition by the gym classes. All the work of this department is represented. The proceeds are used to carry on the work in the department, such as the buying of numerals and letters.

One of the last events of the year is the banquet. The officers, who are chosen by a ballot vote, are announced at this banquet.

These officers, who constitute the executive board, are the president, vice-president, secretary, manager of sports, and Inter-Club Congress representative.

Give G. A. A. Code

The following code is not in the constitution of the Girls' Athletic Association; nevertheless, it is the code and standard not only of the Girls' Athletic Association but of all the gym classes:

1. Thou shalt not alibi.
2. Thou shalt not quit.
3. Thou shalt not gloat over winning.
4. Thou shalt not be a rotten loser.
5. Thou shalt not ask odds thou art unwilling to give.
6. Thou shalt not take unfair advantage.
7. Thou shalt always be ready to give thy opponent the shade.
8. Thou shalt not underestimate thine opponent, nor overestimate thyself.

Viola Yanney, '38, Added To Office Staff

Viola Yanney, '38, has been working in the school office recently and will continue working there the rest of the school year. While a student of South Side, she was a member of the National Honor Society, G.A.A., Service, Totem, Travel, U.S.A. and Philaethian. She also has received many book keeping awards and two degrees in Sociology.

Principal Receives Number Of Cards From South Siders

During the past summer, Mr. R. Nelson Snider was frequently reminded of his many friends among the pupils and teachers of South Side by receiving postcards from them while on their vacations. The farthest place was represented by the country of Australia.

He also received cards from many parts of Southern and Northern Europe.

In the Western Hemisphere, cards were sent from Canada and portions of South America. A few cards hailed from the western and eastern coasts including the states of New York and California. The south was represented by Florida. Also cards were received from other numerous places in the United States and many lake resorts.

It looks as if the South Side Archers traveled very extensively during the past summer.

Remember, the game is the thing, and he who thinketh otherwise is a mocker and no true sportsman. 10. Honor the game thou playest, for she who playeth the game fast and hard wins even though she loses.

A book is kept in the office by a volunteer, a student leader, in which is kept the articles concerning the G. A. A. which have appeared in The Times. Any member can find this book on the rack.

At the end of the basketball season, honor teams representing the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes are chosen. These four teams then play for the basketball championship of the school.

Compile Sports Points

Points for the sports are compiled as follows: In speedball, volleyball, hockey, basketball, tumbling, and baseball, 100 points are awarded each girl provided she has not had more than one unexcused or two excused absences. In hiking, a point is awarded for each mile; swimming, one point for each ten lengths; and skating, one point for each hour. Track points are recorded as follows: five points or more compiled in the meet gives the person 100 points. Under five points and over a part of a point, the girl receives 50 points. All participants receive 25 points. Points in the track meet are compiled thus: first place in any event except the relay, five points; second place, three points; third place, one point. In case of a tie, the points are divided, except for first place, where each person receives four points.

Tennis points are recorded as follows: Each class champion receives 100 points; the runner-up, 75 points. In the doubles, the class champions each receive 75 points and the runner-up pair, 50 points each. Each person receives 25 points for participation.

Sisters Give Comedy

Winifred Myers and her sister, Marilyn, competed in an amateur contest held Thursday evening, August 11 in Churubusco. They put on a comedy act titled "Something Loose." The act proved successful and they came out in first place.

Bicycle Riders Are Requested To Follow Traffic Regulations

Due to the increase of bicycles used for riding to and from school in the past years, the serious problem of traffic safety has resulted. The rules to be observed when riding to school are as follows:

1. Observe the traffic signals. Stop at all stop streets and obey the overhead traffic lights.
2. Slow down for intersections even when there is no stop sign.
3. Ride single file and keep to the right.
4. Signal for turns.
5. Watch other traffic.
6. Bicycles should be equipped with a reflector and light for riding after dark.

The boys' parking lot entrance is at the southeast corner of the building and the girls' parking lot is at the northeast side of the building. Observe the rules at school which are:

1. Watch carefully for traffic when entering or leaving the parking lots. Auto traffic near the school is always heaviest when there is the most bicycle traffic. Stop before entering the street and signal when leaving the street.
2. Park as orderly as possible so that the other fellow will have a chance to park.
3. Keep your bike locked.
4. Do not park your bicycle at school except on one of the lots provided for that purpose. Parking on private property or on sidewalks is forbidden.

Bicycle permits are issued to all riders at the beginning of the second week of the semester. The time and place will be announced in the bulletin. All riders must have new cards each year signed by Mr. Flint.

Archers Spend Time At Limberlost Camps

June Flaig, Lucy Smith, Vincent Bacon, Bob Allen, John Lyons, Mack Artick, Erlene Lee, Laurence Phipps, Don Burns, George Strahlem, and Paul Brown represented South Side at the Limberlost Camps this summer.

Most of the campers studied music. Other subjects were offered, however, such as dramatics, dancing, and academic subjects, for which credit is given.

On the many acres which belong to the camp is also situated a camp farm. Almost all the fresh food eaten in camp is grown on this farm. The camp was originally established for band and orchestra study by Mr. J. W. Wainwright, South Side's music director.

Former South Sider Is Life Insurance Winner

Jessie Ellen Zollars, former South Side student, took first place in the "Best for a Billion" campaign conducted during May by the home office employees of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company. The object of the contest was to have a billion dollars of life insurance in force by the Fort Wayne company before the end of this year. Jessie Ellen, of the accounting department, was one of the three winners who received trophies.

High School Students Playing At State Fair

Fort Wayne high school band and orchestra members are playing in the Hoosier Music Festival held September 3-9 at the Indiana State Fair. Frederick E. Green, director of Indiana University band and the Hoosier Music Festival, wrote to Jack Wainwright, asking him to select a number of his leading musicians for the festival group. He also wrote to Gaston Bailhe and Varner Chance of Central and North Side respectively.

A band and orchestra will be assembled from high school players throughout the state. The musicians will appear daily on the Indiana University stage program and at the evening horse show. An opportunity to participate under conductors of notable records will be given to the high school musicians. Three scholarships to the Indiana University school of music will be awarded on the basis of proficiency shown during the program. While at the fair, meals and lodging will be provided for the members.

Students At South Side Participate In Recitals

During the summer many students from South Side participated in piano recitals. Those who acted in the Verweire recital were Allison Arnold and Neoma Klahn. Students who took part in Miss Ruth E. Castle's recital were Ione Jean Tracht, Ada Baumgartner, and Richard Strasburg. Lois Gumpfer appeared in Miss Betty Newman's recital this summer. Piano students who appeared in Fred G. Church's recitals were Calvin Schultz, Clifford Watson, John Chedester, and Everett Trulock. Reginald Gerig, '37, is now a music teacher; Reginald presented a recital this summer.

Archers Appear On Youths' Page

Viola Yanney, Sarah Makey, Bob Robinson, Clarence Jackson, Lynn Harville Publish Items.

During the past summer months our school has been justly represented on the Youth's Passing Show page in the News-Sentinel due to the fact that many headings mentioning South Side and its students appeared.

Bob Robinson published an article telling how a group of Algebra 2 classmen, by a bit of trigonometry, figured the height of South Side's smokestack. A picture accompanying this article showed Bob Hines, Ralph Saalfrank, Richard Dosch, Safford McMyler, and Bob York measuring with their instruments.

Viola Yanney wrote a vocational article on I Will Become—Her lengthy column was devoted to stenography. Viola told many responsibilities of stenographers and of her many plans to become an important asset to her place of business.

Another Archer product was Lynn Harville's poem, "How Long," expressing the horrors of war.

An article was published by Sarah Jane Makey about the Girl Scout Day Camp at Foster Park. Sarah Jane also told of the girls' handicraft abilities. A picture showing the girls at work sewing and weaving appeared with the article.

Clarence Jackson published an article praising the state of Indiana and urging people to learn the beauties of our state. His article brought out deeply the good of conservation projects and nature.

Extemp Cup Donated By Dalton McAlister

Dalton McAlister, former star speaker of South Side, has donated an Extemporaneous Speaking Cup to the speech department. The cup is to replace the extemp cup Dalton won for the third time last year, thus gaining permanent possession of it.

Winners of the South Side Extemporaneous Speaking Contest will have their names engraved on the cup, and if they win the contest three times they will also gain permanent possession of the cup.

The Extemp contest is held every semester under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke, public speaking instructor.

Sing Is Held

Approximately two thousand persons gathered together on June 22 in South Side High School's stadium for Fort Wayne's first community sing. It was under the leadership of the Fort Wayne Walther League.

A mass chorus of 500 Lutheran choral singers, under the direction of George G. Arkebauer, led in the various selections. A brief concert was given by the News-Sentinel Boys' Band, under the direction of John L. Verweire.

School Graduates Ex-Archers

Marjorie Dancer, a former South Side student, was one of the eight pupils to be graduated from the Fort Wayne Art School.

Y. W. C. A. Honors Counselors

Miss Hazel Miller, Beth Ellen Chadwick, Lillian Sherbondy, and Lorain Iba, counselors at the Happy Time Camp this summer, were honored at a picnic given by the Y. W. C. A. and West Side Committee.

Will Not Return

Mr. Maurice Tudor

Because of illness, Mr. Maurice Tudor, former South Side social science instructor, will not return to teaching this fall as was expected. He is now a patient in the World War Veterans' Hospital at Marion, Ind.

School Physicians Are Reappointed

Dr. Duemling Is Chosen Chief
For Sixth Consecutive Year; Same Staff Members Named.

Dr. Werner W. Duemling, prominent Fort Wayne physician, was appointed chief of the school physicians for the sixth consecutive time at a meeting of the school board. Seven other staff members and substitutes who served this past year were also reappointed.

Soph Views Places Of Interest In Ohio On Summer Travels

Dick Stevenson, now a sophomore, has had a big summer, for he has seen some of our greatest resources while vacationing.

While traveling, Dick stopped at Toledo, Ohio, where he was able to stay, spending a bit of leisure time investigating items of interest. Dick seemed very excited about one particular incident he saw at Toledo, by the postcard he wrote home. He sent back this statement: "I am in Toledo and have been taking in all the ball games." It seems that Dick really liked the ball games, and why shouldn't he from the best grandstand in the country? From this grandstand, Dick saw the Toledo Mudhens and St. Paul play with equal skill and learned that Chet Libbs, formerly of the Tigers, is now with the Mudhens. At one game he saw Bob Harris in the American Association pitch a three-hit game. Also Bob Harris and Bud Parmelee, best pitcher of the American Association, play together.

Moving eastward and following Lake Erie, Dick arrived at Sandusky, Ohio, where he sent back this statement: "I am at the largest lake resort on the Great Lakes." And this largest lake resort is none other than Cedar Point on Lake Erie. Dick stayed here at a large hotel.

Eight Home Games Listed On Green's Gridiron Schedule

Archer Squad Will Confront Tough Season

Mishawaka To Be Replaced By Bryan, Ohio In This Year's Southern Clashes

To See Two Road, Eight Home Tilts

Washington Of South Bend Is Slated As First Foe; Game To Be September 10

South Side's 1938 grid squad this autumn faces the toughest gridiron schedule in the history of Green and White football. The Archers have a distinct advantage, however, in that eight of their ten game schedule will be played on home territory.

One new team, Bryan, Ohio, has been placed on this year's schedule and lurks as the unknown quantity in this season's gridiron warfare. Mishawaka is the school that gave way to enable Bryan to take its place on the Archer "suicide" schedule. With the addition of Bryan to the schedule, the new Archer coach, Bill Moss, and his charges will meet two Ohio teams, Bryan and Woodward of Toledo, which comprises all the out-of-state competition the Green wave will encounter.

Much Competition
Toughest competition, however, will be supplied by Indiana teams. Peru, undefeated during the '37 season, Michigan City, Washington of South Bend, and Laporte appear to be the toughest of the out of city invaders. Coach Moss and his potential "giant killers" will, of course, take on the three other city grid squads, North Side, Central, and Central Catholic. Of these three, North Side's Redskins, undefeated and untied last season, look to be by far the toughest, but Central's fighting Tigers and the Irish of Central Catholic should never be overlooked.

Schedule Well Arranged
The schedule, however, is arranged in a manner to enable a hard working team to show improvement. In their first game the Archers will travel to South Bend to take on a tough Washington outfit. This game should point out the weak points in the Green attack and defense. The next game will be played at the Southern stadium against Woodward of Toledo. The Archers then go on their last road trip of the season giving them the advantage of playing their last seven games at home. Bryan will be their opponents in this second out of town game. South Side will then meet Peru, Michigan City, Froebel of Gary, Central Catholic, North Side, Laporte, and Central at home to conclude their season. The schedule gives the Archers a fine chance to make a good showing in city series race as all three city teams will be played at the end of the season, giving the Archers a chance to gain much needed experience.

Faces Inexperienced Squad
Coach Bill Moss must face this opposition with a comparatively inexperienced Archer squad. However some of the newer candidates are showing promise and if they develop as expected, South Side should at least be able to hold its own on the gridiron this fall. Some of the boys who looked good in early practice sessions are Moorhead, Merchant, Cook, Keller, Welborn, Saalfrank, Biedenweg, and Goddard.

The season football schedule for 1938 is as follows:
September 10—Washington of South Bend, there.
September 17—Woodward of Toledo, here.

September 23—Bryan, Ohio, there.
October 1—Peru, here.
October 8—Michigan City, here.
October 15—Froebel of Gary, here.
October 22—Central Catholic, here.
October 28—North Side, here.
November 5—Laporte, here.
November 12—Central, here.

G.A.A. Alumni Spent Gay Summer Months Visiting Near Lakes

G. A. A. alumni spent their vacations in many different and interesting ways. Although the lakes were the biggest attractions, many went on trips and, in general, they had a very good time. When interviewing the following girls these were the answers received.

Maxine Morrison: I saw Rudy Vallee in Chicago; I also visited in Bloomington. The rest of the time I stayed home and loafed.

Doris Windhorst: I didn't go any place; had too much company at home. Irene Neimeyer: I started my beauty course at Betty Jean School of Beauty and spent my spare time at Lake James and Tri-Lakes.

Mary Beth LaFever: I spent most all of the time at Lake James and Upper Sandusky and of course I swam a lot.

Helen Meese: I spent most of the time at Lake Wawasee, Rome City, and spent the rest of the time reading and sewing.

Wiladean Lorts: I played a lot of tennis and spent most of the summer in Michigan and at Six Lakes, Lake James and at my grandparents.

Marjorie Crago: I played a lot of tennis. I visited in Chicago where I saw the Ritz Brothers on the stage. I also went to Hamilton Lake and Blue Lake.

Ruth Siefert: I spent most of the summer at Lake James; I also stayed at Tri-Lakes a week and visited relatives in Coldwater, Michigan.

Betty Eisenacher: Just to be different I went to Crooked Lake and played very little tennis. I spent most of the time organizing a baseball team.

Katherine MacGinnitie: I did very little visiting, just played tennis, swam, and worked.

Anita Affolder: I didn't do much of anything except go to Concordia College and Crooked Lake.

LaVern Fries: I yelled most of the summer for the Cleveland Indians. I also played tennis, swam and went to Bear Lake.

Friddle Teaches Coaches' Classes

Archer Mentor Is Invited To Be Instructor Of Basketball At Alabama From August 25-27

As the result of directing one of the most successful coaching schools ever held in Fort Wayne, Coach Burl Friddle was invited by Frank Thomas, of the University of Alabama to direct a school being held there August 25-26-27.

Opening on August 8, the Fort Wayne coach school was attended by approximately fifty students representing eleven states. Wolf and Desauter, sponsor of the program, made it one of unusual interest by obtaining Frank Thomas of Alabama and Nat Holman of New York.

Coach Thomas brought with him Drew, his line coach and Bryant, his freshman coach. Others participating in the meetings were Karl Huffine, Hammond football coach, and Gunnar Elliott and Walter Geller, who led a discussion of new rules.

Two games were directly featured by the school, the basketball game, South Side vs Hammond at North Side, August 9, and the football game, Hammond vs a Fort Wayne all-star team and a Peru all-star team, August 11. The South Side basketball team, as a result of a two point loss at the hands of the Hammond five, traveled to Hammond to gain a two point victory over their hosts. Traveling homeward the ex-Archers stopped at Elkhart long enough to win again by the narrow margin of two points over an Elkhart team. The basketball team was coached by Burl Friddle, while the all-star Peru and Fort Wayne teams, which were defeated by a very strong Hammond team, were coached by Bob Nulf of North Side.

Burl Friddle

Coaches Burl Friddle, South Side, and Frank Thomas, Alabama University, conducted two very successful basketball and football coaching schools this summer. One was held in Fort Wayne, August 8-13, the other in Alabama, August 25-27.

Skirts and Sports

Here's a hearty welcome to all freshmen planning to join G. A. A. We're sure you'll enjoy participating in its many activities. Take the advice of the old and wizard athletes and start right out to earn points for your letter by entering the tennis tournament this month.

Surprise of the summer!! Miss Alice Patterson's marriage. Our well-liked G. A. A. ex-adviser has at last plunged into the deep sea of matrimony. We'd like to take this opportunity to offer our sincere congratulations and best wishes for her future luck and happiness.

Proving the fact that tennis is a favorite with many G. A. A.ers, our former president, Betty Eisenacher, who was voted best girl athlete of the senior class, and her partner who was also outstanding last year, Mary Ellen Blauvelt, that well-known sophomore Jeanne Smith with Marian Fautz, our own vice-president Betty Showalter, Charlotte DuWan, and Alice Sweet, were all seen taking part in the tennis tournaments at Weisser Park.

We're all expecting a very successful season in G. A. A. under our new leaders, Hazel Perry and Betty Showalter. Everyone knows that they are super athletes and grand kids, and we wish them all the luck in the world.

Wilma Carrier, senior G. A. A.er, is back from her visit to Los Angeles, California, and appears to be all hardened up for another strenuous season in the old gymnasium.

The deep blue waters of Pretty Lake lured our little junior Audrey Hall there for a week this summer.

Velma Lehman, musical senior, who has played lilting melodies for three years for dancing members of G. A. A., was recently seen "swinging it" at Tri-Lakes along with Marjorie Quackenbush.

Miss Gretchen Smith recently made an interesting trip from Detroit by water through the Great Lakes to Duluth and back.

Miss Alice Dean, our other instructor, spent the summer in North Manchester.

Marion Feichter and Axel Bridges, junior athletes, have become ping pong fiends. Latest reports were that a furious battle is still raging between the two with the aid of an innocent little white ball and two wooden paddles. Friends fear that this may develop into a duel with cream puffs at fifty paces as the terrifying ultimatum.

For the benefit of the freshmen and those upperclassmen who seem to forget, a small green box is placed on the south wall of the G. A. A. office for the purpose of interesting notes concerning fellow G. A. A.ers. These notes are very much appreciated and we'd like to have the box full every week!

G.A.A.'ers Plan Active Season

Tennis, Speedball, Hockey, Volleyball And Basketball To Be Major Activities.

Again this year, the Girls' Athletic Association is looking forward to a successful season. Many activities are scheduled, and in a few weeks the sports will get off to a great start.

The first sport is tennis, and every G. A. A.er is urged to get her racket swinging. Champions of last year will be back to defend their titles. They are Gene Porter, Betty Showalter, Dorothy Spillner, and Jeanne Smith. Many other players will be out for this sport to give these girls plenty of competition. These matches are all played at Weisser Park.

Speedball For Frosh
Then comes the speedball for the freshmen and hockey for the upperclassmen. These games are played on the south field. Volleyball, always a favorite with the girls, is next in line. Two courts are erected on the gym floor. Freshmen as well as upperclassmen compete in this sport.

The sport, that perhaps is the outstanding favorite of all the girls, is basketball. Class tournaments are held, which makes the play even more exciting.

Following basketball comes tumbling, the up-and-down sport. Those that can tumble fairly well attend the advanced classes, while the beginning tumbler join the beginners' class. In this sport, girls find great enjoyment working out various pyramids, etc., for the exhibition.

Baseball In South Field
Next in the line of activity comes baseball. Four games at a time are usually played on the south field. The girls always find baseball a popular sport, for so many of the games prove to be real battles. South Side girls are real hitters, and very seldom does a game pass without at least one home run.

Track is the last major sport. Outdoor and indoor events are held. Every year, former records are broken, which again shows the ability of our G. A. A.ers.

Besides, by entering the major events, girls may earn points by hiking, skating, and swimming. Participation in these minor activities has helped many a girl earn her varsity letter. This proves that these sports are really quite important.

The above sports represent a lot of fun for all the members of G. A. A. Last year the membership was 400, the largest in the history of the club.

G. A. A. Girls Invite Freshmen To Join

Dear Freshman Girls,
May we introduce to you the largest club in South Side, our Girls' Athletic Association? This club is really swell, and provides a good road to a healthy body. Any member can tell you what a good time you can have in it. Last year, we had 400 members.

We have many activities. A variety of sports is offered, besides social functions. Tennis is the first sport you can enter. This gives you a rousing start toward your letter and uniforms. It's so much fun earning these awards, and also a lot of fun to wear them. During the year you may then enter speedball, volleyball, basketball, baseball, tumbling, track, and the swimming meet. You can also earn points by hiking or skating. A fast game of basketball or an exciting game of baseball is certainly a grand way to end your school day. But to be a member, you do not have to enter every sport.

Then we have many other good times together. We have a Halloween party, an annual breakfast, and a banquet. A play day is also held with the members of Central's and North Side's G. A. A.

If you think you would enjoy this sort of activity along with your other school work, we extend to you a very cordial invitation to join us.

Sincerely yours,
G. A. A. Members.

New Track Coach

—Courtesy of The News-Sentinel
George Collyer

George Collyer, formerly boys' athletic instructor at the Harrison Hill Grade School, will take over the duties of head track coach next spring, succeeding Lundy Welborn. Mr. Collyer has also been appointed assistant football coach; he will teach history while at South Side.

Student Aids To Help In Girls' Gym Classes

Members of gym classes and of the G. A. A. will act as Student Leaders again this year. The student leader group is purely an extra-curricular activity in which all the work is done by volunteers.

These volunteers meet with the advisors, Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Dean, in the fall. Each has an interview with one of the teachers to determine qualities of leadership. This group meets every Tuesday after school. The object is to train in athletics, and to show the girls how to present work to others. A special notebook is required for the work.

The Student Leaders help in affairs of the gym department and in the arranging of programs. They keep up the appearance of shower rooms and lockers and look after all equipment.

George Collyer Is New Track Coach

Will Also Be Assistant Football Mentor; Takes Place In Faculty As History Teacher.

George S. Collyer, former basketball and track coach at Harrison Hill Grade School, has been appointed to fill the position of head track mentor which was vacated by Lundy Welborn. Aside from his duties as varsity track coach, Mr. Collyer has been named assistant football coach to aid the new grid mentor, Bill Moss, in developing the 1938 Archer grid squad. Collyer will take his place in the South Side faculty as a history teacher.

Mr. Collyer came to Fort Wayne from Knightstown where he had taught school for a period of eight years. He received his A.B. degree from Butler University and later secured his M.A. from Indiana University. Collyer came to Harrison Hill to fill the vacancy created when Maurice Tudor joined the ranks of the South Side faculty.

The position of track coach at South Side is a new one which was made possible by Lundy Welborn's resignation in order to accept a full-time teaching job. It is also the first time in the history of the school that an assistant grid mentor has been appointed.

Football Squad Gains New Grid Equipment

When South Side's football squad starts their campaign this fall they will receive new equipment from Mr. McClure and Mr. Murch, who are to be in charge of it this season.

Six new footballs will be brought into play, one at each home game this season. Although the players are using reconditioned shoes for practice, new shoes will be given out when the games start. Approximately six dozen T shirts of the same style used last year were purchased before practice started. Old helmets and shoulder pads have also been reconditioned for the seasonal battles.

With the expectation of a bigger squad, more showers have been installed in the main shower room.

Bolyard Pitches No-Hitter

Bob Bolyard of the Weisser Wolves, pitched a no-hit game against the Broadway Furniture players. Two walks and an infield play gave the losers their only run in the first inning. The Wolves won 15-1. In another game between the Wolves and the All-Stars, Bob struck 10 batters and allowed only three hits to win, 5-2. In the last game Bob also hit a home run.

Bill Moss Will Succeed Lundy Welborn As Grid Coach

New Mentor Is To Handle Archer Squad

Native Of Jasonville; Hails From Benton Harbor; Indiana University Grad.

Has Fine Record In Football Action

Recipient Of 1929 Gimbel Award; 9 Years Count In Coaching Experience

William Moss, coming to this city from Benton Harbor, Michigan, where he has coached for the past two years, has been named the new South Side football mentor. He will succeed Lundy Welborn, who resigned in order to take over a full coaching assignment at South Side. Welborn has coached Archer grid squads for the past twelve years.

Moss was graduated from Indiana University in 1929. While at Indiana, he played first string tackle under Pat Page, former gridiron coach. Moss was also a wrestler while at Indiana and developed into one of the best mat men in the Big Ten.

Coach Moss is a native of Jasonville, Indiana. He was graduated from Jasonville High School in 1925. Four years later Moss was graduated from Indiana University, having secured his A. B. degree. He received his M. S. degree from Indiana this year.

Director At Bloomfield

Moss's first assignment after college graduation was that of athletic director at Bloomfield High School where he remained for a period of two years. He then became grid mentor of Elkhart High School eleven and held this position until 1934. From Elkhart, Coach Moss went to Moline, Illinois, where he served as athletic director for two years. In 1936 he accepted a coaching position in Benton Harbor, Michigan, where he remained until coming to South Side.

On August 15 Moss officially took over the coaching of the Archer squad and found himself confronted with an almost impossible problem to solve. He found an inexperienced grid squad which he must develop into a team which faces a "suicide" schedule during his first year as varsity coach. He learned that last year's Archer varsity had managed to win only one game on its ten game schedule and that only two first-string players were to return this year. In spite of these odds, he is doing a fine job of developing tough but inexperienced boys into a smooth working grid machine.

Excellent Leader

Moss has proved himself to be an excellent leader of boys, being firm in his desire to have winning ball clubs, good sportsmanship, and excellent character. He is six feet, two inches tall and weighs 210 pounds. He has a dynamic personality which enables him to put the necessary fight and fire into a football team. While in high school and college, Coach Moss captained football eleven and in 1929 was awarded the Jake Gimbel award for scholarship and mental attitude in athletics.

Moss has a fine record of nine years of successful coaching experience to his credit and should prove a tonic to South Side football. His first year charges are light but fast which is the exact reverse of the situation as it existed last season. Moss has been working with the Archer hopefuls each morning and afternoon in order to supply the experience and the fight, badly needed by his green gridders. While at South Side, Moss will join the faculty as a history and social science instructor.

Waveland Snider To Train Trojans

Former South Side Basketball Star New Coach At Elmhurst; Successor To Dewight Byerly.

Paul Haller, principal of Elmhurst High School, announced this summer that Waveland Snider, former South Side High School and Manchester College net star, will direct the basketball destinies of the Elmhurst Trojans next season. Snider succeeds Dewight Byerly as coach of the Trojans. Elmhurst has been a strong contender in county and sectional cage tournaments, and Snider's appointment will probably help them against teams of this section.

Snider was quite successful coaching basketball at Chubbuck last year. His team won fourteen out of eighteen ball games. Chubbuck was also in the sectionals at Columbia City.

Snider was graduated from South Side in 1933. He is well versed in the game having been a star for J. H. McClure and his Archers. Snider was also one of the top scorers for the Manchester Spartans under Coach Carl Burt. He graduated from college in 1937.

Archers Win, Lose Net Tilts With Wildcats

Graduate Champs Play Return Game With Former Foe; Two Points Decide.

Undaunted by summer heat, basketball again came to the front this summer to provide two thrillers between the best of 1938, South Side's powerful Archers and a fighting Wildcat five from Hammond. The first of these games, held in connection with Burl Friddle's summer coaching school, was staged at the North Side gymnasium on August 9. The second was a return game played at Hammond.

In the first of the games a last-minute long toss by Yablowski with the score tied 19-19 gave Hammond a two-point victory margin and revenge for its defeat last spring at the hands of the Archers with the state championship at stake.

Hammond Wins First

Johnny Hines opened the scoring for the Archers with a long fielder; but Sobek, all-state Hammond guard, promptly hit two from well underneath to give the Wildcats a lead they never gave up. The first half ended with the visitors out in front 9-4.

The third quarter was a ragged affair, with neither team playing anything like the brand of ball that carried them to the state finals last March. Frank Belot, Archer forward, pushed in three fielders to put the Green and White once again in the thick of the battle. Hines banged under to score and tie it up at 19-all. With only three seconds to play Yablowski let one fly from the center giving Hammond the winning points. The final score was 21-19.

Archers Win Second

The State Champs immediately challenged the Wildcats to a game to be played the following week at Hammond. The challenge was accepted and this time the Archers were victorious, again by a two-point margin 25-23. Dale Hamilton, All-State Archer forward, led the Green, scoring nine points. Sobek, as usual, led the Wildcats, scoring twelve points, eight of which were from the foul line.

The Archers were forced to play without the services of Bolyard and Jim Glass, who will return to South Side again this fall. Hammond's attack suffered the loss of Hassie and Ziemba, who also are juniors.

Paul Dammeier Wins Title Of Singles Champ

Paul Dammeier, an Archer net star, won the junior boys' singles tennis tourney, held at Weissler Park this summer. Paul captured the junior boys' singles title by defeating Raymond Hoffman 6-4, 1-6, 7-9, 6-4, and 6-4. Both boys have met in the finals of numerous tourneys, with Paul usually winning in the final stages of the matches. Paul was a star player on our varsity tennis players last year.

Wildcat Squad Is Triumphant In Grid Clash

Former Fort Wayne, Peru Stars Lose Football Tilt To Hammond Eleven, 13-0

A crowd of 2,000 saw Hammond's mythical state championship football team defeat a team composed of former Peru and local ex-high school stars by a score of 13-0. The contest was a feature of the coaching school conducted by Burl Friddle and took place on August 11 at North Side field. Plenty of thrills and rugged playing marked the tilt from beginning to end.

The ex-Wildcats scored once against the Fort Wayne lineup and once against Peru. The first score came shortly after the opening kickoff. Hammond received, failed to gain and punted to Boedeker, who ran the ball back to Fort Wayne's 43-yard line. On the first play attempted by Fort Wayne, Cronkite fumbled and Hammond recovered on the 39-yard line. Two plays netted only 2 yards for Hammond, but on the third, Papais from a reverse off-tackle slant to the left, went through a big hole, reversed his geld once through the line and raced 37 yards for a touchdown. The kick for the extra point was blocked. Hammond kicked off and after an exchange of punts, Golden recovered a fumble by Hammond on their own 20-yard line and a penalty for off side put the ball on the 15-yard stripe. From this point a new team was sent in for Hammond. Three passes from a spread formation with Yarnman doing the hurling, were knocked down, and the ball was left on the 15-yard line as the quarter ended.

Peru's team took up the battle at this stage but lost the ball on an attempted pass. The play was rough in the second quarter, and Peru drew a penalty of 20 yards for clipping. On the last play of the half, Inhat, Hammond half, intercepted a pass on his own 35-yard line and ran 65 yards down the side lines for a touchdown. Navalich, Hammond left end, booted the ball squarely between the goal posts for the extra point and Hammond led 13 to 0 at half time.

Fort Wayne took the field at the start of the third quarter. Most of the playing was done at midfield in this quarter. Celarek got off several good kicks for Fort Wayne. The only real threat made into Hammond territory was when Stackler intercepted a pass on their 30-yard line.

Peru started the last quarter against Hammond. Hammond drove to Peru's 19-yard line with Papais and Inhat doing most of the ball carrying. Capello recovered a Wildcat fumble and Peru made two first downs with some fine ball carrying by Kincaid and Kelly. In the late minutes of the game Peru tried to score by filling the air with passes, but the Hammond secondary knocked down all attempts, and the game ended with the ball in Peru's possession on Hammond's 48-yard line.

The Fort Wayne-Peru combination gained 46 yards in running plays against 75 yards for Hammond. The Wildcats made three first downs while their opponents made two. The Fort Wayne-Peru team threw ten passes, making one good for eight yards; Hammond passed once for a seven-yard gain. Hammond was penalized 30 yards and the Fort Wayne-Peru team 10 yards.

Score by quarters:
Hammond 6 7 0 0—13
Fort Wayne 0 0 0 0—0
Scoring: Touchdowns—Navalich (place kick).
Point after touchdown—Navalich (place kick).

During the summer months, little Henry Armstrong has achieved immortal fame in the boxing world by becoming the first man to ever hold three world's championships at the same time. He defeated Barney Ross in the welterweight division and Lou Ambers in the lightweight adding these two to the featherweight title which he already held. He is however expected to give up the featherweight crown when asked to defend it.

The New York Yankees seem to be headed for another American League pennant, as they lead the second place Boston Red Sox by twelve games. The Cleveland Indians, who paced the league until recently, have slipped into third place due to the collapse of their pitching staff which put them fourteen games out of first place. In the National league, the Pittsburgh Pirates have a lead of four and one-half games over the New York Giants with the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago Cubs tied for third place, six and one-half games behind the leader.

Hank Greenberg, slugging first baseman of the Detroit Tigers, needs only eighteen more home runs to break the major league record set by Babe Ruth a few years back. He is almost certain to break it as there are over thirty games left to play.

Rookie Johnny Vander Meer did the impossible this summer by pitching two no hit-no run games in succession. He is in a hospital at present resting up after he failed to show up as good as expected after his great feat.

This year's Davis Cup team will be made up of Don Budge, Bobby Riggs, Gene Mako, and Joe Hunt. Budge and Mako are veterans of last year's Davis Cup.

Moss Schedules Early Workouts

New Mentor Calls Out Gridsters August 15; Nulf, Mendenhall Start Practice Much Later.

South Side has the advantage over the other three Fort Wayne high schools this year as far as early football goes, as the Kelly Klads started their grid practices toward the middle of August, while the other squads did not get out until a later date.

North Side's gridders began their work August 30 this year. Seventy of North Side's most promising football candidates responded to Bob Nulf's call, and have been training between two and three hours a day. Bob is expecting to have a pretty good eleven this year as he has fifteen lettermen returning from last year.

Coach Murray Mendenhall and his assistant Bob Dornie are gradually working their fighting Central Tigers into form. As twelve lettermen are returning this year, both coaches expressed their opinions that Central would have a banner year in football. Murray had between 100 and 150 boys reported at Central at the first practice, August 30. Murray keeps the boys in practice between two and three hours a day, and as things look now, it seems that Central is going to put up a pretty tough fight for the City Crown.

Fun Furnished For Freshmen In Club Work

Twelve Archer Organizations With Different Interests Open To Freshmen

Numerous opportunities in the field of extra-curricular activities are offered the South Side freshmen. Although some clubs require a specified amount of work, there are many organizations that are open, with only slight restrictions to freshman B students.

These organizations will be resumed immediately and will continue throughout the school year. The Times and daily bulletins will announce the first meetings, at which time detailed information will be issued.

Wranglers For Orators
The South Side Wranglers Club, which is based upon the sole resolution of encouraging and promoting public speaking, is open to all freshmen. However, a student must be a participant in the Freshman-Sophomore Speech Contest to be eligible for membership.

Any student with a reasonable amount of journalistic ability is eligible to the South Side Times. This is a weekly school publication which has brought much honor to South Side. To be successful in Times work, one must possess an unusual amount of ambition and patience. Staff positions are granted according to merit.

For girls of the freshmen and sophomore B classes, who take an interest in literature, the Meterite Club is exceptional. The purpose of the organization is to create a desire for good literature. Any girl is eligible, providing her English grade is B or above, and if she is not failing in any subject.

Any South Side student who is interested in puppets is welcomed to the Marionette Club. This is a successful member, one must have skilled hands along with artistic and dramatic ability, ambition and patience.

Torch Invited Freshmen
A club of unusual interest to freshmen and sophomore boys is the Torch Club, which is a Y. M. C. A. organization. The purpose of this group is to develop high standards of Christian leadership and character. The members of this club strive to render service to the community as well as to the school.

Unity, Service, and Appreciation are the ideals of the Girl Reserve Club which is for the benefit of freshmen and sophomore girls. This organization receives its inspiration from the Y. W. C. A. Each semester the club performs a particular service project.

For those students who are interested in parliamentary procedure, the Forum Club is open for membership. The purpose of this group is to make known the need of parliamentary rule and create a public interest in the same.

Any girl taking home economics is eligible to be a member of Wo-Ho-Ma Club. The purpose is to train girls to be efficient leaders in school, home, and community activities, and to promote a greater interest in home making.

Musicians Welcomed
Included in the music department of South Side are the band, orchestra, and Glee Club, to which any student is eligible. These organizations are to instruct students who wish personal aid. This department furnishes music for athletic contests, pep sessions, assemblies, and various occasions during the school year.

The Sunshine Club is open to all South Side girls. The principle object of the members is to be helpful to others. Each year the group aids the Anti-Tuberculosis League by folding Christmas Seals. It also contributes a fund to the Riley Hospital.

Art Club, which is open to any student, is for the purpose of developing an appreciation of beauty and to create an interest in art. Each year the group sponsors a sale of articles which are made in the club.

The Girls Athletic Association was organized for the purpose of furthering an interest in gymnastics. All high school girls are eligible to sign up for any sport they desire. The sports that are offered are tennis, speedball, hockey, basketball, volleyball, baseball, tumbling, dancing, and swimming.

Sports For Boys
Intramural sports, which are open to all classes, appeal to most boys. Tag football, cross country, tennis, golf, basketball, wrestling, bowling, boxing, handball, foul throwing, volleyball, baseball, track, and horse-shoes are offered.

Travel Club is one of the most interesting of the extra-curricular activities. The purpose is to further knowledge of its members for travel and to extend international good will through an understanding of the environment and social life of foreign peoples.

The Philatelic Society is open for membership to any student or faculty member who is interested in any phase of philately.

South Side boasts a boys and a girls Rifle Club, both of which admit membership to any student.

For any student interested in the construction and flying of model airplanes, the Airplane Club has been organized.

The Junior Math Club, which is open to freshmen or sophomores, is to give students information on the practical application of mathematics and science.

Archers Travel, Give Teas, Visit Lakes During Summer

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, so the saying goes. Many South Siders have heeded this and have enjoyed pleasant vacations. They have traveled north, south, east, and west, some as far as Maine and California. Others have remained closer to home, visiting the neighboring lakes, and entertaining guests there and in their homes.

Among the far away travelers are Ronald and Roger McVay, who visited in Maine; John and Joan Bonsh, who traveled for three weeks through the western states; Marjorie Mitten, a visitor to Washington, D. C.; Margery Sheldon, who spent a month in Eastern Colorado; Miss Gretchen Smith, who took a Canadian cruise aboard the steamship Moronich; Lois and Faye Gumpner, who spent several days in the Smokey Mountains in Tennessee and North Carolina; Mr. Flint, who spent two weeks traveling through the west, and Elaine Hirschy, who spent two weeks in the west.

There were many Archers who spent part of their vacations at the lake. Bill Blass vacationed at Lake James; Eugene Tigges visited at Crooked Lake.

Form House Party
A group of girls including Peg Bacon, Helen Banks, Betty Daniels, Phyllis Geller, Anna Lou Kowalski, Eleanor Vesey, Margaret Null, Margery Rapp, Betty Neeb, and Margery Rapp spent a week at Lake James; there was another house party on Lake James which included Doris Siebold, Ruth Kaiser, Dorothy Lou Braun, Ethelida Koch, Donna Lou Foutz, Rozella Foutz, Helen Fry, Margery Dyer, Marcella Brackman, Mildred Franz and Virginia Degler. Jean Russ visited at Little Cedar Lake; Dick Stevenson vacationed at Hotel The Breakers at Cedar Point on Lake Erie; Bill Riethmiller and John Bonsh went to Culver. Dick Doermer visited at Oden, Michigan; Ella Jo Reed spent a month at Lake James; Jack Hogan went to Walloon Lake in Michigan; Jane Bowen and Carol Treanor were the guests of Caroline and Joan Cartwright at Klinger Lake. A third group included Betty Jaebker, Barbara Noble, Charlotte Kern, Marjorie Rohrer, Margaret Gross, Dorothy Gardner, Virginia Worden, Mervyn Bohne, Joan Roese, Lois Rea, and Anita Catlett. Dorothy Knapp visited in Malinta, Ohio, and Eloise Brase, '38, went to Dayton, Ohio.

A few South Siders entertained guests in their homes and at cottages. Mary Kay Connell, '37, who now lives in Elwood City, Pennsylvania, was the guest of Charlotte Kern; Wilma Carrier entertained the members of the Sigma Chapter at Tri-Lakes, and Mary Treen was hostess to Barbara Powers, of Bridgetown, New Jersey. Laverne Michelfelder was hostess to Girl Scout Troop 41 at Tri-Lakes.

Plan Chinese Party
Some entertained with parties and teas. Velma Connett was hostess at a Chinese dinner party. Among the guests were Ada Schuelke, '37, and

Archer Graduates Chosen For Office

Edythe Thornton, '34, Will Be President Of Sorority, Also Of Mortar Board For Women.

As college opens this fall, we will find some of South Side's graduates holding important posts in their respective sororities.

Edythe Thornton, '34, will serve as president of the Indiana University Chapter of Pi Beta Phi during the next year. She also will be president of the Mortar Board, national honor society for senior women. Edythe represented the latter organization at the national convention held this summer at Troutdale-in-the-Pines, near Denver, Colorado, and was chosen by her sorority as delegate to their national meeting held the same week at Asheville, North Carolina.

Jo Anne Smith, '36, entering her junior year at DePauw University, will serve as corresponding secretary of Alpha Omicron Pi.

Swimming, Boating, Dramatics Lure Archer Girls To Camp

A life in the open has been looked upon very favorably by many South Side lassies, for they have spent the summer at various camps.

Camp Yarnelle on Winona Lake lured many girls away from their hot city homes this past summer to enjoy music, dramatics, swimming, boating, crafts, and hiking. The camp opened with a Girl Reserve Conference with the following South Siders acting as part of the delegation from Fort Wayne: Dorothy Amstutz, Beth Ellen Chadwick, Audrey Jeffries, LaVerne Greiner, Betty Mann, and Helen Karnap. Miss Hazel Miller, history teacher at South Side and So-Si-Y Girl Reserve adviser, was one of the resource leaders.

Whoopie At Yarnelle
Other South Side girls who enjoyed life at Camp Yarnelle were Helen Banks, Marjorie McMahon, Betty Neeb, Margaret Null, Margery Rapp, Marjorie Sheldon, Jean Weil, Eleanor Vesey, June Enoch, Alice Hall, Anna Lou Kowalski, and Mary Lampton. Velma Connett and Ruth Berning were counselors-in-training.

Besides conducting Camp Yarnelle the Young Woman's Christian Association conducted "Happy Time Camp" which was a day camp held for girls who would not be able to go to a camp. They were taught crafts, games, homemaking, music, and other arts. Trained counselors which held certain groups were as follows: Miss Hazel Miller, crafts; Beth Ellen Chadwick, games and homemaking, and Lillian Sherbondy, marionettes.

Scouts At Dewart
A large number of Girl Scouts from South Side gained inspirations and health at Camp Ella J. Logan on Dewart Lake. Horseback riding was a new activity offered this past year. There were also two-day canoe trips, overnight hikes, swimming, boating in the evening, archery, crafts, pioneering, and an olympic program.

The South Side girls who went on a canoe trip on either Lake Wawasee or Tippecanoe Lake were Beverly Griffith, Suzy Sweet, Jean Ewing, Carolyn Rodriguez, Helen Merritt, Elaine Hirschy, Martha Jean Krauskopf, and Jane Merchant.

Other South Side scouts who took part in different activities on Dewart Lake were Hilda Schubert, Joan Cox, Betty Marquart, and Thompsons and Audrey Hall.

Plan Brownie Day
Girl Scout and Brownie Day Camp held at Foster Park brought many girls in contact with nature. The high light of each day was the play that was participated in by different girls from the South Side troop which are as follows: Betty Marquart, Peggy Greaney, Audrey Hall, Sarah Jane Makey, Lora Lee Montgomery, and Thompsons Hall. Two South Siders, Dorothy Bloemker and Marcie Allen, acted as junior counselors for this camp.

Some other girls packed their swimming trunks and other necessities for a vacation at Camp Four-Way on Torch Lake. The South Side girls that participated in everything the camp had to offer from badminton to knitting were Patsy Seibel, Billie Lou Beaver, and Jean Porter.

Margery Price spent her summer as a junior counselor at Chimney Corners Camp in Massachusetts, where swimming ranked highest among the many activities offered.

South Side Boys Enter Plane Meet

Bob Hawkins, Ralph Obringer, Henry Velkoff Participate In Detroit Model Airplane Meet.

Bob Hawkins, president, Ralph Obringer, and Henry Velkoff of the Mad Modelers Club, entered planes in the eleventh annual model airplane contest at Detroit from July 5 to 11.

More than 1,000 boys entered this contest with planes. The Archers who participated placed as follows: Henry Velkoff was twenty-fifth in the outdoor cabin division, and Bob Hawkins placed thirty-second in the same division.

From July 18th to the 30th the Fort Wayne Public Library featured an exhibit of model airplanes with books dealing with flying. The models were furnished by the Mad Modelers Club and these included some of the planes entered by the members in the National Contest at Detroit.

Archer Boys Go To Hoosier Camp

Nord Krauskopf, Jack Dunifon, Lum McDowell Are Delegates To State Boys' Convention.

Nord Krauskopf and Jack Dunifon, both juniors, and Lum McDowell, a senior, were chosen by the local American Legion as delegates to Hoosier Boys' State at the state fair grounds in Indianapolis. This included a one week's program of self-government under the auspices of the Indiana Department of the American Legion.

Nord, Jack, and Lum left with twelve other boys from Fort Wayne early Saturday morning, June 18. Upon registering each of the 600 boys was assigned to a precinct, city and county. They chose either the Nationalist or Federalist party. On Monday a general election was held. Nord was elected County Councilman of Mac Nider County. Lum was elected State Police Officer while living in Hayes County. Jack was the Director of Public Safety. Dick Urbine, a North Sider, was elected Governor.

Boys' State has a two-fold purpose, —to combat subversive influence in a constructive way, and to teach the rudiments of a stable and sound government through an educational program.

The boys were taken on a tour through the city. They met the governor who entertained them. After a week's activity they returned home Saturday afternoon, June 25, where a big reception awaited them at the Legion home.

Oscar Eggers Is Honor Recipient

Kiwanis Club Awards Achievement Medal To Boy Who Has Done Most For His School.

Oscar Eggers, '38, was awarded a golden honor-achievement medal at a luncheon given this summer by the Kiwanis Club of the Fort Wayne Chamber of Commerce. He was selected by vote of the faculty as the one of most worth to his school.

Oscar was outstanding in Times work, dramatics, and he had a very high scholastic record. He was a member of National Honor Society and Quill and Scroll. He was the president of his senior class, member of the junior class social council, and general manager of The South Side Times. Ozzie won his letter-sweater for cheer-leading, held a lead in the senior play, "New Brooms," and received a gold-jewel Times pin.

Each winner was asked to bring to the banquet as his guest the one who had contributed the most to his attainments. Ozzie's guest was Miss Rowena Harvey, publications adviser.

Library Opens To All Students September 12

Freshmen Meet With Miss Emma Shoup Next Tuesday, Discuss Regulations

Variety Of Books Offered To Pupils

Twenty-four Student Members Of Staff Are Announced By Librarian.

Miss Emma Shoup announced that the library will open its doors to students Monday morning. It will remain open for the rest of the term. Freshmen will meet in the library Tuesday during their respective English classes. They will learn when books may be taken out, how long they may keep them, and various other library regulations.

Every student has a use for the library. For the Latin pupil there are many Latin books, books which tell about Roman life, customs, and incidents. There are innumerable English books. These are home reading books for English 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8. The library also contains books of reference on whatever subject one needs. Some of the reference books are encyclopedias, world books, debate books, and Who's Who. During certain periods students are permitted to go to the library for reference work and study. These periods will be announced later by Miss Shoup.

Five Net Champs To Attend College

John Hines, Dale Hamilton, Jim Roth, Dick Frazell, Frank Belot Enroll In Schools.

Five of South Side's state champion basketball players will attend college this fall. They are Jim Roth, John Hines, Dick Frazell, Frank Belot, and Dale Hamilton.

Dick Frazell, while at South Side, belonged to the Hi-Y and Letterman's Club. Besides being a sterling basketball and football player, Dick ran the 100 and 220-yard dashes on the track team. He will study at Franklin College this fall and is majoring in mathematics and chemistry. During the course of his high school career, Johnny Hines was president of the sophomore and junior classes; he was also head of the Letterman's Club and belonged to National Honor Society. Hines has been a mainstay on Burl Fridge's teams for the past three years. He will go to the University of Alabama this year, and commercial law will be his chief interest.

Frank Belot, while attending South Side, belonged to the Art Club and the Letterman's Club. He, too, was an asset to the squad this year. Frank plans to enter Franklin College and will major in general business.

Jim Roth while attending South Side belonged to the Letterman's Club and was president of Inter-Club Congress; he was also a National Honor Student. Besides playing basketball, Roth was also a valuable member of the football and track teams. Jim will matriculate at the University of Alabama in the coming year to study commercial law.

The recipient of the Lions Club Scholarship Award, Dale Hamilton, will attend Franklin College this fall. While at South Side, Hamilton belonged to the Letterman's Club and besides being a member of the state championship team, he was a mainstay on South Side's golf team. Dale will major in physical education while attending Franklin.

Job's Daughters Elect Helen Kelsey Queen

Among the newly-elected officers of Job's Daughters, Helen Kelsey, '37, was installed as honored queen.

Other South Side students elected were: Guide, Miss Eileen Hoffman; chaplain, Miss Phyllis Hayner; recorder, Miss Evelyn Kruse; librarian, Miss Imogene Wright; messengers, first, Miss Doris Hilbish; third, Miss Betty Lou Geake; senior custodian, Miss Avel Bridges; outer guard, Miss Jane Bowen; inner guard, Miss Phyllis Tyndall.

Past honored queens are Miss Eleanor Cupp, '35, and Miss Mildred Foellinger, '36.

Instructor Is Winner In Wawasee Regatta

Joseph H. Plaskett, South Side industrial arts teacher, won the national one design event in the international yacht regatta at Lake Wawasee last August 25. Plaskett compiled a total of 21½ points for the four-day racing. He barely nosed out Eli Tilly of Indianapolis, who finished second with 21¼ points. Plaskett sailed his boat, Gloria II, over a triangular six-mile course in 3 hours, 11 minutes, and 22 seconds.

Society Grants Honor Award To Publication

First Place In Sigma Delta Chi Journalistic Contest Is Again Taken By Times

Issues To Appear On Fair Grounds

General Managers, Others On Staff Of Winning Papers Given Recognition.

In the state high school journalism contest sponsored by the Sigma Delta Chi, national honorary and professional journalistic society, The South Side Times won first place in its class for schools with an enrollment of 1,500 or more students. The Times has won first place in this contest since it was started in 1928.

Papers entered in the contest were selected at random from the files of the 1937-38 issues by Miss Rowena Harvey, publications adviser. All of the winning newspapers are being exhibited at the Indiana State Fair being held at the fair grounds in Indianapolis, and the schools winning will be awarded certificates by Sigma Delta Chi in the near future.

General managers during the period from which the papers were selected were Oscar Eggers, Ruth Henline, Betty Lee Wilson, Betty Pugh and Beatrice Fudge. The managing editors at this time were Ruth Henline, Eleanor Vesey, Betty Garton, Helen Cox and Phyllis Culver. Business managers during this period were Beatrice Fudge and Dorothy Elfer.

Eleanor Vesey, present general manager, said "The Times has always won the first place honors and shall continue to do so."

The Northerner, of North Side High School also won a first place in the contest. The Northerner won in its division, for schools with an enrollment of 1,000-1,500. The Northerner has won first place eight times since the contest was started.

U. S. A. Will Start Activity Thursday

LaVerne Greiner, Betty Mann, Marilyn Sondles, Marjorie Volty Hold Major Offices.

U. S. A. will hold its first meeting Thursday in the Greeley Room at 3:30 o'clock. All freshmen are invited to attend this meeting. The U. S. A. Club is a Girl Reserve organization, and it is connected with the Y. W. C. A.

Eight of the U. S. A. members will go to the Y. W. C. A. Camp as representatives of the South Side U. S. A. organization on September 10 and 11.

The officers for this semester will be president, LaVerne Greiner; vice-president, Betty Mann; secretary, Marjorie Volty; treasurer, Marilyn Sondles; service chairman, Louisa Haugk; publicity chairman, Eileen Hermann; membership chairman, Jean Sheets; social chairman, Rozanna Weston; card-keeper, Jane Cocks; music, Iona Jean Traucht.

Miss Mary Pocock received her Masters Degree this summer at the University of Chicago. Miss Pocock formerly studied and received her Bachelor's Degree at Oberlin College.

S. P. C. Initiates Give Short Plays

One Hundred New Members Taken In; Read Club Charter, Rules By Miss Margery Suter.

Initiation of all the new members of the Student Players Clubs of South Side, North Side, and Central high schools was held under the direction of Miss Margery Suter, dramatic instructor at the three schools, in Franke Park, June 10. Nearly one hundred students of the schools became members of the club at the initiation service. They were read the club charter and rules by Miss Suter. All new members signed the constitution and shook hands with the presidents from each school.

Initiates from each school presented short plays which were judged by Miss Suter and several others interested in dramatics. North Side won the award presented to the school producing the best play. For the last two years South Side had won the award.

Math-Science Club To Install Officers

First Meeting Will Be Friday Night, September 16, 7:30; Program Is Being Planned.

Math-Science will hold its first meeting of the semester at 7:30 o'clock, Friday night, September 16. The new officers to be installed at this meeting are: president, Kenneth Warren; vice-president, Jean Fortriede; secretary, Gwen DeWees; treasurer, James Craig. A program is being arranged for the meeting by Vice-president Jean Fortriede. There will be games played and refreshments will be served. All students above 10A who are interested are invited to attend.

Archers Are Active In Epworth Leagues

Several South Siders are taking prominent parts in the Epworth Leagues of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Carol Whittier, Emalyn Remmel, and Kenneth Wollman were elected second, third, and fourth vice-presidents respectively of the Wayne Street Epworth League.

Among the young people attending Epworth Forest at Lake Webster during the week of July 24 were Martha Jane Krauskopf, Nord Krauskopf, Richard Weaver, Emalyn Remmel, Marjorie Gould, and Eleanor Mone-smith. The latter three took part in a pageant based on the play "The Old Candelmaker of St. John's."

Pupils Should Have Transfers In Today

All pupils who entered from other high schools must have their transfers in the office today.

Shown above are the two South Side High School structures, the old one-story building, and the new modern up-to-date one. Equipped with an almost complete second story, the new building can boast of a new fleet of offices, two new study halls, one of which adjoins the cafeteria, a new modernized Greeley Room, and a series of new classrooms. Already, plans for additional facilities are underway. The second story is to be completed, an auditorium added, new teachers' rest rooms built, along with other additional improvements.

Pupils May Apply For Service Work

Any student wishing to do some form of service work during his study periods should see the teacher in charge of the type of job he desires. Helpers will be chosen soon from the list of applicants. Pupils automatically become members of Service Club when they do any of the following service work: assisting in either Miss Pittenger's, Miss Alder-dice's, Mr. Flint's, Mr. Wainwright's, or Mr. Davis' offices, working for Mrs. Lillian Scott in the study hall and for the eighth period teacher, and acting as hall and locker guards under Mrs. Scott's supervision.

Wranglers Officers To Meet Monday

Will Appoint Committees, Arrange Programs For Coming Semester; Picnic Is Planned.

The first meeting of Wranglers will be held in the form of an officers' meeting next Monday night, September 13, in the new Greeley room. This group will be responsible for appointing committees and arranging programs for the coming semester.

Incoming officers are president, Dick Garton; secretary, Jean Gump-er; treasurer, Tom Gallmeyer; sergeant-at-arms, Ed Kettler and John Bonsib; Inter-club Congress representative, Bill Riethmiller; and parliamentarian, Bob Robinson.

To be included in the near future as one of Wranglers' big fetes of the year will be the "get-together" picnic. Plans for which will be disclosed later.

Valedictorians Receive Reader's Digest Gift

To the valedictorian of every high school in the United States the Reader's Digest has made a most generous offer. A magazine subscription will be sent to every valedictorian completely free for one full year. Miss Helen Cox, South Side's recipient of this gift, says, "This makes me very happy!" The magazine subscription was begun with the July issue and will continue for one complete year.

Annette Snoke Is New French Head

Frances Van Buskirk, Virginia Porter, Margaret Null To Assist In Other Offices.

Fall activities of the French Club will be resumed at a meeting on September 15, at which time the new officers will be installed and the program for the following year will be announced.

At the last regular meeting of the year, officers were elected. Annette Snoke was chosen to serve as president, assisted by Margaret Null, vice-president. Virginia Porter was elected secretary and Frances VanBuskirk was chosen point recorder. Clayton Johnson will be Inter-Club Congress representative.

French Club activities were concluded for the past year by a picnic held at Foster Park on May 25.

The purpose of the club is to further an interest in the French language and to provide further social opportunities for students. A student must have completed one semester of French and have a grade of B or above to be eligible for membership. Miss Olive Perkins, French instructor, is the club adviser.

Triple Triangle Grads Attend Alumni Party

Alumni members of the Triple Triangle Club were hostesses to the Triple Triangle graduates of South Side, Central, and North Side High Schools at a party held on the roof of the Young Women's Christian Association Building the evening of July 7. Mary Ann Lark, Ellen Foelber, Virginia Baumgartner, Helen Forker, and Kathryn MacGinnitie, ex-South Siders, were honor guests.

Follow the Peanut Trail was the theme of the party. Peanuts and toy animals were used to decorate the tables. The committees in charge were: Invitations and programs, Lillian Hartman, Virginia Greiner, and Clara Bente; games and entertainment, Betty Rison, Louise Wagner, Lorraine Meyer, and Helen Mertz; and refreshments, Elfrieda Enz and Ruth Huzall.

Industrial Art School Planned For Adults

For the training of adults in industrial arts a night school will be featured in South Side during the winter. Instructions will begin on September 19 and will continue for twelve weeks. Two meetings will be held each week, each lasting for two hours. A fee of three dollars will be charged for the course.

Students In Hospital

Max Spencer, senior, was taken to the Lutheran Hospital Wednesday, August 31, for an emergency appendectomy. His condition at this time is as good as can be expected, according to hospital attaches.

Peggy Kilpatrick, '37, also underwent an emergency appendicitis operation in St. Joseph's Hospital, August 31, after returning from a two months' tour of Europe.

R. Nelson Snider Greets Freshmen

Yearlings Advised Against Joining Too Many Clubs; Urged To Subscribe For The Times.

During the welcome speech by Mr. Snider, at the annual freshman meeting Wednesday, he stated that the freshmen were fortunate to start in a newer, more complete building. All freshmen were complimented on their good records at grade school and were encouraged to continue as in grade school.

Mr. Snider stressed the point that all freshmen should begin at the beginning of the term to work and not wait several weeks to start. Also, Mr. Snider stressed the point of keeping lockers closed and their locker combinations a secret. Mr. Snider explained the program periods, absence slips, automobile permits, and bicycle registration cards. Mr. Snider cautioned the new pupils about the safety of coming to and from school and staying away from barricaded places in the building. Mr. Snider concluded his talk by wishing the freshmen a happy and successful four years at South Side.

In welcoming the freshmen to South Side, Miss Pittenger said that a good time at South Side depends upon the ability of a person to fit into the school program. The dean stated that lost and found articles should be returned to her office. She encouraged the new pupils to eat in the cafeteria at school.

In joining clubs, freshmen should not join many for the first year was the advice Miss Pittenger gave.

Eleanor Vesey, the general manager of The Times, stated that the paper would be a help to freshmen to get better acquainted with the school's activities and to keep up with the times by subscribing for The Times. She asked for 100 per cent co-operation in the new freshmen class.

Ex-Archer Is Honored

Leonard Koch, '38, received honorable mention for his drawing entered in the annual scholarship competition conducted by the American Academy of Art, Chicago. This contest is open to all graduating high school students.

Boy, Girl Win High Honors In Campaign

Bob Byers, Jeanette Warren Get Prizes For Most Subscriptions On First Day

236 Subscriptions Secured First Day

Last Free Issue To Be Given Tuesday; September 21, 22, 23 To Be Times Days

Bob Byers and Jeanette Warren won the two prizes offered by The Times to the home room agents. The prizes were to be awarded to the two agents who solicited the most subscriptions on the first day of school. Sixty-five home room agents were entered in the contest which was won with thirty-one subscriptions by Bob Byers and twenty-five subscriptions by Jeanette Warren.

Are New Agents Both of the winners are working as home room agents for the first time this year. The prizes of $1.44 and of 60 cents will be presented to the winners at a room agents meeting to be held in the near future.

The first days subscription campaign fell short of its goal with only 236 subscriptions being secured Wednesday. The campaign for subscriptions will be continued for some time, although the last free issue will be handed out next Thursday.

A goal of 1,500 subscriptions has been set by the circulation manager, Virginia Goeglein. This goal was set last year and a circulation of 1,500 has never been accomplished at South Side, although more than a thousand subscriptions have been secured for several years in the past.

Times Day Set

Times Day has been set for September 21, 22, and 23. The home room period on these days will be lengthened sufficiently to allow Times agents to contact every student. This will be near the end of the subscription campaign and it is hoped that Times Day will help the circulation reach the goal of 1,500. Posters made by Janice Dyer, staff cartoonist, have been mounted on bulletin boards to advertise The Times. The first day of school a box was set up in the front hall to sell subscriptions.

So-Si-Y Will Hold Meeting Tuesday

Junior, Senior Girls Are Invited To Join; Club Activities Include Service Work.

So-Si-Y will hold its first meeting Tuesday, September 13, in the Greeley Room. This club is a Girl Reserve organization for junior and senior girls. Any junior or senior girl not belonging to Sunshine Club is cordially invited to enter into the club. Advisers for the club are Miss Eleanor Smeltz, Miss Beulah Rinehart, Miss Hazel Miller, and Mrs. Alda Jane Carson. There are many activities held during the year, some of which are: Faculty Tea, Mother-Daughter Tea, Tournament Dance, sale of name cards for the seniors, and holiday parties.

Service plays a great part in the activities of the club. There are four degrees which a girl can earn during her high school career.

Officers for the fall term are: president, Velma Connett; vice-president, Beth Ellen Chadwick; secretary, Margery Price; treasurer, Dorothy Bloomer; Inter-club Congress, Dorothy Amstutz; social chairman, Freida Schubert; music, Ruth Bade and Mildred Brett; membership and publicity, Kathleen Boerger; service chairman, Audrey Jefferies; and point recorder, Mildred Franz and Margaret Jane Wiles.

Tells About Sundaes Having Crepe Soles; Advertisement "Off"

At last the truth about our genial host at the South Side Grill and his establishment is revealed in The Times. In Mr. Kenworthy's advertisement on page 8 of the Wednesday issue the public at large was told about his offerings. The middle of the advertisement stated that his steaks have built up leather heels; that his thick malted milks have detachable kiltie tongues; that his fresh buttered popcorn comes in every style that's smart and new, brown, black, blue, wine, that he had ruffles or smooth calfskin; and that his cold fudge sundaes have crepe soles.

Many are the students who have guzzled sodas and other food and drink without true knowledge as to what they were taking into their systems. Now that everyone knows just what the stuff handed out by the Grill is made of, you can be sure that the Grill will lose no business because it was The Times and not the place to eat across the street that made a mistake. A compositor set up the ad for the Grill wrong, inserting part of a shoe store advertisement inadvertently. The staff of The Times is very glad to know that we have such an understanding friend across the street because otherwise The Times might have had a lot of trouble ($ trouble).

And there was the student who thought Manual Training was a Mexican.

A man's best friends are his dogs. Personally I'll use mine for walking.

Disconcerting discovery: South Side has an elevator.

Swing conversationalist deluxe—"I hear ya talkin', jitterbug."

Even our reserved faculty is a little in the dark about where the new elevator is.

Will YOU subscribe for the Totem? It is rumored that it will be a publisher's dream.

It's appalling how grown up freshmen appear after the first day. Maybe it's the atmosphere.

Workmen working on the radio system with extreme trouble: "So you won't talk, eh?"

Now that club activities have gotten under way, prepare for a season of entertainment and fun.

Someone said that complaining never got you any place but look at the building we got from doing that very thing.

It is very evident that student color schemes haven't faded out in any degree. Brilliance seems to be the latest color keynote.

South Side has now not only a quality but quantity also, we notice, as we glance around at our newly enlarged portals.

Note to upperclassmen: Go a little easy on razzing the freshmen. Remember you were once just as silly, simple, bewildered, and childish as they are.

Work, Not Luck, Leads To Success

"Good luck will help a man over a ditch if he will jump hard." This old maxim was written by Spurgeon. How simple but yet how true. To examine it closer we find that it really means that there isn't such a thing as good luck, but success will come if you really work hard for it. Our team didn't achieve the title of State Champs just merely through luck. This achievement was gained through good clean play, hard work, and team work backed up by many long hours of hard practice.

Many students take notice of the several honors which other fellow students carry away. These students who just notice what others achieve instead of getting out themselves and really working for similar honors could, after many long hours of work, do the very same things. It isn't luck that gave these winning students their ability to win. They had to develop this themselves.

A good public speaker doesn't need luck to place first in a speech contest, he just needs training and a sound mind to reason out a speech.

The next time you hear of a person winning some honor, just remember that luck didn't bring this to him, but instead a lot of hard work. He got across his ditch by jumping hard.

Students Appreciate Results Of Remodeling

We, the students of South Side too long have regarded our school as "just a place to work in." Let us look at our school for a moment through somebody else's eyes.

Approaching the building one is impressed with the architectural structure. The additional story gives the building a new aspect of dignity and poise that was lacking last year.

Upon entering the doors of South Side one's eyes instantly notice the clean and bright walls and the neat arrangement of the lockers.

A brief inspection of the rooms would reveal new and modern surroundings in which the students are compelled to study.

Also, the classrooms are equipped to hold the correct number of students. Over-crowded and poor ventilated classrooms are a thing of the past in our ultra-modern building. The addition of a new study hall is a decided asset to the school. No longer must one be an acrobat to study. Yes, boys and girls, this condition did exist. Only last year some students were forced to study in the uncomfortable chairs of the Greeley Room.

One's eyes, wandering up to the ceiling, notice that they are newly plastered and that all the holes have been repaired.

Today the students of South Side study in a thoroughly modern and well equipped school. South Side may truthfully be called "The school that has no equal."

Hitch-hiking Flea Discusses South Sides Remodeling Advent

I've traveled far and wide and have seen many beautiful buildings, the Forum at Rome, the Capitol at Washington, and the Cathedrals of England, but I have yet to see anything to compare with South Side High School. You know, it really is a fine place since the remodeling and you South Side students should be proud of it. Am I the "Voice of Experience?" No. Just a hitchhiking flea who answers to the name, Alovishis. I've viewed the grandeur of the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, witnessed the rodeos of Texas, and thrilled to the bull fights of Spain from the deck of a dog. Some people wouldn't give him credit for being a dog but I'm satisfied. Of course it isn't like living on the comfortable luxury of a chow or the silky softness of a spaniel but beggars can't be choosy, I always say.

Anyway, George (that's the mongrel's name) and I have had a lot of good, exciting times together. At times he has regretted and even resented my company because he says that I get under his skin. (George is witty that way... but confidentially all he knows is in a book) but by now after having bumbled around the world together we have become bosom pals. In fact I think it would take more than George's feebly flaying paws to rout me out.

But here, here, I've been rambling on and have forgotten what I started out to tell... that's one of my failings and George says I've got amnesia. But since I don't know what that is I didn't have a snappy comeback. What I wanted to tell about was the time George and I have just blown in from a seance with Madame something or other and came here to South Side to look the newly improved place over.

We started out with a bang and you can imagine George's embarrassment when he found his teeth in the seat of the night watchman's pants—

What I wanted to tell about was the time George and I have just blown in from a seance with Madame something or other and came here to South Side to look the newly improved place over.

We started out with a bang and you can imagine George's embarrassment when he found his teeth in the seat of the night watchman's pants—

But here, here, I've been rambling on and have forgotten what I started out to tell... that's one of my failings and George says I've got amnesia. But since I don't know what that is I didn't have a snappy comeback. What I wanted to tell about was the time George and I have just blown in from a seance with Madame something or other and came here to South Side to look the newly improved place over.

Thumbnail Sketches

"Pinky," "Red," "Rusti," "Jan," in fact hardly ever Janice, are the "nom de plumes" used when addressing this little ardent senior worker for South Side. Yes sir, "Small in body, but mighty in mind" characterizes this girl to the point. At the mere mention of art, to anyone's mind should come Janice Dyer, for art is her pre-dominating skill, hobby, or ability. In the library, Times room, study halls, halls, classrooms, or any place could be found one or several of Rusti's masterpieces. Her ambition, as was probably surmised before, is to be an illustrator, and it certainly looks to be an extremely promising future for this exceptional student.

Besides creating many posters for the halls, etc., Pinky is the art editor of The Totem and also cartoonist for The Times. The Booster Club, also of which she is a member, takes advantage of her ability. As president of the Library Club she devotes much of her time and ability to work as librarian. Jan is also a puppeteer and is an indispensable supporter of Marionette Club. Philo, Service, and 1500 are three other organizations which claim her membership.

For such an all around worker, it seems hard to realize that Pinky could have any dislikes, but she does. Emphatically she hates red hair, one characteristic by which she can be recognized. Maybe this accounts for the fact that green is her favorite color and Richard Greene, her favorite actor. Summing it up in Archer fashion, it does seem probable for this game supporter to like green—"For green and white with main and might." Never approach this little Archer with a line of baby talk for you are likely to be very sorry, for when not used by babies, Jan considers this a disgusting practice.

There are no end of complimentary classifications which could be given for this little girl who is held in high esteem by all of her classmates and by all of South Side, but it is a fact that wherever she has been, is, or will be, she is always a top rounder.

We're Off! . . .

To School Again

Summer was fun, but now that autumn is coming you get that crisp get-back-to-work feeling. You are looking forward to new friends, new teachers, and new studies. Now you have a fresh start to be the kind of girl or boy you want to be. Perhaps you are aiming high—at the honor roll, the basketball team, new clubs, or even at an office in your class. No matter if you have a million new ideas and they are important, there is one that is just a little ahead of all the others, and that is POPULARITY. You boys, no matter how much you like yourselves, you know deep down in your hearts that you want the girls to like you. Girls, you want the boys to admire you, don't you? Maybe that is going to be harder for you than the Dean's list and the football team put together.

First of all, how do you impress other people? Do you act tongue-tied with everyone but your best friends? If you don't say something once in a while how do you expect people to know what is in that pretty head of yours? Bashful? That is no excuse—it just means that you're concentrating on yourself in place of the other fellow.

As soon as you get to school, start right in making new friends. Gossip! Argue! It is all fascinating once you get into the swing of it.

Don't be afraid to talk and ask questions. Everyone likes to talk about himself.

Maybe your personality is just the opposite of being tongue-tied. Perhaps you're the type that just can't help giving people your frank opinion of everything and everybody. Don't be catty! Maybe you were just being honest when you were called upon for your opinion of Louise's new yellow dress and said, "It makes her look awfully fat." And while anyone with half an eye could have seen that it was the truth, you were the one to come out and say so. That, my dear, is the easiest way to a reputation of being catty. You might just as well have said, "That new dress of Louise's isn't exactly slenderizing but it certainly is a gorgeous color for her." If you really must be frank, try thinking up something good as well as bad. You'll find that looking for pleasant things about people makes you a happier person as well as a more popular one.

Along with personality and reputation comes appearance and this is particularly important. The first impression goes a long way in making or breaking you. People will not criticize you because you do not spend lots of money on your clothes, but the main thing is to be clean and neat. Girls, what really matters is not the new dress you have on but—Did you wash your face? Boys, do you wear your collars a day too long? Now's the time to make a good impression with her and her family. Make it good!

Archer Eleven To Tackle Washington Squad Tomorrow

Green's Team Opens Season At South Bend

Steady Practice Sessions Result In Improved Kelley Klads; Veterans Return. Schools In Clash For Third Year Opponents Are Victors In Previous Battles; Again Possess Fighting Club.

Season Ticket Sale To Be Started Soon

Season tickets for South Side's football and basketball games will go on sale as soon as possible. The price for the tickets will be the same, $2.50 for a complete season ticket for students, $4.00 for adults. Tickets can also be purchased in three sections for $1.00 by students and $1.50 by adults. Students also may buy their season tickets on the instalment plan for $3.00. Tickets will be sold at the ticket office beside Mr. Davis' office.

South Side's inexperienced but hard working grid machine, will get its first test under fire when the Archers travel to South Bend Saturday, to take on a powerful Washington eleven. Washington's 1938 eleven is expected to be a powerful team and hard to beat as it has been in the past.

This is the third year in which the South Bend gridders have appeared on the Archer schedule. Washington has won both of its games with South Side teams, the first 19-0 and last year's struggle by a score of 18-0. The Archers of 1938 under the direction of Bill Moss, will try next Saturday to snap the South Bend winning streak at two and thus give the Green and White a win over the Washington eleven.

Show Improvement

The Archers, who started practice on August 15, have shown much improvement as a result of steady practice sessions. Many new names appear on the Archer gridiron this year as only three regulars of last year's squad will see service this year. In the line Biedenweg and Cook compromise the veteran material, Biedenweg at tackle and Cook holding down an end position. However, Saalfrank, Miller, Ferguson, McCammon and Goshorn have developed fast and will probably take care of the rest of the line assignments.

The only first string back to return to this year's lineup is Tom Moorhead, who will be the running back on this year's varsity. Moorhead is a clever runner, but his specialty is heaving the pigskin. Stu Welborn is the logical choice to call signals for the Green and White this year. Welborn is not exceptionally big, but is speedy and is a fast thinker.

Shimer Shows

The fullback position was left absolutely blank by the graduation of last year's captain, Jim Phelps. Shimer, 170 pound freshman fullback candidate, has looked plenty tough in practice and in all probability will take care of the varsity fullback post. The wingback position will be filled by Ahlesmeyer whose specialty is blocking.

Moorhead looms as the main Archer scoring threat this year. He will also throw the passes and stands a possibility of taking over the punting duties.

The Washington game is the first of a ten game schedule for the Green and White and is one of the two games which will be played on foreign territory. The tentative starting lineup will be: Cook and Goshorn at ends; Biedenweg and Saalfrank at tackle; Miller and McCammon at guard; Ferguson at center; Moorhead and Ahlesmeyer at half; Welborn at quarter; and Shimer at full.

Elections To Be Held

Elections for officers of home rooms will take place in the next few weeks. Most of the room caveas, their officers: president, vice-president, secretary, and social council. The home rooms select the duties for which these officers will abide by during their term of office. Generally special committees are appointed for occasions sponsored by Inter-club Congress.

Looking Over Archer Prospects

Bill Moss

September 17 Set For Redskin Meet

Frank Werling Is Mainstay Of North Side's Football Team; Wabash Apache To Be Enemy

North Side's Redskins open their season against the Wabash Apaches September 17. The northern gridders have practiced regularly and are developing into a very good team.

One of the mainstays of the northern team is Captain Frank Werling, a senior and a triple threat griddier. Werling is a fine runner, a good passer and can punt the pigskin in good style. Everett Huth, G. Poyer, Bob Cowan, Gay Turner, and Werling will probably comprise the first string backfield.

End posts will be held by John Beams and George Buckner. Both boys have been showing up good in practice, and unless some of the other end candidates show up better than expected they have their positions cinched. Gordon Turner will hold down either a guard or center position in this year's line. The other line posts are unfilled as yet, but plenty of boys are out for each post. The Redskins have eight night games out of the ten-game schedule. Six games are at home and the remainder on enemy territory. North Side's schedule is:

September 16—Wabash, here, night.
September 23—Mishawaka, there, night.
September 30—Central Catholic, here, night.
October 8—Central, here.
October 19—Garrett, there.
October 21—Boesee (Evansville) here, night.
November 4—Peru, there, night.
November —Decatur, there, night.
November 11—Cathedral (Indianapolis) there, night.

Central Tigers Defeat Bluffton In Grid Game

Complete New Team Substituted By Coach Murray Mendenhall; Score, 44-18.

Central's Bengal Tigers started off their '38 grid season with a roar as they overwhelmed an outclassed Bluffton eleven by a score of 44 to 18. The Tigers took no time in opening up their scoring power which was to net them seven touchdowns, as on the third play of the game, Henry Kulesza cut off tackle for 58 yards and a touchdown. Kulesza's kick for extra point was stopped cold. It was a matter of only a few minutes before Central had again crossed the Bluffton goal line on a spectacular pass from Hanley to Fealing Talley who side-stepped his way 27 yards to give the Tigers an early 12-point lead. Again the try for extra point failed.

Gives Reserves Chance

Coach Murray Mendenhall immediately elected to give the Tiger reserves a chance to gain experience and substituted a complete new team. However, Central's team number two was given a surprising reception by the boys from Bluffton as Kinsey uncorked a 15-yard pass to Richey who ran 30 yards to score. The kick for extra point was wide. The real thrill of the game came only a moment later when Kinsey took the kickoff and ran 87 yards through the entire Bengal squad to tie the score at 12-all. Richey failed in his plunge for the extra point. The Tiger first team returned to the game at once and the quarter ended a moment later with the score tied.

It was only a short time until Central's superior power again became the game's deciding factor. Gaines and Lewandowski blocked a punt and Hanley scooped up the ball to run 25 yards for a touchdown. Kulesza again failed to plunge for the extra point. Hanley scored a short time later when he intercepted a pass and dashed 35 yards to score. The pass for the extra point was no good. Hanley scored for the third time in the second quarter when he took Miller's 20-yard heave and ran 22 yards for a touchdown. Hanley was stopped on his plunge for the extra point.

Tigers Score Touchdown

In the third quarter Dirrickson grabbed a fumbled pass out of the air and ran 30 yards to score the Tiger's sixth touchdown. Knothe plunged for the extra point. At the close of the third period Bluffton recovered a Central fumble 35 yards from the goal. They drove to the 13-yard marker before losing the ball on downs, but a few plays later Kinsey passed to Wiley who ran the remaining 15 yards to score. Kinsey's drop-kick for the extra point was low.

Talley led the Tiger fourth quarter attack as he crossed the goal line three times. However only one of his touchdowns counted as the other two were nullified by Central penalties. Talley circled end and ran in all 76 yards only to have the ball called back for a clipping penalty. A minute later, however, Talley scored from the six-yard line. Kulesza plunged for the extra point and this concluded the Tiger scoring at a total of 44 points.

Intramurally Speaking

Well, well, school is beginning again and soon we'll all be back in the same old grind. As soon as things start rolling you who haven't yet earned your intramural letter can get an early start working for your needed points so that you may gain the prized possession.

Congratulations to Paul Dammeier, our crack net star, who captured the junior boys' crown this summer in the annual playgrounds tennis tournament held this summer at Weisser Park. Paul also placed second in the junior boys' singles of the district tennis tournament. Paul was defeated by Paul Souder of Huntington, who represented the Fort Wayne District at Culver last month.

Speaking of tennis, all the South Siders who participated in any of the tennis tournaments this summer should be congratulated on their fine showing and their sportsmanlike spirit.

Bob Bolyard, one of the state basketball champs, is also quite a baseball player. This summer Bob played on the Weisser Wolves team. He was the star pitcher on the Wolves nine. Bob's biggest thrill all summer was the day when he pitched a no-hit game against the All-Stars 15-1. The All-Stars scored their only run in the first inning from an infield play. But I guess such an event is nothing in the Bolyard family for all of Bob's brothers are baseball players (and pretty good ones at that).

By the way, speaking about Bolyards, Earl Bolyard, Bob's brother, is again playing with the Baltimore Orioles baseball squad. Earl played on the Baltimore squad several years ago and is now back again with the Maryland team playing center field. Earl was graduated from South Side in 1933.

Concordia Will Have Intramural Activities

Intramural activities will make up the fall sports program at Concordia this year, since there is no varsity football. Mr. H. G. Bredemeier, athletic director, will supervise all the intramural sports. The program will include six-man football, volleyball, and tennis. Six-man football is a comparatively new sport at Concordia and will probably be very popular with the Cadets. Tag football will be played instead of tackle. The tennis tournament will also be a top-ranking sport at the school.

Football To Open Intramural Sports

Cross Country, Horseshoe To Be Next On Program; To Close With Golf, Tennis Playoffs.

Mr. Louis Briner, director of intramural activities in South Side, today came forward with the 1938 intramural fall program. The program opener will be tag football. In past seasons this sport has proved to be exceedingly popular among intramural enthusiasts. One of the main reasons for this popularity is that boys of any size and weight may participate on equal terms because of the three weight divisions; heavy, middle, and lightweight, which have been set to sharpen competition.

Cross country and horseshoe will be the next intramural sports on this year's program. Horseshoe has in the past been well-liked because of the fact that anyone may participate, and cross country gives excellent training to those who have a desire of winning a berth on the varsity track squad. The fall program will be brought to a close with the golf and tennis playoffs. The ultimate winner in each of these sports are assured a position on next year's varsity golf and tennis teams.

It is stressed by Mr. Briner that any boy may enter into the sporting program. The fact is also stressed that an excellent opportunity is provided to build one's self up for future action in varsity sports.

Attitude, it is stated by Mr. Briner, is the quality which invariably makes or breaks an athlete. In intramural sports this is the first factor which is taken into consideration concerning one's participation. Letters awarded in intramural as well as in varsity sports. In order to receive an intramural letter one must earn a total of 120 intramural points.

Aronhalt Runs Stand

Dick Aronhalt, junior, has been operating a refreshment stand in Foster Park this summer.

Local Mentors Work, Relax During Summer

This summer the coaches of the various schools spent much of their time in working as well as relaxation. A hard-working coach this summer was Coach Burl Friddle. Mr. Friddle sold advertising and floor wax for the Huntington Laboratory. Coach Friddle also was responsible for the coaching school which was held in Fort Wayne. However, he did go to Alabama for a short vacation.

Coach Murray Mendenhall spent the whole summer at his farm close to Indianapolis. Murray returned for the first practice of the Central Tigers August 29.

Bob Nulf, North Side's mentor, spent part of the summer working around the school by taking care of the athletic field and the athletic equipment. Coach Nulf spent part of the summer fishing; he went fishing in the Georgian Bay and also went fishing with Coach Ivy, North Side's swimming instructor, at Cedar Lake, Canada.

Coach Bob Dornte of Central and Mr. Louis Briner both were in charge of playgrounds this summer. Coach Dornte took charge of the Memorial Park playgrounds, and Mr. Briner had charge of the Lafayette playground.

Rolla Chambers, track coach at North Side, spent much of his summer vacation putting in the public address system at North Side. Coach Chambers also took a fishing trip to Northern Michigan.

Archers Tend Field

Jim Glass and Dick Frazell have been the caretakers of the football field at South Side since school ended last June. Jim and Dick have mowed and trimmed the field regularly besides sprinkling it to insure a good healthy Kelly green color. They also deserve credit for the care given to the cinder track.

Archers Undergo Operations

Ann Winter, '38, and Vera Jane Crise, '37, were confined to their beds during the summer, due to appendicitis operations.

Girl Athletics Brought Here In Fall of '22

Basketball Is First Sport At South Side; Soccer, Hiking Added Next Year.

Girls' athletics were first introduced into the curriculum of South Side in the fall of 1922. Miss Florence Pickard was the first athletic adviser. In that year she started her work in this school by originating the girls' varsity basketball team. One year later, 1923, Miss Pickard's place was taken over by Miss Mildred Hadsell. However, within the next two years, Cupid's arrow had struck the worthy Miss Hadsell; and she took over the new position of housewife.

New Teacher Installed
After her marriage, she was succeeded by Miss Alice Patterson, who assumed supreme until 1938 when she accepted the position of athletic director at Ohio Wesleyan. Miss Gretchen Smith, the assistant adviser at that time, stepped to the top where she has remained until now with the able assistance of Miss Alice Dean.

In the first year of its history the Green and White girls' athletics consisted only of basketball. This was varsity competition. In the school year 1923-24 soccer, hiking, and basketball made up the program. All of these were both varsity and class activities.

In 1924 a brief period of hockey was initiated. Basketball, which had been dropped the year before, was again the leading sport. The team defeated Central's girls' team twice in one season. A new sport called newcomb was added to the program in this year also.

G. A. A. Started 1926
The Girls' Athletic Association was originated on January 13, 1926. Elviah Miller was the first president. A constitution was drawn up by a committee consisting of representatives of each class and including Miss Patterson. At this time varsity basketball was dropped and turned into an intramural sport. The other intramural sports included hockey, volleyball, track, and tennis. Later, skating and hiking were added. A point system was adopted by which each girl was awarded a letter after having earned a total of 1,000 points. With the present point system a girl is awarded a numeral for earning 200 points and is required to have 500 points before she receives her letter.

The organization gradually grew from a club of ordinary size into the largest one in the school. It now has a membership of 400. During the first few years the club was large enough that only one adviser was necessary. But in 1930 it grew to such enormity that an assistant was required. At that time the assistant was Miss Albert.

The most important event in the G. A. A. is the annual exhibition. This always turns out successfully because of the co-operation and good will presented by the girls. One event is hardly over when planning starts on the next one.

Great improvements were made in the gymnasium in 1937. A complete new shower room was installed for the use of the girls. A new dressing room was also added. The girls had the pleasure of initiating all new showers and mirrors in January of 1938.

For sixteen years now girls' athletics have been functioning in South Side. They have proved so successful in the past years and are so successful at the present time that without a doubt they will rule supreme in the minds of girls at South Side for many years to come.

Blue To Place Tough Eleven On Grid Field

Twelve Lettermen To Return This Year; Season's Schedule Is Announced.

Central's Tigers are rapidly developing into a very good football team. The present squad is headed by twelve lettermen from last year, four of them regulars throughout the 1937 season, and Coach Murray Mendenhall has a lot of very good material from the second team last year.

Central Has Two Stars
Central's attack this year will be centered about the school's two triple-threat men, Bill Hanley and Henry Kulesza; both boys are good runners, passers and kickers. Hanley, a 160-pound senior, will probably work at the halfback position this year although he was a fullback last year. Fealing Talley will probably be Haley's running mate this year. Although Talley is only five feet, seven inches tall and weighs 140 pounds, he is one of the most dangerous men on the squad, being a fast runner and very shifty on an open field.

The fullback position will be held by Henry Kulesza, a five-foot, ten-inch junior, who was injured early in the season last year. Kenny Rice again will hold down the quarterback job this year. Rice is a fast man, particularly good as a blocking back, rarely failing to get his man out of the way. Dick Miller, a sophomore, Herb Knothe, a senior, and Fred Shaw, another sophomore, are all showing up well in practice and will threaten the regular's positions.

Places Hard to Fill
The line will cause Coach Mendenhall the most trouble with center, guards, tackle and an end post to worry about. All of these holes were left by graduation and will be a bit hard to fill. Russel Parker and Ed Langas are fighting it out for the center position, and both will probably be used a lot this season.

Mendenhall needs two good guards for his style of play and he has found two good men in John Arnold and Ted Lewandowski. Both boys weigh 160 and are tough so that they will strengthen the line considerably. Bill Benner, a senior, and Art Doester, a junior, are offering them close competition.

Mike Gaines is back from last year to hold down one tackle post and the other hole will probably be filled by Gus Dooling mostly with help from Dale Thompson and Eugene Mettler, both 180 pound juniors. Duke Richardson will have one end post and the other one will go to Arnold Kaufman if he continues with his present performances.

This year's squad is very fast and only a little heavier than last year's, so the Tigers will be a plenty tough nut to crack.

Central's schedule is as follows:
September 6—Bluffton, here.
September 16—Elkhart, there.
September 24—Central Catholic.
September 30—Decatur, there.
October 8—North Side.
October 15—Auburn, here.
October 28—Huntington, there.
October 29—Columbia City, here.
November 12—South Side.

Many Archers Figure In Softball Participation

Softball, a game growing fast in popularity all over the country, has gained the attention of most South Side pupils, many of whom are active participants on various teams.

One of the state champs, John Hines, played under the lamps at the Municipal Beach for Centlivre, a team in the upper half of the Main Auto Commercial League. John's timely batting and outstanding fielding helped the team win its good standing in the league.

LeRoy Cook and Blackie Braden formed the battery for the Broadway Merchants. Braden pitched against many tough teams, winning a good majority of games; Cook did the kind of outstanding work that won him the Kenworthy Trophy.

One of the best pitchers in the Mike Kelly League was Ralph Saalfrank. The Fairfield Merchants won third place in the league mainly due to Saalfrank's pitching and the hitting of Jack Hornberger, outstanding first baseman of the Fairfield Merchants.

The City Tournament now being held at the Municipal Beach will bring to light many more outstanding players many of whom we hope will be South Side students.

New Addition To Be Opened In Short Time

Classes Occupy New Rooms
In Three Weeks; Several Are Already Being Used.

Nine Classrooms Will Be Available

Five Offices, Greeley Room,
New Study Halls Make up Remainder Of New Part.

South Side's new addition will be opened to classes in about three weeks, R. Nelson Snider, school principal announced. Part of the upper floor has already been opened and classes are being held in some of the rooms. The new section contains nine classrooms, two large study halls, the only stairs in South Side, five offices, and the Greeley Room.

Redecorate Classrooms
Some classrooms that were used last year have been redecorated and are included in the new addition. However several completely new rooms have been built and will be occupied within a month. The new rooms are all painted a cream color as in the hall. These rooms all have large window space and are equipped with the latest heating and ventilating systems. The rooms will also have a two-way radio system along with the rest of the old rooms.

The Greeley Room has been moved to the south-west corner of the school on the second floor. This room, named after Philip Greeley, a former instructor of South Side, has been decorated in a modernistic manner with wood paneling on the doors and around the stage. The Greeley Room will be used as a club room and to hold speech meets and give plays in.

Add Study Halls
Two study halls have been built on the second floor, and one is already in use by a few students. Neither one will be used extensively this year, but next year when an auditorium is to be built in the space now occupied by the present study hall and locker rooms these study halls will be used. Five offices have been provided for the principal, the dean, heads of several departments, and the main office. Several modernistic drinking fountains have been installed in the upper halls along with a modern lighting system. Four skylights were installed in the upper halls to provide natural light as much as possible. Two lavatories have also been added on the second floor. South Side's only stairs will be used to connect the first and second floors at the south end of the building.

Meet Is Held By Times Staff September 13

Betty Daniels Now Business Adviser; Helen Banks Is
New Co-managing Editor

At a meeting of The Times staff Monday evening, Miss Rowena Harvey, faculty adviser, announced that Betty Daniels, former co-managing editor, will be the new business adviser. In addition, Helen Banks, former copy editor, was made co-managing editor.

Good First Issues
Miss Harvey and each major staff member gave comments on the first two issues of The Times. Miss Harvey stated that the first two issues of the paper were a success. The staff members who gave comments were: Eleanor Vesey, general manager; Betty Daniels, business manager; Margery Rapp, co-managing editor; Virginia Goggin, circulation manager; Bruce Bradbury, news editor; Lora Lee Montgomery, advertising manager; Margaret Gross, editor; Ed Reeves, sports editor; and Julia Smith, business manager.

Add New Members
Minor staff members who were added are as follows: Winfield Buchan, point recorder; Joan Rose, exchange editor; Irene Kirk, cutter-upper; Virginia Hill and Gwen DeWees, proofreaders; George Schafer and Bob Byers, sports writers; Ronald M. Byers, Kathryn Eipper, Betty Stump, and Reba Coppock, reporters; Margaret Wiles and Virginia Sprunger, typists; and John Bonis, James Brooks, and Bud Lampton, advertising solicitors. The class room reporters who were named are: Betty Bolyard, Jack Brazy, Kitty Clinard, Dick Craighead, June Enock, Bernice Etzler, Beverly Griffith, Marilyn Halpern, Mary Lampton, Richard McClure, Mary Melching, Joan Rose, Martha Thomas, Lois Gumpfer, Faye Gumpfer, Elaine Hirsch, Marjorie VanCuren, and Violet Steinbauer.

Girls' Rifle To Elect Officers Wednesday

Officers will be elected for the coming semester of the Girls' Rifle Club at an organization meeting to be held at 3:20 in room 94 on Wednesday, September 21. No shooting will be done as this is only an organization meeting.

Upperclass girls wishing to become members of the Rifle Club will meet Wednesday. Miss Rosemary DeLauney, adviser of the club, stated that no freshmen or sophomore girls will be taken in this year, but if they have been members before they will be permitted to rejoin.

Philo To Induct Year's Officers At First Meet

Margaret Null Is President;
Vice-president, Lois Rea;
Secretary, Joyce Harwood

Philo will hold its first meeting of the semester Monday, September 19 at 3:30 o'clock in the Greeley room. Installation of officers will be the main feature of the meeting.

The term's officers are president, Margaret Null; vice-president, Lois Rea; secretary, Joyce Harwood; treasurer, Annette Snoko; sergeant-at-arms, Helen Banks; program chairman, Ella Jo Reed; pianist, Elizabeth Rose; thespian director, Virginia Shidler; publicity committee, Dorothy Hall and Audrey Hall; decoration committee chairman, Janice Dyer; quartette director, Francis Van Buskirk; and point recorder, Ruth Kaiser and Jean Fortriede.

The club songs and yells will be given. Pep talks will be given by Phyllis Geller and Janice Dyer. Games will conclude the meeting.

The club's highlights for the year will be the fall frolic, the dance, annual skate, and Christmas party.

Any 10A junior, or senior girl with a B or better in English is eligible for membership. Those who wish to join must write a letter of application to Miss Elizabeth Demaree, club adviser. All eligible girls are cordially invited to attend the first meeting.

The main purpose of this club is to develop a keener interest in literature among the girls here at South Side.

A meeting of the club's officers in form of a potluck will be held September 21 at 5 o'clock. Plans for every meeting of the entire year will be made. A standard point system will also be worked out.

Nineteen Leave School For Other Institutions
Many students are leaving South Side to attend other schools in Fort Wayne, or out of town. Those leaving for Central Catholic High School are Jack Vail, Kenneth Collis, John Schlebecker, Bernard Miller, Robert Schnieders, and Norma Miller. The following are going to Central: Herbert Butler, Irvin Conley, Willard Gibson, Donald Etzler, Samuel Butler, and John Bardon.

Marjorie Elfiner and Joanne Krouse left the city for Indianapolis. Joanne will go to Shortridge. Among the others that have left the city are: Ellen and Elaine Thackery, Urbana, Ohio; Barbara Lee, Royal Oak, Michigan; and Florence Oransky, Tudor Hall. Glen Frederick is going to work. He will return the second semester.

First Meet Of Year To Be Held By Hi-Y

The South Side Hi-Y will hold its first meeting of the year at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. This year Mr. W. O. Gilbert will again sponsor the club. The new officers will take charge are: Richard Buchholz, president; Maurice Lehman (vice-president); Roger Neff, secretary; Jack Bostick, treasurer. All junior and senior boys are invited to join.

In the first meeting the program of the semester will be planned.

Extemp Club To Hold First Meeting At Lake

The South Side Extemp club will hold its first meeting Friday, September 15 at Clear Lake. The meeting will be an over-night affair, and all the members are invited. The event will be held from Friday evening, following the dismissal of school, until Saturday morning when the club members will return to the city in time for the opening of the South Side football season.

Seniors Must Check Names In Front Hall

The list of all seniors, mid-term and June graduates, has been posted in the show case in the front hall. All seniors should check this list for possible errors in spelling or omission and report them to the office.

Many New Offices, Rooms Are Installed For Various Causes

In addition to the many improvements which our school has undergone, new offices have been installed. On the west side of the building from left to right is found the book store, the general office, Mr. Snider's office, administration room, Miss Pittenger's office, and Mr. Flint's office.

These offices will serve many purposes. Miss Alderdice will be in charge of the general office. By removing the partition between Miss Pittenger's office and the old general office, she has a more commodious place in which to work. Mr. Snider will have more space in which to perform his duties as principal in the new quarters which have been provided for him.

The administration room has been planned to serve as a conference room, a place in which students may be examined and where committee meetings may be held. The arrangement of these offices will provide better communication.

Students will notice other changes which will promote better efficiency. The Totem office was changed from its former "cubby hole" to the new Times Room where it occupies the northwest corner. Those who work on The Times are rejoicing in the enlarged quarters. This was accomplished by the addition of Miss Adelaide Fiedler's room. The visual education department will use the old Totem office in which to store their films.

Freshman Classes Meet In Library

Rules, Regulations About Books
Given Last Tuesday To Pupils
By Emma Shoup, Librarian.

The Freshmen met in the library last Tuesday during their respective English classes. Miss Emma Shoup, the librarian, told them about the rules and regulations of the library. The freshmen learned that the library opens at 7:45 o'clock in the morning and stays open until 4:00 o'clock. They also learned the periods during the day in which they might enter the library to work. Miss Shoup made it clear that the tables were to be cleared off at the end of the period.

One point made was that the library is locked at 4 o'clock after school. The freshman took notes as Miss Shoup explained how to check out books, fill out cards, fines and how the books are checked as the students leave the library.

Dramatists Will Meet With Margery Suter

Miss Margery Suter has announced that a meeting will be held tomorrow for Student Play members and all students who wish to enter drama classes. Miss Suter will make announcements and answer questions that prospective drama class members have to ask her about enrollment. Drama classes will be held fourth, fifth and sixth periods on Monday and Friday this year as they have been previously.

Articles Of Three Archers Published

Three Archers have been honored recently by having their articles published on Youth's Passing Show page of the News-Sentinel. They are Joe Loos, Joyce Cleaver, and John Gumpfer. Joe's article was about the fun he had had raising and training pigeons. Joyce's poem, "A Silhouette," was published. John's article told about his experience in fruit packing.

Prominent Freshman To Be Given Award

Miss Gertrude Oppelt, who was a Latin instructor at summer school, has announced that the entire faculty of the summer course has decided that a scholarship will be awarded to an outstanding freshman from each high school, beginning next spring. The scholarship will be awarded for ability and attitude.

Archers Site Trips, Voyages, Interesting Hobbies Enjoyed During Three Months Summer Vacation

Lois Hageman went to Michigan and visited the Cascades at Jackson and also the Irish Hills.

Jack Gross went to the C. M. T. C. camp last summer. According to Jack all they did was drill and have target practice. The 9 o'clock curfew and the 5 o'clock rising were Jack's pet peeves. Pay day was the best day in camp.

Her first airplane ride provided the highlight of her summer vacation for Lois King. The pilot looped and did spins but upon reaching terra firma, Lois was anxious to go up again.

The sportsmanship award of the Mike Kelly Kid League was won by Byron Ginger this summer.

Jane Engelsing took a trip to the Wisconsin Dells this summer. She was surprised to find that inside the Cold Water Canyon the temperature was 70 degrees while outside it was 90 degrees. She also saw Stand Rock and an Indian village where a performance of native dances was given.

Mary Griffith had a gruesome experience. She saw a man electrocuted

Service Aides For Teachers Are Appointed

Thirty-seven Pupils Chosen
To Assist With Activities
And Extra Office Duties

More Assistants Will Be Selected

Students Apply For Work
From Jack Wainwright,
Miss Martha Pittenger

"Thirty-seven additional South Side service workers have been chosen," it was announced by nine faculty members and departmental heads early this week. However, the final selection of locker guards and other workers will not be completed until all applications have been received, and applicants chosen. Working in one of these various departments automatically entitles one entrance into Service Club, an entirely honorary society.

Sell Athletic Tickets
Students are allowed to do any of the following work. For Mr. Ora Davis they may sell athletic tickets, type and do other forms of office work. Many girls help Mrs. Scott in the study hall by keeping an attendance record, and running errands. Girls assisting Miss Dorothy Alderdice distribute mail and carry pink slips and do various other jobs.

Under Mr. Verne Flint's supervision there are students that are hall and locker guards. Their job is to see that everyone in the halls or locker rooms during periods has a hall pass. He also has girls working in his office during periods and after school.

Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Dean have office girls and pianists. The latter play for the dancing classes and whenever the dancing club presents a performance at a tea dance or some other activity. The office girls type records and bulletins, appoint shower room guards, check attendance in gym classes, sell ties and make records of tournament schedules.

Dean's Office Workers
There are girls who work for Miss Martha M. Pittenger. Their jobs are to carry slips, return lost articles and books that have names in them, and occasionally they take care of a student needing first aid. Girls assisting Mr. Benjamin Null, file and do other office work. There are also students that belong to the Service Club that work for Mr. Jack Wainwright.

Students working for Mr. Davis are Eleanor Kneller, seventh period and after school; Robert Hageman, sixth period and after school; and Doris Siebold and Evelyn Kruse, after school.

The girls that help Mrs. Scott in the Study Hall are as follows: Grace Hardesty, first period; Mariana Newell, second; Margaret Niblick, third; Phyllis Branning, sixth; and Eleanor Schepler and Agnes Seiler, seventh.

Office girls for Mr. Flint are as follows:

Exhibited At State Fair

Prize Issue of Times

This picture shows The South Side Times on exhibit at the State Fair as the result of its winning first prize in the contest conducted by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity at Indiana University, and the State Fair.

New Teachers Give Favorable Opinions Concerning School

All the new faculty members of South Side seem to be very favorably impressed with the school. They especially praised the fine spirit of co-operation between students and teachers.

Their opinions of South Side are as follows:
Miss Blanche Hutto, the new art teacher, said, "I am very well impressed with the school. There is a spirit of co-operation and harmony which makes excellent organization. I'm acquainted with many of the teachers through college and club work. The art students seem to be very enthusiastic. It is a great pleasure to be associated with Miss Erma Doehrmann. I like South Side very much. It's very interesting."

Mrs. Lillian Scott, the teacher in charge of the study hall, said, "I like it fine so far. I felt very much encouraged by the attitude of the students. They started out fine in the study hall."

"Everybody has everything very well organized," stated Mr. George Collyer, a history teacher. "I haven't had much trouble finding my way around. There is a fine spirit of co-operation between students and teachers."

When asked how he liked South Side, Mr. Clyde Pierce, social science teacher said, "Fine! Everybody seems to be interested in seeing new teachers get a start. The pupils so far are fine. I couldn't ask for more."

Archer Attends Fair

Kathryn Eipper, sophomore, attended the Indiana State Fair during its session at Indianapolis last week.

Vacations Will Come Four Times In Year

Most of South Side's students will be glad to know that they have several vacations in store for them this year, totaling fourteen days.

The following dates are important to remember as they are the holidays and vacations which South Side will observe this year:

October 20, 21—Teachers' convention.
November 24, 25—Thanksgiving.
December 24 to January 2—Christmas vacation.
April 3 to 7—Spring vacation.

First In State Again! Archers,

Total Of 693 Subscriptions Has Been Reached; Several Agents Near 100 Mark

The South Side Times circulation drive has netted a total of 693 subscriptions in the first two weeks of school. Many more subscriptions are expected before the circulation campaign ends in one week. The last free issue of The Times was handed out today to every one in the school. Next week only those persons who have paid their subscription money will receive an issue of the paper.

Hold Agent's Meeting
At a room agents' meeting held in room 22 yesterday agents were asked to put special effort into the last week of the campaign and bring in more subscriptions. Miss Harvey, faculty adviser of The Times, Virginia Goggin, circulation manager; and Betty Daniels, business adviser; spoke at the meeting. Bob Byers and Jeanette Warren, winners of the first day prize for the most subscriptions, were awarded prizes of one dollar and fifty cents. Bob Byers won first prize of a dollar with a total of thirty-one subscriptions the first day of school, and Jeanette received the second place award with twenty-six subscriptions. Agents received candy bars at the meeting.

Near 100 Per Cent
No agent has one hundred per cent yet, but several have nearly one hundred per cent. Candy bars will also be given every student in a hundred per cent room. Several room agents were changed after the first few days of the campaign when it was found that they were not working as hard as was needed. Every agent who was not present at the room agents meeting yesterday will be eliminated from The Times staff unless they have a legitimate excuse to explain their absence.

The assistant circulation managers who are helping Virginia Goggin are: Marjorie McNabb, Lucy Smith, Emilou Allendorph, Rebecca Abbott, Maurine Seibert, and Beverly Griffith. Book No. 4 in charge of Maurine Seibert is leading with ninety-one subscriptions. Book No. 6, in charge of Emilou Allendorph is in second place with eighty-six subscriptions.

The room agents and their rooms are:

Math Scientists To Meet First Friday At 7:30

Officers Ken Warren, Jean Fortriede, Gwen DeWees,
James Craig Are Installed

Astronomy will be the theme of the first meeting of Math-Science, to be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the new Greeley Room. Mr. Lloyd Whelan, The Spirit of Science, Miss Adelaide Fiedler, The Spirit of Mathematics, and some former president, The Spirit of Math-Science Club, will take part in the installation of new officers.

Mr. Lloyd Whelan will talk on stars and planets, where and when they can be seen. He will demonstrate the new planetarium explaining the orbit of Venus about the earth.

Mr. Louis Hull will explain his telescope, and all those present will go to the South Field and look at the stars through it. Mr. Hull made his telescope and he will explain the making of it.

The new officers to be installed are Kenneth Warren, president; Jean Fortriede, vice-president; Gwen DeWees, secretary; and James Craig, treasurer. The faculty advisers are: Mr. Elma Gould, Mr. Lloyd Whelan, Miss Adelaide Fiedler, and Miss Georgianna Hodgson.

The committees which have been appointed are program, Jean Fortriede, chairman, James Murphy and Bruce Bradbury; refreshment, Richard Bucholz, chairman, Emmalou Allendorph, and Maurine Seibert; social, Eugene Schmidt, chairman, and John Masley. The membership committee consists of the new officers.

There will also be games, music and refreshments.

Cabinet Lists Events In Wrangler Calendar

Programs for the first four meetings of Wranglers were arranged when officers assembled last Monday. The first regular meeting, which will be devoted to organization, will be held September 19, and at two week intervals thereafter. The succeeding three meetings will feature a picnic to be held at Foster Park for which there will be a twenty-five cent fee. "Wranglers' three-minute extemporaneous contest and a potluck-initiation."

Principal Announces Frosh Home Rooms

Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, said there will be twelve freshmen home rooms as follows:

If the school gets any larger, students will have to wear skates to get to classes on time.

And this was overheard. "Give me Liberty or any other five-cent magazine."

Wanted: Lots more Times subscriptions so I can get to safety quicker. Little Miss Muffett.

And we continue to cry, "Halt!" as they continue to finish our new corridors.

If you haven't subscribed for your Times, do so now. Remember, North Side wants that circulation cup, too.

Here is hoping South Side keeps its reputation as the School of Champs and snags the City Football Championship.

It won't be long until we are once again yawning out in the stadium, cheering our powerful footballers on to victory.

The Times subscription goal of 1500 is slowly but surely being reached, but we still need your aid in making it a howling success.

Already you can see students secretly stifling yawns behind closed books. Question: What good is summer vacation if you have to come back to school to rest up from it?

Swing Or Sweetness?

"Music has charms." Who was it that brought forth this bit of philosophy? Surely he did not live in the fast-moving, hilarious, and somewhat eccentric twentieth century.

Today the entire world has become "swing". conscious. In fact everyone may be heard whistling and singing such fantastic bits of harmony (?), such as "The Flat-Foot Floogie" or "A Tisket A Tasket." No longer are lovely pieces such as "The Blue Danube" or "Martha" sweetly offered as centuries-old favorites. Instead they are now unmercifully beat out in the modern bang-bang tempo of today known as "swing". Mendellson or Bach would consider our musical world a sad failure and a hearty disappointment. In fact many of us wonder if music-appreciation is entirely lost.

Be Prepared For Opportunity's Knock

"I will study and prepare myself, and then, some day, my chance will come." These famous words were once spoken by Abraham Lincoln, a person who has always been looked up to and whose words have always been heeded. We of today who are attending school are preparing ourselves for the future. Our future lies in the business and professional world.

If these words of Lincoln were constantly in the minds of the students today there would be more students carrying out their high school education and continuing college courses. These well-educated boys and girls that are annually turned out of the high schools and colleges are to be the business and professional men and women of the future. If the students were to take a keener interest in their school life the number of annual quitters would be reduced greatly. In the future generations the students would have a higher type of intelligence and thus the world would be a better place because it would be governed correctly.

While we are in school let us think of our future and plan to get the most out of our high school and college educations; and, in doing this, we shall prepare ourselves for the future. When our chance comes we shall be ready.

Fresh Start, Fresh Building, Fresh Students

Now that summer has finally drawn to her unheralded close, students must once again pick up their books and go back to their respective schools.

How very frequently comes the cry of "Our good times are over, and we have to go back to the same old grind at the same old school." This statement is positively nothing more than another criticism given by some dull-witted pupil who is never happy unless he has something to comment about.

However, this year no one will be able to make this droll remark. Not only do we have our usual good times of dances, club meetings, and that ever-thrilling prospect of making new friends to look forward to, but this year we start our work in practically a whole new building—a building which only through careful planning and constructing was made possible for our humble benefit.

Yes, it is true; South Side has grown larger, a trait which is almost synonymous of the grand work she has done in the past years.

Pro and Con

By Betty Neeb

A very debatable issue extracted from the course of high school life is the question of whether a four-year honor roll should exist in the course of a high school education. This subject is quite frequently discussed by many groups and often times tends to arouse a heated conversation between the opposers of this merit system and that group who are for it. Henceforth, we have devoted this column this week to this new-old question, "Should a four-year honor roll exist in the public high school?"

PRO

There are many features about a four-year honor roll which favor this particular group. It creates somewhat of a scholastic standard to work for and opens up a high goal for the studious boy or girl to achieve. Arousing the abilities of the students, it creates a much larger demand for book-learning and thus sets more students on the road to more and better education.

A four-year honor roll helps to bring forth a certain amount of competition; and as it has been countless times proved throughout the past centuries, competition is a pre-helper to higher progress and generally better things.

Leslie Johnson, Archer graduate, says, "A four-year honor roll is tops. It's a great thing, because it gives credit where credit is due, and it establishes a higher standard among students."

Ringling firmly true this honor group does just that. It gives a justly deserved reward to that hard working bunch of boys and girls who devote many laborious hours of time and work in order that they may not only get their studies but get them well.

As the people on the four year honor roll receive their positions only through self-made grades, the students in this group are all of the highest calibre and intelligence. It is something which concerns only scholastic achievement and no rule for social prominence enters into the list of requirements necessary for membership, thus giving each person an equal chance.

CON

"A four year honor roll is decidedly poor thing to have," comments Beverly Griffith, senior journalist, "for it causes too many students who stand just on the brink of the desired average to lose out entirely and receive no credit at all."

"Oftentimes hard feelings are aroused and a display of poor sportsmanship is exhibited by the student who shall we say has an average of eighty-nine and four-fifths percent, and cannot be made a member of the four year honor roll simply because his average is not ninety per cent. Thus a hard working, highly intelligent boy or girl loses out not only in the glory of being named one of the honor students of his class but also the one award given solely for a studious student."

It is also very undesirable in that it causes certain people to put their mind entirely upon their studies, and does not give them a chance to enjoy many of the pleasant features of a high school life, essential to boys and girls.

Many parents, in forcibly making their children "get out and really work for that blessed ninety per cent," do not realize what they are causing their children to miss in other just as important high school phases.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

South Side Students Are Greatly Pleased With Reconstruction

South Side students are coming back to a new school. Probably lost, they stroll down one hall, then another, hunting their next classrooms; and voicing their opinions of the whole school in general. Here is what several of our South Siders think of our new school.

Marjorie Wigbel: I think it's swell! Much better than it used to be!

Dick Schieferstein: Swell! There is no other school in Fort Wayne like it.

Gene Lou Harges: I think it is nice.

Carl Shidler: I think the school is O. K.

Gloria Wiebke: Oh boy, and all that stuff. Anyway, I think it's great.

Kathryn Beckman: I think the new school is a remarkable improvement over the old. The new space is what was needed most and now we have it. It will be a much better place to study in after this.

Maxine Sterling: I think it's pretty swell—couldn't be better.

Betty Thiele: Swell! Lot's better than it used to be.

Ruth Ellison: I think the school is O. K. Since it has been remodeled, I think it is the nicest school around.

Dudley Snyder: I think the new school is swell—what I've seen of it, I'm sure it'll be one of the best schools in Indiana when it's finished.

Al Schaaf: I think it's a pretty good place.

Richard Bussing: It's all right, but wish it was finished.

Richard Zartman: I think our school is one of the best that has ever been built.

William Whetzel: I think it is all right now, but it will be better when it is finished.

Harold Gerbers: It's hard to find my way through. The new stairways look swell.

Jeanne Snyder: I think it's snazzy.

Ruth Freese: I think it's O. K.

Paul Wolford: Well, to make a long, long story short—it is pretty swell.

Jimmie Weaver: It's O. K. now, and when it's done, which I hope will be pretty soon, it will be double swell.

Why Study About Government? Read This And Understand Why

Many students take a certain course at school just because they know they are required to and without the slightest intention of deriving any benefit from it. In fact, many are in doubt as to whether there is any value to the course and how in the world it will be of any aid in the future years.

Now, when you are going to take a certain subject, you should know what it is all about and why you should be spending time studying it when you could otherwise be working on other, and what you consider more important, things. You ask the question, "Why take a course in government?" which here at South Side includes civics, United States history, general history, economics, sociology, and advanced government.

You could almost be safe in saying that government is the all-important thing in the life of an American. Our government is operated solely for the people of the United States, and it is therefore imperative how it operates. The main purpose of the government course is to give the ordinary high school student an inside picture of the running of it and to acquaint him with its background.

How it was organized, why it is democratic instead of autocratic, who were the outstanding men who helped organize it, who can become president, and innumerable other questions that are not quite clear in your minds are dealt with in an interesting manner. Before these questions can be cleared up, some serious study must be given them. Here is where the government course steps in.

Study General History
In the sophomore year, you get general history, in which you cover ancient history and get a good background for European history. You study all about the great conquests of Napoleon Bonaparte, Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, and numerous other conquerors of the world. United States history is generally studied in the junior year. The book takes you back to the thirteenth century, back to Da Gama, Columbus, Pizarro, and other bold adventurers and brings you up to present-day history. You study the important documents of the United States... the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. All the important wars fought by the United States are taken up and discussed in detail. It gives you an idea of conditions at home and abroad during war. Tariff and excise tax questions are discussed. You study about the different branches of the government and how they operate. You learn the powers of the president, vice-president, etc. In fact, taking the courses all together, they touch all or practically all subjects pertaining to the government, things that Americans must know in order to vote properly and talk about affairs of the government in an intelligent manner.

Taking this all in all, can't you understand better the need for a course in government here at South Side and in every other school?

Kelly Koed Kut Ups

After many sleepless nights and days filled with tortured moments, I have come to the bitter conclusion that writing the so-called dirt column is definitely not what it is cracked up to be. If you children happen to read in the paper in a few weeks that a well-known editorial writer had a serious nervous breakdown it will be yours truly. I admit that if I had just a twensy bit of co-operation it wouldn't be so bad, but as it is I'm really on the spot. But the show must go on! So I go on, too.

It seems that some lads and lassies in South Side would like to know just why Carolyn Keel and Blaine Leas don't get together. Let us in on the inside dope, please.

Also that cutie, Peggy Harrod, is the latest heart interest of our own little playboy, Bob Bolyard. People seem to think that they are well on the road to love.

Jean Weil was heard to make the statement, "Gee, he's cute." She means Gene Stair. Well, Jeanie, to tell the truth, you're not the only one who thinks so.

David Roth has at long last found his "angel." This must be Jeanne Ringler's lucky day.

Phyllis Geller just can't seem to see enough of Eugene Schmidt. At least it seems so from the way he haunts Phyllis' doorstep every night. And I don't think Phyllis really down deep in her heart objects.

This is strictly a confidential letter to Wilma Legemann. Why don't you give Phil Pressler a chance to prove that he's all he claims he is? Perhaps, if he's as good as he sounds, he might be your Prince Charming. Who knows?

There is a couple that really deserves some credit. That couple is none other than our own little Audrey Hall and Jack Lindsey. This romance has been burning so long I don't believe it needs any refuel.

Even if Joanne Krouse's moving away broke Tom Gallmeyer's heart, he will soon recover because several of our gals have already shown a more than ordinary interest in the very lucky and talented youngun. If the firmly established Romeos wish to keep their standing among the fens of South Side they'd better keep their eyes peeled for Tommie.

Our sophisticated junior, Billie Lou Beaver, will have time on her hands when Miles Porter goes back to school. Tough luck, Billie.

Dickie-boy Craig is another lad who won't be kept on ice long now that Sarah Meily has taken leave of us.

It's too bad that our girls have to look to other schools for male interests. Valette Witte is pa-lenty excited over a Centralite named Harold Grabner. Marjorie Butler's current theme song is, "Lover Come Back to Me." Yes, believe it or not, Aubry Kellogg has dated other girls ever since his one and only had a single fling with another boy. It shows to go ya what a harmless little flirtation may develop into. Let this be a lesson to all who try and pull the wool over somebody's eyes.

Rena Bennett sits around waiting for Bob Rimscher to call half the time. The funny part of it is that she does not have to wait long. I guess he realizes what a swell catch he's got.

Sam Bacon has finally won the heart of Betsy Dale. In my opinion it's about time.

(Editor's Note: There is a mailbox for your gossip at the west entrance of the study hall.)

Teachers Approve Possible Use Of Broadcast System

In the near future South Side will have a new public address system. This system will enable Mr. Snider to make announcements directly from the office and broadcast the morning bulletin. This system has been used with success in other Fort Wayne schools.

Many of the teachers when asked expressed their opinions about this system.

Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke: I think this radio system will be grand.

Miss Elizabeth Demaree and Miss Beulah Rinehart: We are very enthusiastic about it.

Miss Erma Doehrmann: I think this system has a great educational value.

Miss Blanche Hutto: I think this system will make for greater coordination.

Mrs. Carson: It will save me many trips to the office.

Mrs. Grace Welty: I think I will like this new system.

Mr. Albert Heine: I cannot say whether I shall like it or not.

Miss Eleanor Smeltz: This new system is fine.

Miss Mabel Fortney: If it works, the new radio system will be fine.

Conversation --- Please!

One of the surest things about life is that the greatest experiences and romances will appear on a dark day when you have caught your last pair of stockings on the furniture and the back of your hair has come uncurled. There is only one way out! A radiant smile will do wonders, but it's your conversation that will do the trick. Have you ever practiced conversing with an imaginary group of "teens"?

It may sound silly to you, but you can not expect to burst forth suddenly as a witty maestro of conversation if you have never practiced. A good way to get experienced in talking is to call on a sick friend or try to be agreeable to someone you don't particularly like.

Now the next question is—What to talk about. The answer is "THEM"! People like to talk about themselves. Soon you will discover that your self-consciousness has disappeared while you were finding out what your victim's suffering is caused by, what his hobby is, his favorite movie star and radio program, and his taste in the weather. You don't have to be intellectual to be a good talker. Secretly, girls, your escort will enjoy your company much more if he feels he has a slight edge on you intellectually speaking.

You may be the supreme talker of the ages, but if you punctuate your conversation with loud, excited giggles no one is going to enjoy talking to you. Too many "honey's," "darlings," or "dearies" will irritate girls as well as boys. And another way to drive your friends in different directions is to use the same slang expression at frequent intervals.

First of all,—Does your line suit your type? If you have been the star on the basketball, football, and softball teams, it's no use thinking that you'll get by without talking about sports! You'll have to tell all the blondes brunettes will want to know how you ever made that home-run when the bases were filled, and just everyone will want to know just how you sunk that basket from way out in the middle of the floor just as the gun went off. Now how will you ever tell them? Will you blush between touch-downs? Or will you smile and tell them the story so "witty-like" that they think they kicked the football themselves? If you choose the latter you will need experience! And girls, if you want to make a hit with the captain of the team, tell him that he certainly has a marvelous brain.

In general, a successful line has the same ingredients as a success in anything or any human relationship. If your escort sends you orchids for the evening, don't forget to tell him how thrilled you are. He's gone to a lot of trouble and expense to please you, and you should express your pleasure. If you just pin on the corsage as if you got orchids every day in the week, the next time he won't bother.

Interesting Items

Hi again! By this time we sincerely hope you've recognized all of your friends in spite of their wonderful tans and red noses... And we hope that you freshmen like our school... and us, too.

Young Bob Robinson went into somewhat of a dive over Pat Sanford... Another one of those summer things... Or we might be mistaken!

A tragedy that nearly broke many hearts—Joanne Krouse moved to Indianapolis. But instead of breaking the hearts, she took them with her. The main one, that of our up-and-coming m. c., Tommie Gallmeyer. Tom, you'd better take a little advice and retrieve your heart.

The best thing that we've seen so far happened a very short while ago. We think you'll agree with us that it really takes first prize... We actually saw two boys dressing paper dolls! And they're pretty good at dress ensembles, too. So, girls, if you want your fall wardrobe picked out by experts, refer it to either Freshie Warren Hoagland or Ex-Archer Bob Klotz, and we'll guarantee that either or both will be more than glad to be of assistance.

Seen here, there, and everywhere... Betty Haney and Tyke Hartman... Jim Schmoee and June Hayes... Beautiful Bob Bolyard and Peggy Harrod

Here's a hot tip... The reason freshie Mary Sites is coming to South Side is Richard Miller... The fact that she graduated from the 8A to the 9B has nothing to do with her advent.

Here's something that we hope you can figure out. It has us stumped! Jim Hartman has frequently squirmed Helen Banks here and there this summer, but he's supposedly going steady with Dorothy Sauer. Has Dottie been at the lake, and Jimmie been untrue? Or are Jim and Helen "jus' frens"? We wonder.

Our premiere prima-donna, Doris Hayes, has left the portals of South Side for Kokomo. Poor Alfred Hertel will need an awful lot of consolation... And being a blond, he'll probably get it.

We'd like very much to know who the handsome blond is that Erlen Lee fell for at camp this summer. She will divulge no names but we have inside information... He is one maestro and is leaving very soon for college. It couldn't be George, could it? We'd be quite grateful for his surname, Erlen.

Well, all good things must come to an end, even bad things. I'll leave it up to you which one my column comes under. Next week I hope that I will have a bigger and better dirt column. If I have it all depends on you, the students of South Side.

Alumnae Attractions

Scanning through the pages of "Who's Who in Ex-Archer-Land," we find a list of many graduates who have established themselves firmly as capable young men and women destined to make a name for themselves in this competitive and oftentimes hard-riding world.

Many of these people become famous in the business line. Few, however, shine brightly in that popular child-hood idea of becoming a movie star. There are exceptions to every rule, and Gwendolyn Horn, from the class of '36, is the exception to this one.

"Gwen" is a very attractive young lady who has arisen high since her Student Player days at South Side. She has won outstanding recognition not only in her native state and town, but in territories far-reaching.

Upon completing a successful four-years here at South Side, Gwen started to take a business course at the I. U. extension here. It was at this place that she met Professor Hodapp from Indiana University. Mr. Hodapp referred quite frequently to the Pasadena Playhouse to which he had been going for the past several years. Listening to his interesting talks about the school itself, Gwen felt her own interest aroused. Knowing the famed Norman Philbrick, an ex-Archer himself, Gwen found that he, too, thought that the Pasadena Playhouse would be well worth her while to attend.

So, leaving Fort Wayne, our adventurous Miss Horn started forth on the bumpy and discouraging road to Hollywood.

She enrolled in the Playhouse with a great deal of enthusiasm, and started training in earnest for a movie career. Working hard and studying for long hours, Gwen received many important roles in the school plays.

Finally, after a very triumphant two years, Gwen was given her diploma and was now a graduate for a second time. She was almost instantly given a screen test and offered a small role to appear in a picture for the Warner Brothers Studio.

However, fame was not to be had so easily, for ill-health retarded any further progress she was slated to have made.

At the present, Gwen is preparing to go back to the Pasadena Playhouse to take a post-graduate course. This, in itself, is quite a distinction, because only a small percentage of the original number graduating are permitted to come back for post-graduate work.

While she still enjoys visiting Fort Wayne where she has many friends, she likes Pasadena very much. She has made many new acquaintances and finds both her schooling and acting very interesting.

Who knows what the forthcoming season has in store for us. Perhaps this ardent Archer will go far in the cinema world. And—when we see her smilingly flashed upon the screen or tearfully doing a "Camille" act, we can sit back in our chairs and say, "Just another from the school of champs."

Thumbnail Sketches

Coming out from behind one of her almost-constant smiles, sparkling with vivacity, and bubbling over with enthusiasm, we find one of our extra-specialty extra-active seniors, Phyllis Geller.

Phyllis, whose talents are many, answers to a series of names, among which we find "Phyll," "Red," and "Pepper-Box." Although tiny in size, Phyll proves that age-old adage of "good things come in small packages," to be quite true; for beneath a lovely shock of auburn hair lies a super-active brain which has enabled Phyll to be rightfully labeled as one of the Archer Champs.

As the interests of this upper-upper-classman vary widely, she finds time to develop these interests in South Side clubs.

Phyll is an active member of the Philalethian Society of which she was vice-president, Art Club, Times, 1500, French Club in which she also served as vice-president, Social Science, and S.P.C. "Red" also capably fulfills the position of co-circulation manager of The Totem.

Not content with these accomplishments, Phyll also is a star by her own rights in the scholastic line, being an honor roll student.

Phyll is also a hobby-addict. Among her chief pleasures we find a carefully collected group of postcards which she has received from great distances. She also enjoys reading good books, dancing, and swimming.

Having a good taste for clothes, our little senior makes a very trim appearance. Her taste in clothes varies in the same way as it does in other things.

Phyll's chief ambition is to travel, and upon graduating from South Side, where she is taking a college-preparatory course, she plans to continue her education at an institution of higher learning, probably Ohio Wesleyan. From here she hopes to get a position where her desire to travel will be granted.

Miss Pittenger Has Lost, Found Articles

Miss Martha Pittenger and her assistants are making every effort to help people find their lost articles. Books, purses, umbrellas, money, and many other valuable articles are turned in to the lost and found department in Miss Pittenger's office. The first day of school a purse was turned in at the lost and found. Miss Pittenger said that the students are usually honest about claiming their articles.

Many students lose things and go to the lost and found, only to find their article not yet turned in. As lost objects often come in late, pupils should go back a second time for their articles.

lows: Kathryn Boerger, period one; Audrey Jefferies, second; Joan Hoy, third; Joan Bradley, fourth; and Marjorie Jackson, seventh. During the eighth period, girls work on different days of the week. They are Marjorie Hopkins, Monday; Edna Voltz, Tuesday; and Alma Korte, Friday.

Work in Gym Office
The girls working in the gym office for Miss Smith and Miss Dean are as follows: period one, Marjorie Schelper and Ruth Kaiser; period two, Eileen Schelper and Jane Weir; period three, Hazel Garling and Ruth Fuhrman; period four, Jane Hahn and Frances Van Buskirk; period six, Delores Ulrich and Audrey Mutschleener; period seven, Helen Luepke and Betty Thiele. Their pianists are Ruth Daimler, first period; Betty Koshier, second; Mildred Hankes, third; Velma Lehman, fourth and seventh; and Lois Gumpfer, sixth.

As yet, only two girls have been chosen to assist Miss Dorothy Alderice in the office. They are Alma Korte for the first period and Marjorie Hopkins for the second period. Delliah Shaffer helps Mr. Benjamin Null in his office the seventh period. Service workers for Mr. Jack Wainwright and Miss Martha Pittenger, and the hall and locker guards have not been chosen. Students wishing service work may see any of the above teachers and apply for a job.

Visual Education Office To Be Old Totem Site

Because of more room required the new offices for moving picture equipment will be in the west hall in the room which was formerly the old Totem office. Mr. Wilburn Wilson, visual education chairman, announced that Phyllis Frisinger, junior, will be chief head and Mark Hall, senior, will be chairman. The moving pictures will be shown in Mr. Wilson's room, No. 10, and the new activities room. Pictures will be shown during any period teachers desire during the day. The Social Science Club was the first to start such an activity. In the coming year they hope to purchase a camera in which to take their own moving pictures.

Brothers Attend Races

Bob and Jack Hodell never miss an opportunity to learn about airplanes. This summer they visited the Thompson trophy air races at Cleveland, Ohio, where they saw many new features and designs of airplanes.

Students Who Drive Must Sign In Office

All pupils who wish to drive to school must register in Mr. Snider's office as soon as possible, regardless of whether they drove last semester or not.

Summer School Instructor

Miss Gertrude J. Oppelt

Miss Gertrude J. Oppelt, head of South Side's Latin department, was an instructor at the summer school held at Central High School. This was the first summer that Miss Oppelt did not attend school for her Master's Degree.

Green Frosh Think New School Is Okay But Slightly Baffling

As your roving reporter was walking down the halls of our Alma Mater, she saw approaching her a group of green freshies. When asked what their first impression of South Side was some answered rather meekly that it was swell but too big. Other freshies remarked as follows: Betty Clem: I think it is a grand place.

Dorothy Bourne: I like it very much. La Von Cartwright: I am all mixed up but I like it.

Ralph Geiger: I can't find my rooms. Betty Gaskert: I think it's a swell school.

Jean Branstrator: It's swell. Irene Butcher: I know it's swell. Jane Klinefelter: I'm a little bit bewildered.

Rosa Lae Hall: It's large and I am afraid of getting lost, but I think I will like it.

Jack Forbing: It's okay. Paul Hensch: Swell place. Annabel Harrod: It's large and is scary.

Connie Abbott: Pretty nice school. Helen Galbreath: Swell place. So big I can't find my way around.

Dale Landis: Pretty big. Bob Guion: Too darn big.

Thelma Draper: It's awfully big. Irene Geiger: It's all right if I ever find my rooms.

Alumna Given Promotion

Miss Ethel Johnson, '33, a staff member at the Public Library of Fort Wayne and Allen County, was granted a leave of absence to further her study of library at the University of Illinois. Her position was that of a desk assistant in the circulation department.

Special Times Page Will Honor Caesar

To commemorate the two thousandth anniversary of Augustus Caesar, a special page will be dedicated to Latin and Caesar in next week's issue of The Times. Near the end of his rule the age of peace and refinement came, and for these many reasons this particular Roman figure will be emphasized. The page is to be under the direction of Miss Gertrude Oppelt, foreign language chairman; Miss Alda Jane Carson, Mrs. Grace Welty, Mr. Earl Sterner, Miss Clara Schmidt, and their Latin and German pupils.

Sylvan Lake Haven For Twenty-nine Archer Boy Scouts

At the Boy Scout Camp on Sylvan Lake, many Archers enjoyed the advantages which it offered. The camp is a model community. It contains 14 new screened-in cabins, an electrical system containing 15,000 feet of wire, and three pumps motivated by current which keeps a supply of sanitary water always available. In the camp's property also is a cutter, a canoe, a scow, a dozen row boats, and two outboard motors.

Frank Kennedy directed organization and planning in the camp, with the assistance of a thirty-man staff. The camp committee was headed by John R. McKay. Bob Frochall was instructor in life-saving and Ray Headlee in water-safety. Homer L. Smaltzer was chiefly responsible for the efficient lighting system.

The first of the six one-week periods of camping for the scouts began June 26 with 104 boys registered. The camp included an extra period this year set up after registrations exceeded capacity of the original five periods.

The following attended the fifth period: Edward Wade, Robert Englehart, Bill Whitsel, Dick Arnold, David Dulin, Keith Coverdale, Le Pierce, Gerald Carr, Clarence Ditton, and Louis Swager.

The following attended the sixth period: Bob Huegenard and David Bastian.

Three scouts received awards while attending the camp. Lee Pierce and Bill Whetzel received junior life-saving awards; Howard Stults and Lee Pierce were advanced to first class; and Bill Whetzel received the Order of Arrow, national camping fraternity.

Frosh G. A. A. Starts Season With Speedball

South Field To Supply Playing Area; Team Will Consist Of Eleven Players.

Within a few days the South Field will be well occupied by freshman G. A. A.ers who are participating in their first major sport, speedball.

The lines are marked across the field at five yards, at twenty yards from the goal, at center, and five yards on each side of it. A thirty-four foot area is marked to the twenty-yard line. The free kick line is located twelve yards in front of the goal. The goal posts are twenty feet high and twenty-four feet apart with a crossbar eight feet high.

The kick-off is the same as in soccer. A kicked ball may be caught and then kicked or thrown if it goes above the hips. A player is permitted to kick a low ball high enough so that he can catch it. A free ball, however, may not be kicked. An end line touchback is thrown or kicked in by the kickers. A held ball is put into play by "footing". If a ball is held inside the five-yard line, it is footed into play on the spot.

When a player scores a field goal, three points are earned. A field goal may be scored when a ground ball is kicked or legally given impetus with the body so that it passes over the end line between the posts.

A touchdown is another means of scoring. This may be accomplished by the completion of a forward pass from the field of play, which is between the two goal lines, into the end zone.

Penalty kicking is the last way of scoring. A player is awarded a penalty kick following a personal or technical foul. The ball is placed by the referee on the penalty mark, and the kicker may then attempt to kick the ball between the goal posts under the crossbar.

If a ball goes over the side lines, it shall become the possession of the side opposite that which last touched it and shall be put into play by a pass from the spot where it crossed the line.

If a ball, which goes over the end line without scoring, was last touched by a player of the offensive side, it is called a safety. The ball shall be put back into play at the spot where it crossed the end line. A player on the offensive side shall put it in by means of a punt, dropkick, or pass.

Personal fouls include tripping, charging, pushing, holding, or blocking an opponent. Running into an opponent from behind is interpreted as a personal foul for charging in case bodily contact is made.

Unsportsmanlike-like conduct and unnecessary delay of the game are classed as technical fouls.

Like the rules of other games, speedball rules contain many violations. These are: carrying the ball, touching a ground ball with the hands or arms, violating the kick-off rule, violating the penalty kick restrictions, violating out of bounds rules, by offensive player when returning the ball to the field to play, violating the ball rule, and violating the free kick rule.

A technical is committed by one outside of his own penalty area and shall be awarded one penalty kick. A violation is committed by a player outside of his own penalty area and shall be awarded a free kick. A penalty kick follows up.

The total number of players for speedball is eleven. These include five forwards, three halfbacks, two fullbacks, and one goal-keeper. The ball used is smaller than a ball used in playing soccer.

LeRoy Cook Enters Athletic Competition For His Third Year

LeRoy Lynn Cook was born in Fort Wayne, Indiana, on June 18, 1922. At the age of five, LeRoy enrolled at the South Wayne School where he spent the first six years of his school career. In 1934 LeRoy entered Harrison Hill School where he first made a name for himself in athletics. While at Harrison Hill, LeRoy played basketball, football, and was on the track team. He played on the Harrison Hill net squad which won the city tournament in 1934.

In June, 1936, "Curly" officially became a South Side Archer and immediately continued his activities in athletics, going out for football, basketball, and track in his freshman year. LeRoy Cook this fall returns to South Side as a junior and also the school's best all-round athlete. Cook is now engaging in his third year of varsity football as an end. He has played basketball for two years as a guard and has run the mile for two years as a member of the Archer track squad. Probably the most notable personal honor to be given in South Side athletics was conferred on Cook this year when he received the season are pretty good. He stated, "We have a scrappy ball club this year, and what's more important, good spirit."

LeRoy will graduate in 1940 and is as yet undecided as to his plans after graduation.

Kenworthy Trophy given by Herb Kenworthy to the South Side athlete, competing in all three major sports, who shows the best mental attitude and sportsmanship. Curly attributes success in this line to fair play and, "thinking the other fellow is just as good as you are."

In regard to this season's varsity grid squad, on which LeRoy will play first string end, Cook feels that the Archers' chances of a successful

Skirts and Sports

These sophomore athletes, Miriam Jackson, Wilma Lagemann, Elaine Ferguson, Nancy Hess, and Lois Holzworth, when hiking on the Bluffton road last spring attracted a bull. After seeing the bull they really did some fast road work.

Freshmen! Don't forget it's not too late to join G. A. A. The first group sport this fall will be speedball; then following will be volleyball, basketball, tumbling, and baseball. Sign up in the gym office now, so you won't miss any fun. Start earning points for your letter now.

Elaine Hirschy and Betty Marquardt, active G. A. A. members, passed their Junior Red Cross Life Saving this summer at Girl Scout Camp. Good work, girls; keep it up!

Hikers and skaters are going in for their sport in a big way this fall. You can sign up now for groups hiking to Waynedale, New Haven, and several other places. Those who enjoy skating can start earning their points now too.

If a person travels for a summer to a lake does it mean that he is a good swimmer? If so, Fort Wayne ought to produce all the swimmers for the next Olympic swim meet. The leading swimmers for this season are Dorothy Brown, Ethel Koch, Marcella Brachman, and Evelyn Kruse.

We have a newcomer who will enter into G. A. A. this fall. Her name is Delaine Rose. Velma Connert's cousin. She hailed from Jackson, Michigan. We hear she is just as good as her cousin. Upperclassmen, beware, the freshmen are trying to steal the headlines.

May I present to you the N. Y. A. champs of the city. This baseball team is composed of Pauline Werling, Frieda Schubert, Hazel Perry, Betty Eisenacher, '38, Marjorie Hower, '37, Gwen Roberts, Lucille Scheuman, and Jane Kison.

It seems as though Hazel Perry needs a Chicago street map. She went there to meet Frieda Schubert so she wouldn't get lost and Frieda had to call the police to help find Hazel. Better luck next time, Hazel.

O'Lily Kensler, a prominent G. A. A. er, had a bit of tough luck this summer. She spent a week at the Lutheran Hospital convalescing from an appendicitis operation. We're glad you didn't miss any school, O'Lily, and we hope to see you out again for sports as soon as possible.

It certainly looked good to see Marge Hower back in the old portals again. For the benefit of the freshmen who are not acquainted with her, Marge is one grand ex-G. A. A. er, and we're always glad to see her back.

A first class job of worrying was done by Betty Showalter, Friday night before the initial meeting. A few minutes before she was to make her speech, she discovered that she had misplaced her notes. Was she in a dither! But all joking aside, Betty really put it over.

Two Archers Ill

G.A.A. To Start Year's Activity With Hockey

South Side Is One Of Few Indiana Schools To Offer Participation For Girls.

Scrimmage Clash Will Be Featured

Plans Made To Review Plays, Rules Of Game; Announce Date Later.

Beginning an eventful G. A. A. season for upperclassmen is the ever-popular hockey. Accounting for the popularity of hockey is the fact that South Side is the only school in Fort Wayne and one of the few high schools of Indiana that includes it in their girls' athletic activities.

Before the regular tournament begins, a scrimmage game will be played for the purpose of reviewing the plays and rules of the game. The date for that game will be announced on the G. A. A. bulletin board.

Hockey is one of the oldest games in the world, as records of it are known as early as 1830. The hooked stick used in the game is supposed to have given hockey its name.

Rules for the game were first made by the English before 1875. The basis for the later development of the game was formed by these rules.

In 1901 Miss Constance M. K. Applebee first introduced hockey in several of the large colleges in the United States.

Field hockey is played on a large level field covered with turf which is marked with white lines. In the center of the end line, goals similar to the goals in football are erected, consisting of two poles and a crossbar. The field is divided through the center by a line parallel to the two end or goal lines, and each half is defended by a team of eleven players.

The game is played with a small white cricket ball made of leather, about the size of a baseball. The ball is played entirely with a hooked stick; it is never kicked or touched by hand. Every time the ball goes through the opponent's goal, a score is made. The shot must be made from the striking circle, an area marked in front of each goal. The ball may not be played on by any attacking player between it and the opponent's goal when it was last hit, unless at least three players of the opponents' team are nearer their own goal than this player.

Off Tackle Slants

Jim Fatheree, substitute Archer back, became the initial pleasant surprise to be uncovered by our new coach, Bill Moss. Fatheree stood out for his all round ability at South Bend last Friday night, but was especially outstanding for his accurate passing.

Speaking of passing, it was an accurate aerial attack that provided the means for the most part of the Archer ground gaining against Washington of South Bend last week end, although the Archers were shut out 40-0. When the smoke of battle had cleared the Archers had amassed six first downs, every one of them coming as a result of completed passes. The passing was done by Fatheree and Moorhead who between them completed nine out of sixteen heaves.

Lady Luck absolutely refused to smile on the Archers at South Bend last Friday. Instead, fate took the upper hand and at the end of third quarter Stu Welborn, first string quarterback, suffered a wrenched arm which will prove costly to Archer ambitions. However, Stu will be out of the lineup for only about ten days and will return in time for the Bryan game. The only other injury suffered by the Archer squad was when Ahismeyer hurt his knee in the second period.

Next week, South Side will have a new signal caller who will probably be LeRoy Cook. Cook will take over in place of Welborn, who was hurt last Friday night. It is also rumored that a general shake-up in the Archer lineup will take place before the Woodward clash.

Girl Athletes Name Swimming, Tennis, Summer Favorites

Swimming and tennis seem to have been the favorite summer sports among the vacationing G. A. A.ers. Hot weather evidently had no dampening effect on their athletic endeavors, since they occupied most of the summer with various types of sports. Seniors, juniors, and sophomores were strangely alike in their tastes for splashing in the blue waters of Indiana lake resorts and running about in the hot sun for the purpose of battling a little white tennis ball. When asked about this summer's occupations, the answers of the members were as follows:

Frieda Schubert: I enjoyed sailing and tennis.

Hazel Perry: I played tennis mostly with a little badminton on the side.

Virginia Goeglein: I've been to the lake, playing tennis, and swimming.

Donna Dennis: I did this and that and the other thing. This is tennis and that is swimming and the other thing is ping pong, bicycling, and hiking.

Gloria Staley: I haven't been doing much of anything except swimming.

Betty Showalter: A big thrill of my summer vacation was seeing a double header in Chicago between the Chicago White Sox and the Cleveland Indians.

Wilma Carrier: I spent most of my time as a spectator of California sports.

Laverne Michelfelder: Swimming, dancing, boating, badminton, and ping pong occupied my summer at Tri-Lakes.

Nadine Mueller: I've been doing my share of playing tennis, swimming, and tumbling.

Loraine Iba: I played tennis and spent several weeks swimming at Lake James.

Wilma Lagemann: Most of the time I rested up for school, although I did spend two weeks at Crooked Lake where I learned to swim. I also played a little tennis in which Betty Eisenacher beat me badly.

Audrey Hall: I was at camp for three weeks and the rest of the time I stayed at the lake and practiced archery.

Marcella Brachman: Swimming, tennis, and boating.

Team Of Archerettes

Unbeaten In Softball

This summer Dennis O'Connell, with the help of Hazel Perry organized the Packard Park Girls' Baseball Team. A position on this team was open to anyone over sixteen years of age.

The girls who played on this team were as follows: Marge Hower, catcher and captain; Gwen Roberts, first base; Gertrude Craft of Concordia, second base; Hazel Perry, third base; Judy Schneider, left fielder; Lucille Scheuman, right fielder; Mary Jane Rison, left short stop; Pauline Werling, left field; Betty Eisenacher, pitcher; Joyce Brett, shortfielder; Vivian Hickman, catcher; and May Vanderford, shortstop.

This team won all of the eight games that they played. Teams they opposed were the Bowser Girls, two games; Westfield Colored girls, three games; and N. Y. A., one game.

Upperclassmen Organize Six Hockey Teams

Sophomores Have Three; Juniors Two; And Seniors One; First Sport On Card

In G. A. A. activities the first event for the upperclassmen is hockey; all the upperclassmen, especially the juniors and seniors, are invited to enter into this sport. The sophomores seem to head the list with 44 signed up on teams; 31 juniors have been signed and the seniors are trailing with only 16 as yet signed.

Those who are signed up on the sophomore teams are Team 1: Margaret Brower, Betty Jane Baumgartner, Marguerite Calkins, Justine Coudret, Frances Nash, Gertrude Merkel, Romyne Redger, Betty Stein, Helen Squires, and Lois Campbell.

Team 2 consists of Martha Jane Krauskopf, Elaine Ferguson, Wanda Bowman, Barbara Brower, Hilda Schubert, Miriam Jackson, Elaine Hirschy, Helen Ellenwood, Mildred Hanke, Betty Porter, Gloria Wiebke, Arleen Reinke, Nancy Hess, Marjorie VanCuren, Edith Herrmann, and Helen Balingier.

Sophomores on Team 3 are Geneva Martin, June Toppogauer, Faye Gumpfer, Dorothy Cooper, Betty Thiele, Maxine Sterling, Irene Meyers, Marylin Sappington, Ruth Fuhrman, Betty Pepler, Audrey Cooper, Connie Deel, Leona Ermine, Lois Gumpfer, Delores Nahrwald, Katherine Lahrman, and Margaret Geroll.

There are just two teams for the juniors. On Team 1 are Wanda Mae Bacon, Helen Berry, Lucille Scheumann, Betty Marquardt, Audrey Hall, Marian Feichter, Delores Menefee, Dorothy Beyrau, Virginia Goeglein, Florence Dickmeyer, Audrey Mutschleper, Ruth Doeble, Marjorie Riencke, Caroline Schueler, Maxine Hudson, and Mary Jane Derk.

Team 2 is composed of the following: Dorothy Amstutz, Mary Griffith, Ruth Hoover, Lois Jarvis, June Neith, Ellen Schelper, Delores Ulrich, Pauline Werling, Eleanor Wittwer, Olive Zurbrugg, Elfrieda Hanke, Helen Keschol, Bertha Hoffman, and Pauline Zaegel.

There is only one senior team, on which are Dorothy Bloemker, Wilma Carrier, Donna Dennis, Harriet Mann, Marge Price, Hazel Perry, captain, Pauline Oetting, Mary Ellen Penns, Velma Connert, Beth Ellen Chadwick, Frieda Schubert, Gwen Roberts, Mildred Franz, Phyllis Kaiser, Jane Rison, and Betty Showalter.

Hazel Perry Gets Points In Athletics In Wholesale Way

Hazel Perry, whom we consider an outstanding girl, is an all-around athlete. She blew into our school from Hamilton and James Smart schools. Although she is only a senior, she has been in Lettergirls for one year. She is president of G. A. A. and is doing a swell job of it.

She has been a student leader since she was a freshman A, so you can see her main hangout is the gym office. In the running for the plaque which goes to the girl with the highest number of points, Hazel is highest with 2,330 points. She says she expects to have 2,750 by the time she graduates.

She has been captain of some team every term and at present she is captain of the senior hockey team. She has been on the honor basketball team all her four years. She also goes in for outside sports, such as ice skating, skiing, and badminton. She is taking her eighth semester of gym and her first of dancing. She hopes to be a physical education teacher, and her college will be Ohio Wesleyan.

Other clubs she belongs to are German and S. P. C. Her favorite pastime is drinking malted milks, and her pet peeve is poor sports. She believes her lucky number is four. She is known for her flat tires, red curly hair, and green eyes, not to mention her freckles.

She spent her summer playing tennis at Weisser Park and football at the Reservoir.

She took a trip to Chicago this summer and really saw the town. With her cheery disposition, she should really go places; and every member of G. A. A. hopes she does.

Welcome To Frosh Extended By G.A.A.

Hazel Perry Explains Purpose Of Club; Other Officers Tell About Sports Being Offered.

The Girls' Athletic Association held their first meeting of the new semester Friday afternoon. The president, Hazel Perry, explained the purpose of the club and welcomed the new freshmen. She introduced several of the lettergirls, Donna Dennis, Dorothy Bloemker, Jane Rison, Marjorie Morrison, Gwen Roberts, Frieda Schubert, and Betty Showalter.

Other officers of the club were introduced. The vice-president, Betty Showalter, talked on the sports which are offered in the club. Marge Price, the club's secretary, explained the point system. Social activities was the subject of Audrey Hall's talk. Audrey is the money keeper for the club. A talk on sportsmanship was then given by Jeanne Smith, the manager of sports.

Marge Hower, former president of the G. A. A., was present at the meeting, and gave a pep talk to the freshmen.

Game Will Get Underway At 3 O'clock With Archers Improved By Experience.

Toledo Never Beat By Kelly Eleven

Coach Moss Works On Weaknesses Revealed In Fray With South Bend.

Saturday afternoon at 3 p. m., South Side's gridiron team will open their home schedule when they take the field against a strong Woodward of Toledo eleven. The game will be staged in the Southern stadium. The Archers, still smarting from a 40-0 drubbing at the hands of Washington of South Bend squad, will enter this game with a better knowledge of their strong and weak points as well as some valuable and much-needed experience.

Coach Moss has spent most of this week's practice sessions emphasizing defense, for it was in this department that the Archers were lacking in the South Bend game. Actual statistics show that the South Bend gridders gained no less than 512 yards by rushing.

The Archers will also bear down this week on their running attack which netted them only 28 yards in the Washington struggle. The bright spot which was brought out last Friday night is an amazingly accurate passing game which was uncovered when the Green and White running attack failed to get going.

In the past, Archer grid men have been unsuccessful in their attempt to down strong Woodward aggregations and will be plugging for their first win against the Toledo eleven next Saturday. Last year South Side lost their game with Woodward by the margin of 7-0.

Inexperience will in all probability handicap the Southern gridders Saturday, but it is hoped that this will be made up for by fighting spirit as well as the much needed experience gained at South Bend.

Jim Fatheree was probably the outstanding Archer grider in the South Bend game and it is hoped that his accurate passing will again play a leading role against Woodward this Saturday.

The Archer lineup will probably be much the same as the one used against South Bend as few substitutes saw action in the Washington game. The probable starting linups will be as follows: Cook and Braden at ends; Steup and McCammon at guards; Ferguson at center; Fatheree at quarter; Moorhead and Staigt at halves; and Ohlmsmeyer at full.

Central Catholics Have Scrappy Team

Crop Of Underclassmen Are On Varsity This Year; Irish To Be Promising For 1939 Season.

Although the football team at Central Catholic High School may not be the best in Port Wayne this year, it will have plenty of fight for every game. Coach John Levicki has a fine crop of underclassmen who will be on the varsity this year and ought to return to the team next year so that the Irish will be very strong for the 1939 season.

Coach Levicki has organized a system of grade school athletics that is going to keep him supplied with promising material in the future. The new Central Catholic building will also draw a lot of football material now.

Only six lettermen from the Purple of last year have returned, the others having graduated. However, these six saw a lot of action last year and form the nucleus for a formidable squad for this year. George Bitler and Tony Colone worked at the halfback post a lot last year and are showing up good in practice. Bitler is faster and heavier than he was last year and will probably do most of the kicking and passing for the Irish.

Jerry Weber, out of the game most of the time last fall with a broken ankle, is back this year for the full-back post and may have it cinched although he is being hard pressed by Swede Wehrle, LeRoy Dehner, and Ed Hunsinger. Weber has enough weight to be a good line smasher, but he is better at times than others.

Bob Alter, who saw some action last year, is out for the quarterback position, but he has not got it cinched because the quarterback post is very important in the Notre Dame system of play employed by Levicki. Other applicants for the post are Tom Kelly, Ed Dehner, and Jerry Putnam.

The guard posts will probably worry Coach Levicki more than any of the others because most of the applicants for line posts are large sized, except for those at the guard positions. Steigmeyer, Don Maxwell, and Bill Firks are the main candidates for guards and all will see quite a bit of action this season.

The center position is wide open at present, but either Bob Kocks or Bill Offerle will probably snap the pigskin. Both boys are inexperienced, but are showing up good in practice.

Westrick and Weikart are both back from last year and are both good tackles that should help bolster the line. Stanszyk, a swell all around athlete, has one end post taken care of and will use his height to good advantage this year. The other end will be Alvin Lerch, with plenty of good reserves pushing these two boys.

This year Levicki has had four full squads instead of the normal two or three teams, so he expects that Central Catholic may become a power in football in northern Indiana again.

Ex-Archer Named Supervisor

Harold Manor, '31, and '36 graduate of Indiana University School of Music, has been named supervisor of music in the Winchester High and Grade Schools. For two years Mr. Manor has been teaching music in the schools of Rockville, Indiana. This year he will receive his master's degree in music from Indiana University.

Wins World Title

Mr. Joseph Plasket

Joseph H. Plasket, industrial arts instructor at South Side, piloted his sailing craft over the Wawasee triangular six-mile course to win first place in the one design event in the international yacht regatta last August 25.

Sportlights

The professional football season got underway last Friday. This year all attendance records are expected to be broken largely because of the numerous stars that have been signed from last year's college teams. The sport which has been "packing 'em in" at pre-season all-star games is steadily becoming a close rival of baseball as the "American Game."

The Davis Cup will remain in this country for another year as a result of the victory of Donald Budge over Odrian Quist of Australia in the final match 8-6, 6-1, 6-2. In the other singles matches Bobby Riggs defeated Quist 4-6, 6-0, 8-6, 6-1; Budge defeated Jack Bromwich of Australia 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5; and Bromwich defeated Riggs 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2. Quist and Bromwich upset the highly favored United States team of Budge and Gene Mako in the doubles 0-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

Cecil Isbell, who led the Collegiate All-stars in their 28-16 victory over the Washington Redskins, received 69 of the 72 votes cast by sports writers who covered the game to pick the player most valuable to the All-stars, and was awarded a trophy donated by the New York World's Fair. Isbell is now under contract with Green Bay Packers of the National Professional Football League. Johnny Kovatch, Northwestern end, received two votes and Jim McDonald, Ohio State quarterback, who has signed with the Detroit Lions, received the other.

Monty Pearson, of the New York Yankee's pitching staff, tossed himself into baseball's hall of fame when he pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the Cleveland Indians in the second game of a double header August 27. Pearson, playing against his old team mates, retired the first nine men to face him, walked Lyn Lary and Bruce Campbell, the only men to reach base; and then finished by getting the next eighteen men in order.

The Pittsburgh Pirates still lead the National League, but their lead has been cut to three and one half games at this writing. The Chicago Cubs are in second place, the Cincinnati Reds in third, one full game behind the Cubs, and the New York Giants in fourth, one half game behind the Reds. The New York Yankees are still running rampant with the American League lead and at present hold a fifteen game advantage on the next two clubs, the Boston Red Sox and the Cleveland Indians, while the other first division club is Detroit, twenty-three and one-half games behind.

The All-American baseball team of 1938, announced by the Louisville Courier-Journal, is monopolized by the New York Yankees. The team is picked by ninety-three major league managers, writers, players, scouts, coaches, and umpires. The Yankees placed four men on the squad which was more than the entire National League placed on the ten man team. The team is made up of Red Rolf, Yankees; Gehring, Tigers; DiMaggio, Yankees; Fox, Red Sox; Medwick, Cardinals; Ott, Giants; Cronin, Red Sox; Dickey, Yankees; Ruffing, Yankees; Derringer, Reds. Gehring, DiMaggio, Medwick, and Ruffing were the only members of last year's team to retain their positions.

Our Fall season began September 11 and enrollments will now be accepted in all branches of Music and Vocal.

Our teachers consist of Mr. Tose from the Chicago Opera Company on Clarinet, Saxophone, and Bassoon; Mr. Richard Stross on Band Instruments; David Baxter, Voice; Florence Starr, Voice; Marian Zeigler on Piano; Wilbur Pickett on Violin; Elvah Clayton, Dramatic Art, and Robert Bandy on Guitar and Harmony.

Net Schedule For Archers Is Announced

South Side To Have Twelve Home Basketball Games, Nine Away From School.

Practice To Start In Several Weeks

Tough Contests Scheduled For State Champs; November 23 Is First Game.

South Side's basketball schedule was announced recently. The Archers will play twelve home games this year with nine contests away from South Side. Two dates are left open and will probably be filled in the near future.

Basketball practice will be started in about two weeks. The varsity lost six men through graduation, but Carl Hall will return to the hardwood and several underclassmen are expected to take the place of the lost veterans.

The Fiddlemen have a tough schedule to face this year due to the fact that they won the State Championship last spring. This has caused many schools to try to get a place on the Green's schedule. Some of the teams on the schedule are expected to be pretty good this year, so the South Side Archers will have to fight for all they get.

The schedule is:
November 23—Open.
December 2—Kendallville, there.
December 3—Open.
December 9—Bluffton, there.
December 10—Connersville, there.
December 16—Auburn, there.
December 17—Vincennes, here.
December 27—Central Catholic, here.

January 6—North Side, there.
January 7—Proebel, Gary, there.
January 13—Hartford City, there.
January 14—Franklin, here.
January 18—Central, here.
January 21—Goshen, here.
January 27—Huntington, there.
January 28—Elwood, here.
February 3—North Side, here.
February 10—New Albany, here.
February 11—Central, there.
February 18—Martinsville, here.
February 24—Horace Mann, here.
February 25—Open.
Kokomo is also on the schedule, but the date for that contest has not yet been announced.

Archers Will Sport New Suits Next Game

South Side's Archers will come onto the gridiron next week in brand new uniforms, just purchased by the athletic department. The uniforms will be Kelly green with the exception of the shoes and headgear. Mr. Davis has ordered thirty-three pairs of whippoor pants. These will be used for games only. The old green jerseys are being redyed and will bear white numerals. These will be used for the home games. For the night games the squad will use new white jerseys with green numerals.

New Kelly green socks will grace the legs of the squad and some new shoulder pads have been ordered along with the usual new shoes. The old shoes have been rebuilt and the boys are now using several pairs of new practice pants. The helmets have been painted white by Bruce Klotz, Kenny Fairfield, and John Magley. The boys will be all decked out in these new outfits for the first home game next Saturday.

Tom Believes Good Food Is Big Part Of Training Program

"Three meals a day and eight hours of sleep at night is what I train on," says Tom Morehead, lanky redheaded senior, who is one of South Side's football hopes this season. Tom saw considerable action at the halfback position last fall and is a real triple threat this year.

Mrs. Morehead's illustrious son was born right here in Port Wayne, on July 31, 1921. He started to grade school at the tender age of six, and after eight years, entered South Side where he immediately went out for football.

Tom's favorite subject in high school is physics and Miss Emma Keifer heads the list as Tom's favorite teacher.

When asked if he liked swing music, he replied, "Yes, but I am not a jitterbug." Regarding the opposite sex, Tom prefers girls with black hair and dark eyes, such as one might see in bathing beauty contests.

When football is out of season, Tom likes to play basketball. In the good old summertime he does quite a bit of fishing. (He never did tell Yours Truly if he ever caught anything.)

"I never listen to the radio much, but when I do, I like to hear Charlie McCarthy," Tom said.

His opinion of the football team was, "We are pretty green but we are going to get in there and fight, and we should win some ball games." Tom belongs to the Hi-Y and Lettermen's Club in South Side. After graduating, he intends to go to college and study to be an aeronautical engineer.

Redskins To Play Wabash Apaches

Gordon Turner To Play Center; Game Will Be Held At Northern Athletic Field On Friday.

North Side High School's 1938 football team will open their grid season Friday night against the Wabash Apaches at the northern athletic field. Wabash is a new team on the North Side schedule, and the Apaches are reported to have a big, fast, hard-charging team. The game should be a thriller from start to finish with plenty of passing and open field running.

North Side will put a ball club on the field Friday night that can give any team in this section of the state a real battle. They have one of the best centers in the city in Gordon Turner. Beams and Russel will probably take care of the wing posts this year. Scheibenberger and Young will fill the guard holes while Bordner and Hill will see a lot of action at the tackle positions.

In the backfield Coach Bob Nulf has little to worry about with Werling and Royer at the halfback spots. Gaylord Turner, one of the most consistent players on the team, will do most of the signal calling. The fullback job will be ably taken care of by Everett Huth who played last year and was always causing his opponents plenty of trouble.

With a backfield that has lots of speed and deceptiveness and a line averaging close to 170 pounds it looks like North Side is in for another fine season.

Archers Loose First Grid Tilt To South Bend

Final Score Is 40-0; Washington Panthers Score Three Times In First Half.

Who Did What
Vital statistics of the Washington of South Bend, South Side game:
Yards gained rushing	Wash. S.S.	28
First downs rushing	12	0
Yards gained passing	0	6
First downs passing	0	97
Passes attempted	0	16
Passes completed	0	9
Passes intercepted	0	1
Fumbles	4	0
Own fumbles recovered	2	0
Opp. fumbles recovered	0	2
Total yards punting	88	86
Punt average	44	21
Penalties	4	3
Total yards penalized	45	20
South Side's Archers were overwhelmed by the crushing running attack of the Washington Panthers by a score of 40-0. The Archers' ground work was poor but Coach Moss has found a real threat in Jim Fatheree, who showed real promise as a passer and all-around playing. It was Fatheree who made most of the successful Archer passes.

The South Benders were led by Captain Edward Ryznsnicki, who scored two of the Panther touchdowns on runs of 93 and 89 yards.

The Panthers scored twice in the first period when Mackowiak blocked a punt and ran 13 yards for the first, and Collmer intercepted a pass and returning it 36 yards for the second. Joe Szucs kicked both extra points. Washington's second team scored once in the second period and the half ended with South Bend leading 20-0.

The locals' defense was torn wide open and the Panthers went on to score easily once in the third quarter and twice in the fourth.

The lineup and summary:
Washington	South Side
Martinezak	LE	Cook
Schramski	LT	Biedenweg
Luczkowski	LG	McCammon
Collner	C	Ferguson
Pajakowski	RG	Steup
Szucs	RT	Saalfank
Mackowiak	RE	Braden
Rodick	QB	Welborn
Sobecki	LH	Staigt
Rzepnicki	RH	Moorhead
Pinter	FB	Ahlmsmeyer

Score by quarters:
South Side	0	0
Washington	14	6
Touchdowns	Rzepnicki	2
Mackowiak, Collner, Weinstein, and Glod.
Points after touchdown—Szucs 4 (placement).

Former Student Honored

Miss Dorothy Belle Walker, '35, was recently elected delegate to the National Biennial Nursing Convention held in Kansas City, as an award for being the most capable in her nursing class.

September 23 Is Date For First Pep Session

Tom Gallmeyer will be master of ceremonies at the first pep session, which will be held September 16. Sam Hite, Charles Haugk, and Bob Crankshaw will be our regular cheer leaders during the following year. The assistant cheer leaders will be Arthur Howard, Edgar Kettlen, Richard Dyke, and Bud Lambton.

All boys who wish to become cheer leaders will please see Mr. Al Heine in room 91 as soon as possible.

Intramurally Speaking

Again this fall the usual intramural activities will get under way. In case any of you freshies are interested, don't delay in going down to the Boys' Gym Office and signing up for your shining sport activity.

Calling all golfers. Again this fall all youse divot diggers (or what have you?) can get in training for tramping the fairways or rough, for this fall the golfers are all going to match strokes in intramural golf. And if some of you don't know, South Side has a varsity golf team; and all those who participate in intramural dubbing have a grade A chance of being promoted to the Varsity Squad.

Maybe you're a track star and not a football player, and maybe you can't wait for the track season to open. If you can't wait to participate in track activities, try intramural cross-country, and you will find out that you can have plenty of fun as well as earn plenty of points. For if you participate in cross-country, you receive twenty points toward an intramural letter, and that's nothing to bawl about.

Other activities which are offered in intramural sports are horseshoes, which is very popular among many, and intramural tennis, which is also popular. Horseshoes will open sometime earlier this fall while tennis will be one of the last sports of the intramural season to open.

Tigers Will Stack Against Tough Foe

Central's Promising Gridmen To Get Acid Test Saturday In Game With Elkhart Blazers.

Central's Tigers will meet Elkhart's Blue Blazers this coming Saturday at Elkhart. Continuing one of the longest feuds of its kind the Blue Blazers will try to repeat their performance of a year ago and defeat the Tigers.

The 25-0 defeat given them last year by the Blazers will be hanging over the heads of the Centralites when they travel to Elkhart.

The Central eleven showed plenty of power last week when they outplayed a Bluffton team 40-18. Although the game was forfeited to Bluffton because of the ineligibility of big Mike Gaines, the Central team showed that they have plenty of what it takes this year.

The loss of the first string tackle, Gaines will certainly be felt in the Tiger's lineup throughout the season. The Bengals were planning heavily on Gaines this year since only a few veterans came back from last season. However, the game last week showed that they can count on this year's crop of players to stop up the holes. With plenty of fast and experienced veterans in the backfield, Central should have little to worry about in piling up the score.

The Blazers, however, can never be counted on to lie down and will probably be out in top form. A Central-Elkhart game has never failed to develop into a hard-driving battle to the end. Central, out to avenge last year's defeat, will probably show all the power of which they are capable.

At any rate the fans will get their money's worth of football, and the score will probably be anything but lopsided.

Archer Is Vacationing

Grace Nelson, '37, has recently returned to her home for a vacation from her studies at Saint Luke's Hospital, Chicago, where she is studying nursing. Grace started in March of this year; when she finishes, she expects to take up psychiatry.

Sara Meily Moves

Sara Meily, senior, left these portals last summer to make her home in North Manchester. She enrolled at the Central High School, there, this fall.

South Side Cafeteria Is Open For All Students, Teachers

Once again the South Side cafeteria will be a room filled with eager, hustling students. For the present, sandwiches, milk, and orange juice will be served to students due to crowded conditions and lack of electricity. By next week full counter service may be resumed.

Miss Lucy Mellen again is to have full management of the cafeteria. There have been no changes in staff members. Later new members will be needed at which time a notice in the bulletin will appear. The staff is composed of Mrs. Nettie Mercer, Mrs. Hannah Bitner, and Mrs. Vida Clark. All staff members will give their usual efficient service to students and faculty and fresh foods as economical as current prices and conditions allow will be provided. When possible, Miss Mellen will plan new luncheons.

No Enlargements Made

Under the present construction, no enlargements in the cafeteria itself or in the kitchen have been made. However, the new study hall will offer seating accommodations to students on rainy days or when the cafeteria is overcrowded.

Students should refrain from loud speaking and noise making while in the South Side dining room. Everyone should follow the rules for depositing dishes on the tables and disposing of waste paper.

Many benefits are derived by the staff members of the cafeteria. They learn to give service to their fellow students and faculty, and they are always asked to practice courtesy. These students often find that their school service is a stepping stone to their future.

Clubs Use Cafeteria

The school cafeteria serves not only as a lunch accommodation to students, but it serves the school in several other capacities. Dinners are served to many organizations and refreshments to our different clubs.

Miss Mellen says, "The cafeteria needs new equipment. It particularly needs a new dishwasher, a refrigerator, dishes, and cooking equipment. We hope that these will be provided this year."

Following are a few suggestions for each and everyone of us to follow this coming school year:

Bring all complaints and suggestions to Miss Mellen.
Learn to count change before leaving cash register.
If any money is left on a tray, see Miss Mellen.

Among the things seen by Betty Redding this last summer, the camps of the Indians in Canada, impressed her most. She attended an Indian coin ceremony and witnessed weird dances and heard primitive drums.

Miss DeLancey went to Colorado last July and spent the glorious 4th of July crossing the Continental Divide. During this pilgrimage she tossed snowballs and picked forget-me-nots.

Helen Luepke toured northern Wisconsin. She witnessed cloudbursts which eventually caused floods around Milwaukee.

Carl Hall attended a basketball clinic at Elkhart this summer.

William Fuhrman spent most of his leisure time watching the construction being done on the school.

Phyllis Branning, while fishing for the first time in her life, caught a large pike which measured 17 inches in length and weighed about three pounds.

Sam Hite made a trip through Southern Indiana visiting all the state parks.

Robert Young while at Lake Wawasee this summer played much golf.

Betty Koehler attended Epworth Forest Institute at Lake Webster. Betty said that she liked being at the institute very much.

Margaret Geroff thoroughly enjoyed herself at the state capital. Visiting the public library of Indianapolis, she was enthralled by its spaciousness. But perhaps the most interesting of her sight-seeing trips included her inspection of the War Memorial Building, which she describes briefly: "Hanging from the ceiling is a pure silk American flag. On the walls hang painted pictures of all the Allied generals. Interesting is the fact that the names of all those who enlisted in the Army and Navy are on file there."

Marjorie Gerding was another to visit Indianapolis. While there she attended the Indiana State Fair, enjoying most the Women's Building.

Listing this last as the best of all summers, Martin Gernand points out the highlights, among them a week at Limberlost Camp filled with boating and swimming.

Among those present who answered to the call of another school year,

How The Archers Spent The Summer

is Maxine Case, who, when narrating her account of his leisure time, informs us that boating and fishing off the docks of Saint Ignace, Michigan, presented her with a "swell sun-tan", and, needless to mention, hours of enjoyment.

Farming on a small scale presented Charles Close with hours of enjoyment this summer. Among the vegetables he raised, were corn, tomatoes, radishes, and cabbage.

No doubt this truck gardening in the hot sun was a bit of a task, but Charles has the satisfaction of knowing that this winter he will enjoy more than just memories of his summer vacation, for his garden produced many vegetables that he will be able to enjoy eating all winter long!

Enjoying the benefits of the many surrounding lakes seems to be the most popular pastime of many of the South Siders this season. And Katherine Kuntz proved to be no exception. This summer, Katherine spent most of her time surfboard riding. As a result, she claims that she has become quite adept to this fascinating sport.

Cliff Ostermeyer became sick before the summer was half over. While recovering Cliff spent the rest of the summer making airplanes.

Jack Hornberger was staying in Michigan over Labor Day. On the way over to a small town, Jack used the side roads and saw many trout streams and an abundance of wild life.

Philip Pressler spent part of his vacation at Cape May, New Jersey. While there, he and his dad went fishing off the coast. Philip caught the second largest fish caught.

Marie Lillich spent four weeks of her vacation at Van Wert, Ohio, with her aunt and uncle. Marie played tennis and almost every other outdoor sport. She also made very many new friends.

Bernadine Pressler spent a very interesting week at Pretty Lake. She was swimming most of the time but when she wasn't swimming she was eating, she says. In the evening Bernadine went walking along the road picking wild strawberries.

Esther Popp took a trip through Missouri last summer. Esther visited many historic places and saw many things.

Marguerite Calkins visited the Cascades in Jackson, Michigan, this summer.

Richard Bussing made a trip to Tennessee this summer. He saw many tobacco fields and tobacco warehouses.

Raymond Commers went to Michigan and fished in the northern lakes. He also visited friends in Ohio.

Ralph Obringer attended the eleventh annual national model airplane contest at Detroit.

Edna Volz spent most of her time getting a sunburn at Hamilton Lake.

Millie Thayer spent the summer with American-born Chinese friends in Potoskey, Michigan. Millie's most thrilling experience was "riding the waves in a cruiser across Lake Michigan to the Mackinac Islands."

Jeanne Shinnik saw the boat locks at Sault Ste. Marie.

Mildred Trout visited northern Indiana and saw the flooded district.

Ella Jo Reed visited the lakes this summer.

Arleen Jane Reincke went to Portland, Oregon, for a few weeks this summer. She spent a week-end at the ocean and enjoyed swimming there. While in the west, she climbed to the snow-line of Mt. Hood. Luckily while she was there they celebrated Fleet Week and there was a great celebration and display of boats.

While Helen Alinger was visiting Tri-Lakes, she was very impressed by an Indian girl who did some of her native dances at the dance hall. The young Indian girl wore her native dress which was very interesting.

Helene Lisius caught a fish in a very unusual way this summer. This is the story in her own words, "While fishing off the dock, I just left the pole lie on it, as I had given up trying to catch fish. My sister came out and wanted to use my fishing pole. When she pulled the line up, what do you think—I had caught a fish."

Arthur Malott watched the ore boats pass through the locks at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan.

The "Roller Derby" at the Butler Field House in Indianapolis was of great interest to Nick Marhoff.

Bob York did some kitchen work at Camp Potawatomi and "spent the evenings at Clear Lake, Wahoo!"

One hot day this summer Edward Rehling and a friend of his went frog hunting. As the frogs were so wild that the boys couldn't get near them, they finally decided to start towards home. However, while they were walking along, they heard a loud cry come from a frog and started for the place that the sound came from. Upon reaching the place, they discovered that a bull frog was swallowing a green frog half of its size.

Bob Robinson and a few of his friends visited the lake last June. One day after swimming, eating, and playing quite a bit of golf, they were so sleepy that, although a game of cards had been started, they decided to go to bed at about 8 o'clock for the first time in years.

Joe Loos states that he saw a train hit an automobile this summer. His hobbies were building a motor bike and training pigeons. Besides working, he had experience in sailing.

Dick Yergens went fishing at Big Long Lake. Unfortunately one of his fish got away.

Lois and Faye Gumpfer took a trip to the Smoky Mountains. They were thrilled by the sight of the smoke-like vapor rising from the mountains. The girls also climbed mountains and fed the bears.

Elaine Hirschy toured the west this summer. She saw Old Faithful Geyser, the Grand Canyon, and the Black Hills, and Bad Lands of South Dakota.

Robert Herb worked on a farm.

Edith Herrman spent two weeks at Lake Wawasee.

Nancy Valiton went to Miami, Florida, this summer. She saw the Pan-American Airway base and went through the Southern Clipper and another large airship.

Frances Van Buskirk spent a week this summer at Coldwater Lake in Michigan. She enjoyed swimming, boating, and frequent trips to Coldwater.

Pauline Oetting enjoyed a lot of swimming, dancing, skating, and fishing this summer, although her most interesting experience was farming. Lillian Happel spent the summer in New York with her sister and aunt.

Harold Hollenberg stayed in Fort Wayne and carried papers.

Betty Harrison spent eight days in New York City. She enjoyed Rockefeller Center, Radio City and Rudy Vallee's hour on Thursday night. She saw the Navy cruisers and spent a day buying in a department store.

Jack Koch and four other boys took a bicycle trip to Lake of the Woods near Milford. After spending several days there, they started home. The trip home took six and a half hours and they were dead tired.

Jack Lindsey took a trip to Lexington, Kentucky. Jack saw the famous horse, "Man O' War." He also saw many beautiful mansions, stables, and many fine show horses.

Ruth Lauer used her vacation as a time to improve her game of tennis.

Dorothy Herrman's experience was eating a picnic lunch on a tree that was out over the river near the Municipal Beach.

This summer LaVerne Greiner was on Lake Wawasee in a sailboat. A speedboat kept circling around the boat. The waves were so high that the boat dipped water and almost sank.

Helen Lassen visited the mountains.

Betty Paul spent her vacation boating, fishing and swimming at Lake James.

Thelma Ormiston and four girl friends camped at Tri Lakes for a week.

It seems that Bill Riethmiller of room 92 suffered a wetting this summer at Culver Summer School. During a sailboat race in which they were second, a gust of wind caused the mast to break, upsetting the boat, and causing all in the boat to get a ducking.

Martha Sauer of room 92 got a real treat in Chicago this summer. While there she was privileged to see Douglas (East is West) Corrigan.

Elizabeth Rose of room 92, spent an enjoyable three weeks at Lake James this summer.

Eileen Goddard, while visiting in Toledo, saw the largest speedway, Hall of Science, and zoo.

Eloise McKee spent much of her time watching motor boats at Indian Lake, Ohio, this summer.

During the summer Patty Lambrakis became quite interested in photography. She found that animals proved to be her favorite camera subject. She acquired a number of camera studies of her own Angora cat.

B. T. Geake took a trip south this summer. She visited the Smoky Mountains, Tennessee, Kentucky, and also the Cumberland Mountains.

Nila Jean Greek spent her vacation riding about in a speedboat on Lake George.

Marcella Stein took a trip to Ohio. Her trip was centered around Mansfield.

Melvin Trevey spent his summer working for Meyers.

Justine Coudret had one of the most exciting incidents at Adams Lake. She went out fishing early in the morning when a storm came up. The waves had white caps on and the wind rocked the boat to and fro.

Margaret Brower had a new and thrilling experience this summer trying to catch frogs for fishing. She went to a small marsh where she caught the frogs. The marsh was damp and muddy.

Virginia Nunenkamp went to the Rose Show in Portland, Oregon.

This summer, Harriett Greer went to northern Wisconsin. On the way she visited an Indian reservation. While staying at Relican Lake, she saw the Northern Lights. On the way home Harriett stopped at the Brookfield Zoo in Chicago and saw the baby Giant Panda.

While taking a motorboat ride this summer on Lake Wawasee, Frances Gross saw two sailboats upset. She went to their aid, but several other speedboats had already arrived.

Bob Wylie took a trip this summer through Fort Henry at Kingston, Jamaica. While at Fort Henry, Bob saw many of the relics that were salvaged from ships which were sunk in the harbor.

While at Rome City this summer, Robert Buschman discovered an old corduroy road. The road had been through a swamp and connected two islands.

Last Fourth of July, Jean Carper was in Decatur at a weiner bake. During the bake they could watch the fireworks which were being shot.

Dorothy Cooper went to the Cascades in Jackson, Michigan.

Audrey Cooper saw the President's "Red Room" in the capital building at Washington, D. C.

Virginia Collier went to the speedboat races and the zoo at Hammond.

Mary Glander spent part of her summer vacation at Nap and Webster Lakes. She had many funny experiences there. One day she, accompanied by her mother and cousin, went through a very low canal and were caught on a log. They finally got through after much giggling to the other side.

Annie Lee Hopson's vacation ended disastrously. She took a trip to Chicago but while there caught influenza and had to come home to spend several days in bed.

Anna Marie Springer spent the summer reading a number of good books.

Intramural Individualities

This year again the intramural point system will go into effect. To get an intramural letter one must attain 120 points. Many boys have received intramural letters in past years and they'll agree that to earn one and then wear it is worth the work and toil that it takes.

As the various intramural sports have not taken up yet this year, I'll talk a little bit about what our intramuralites did this summer. Paul Danmeier, one of the more prominent intramural letter holders, did much this summer in the field of tennis. Paul participated in several net contests and was duly honored by receiving first place in one and several seconds.

In closing, I want to say a word to freshmen only. Intramural sports are available to all four grades, not just upperclassmen, so let's see all you freshies down at the boys' gym office signing up for your outstanding intramural activity. You'll really be proud of yourself when you record those last twenty points.

838 Pay Cash To Get Times This Semester

Over 300 More Subscriptions Expected During Final Period Of Campaign.

Per Cents Of All Rooms Are Listed

Lois Hoff, Freshman Agent, Has Highest Ranking Of All Agents In The School.

In the current subscription campaign The Times has netted 838 subscriptions so far; this campaign will be continued for one more week. It is expected that at least a thousand subscriptions will have been secured by the end of the drive. Times days for three days this week ending today have helped the campaign a lot.

Times days were held Tuesday, Wednesday and today so that home room agents could have a better chance to contact all prospective subscribers personally. The home room period was lengthened by five minutes to allow agents to finish their individual campaigns as much as possible.

Agents Hold Meeting
A room agents meeting was held in room 22 yesterday at 3:30 o'clock so that instructions for getting papers every Thursday could be announced. At this meeting room agents were told that the papers would be counted out and rolled up with a number on the outside of each roll of papers to identify them. The speakers at the meeting were Virginia Goeglein, Julia Smith, Miss Harvey, and Eleanor Vesey. Candy bars were given all agents at the meeting.

Several rooms have almost one hundred per cent and at the present time lack only a few subscriptions. The three highest agents are Dick Aronhalt, Frieda Schubert and Lois Hoff, who lead with 77 per cent. They all expect to have enough subscriptions to make the one hundred per cent mark. If this happens all the students in these rooms will receive candy bars.

Book Two Leads
Book number two is now leading the other five books in the subscription campaign with 176 subscriptions. Marjorie McNabb is the assistant in charge of this book. The other assistants are: (Continued on Page 6)

Old Members At Booster Meet

New Members Attend Meeting; Several Bushels Of Apples, Pop Corn, Etc. Sold At Game.

The following are old members: Max Stobaugh, Robert Marten, Eileen Goddard, Maxine Sterling, Clarence Freeman, Dorothea Rarick, Robert Kite, Mary Griffith, Miriam Rarick, Delores Menefee and Carl Goodwin. Eight new members were at the meeting. They are the following: Betty Clem, Melrose Lyons, Paul Johnson, Tom Goodwin, Albert Speckman, Robert Soest, Don Cummings and Kathryn Eipper.

It was reported that several bushels of apples were sold at the first home football game. Also pop corn, candy, and coca cola was on sale.

Recognition Day Held For Faculty

Service Is Annual Fall Event For Teachers; Music, Speakers Are Featured On Program

Teachers' Recognition Services, an annual fall occurrence, was held at the Wayne Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock. Addresses by Mr. A. K. Remmel, Mr. Merle J. Abbott, Superintendent of Public Schools, and Attorney Everett A. Bloom, music and musical readings made up the program. Refreshments were served in the church parlor by Emalyn Rammel, Mary Nell Spiegel, Marjorie McMahon, Martha Jane Krauskopf, and Carol Whittier.

South Side teachers in attendance at the services were Miss Martha Pittenger, Miss Lucy Mellen, Miss Nell Covatt, Miss Lucy Osborn, Miss Helen Bean, Mr. C. A. Bex, Mr. Delavan Parks, Mrs. Alda Jane Carson, Mrs. Grace Welty, and Mr. James I. Mills.

Movie Operators' Test To Be Given Applicants

Mark Hall, chairman of the visual education department, has called a meeting Monday to discuss the examination the operators are required to take. The operators must take this test before they receive their operators' license. The boys who will take the test are, George Finkhauser, Andy Bremer, Winfield Buchanan, and Bob Ault.

German Club To Hold Roast, September 28

The next meeting of the German Club will be held Wednesday in the form of a winter roast at Foster Park. Elfrida Hanke was elected president of the German Club last spring. Other officers are vice-president, Bruce Klotz; secretary, Marian Miller; treasurer, Robert Wylie; and Inter-Club Congress representative, Ralph Fortriede.

Over One Thousand Names Are Listed In South Side Times

Pardon me, young man! But what did I hear you say about not wanting to subscribe for The Times—because you never see your name in print—not even in the dirt columns? (Conceited, isn't he?)

Well! If you will but let your ears catch up with your running jaws a moment—I'd like to sneak in a word or two—sort of edgewise, like.

Whether you know it or not, in the first issue published this semester, no less than one thousand (yes, thousand!) and three hundred fifty-five names of South Side students, alone, were mentioned!!!

On the first page, there were over two hundred fifty names published! And on the second page—(Ah! The faithful and faithful dirt editorial columns)—there were over three hundred! Of course, throughout the rest of the edition, names of "Freddie Freshman," "Sammy Sophomore," "Jimmy Junior," and "Sidney Senior," appeared in very bold printer's ink!

There seemed to be a bit of a slack in the second edition—due, undoubtedly, to the fact that most everyone around these h'yar arts, was a little, what one might describe as—"woozie," from the affects of new classes, different routines, and stuff.

Aha! But don't let these words serve as an inducement for you to conjure up the wrong impression! For the very next edition proved that we weren't slippin'! Nine hundred and sixty-five names, we offered as proof! This making a grand (and I do mean GRAND!) total of two thousand seven hundred ten names of South Siders published in the first three of this season's issues!

Then, too, there were—uh—how's that? My ears deceive me, or did I hear you say you wanted to subscribe! Well, now, that's more like it! Here, have a piece of candy! Take lots—take two. Thank you, kindly, sir. Come again!

Not much sense to all this, is there? Oh well!

So-Si-Y Will Hold Meeting Tuesday

Is To Be Membership Party In Greeley Room; Theme For Semester Is Celestial Empire.

So-Si-Y will hold its membership party Tuesday, September 27, in the Greeley Room. The theme for the semester is China, and this party will feature butterfly, a symbol sacred to the Chinese.

Butterfly ornaments for the hair will be given as favors and games will be played. To be able to attend the member must pay his dues. Frieda Schubert, social chairman, and her committee are in charge.

Those girls on the committee are Marian Owens, Joan Gunter, Lila Patton, and Dorcas Karnap. Kathryn Boenger and her committee are in charge of programs, and Beth Ellen Chadwick and her committee are in charge of butterflies.

All junior and senior girls are invited to join. Dues may be paid in rooms 66, 6, 8, or 36 before the meeting.

Wranglers Club To Meet Monday

Meeting To Be Held In Form Of Wiener Bake At Foster Park At 5:30; Name Committees.

Wranglers' first meeting will feature the annual get-together picnic, which will be in the form of a wiener bake at Foster Park, on Monday at 5:30 o'clock.

Walther League Holds Community Songfest

The second of a series of "Community Songs" sponsored by the Fort Wayne Walther League was held last night in the North Side athletic field.

The program began at 8 o'clock with a concert by the Journal-Gazette Boys Band under the direction of Mr. F. E. Ashbaugh. The feature of the program was the mass choir composed of the chorus from each of the public high schools, South Side, North Side, and Central and from Concordia College and High School. Mr. George G. Arkenbauer, director of the Fort Wayne Lutheran Choral Society, directed the mass choir of about 500 voices.

The first "Community Sing" was held at the South Side Stadium on June 22.

The Fort Wayne Walther League, sponsor of this event, is an organization composed of all the Lutheran Young People organizations in the churches of Fort Wayne.

The general chairman of the committee in charge of this activity was Mr. Allan Bauer. He was assisted by Norbert Bengs and Melvin Piepenbrink.

Noted Scribes Give To Times Highest Rating

Archer Publication Receives Again Quill, Scroll International Honor Award.

Points In Judging Are Enumerated

Headlines, Make-up, News, Proof-reading, Features, Originality Considered.

The South Side Times has again received the Quill and Scroll International Honor award which is a rating above first place. News of this award was received Wednesday, September 14. The judging for the contest took place at Northwestern University last summer.

In rating the paper the judges consider such major points as headlines, make-up under which the editorials and advertising come, news, the leads and general content, features, the interests and originality, proof-reading, the editorial page, sports page, and the kind of type used in the printing of the paper. The Times received first place in all of the above points that were judged. The judges commented on the fine printing of our paper.

South Side has received this honor consecutively since 1933. The other awards which have been conferred upon The Times are the National Scholastic Press Association rating, the Columbia Scholastic rating, the Indiana High School Press Association rating, and the Quill and Scroll rating.

The Northerner was awarded the same rating as The Times, but the final score was slightly lower.

On the judges' score sheet, the following comment appeared: "The Times is truly an honor paper in all respects."

Social Scientists Appoint Officers

New Heads Are Eleanor Vesey, President; Margery Rapp, Helen Banks, Dick Bucholtz.

Eleanor Vesey was elected president; Margery Rapp, vice-president; Helen Banks, secretary-treasurer; and Richard Bucholtz, Inter-Club Congress representative of Social Science at the first called meeting held September 15.

Mr. Wilburn Wilson announced that members should bring prospective club members to the second special meeting which will be held September 30 in room 108. He again emphasized that there are places for twenty more students, who are interested in Social Science, before the capacity of 40 is reached.

There will be an officers' meeting September 22.

Girls' Dean To Speak At Wo-Ho-Ma Meeting

Miss Pittenger will talk on "The Value of Joining the Wo-Ho-Ma Club" at the first meeting today in the Greeley room. All freshmen girls are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

The officers, Lois Gumpfer, president; Louisa Haugh, vice-president; and Elizabeth Kelo, secretary-treasurer, are in charge of the meeting. Games will be played and refreshments served.

New Student Enrolled

Mary Jane Marten, a former student of St. Peter's Commercial High School, entered South Side this year as a junior.

Host To Faculty

Mr. Jack W. Wainwright

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wainwright will be hosts at the annual faculty picnic Friday night. The picnic will be held at Mr. Wainwright's Limberlost Camps at Oliver Lake. Mr. Wainwright has planned a very interesting program which includes fishing, boating, shooting and various other sports. All South Side teachers are cordially invited.

Puppets To Dangle At Every Meeting

Marionettes Will Hold First Session Tonight; Wiener Bake Is Scheduled For October 6

A very interesting and important program has been planned by the executive board of the Marionette Club for its first meeting tonight at 3:30 o'clock in the workshop.

Nadine Mueller, president, and Miss Dorothy Magley, adviser, will welcome the new members. All students who are really interested in learning about puppet work are invited to join the club. There is a special need for dramatists in the club. Those who don't know where the workshop is should meet in Miss Magley's room, room 140, where a member of the club will direct them to the shop.

Plans will be made for a wiener bake to be held October 6. The new members will be initiated at this meeting. Food and entertainment committees will be appointed tonight.

Also, the members will be divided into four groups under the heads of Janice Dyer, Lillian Sherbondy, Marjorie Dyer, and Billy Morgan—all experienced puppeteers. They will instruct their group how to manipulate the marionettes. In order to get more actual experience in presenting puppet plays, a short skit will be given at each meeting by the groups in turn.

All puppets which were taken out last spring should be returned. The dues for the club are 25 cents a semester.

Astronomy Studied By Math-Science

Installation Of Officers Held; Inter-Club Congress Representative To Be Max Wagner.

A brief talk by Mr. Elma Gould opened the first meeting of Math-Science Friday, September 4. The installation service of new officers was presented by Bob Schaff, former president, as Spirit of Math-Science; Miss Georgia Anna Hodgson, as Spirit of Mathematics; and Mr. Elma Gould as Spirit of Science.

Kenneth Warren, the new president, then took over the meeting. The secretary's report was read and approved. It was decided that a wiener roast will be held within three weeks.

Jean Fortriede, the new vice-president, introduced Mr. Louis Hull, who explained how his reflecting telescope was made and how it works. His telescope magnifies forty-eight times.

Max Wagner was elected Inter-Club Congress representative for the year. Mr. Lloyd Whelan gave a talk on stars and planets, explaining how many light years each is distant from us.

The meeting was adjourned by Miss Hodgson, and all went to the South Field. Refreshments were passed on as the members went out to look at the stars and planets through Mr. Hull's telescope. The members got to see Jupiter and its four moons, Venus and Vega.

The next meeting of Math-Science is to be held October 26.

Redskins Tea Dance Will Be Held Friday

A cordial invitation is extended to all South Siders to attend the first tea dance of North Side's social season. The dance will be given by the staffs of The Northerner and The Legend, in the North Side high school cafeteria, Friday afternoon, from 3:30 until 5:30. Admission will be ten cents per person.

Steve Clark's orchestra, consisting of five pieces and a featured vocalist, will play for the dance. Specialty numbers will include songs by Allan Korshak and dances by Betty McNutt and Arlene Sarnon. Omar Kenyon, editor of The Legend, and Rose Steiber, publisher of The Northerner, are in charge of plans for the dance.

Officers Installed At Philo Meeting

President Is Margaret Null, Vice-President, Lois Rea, And Secretary, Joyce Harwood.

Installation of officers was the main feature of the Philo meeting held Monday, September 19. Due to the absence of the new sergeant-at-arms, the president installed the officers. The term's officers are president, Margaret Null; vice-president, Lois Rea; secretary, Joyce Harwood; treasurer, Annette Sneeke; sergeant-at-arms, Helen Banks; program chairman, Ella Jo Reed; pianist, Elizabeth Rose; thespian director, Virginia Shidder; publicity committee, Dorothy Hall and Audrey Hall; decoration chairman, Janice Dyer; and quartette director, Francis Van Buskirk.

After the installation of officers, each officer gave her duties. Demarree then read the club's constitution. Helen Wiehe, club yell leader, led the members in several yells. Francis Van Buskirk led the girls in several of the club songs. Phyllis Geller told of the history of Philo and the requirements for membership in the club. The highlights of the year were reviewed by Janice Dyer. Among these highlights come the fall frolic, annual dance, skate, Christmas party, and the St. Patrick's Day banquet.

The singing of the closing song concluded the meeting.

English Language Growth Is Topic

Three E's Club To Study Development From Anglo-Saxon Time; Will Meet Saturday.

Members of Three E's will meet for the first time at Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Miss Emma Kiefer. This meeting is to be a guest meeting. Any junior or senior who has taken two years of a foreign language and has a B average in English is welcome to come, but he should sign up in room 58 not later than Friday.

The full name of Three E's is Embryo English Etymologists.

The general purpose is to study the influences that have made our language what it is today. The development of English from Anglo-Saxon times through the Middle English period will be the main discussion of this semester.

The program for this meeting on Saturday will include a lesson in some characteristics of Old English. A report by Betty Daniels on interesting derivatives will also be given. Frieda Schubert will read an interesting poem about words. The members will play a game which involves synonyms, antonyms, and homonyms.

Cabinet Meeting Held By U. S. A. Members

Get-acquainted games were played at the first meeting of the U. S. A. Club, which was held Thursday, September 15.

A cabinet meeting was held after the meeting at which committees were chosen for a welcome party which will be held in about two weeks.

Makes First Announcement To Tomorrow's Classes; Event Is Long Awaited

Will Take Place Of Daily Bulletin

Practical Values Are Drama, Will Be Used By Many, Public Speaking Groups.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, will be the first to speak to South Side students over the new radio system that has been installed in South Side and will be tried out tomorrow. Concerning the system, Mr. Snider in an exclusive interview with a Times reporter, issued the following statement: "The new public address system is the final step in the modernization of South Side. With it we can add to the interest, efficiency, and variety of the classroom work, and we can increase the ease and efficiency with which the administrative routine of the school is handled."

To Make Announcements

"The system will be useful in making announcements, presenting bulletins, and informing the students and teachers of the last plans of the school. It can be used for emergency announcements, directions for special fire drills, and instructions in special lines of work."

Continuing, Mr. Snider commented, "The especially valuable use of the new addition to the equipment of the school will be in the actual field of education. Music programs wanted by the music department can be sent to the proper rooms; important addresses which social science classes want to hear can be sent to them; and any or all events of great importance which are being broadcast can be relayed to the teachers who want this material in the class work. Such excellent programs will entertain and enliven courses in music, literature, social science, science, art, and in fact, all phases of school teaching."

Music Is Available

"The music available by radio will make it possible to furnish suitable dance music for tea dances and club meetings."

"Public speaking students may be able to use the system by talking from the control room to their classes, and dramatic classes can present the results of their work to groups who are interested."

"In fact, the possibilities of the use for the new equipment are almost unlimited. It should add much to the interest and value of our school work," concluded Mr. Snider.

The radio is a two-way, two-channel system. A machine is turned on in the office and the person wishing to speak talks through the mike. Mr. Snider can communicate with one, two, or as many rooms as he wishes at the same time. As long as the button is on, the teacher at the receiving end can answer back merely by talking. As it is a two channel system, two different programs can be going at the same time.

Societas Romana Will Meet Today

Club Officers Will Give Talks; Get Acquainted Games To Be Featured In Meeting At 3:30

All 9A's who made a grade of not less than B in Latin last semester are especially invited to attend the first meeting of the Latin Club, which will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in room 114. This meeting will be conducted by the officers alone, and the general idea is to acquaint people with what the club has done in the past and what it now stands for.

Three talks are to be given by the officers on the various subjects dealing with the work of Gwendolyn De Wees, president, will give a brief history of the club. Maurine Siebert, vice-president, will give a resume of the programs of former years and particularly last year. Jane Bowen, secretary-treasurer, will give an account of how money has been made and spent by the club in the past. Jean Fortriede will conduct a get-acquainted game and also divide the members into groups for various program committees.

Visitors are cordially invited to find out whether or not they wish to join. Anyone who is especially interested in Latin and did not make the required grade may consult Mr. Alda Jane Carson as to membership.

Faculty Will Picnic At Wainwright Camp

Mr. Jack Wainwright has invited faculty and friends to go to the Limberlost Camp on Oliver Lake for the annual picnic this fall. On Friday they start out on their trip after school equipped with sheets, blankets, and pillows if they wish to stay overnight. The price will be fifty cents for adults, and twenty-five cents for children.

In regard to entertainment, Jack and the committee will provide for it very efficiently. As to sports, besides fishing and boating, the men are asked to bring guns to shoot clay pigeons. The route to be taken is road 3 to Kendallville, then west on road 6 to road 9; this route takes approximately fifty minutes. The picnic committee is Mr. Parks Delavan, chairman, and Miss Crissie Mott, Mr. Lloyd Whelan, Miss Eleanor Smetley, and Miss Mary McCloskey as assistants.

World Celebrates 2000th Anniversary Of Augustus Caesar

Roman Pupils Note Changes In Teachings

Educated Slaves Were Sole Instigators Of Ancient Educational School Plan.

Lack Advantages Of Schools Today

Extra-Curricular Activities Unknown To Italy School-boy Of Augustus' Time.

Although the majority of Roman boys went to school, schools were neither compulsory nor urged upon them, as they are now. It was said that "the education of all Romans would be a burden to the State, and something impossible in sparsely settled mountain districts." The ideal education at that time was training which fitted a man for his duty to the gods, the State, and to his family. Roman girls received all their training in the home.

While we go to schools and are taught by teachers who are not connected with us or our family ordinarily, the teachers of Rome, in the time of Augustus Caesar, were often educated slaves belonging to the household. For the sake of convenience and economy, children of other households were frequently included. The Romans had schools that were open to all children who paid a monthly fee as do our private schools today. Some of these schools were taught entirely by one man; other schools employed several. When we come to school, we come alone; not so with the Roman boys and girls. They were always accompanied by a slave (pedagogue) or guardian, who carried their books.

Taught By Parents

Corresponding to our kindergarten and first grade, the Roman child was first instructed by his parents before starting to school. He usually started to primary or elementary school which compares with our grade school, at the age of seven years, and the teacher received about three dollars per year per pupil. These schools taught reading, writing, and arithmetic; ours differ in that they have more numerous subjects at this age. A Roman boy might first learn to write by tracing a stencil, or by the master guiding his hand, while we are taught to copy, but not to trace an example. Much memory work was done by Roman children.

The next highest school was Grammar or Secondary School; this compares with our high school. The teacher received about twenty dollars a year per pupil. A theme was given for an essay. It was written, then delivered in speech form. When finished with Secondary School, a Roman youth was about sixteen years old, while we are eighteen.

Some finished their education abroad at an Oratory School, which compares with our Universities. A good oratory teacher received about one hundred dollars per pupil a year.

Materials Fairly Modern
The materials Roman students used were somewhat like those our parents used. Compared with our old-fashioned slate, the y used a wax tablet. A stick pointed at one end, was used to scratch the writing into the wax. The other end of the metal stick or stylus was flat; it was used to clean off the tablet. After the student learned to write, and more carefully, when necessary, he used papyrus, pen and ink, which was used as our books are used. The papyrus was like a long piece of paper rolled at the ends until it was narrow enough to read or write on easily as the case might be. Cedar oil was rubbed on to keep away book worms. For a pen they used a sharpened reed that was split like a quill pen. The ink was somewhat weak, and it could be easily sponged off and the reed used again. An abacus, a counting board by which reckonings in the higher numbers could be made were used, and sometimes pebbles were used to count with as were the hands.

The children went to school in the morning before daybreak, before "the crow of the cock", but it must be remembered that in Italy it is not light until mid-morning. They had no long summer vacation, as do we, but many lengthy holiday interruptions were given for it. In comparison with ours, their schools were noisy. One reason for this was the fact that the school was frequently located in the open air and in the din of the city; the other, because the boys studied aloud. Because of this, the teachers are said to have "shouted louder than the outcries of the gladiator fights." The students went to lunch, just as we do, at about eleven o'clock, and returned for short sessions in the afternoon, totaling about six hours of study.

In the better schools the walls were covered with historical scenes or charts. In such schools often the classes recited all at once; this was done in a sing-song fashion. After all, our schools are just an improvement over theirs. If a Roman could come back and visit South Side, he might feel right at home, especially in the south end of the building where shouting is necessary to overcome the noise of the workmen.

Bust Of Augustus Unearthed In 1933

A fine marble bust of the first Roman Emperor, Augustus Caesar, made during his lifetime, was unearthed at Athens in 1933, by Dr. T. Leslie Shear, director of the excavations, and Professor of Archeology at Princeton University. The bust was found near the Agora, the market place of Athens. One may wonder why a bust of Augustus Caesar should be found in Greece. The answer is simple. Greece became a part of the Roman Empire in 146 B. C., many years before the time of Augustus. The bust is hailed as a masterpiece of Roman sculpturing, as it shows the ability of the artist to understand his subject and his skill in executing it in marble.

Gaius Julius Caesar Octavianus Augustus

By Eleanor Vesey, Latin 7

Two thousand years ago tomorrow a boy, Gaius Octavius Thurinus (Augustus), was born in Italy who was destined to create a never-to-be-forgotten Roman Empire and to inspire the Golden Age of Rome.

John Buchan, Governor-General of Canada, in his very recent book, Augustus, presents the unusual and somewhat magical life of this princeps of Rome for fifty-six years. Augustus was only eighteen years old when Julius Caesar, his great-uncle, was murdered in the senate house. This event caused the greatest consternation because there seemed to be no one to succeed him. Although he had three great-nephews, all were too young to gain the public eye and public confidence.

Octavius was named as his successor, but he was only a youth and still had to complete his education. Also he knew that there would be a bitter contest with Mark Antony, then consul, for superiority. However, in spite of all these drawbacks, he accepted the challenge and set out for Rome in May, 44 B. C., two months after Julius Caesar's assassination.

His main purpose was to avenge his great-uncle's death and to carry on his work. For a while Octavius and Antony remained on outwardly congenial terms. But during the last months of 44 B. C., the break came. Romans chose sides, and civil war threatened.

Open warfare between the factions of Antony and Octavius began on March 19, 43 B. C.

Octavius Won Benefits

Octavius alone won benefits out of the complicated strife. In Augustus John Buchan claims that now Octavius realized that the time had come to make peace with Antony in order to avenge Julius. To meet Antony on equal terms, he must be consul and legally head of the state. Therefore, for a month or two, he continued to negotiate. On August 19 he succeeded in being made consul twenty-four years before the statutory date. With his new power he first succeeded in establishing a special court to outlaw the murderers of Julius.

Octavius had made himself so formidable that Antony must accept him on equal terms, and between them they would avenge Julius Caesar. As a result of Octavius' ambition the First Triumvirate was formed. For many months Octavius, Antony, and Lepidus "reigned" over Rome, during which time came horror unspeakable. Every day, each triumvir drew up a list of those he wished killed "for the good of the state." The three lists together were called the proscription or death list. This merciless act of the Triumvirate is the darkest stain upon Octavius' record. In 42 the triumvirate broke up with Antony taking control of the East and Octavius, the turbulent West. Antony thought that Octavius would have the harder task and therefore lose his popularity. But in truth Octavius directed the government so well that it made him one of the most powerful rulers Rome had ever seen.

Anthony Goes To Cleopatra
When Antony finally realized this, he saw that in order to win back popularity to himself he must win a resounding triumph in the East. His main need was money. Since he could get this only from Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, by whom he had been charmed four years before, he summoned her to meet him in Antioch.

Now at last he became her devoted lover. He acknowledged the twins, Alexander and Cleopatra, whom she had borne him. The two compromised on supplies for the Parthian campaign, which turned out to be a dismal failure.

All tenderness for Antony in Rome died away when news came that he had divorced Octavia and had been publicly wedded to the Egyptian queen. So much sentiment against Antony and Cleopatra was built up that in 32 B. C. Octavius, as fateful priest, proclaimed war against the East.

Antony's defeat in the campaign of Actium was irretrievable. At Alexandria he fell into a profound melancholy; and, when he received false news that Cleopatra was dead, he fell on his sword and, mortally wounded, begged to be taken to the royal mausoleum, where he died in Cleopatra's arms.

Cleopatra Kills Self
A similar fate awaited Cleopatra. Octavius had her kept under strict guard in the palace. She realized that he would enjoy nothing more than to sport her in the triumph which would be accorded him in Rome. An asp was brought to her in a basket of green figs, and Octavius found her lying dead—robbed and crowned.

Government Of Italy Does Memory Honor

Exhibit Of Great Splendor Covers Long Period Of History Of The Empire.

The Italian government inaugurated an exhibition of unusual extent and splendor last September, commemorating the birth of Augustus Caesar, founder of the Roman Empire. The official name "Mostra Augustea della Romanita," shows that the exhibition is not restricted to the life and doings of the great Emperor, but also to the whole history of the Empire from its origin to the aftermath. All this is illustrated in the exhibit.

The distinguished and experienced director, Professor G. Giglioli, who has been its organizing spirit from the first, has shown what can be done with casts. This was found to be necessary, since recent experience has shown only too well the danger of transporting works of art and industry from place to place.

Casts Are Made

Many of the important happenings in the history of Rome are pictured with casts so exact in texture and color that one finds it difficult not to believe he is in the presence of originals. There is a rich series of coins, casts, paintings, works of architecture and monuments; weapons belonging to the Roman, Greek, Italian and Samnite peoples. Among the one hundred and thirty-nine plastic models exhibited are the Theater of Marcellus, considered one of the most perfect buildings of the age of Augustus, the Bridge of Saint Chamas, a Roman fortified castle in Cyrenaica, the citerns of Carthage, the Temple of Minerva at Tebessa, and the Temple of Naga in Egypt. In all there are nearly three thousand exhibits.

Included in the special material sent from foreign countries are the reproductions from Roman Pannonia; an organ discovered recently at Aquinum, and other remains which show the status of music in ancient times. The organ itself has four registers, one octave and four orders of pipes. It can still be played.

Reproductions Made

All the ensigns of the Roman army are reproduced, as well as pictures showing the equipment of the soldiers at different times. The calendar of Augustus has also been reproduced. Although it has many things from all over the Empire the exhibit is made to contribute to the significance of Augustus Caesar as a central figure of a great pageant; he stands there as a symbol of Rome's civilization and of her sway.

The "Mostra" is to be kept open until towards the end of the year instead of closing, as originally announced, on September 23, 1938. A number of improvements and additions will then be made, therefore, receiving the well-earned title of "one of the world's greatest exhibitions."

Octavianus Augustus Accomplishes Much For Peoples' Good

We all know that Augustus Caesar achieved many things before he came into great power. But we are not interested in these things as we are in those things which he accomplished purely for the benefit of his people.

Roman civilization had demoralized to an astounding degree. Adultery, divorce, public games, childless couples, and tastes for extravagant things were everyday occurrences. Having tried to put a stop to these evils by the laws, lex de adulteriis and lex de maritandis ordinibus and getting no results, Augustus tried a different method, the lex Popia Poppaea. This encouraged child bearing and promised money or help in capvassing for an office to the father, and certain property rights to the mother. This method brought permanent results.

When Augustus made a tour of the provinces from 27 to 24 B. C., and took the census in several of them, he found out about the heavy taxes placed on the people by the provincial governors. He substituted these with a land tax and a personal tax along with public improvements and relief of trade restrictions. The burden was also lighter by levying a legacy duty and a tax on the sale of slaves.

Augustus had full control of the army, thereby taking away from the senate the right of levying troops for its own provinces. Whenever there was trouble, Augustus was the one who took charge. Augustus brought about a new military system, by which troops would be enlisted every so many years instead of every year. In 13 B. C. he fixed the term of the legionaries for sixteen years and the term of the guards for twelve years. In 5 A. D., he changed it to twenty and sixteen years respectively. Another change consisted of a more frequent use of the auxiliary forces. Italy's martial spirit was reduced by the use of these troops and the Italians' distaste for military service. With this feeling it would be impossible to check an invasion, but the strength of the border provinces would prevent it.

Augustus Closes Gates Of Janus

Have Been Shut Only Twice Before; Marks Time Of Peace Lasting 200 Years At Rome

Augustus Caesar, in the year 29 B. C., was given the honor of closing the Gates of Janus for the third time in Roman history. Janus was a god with two heads who looked into the past with one pair of eyes and into the future with the other. In times of strife and war the doors of his temple were left wide open but were closed in times of peace won by victory.

Because he had brought peace to a people who were weary of war, especially civil war, Augustus was ordered by the Senate to shut the doors of the temple of the two-headed god. Tradition states that the celebrated portals had been closed only twice before and that when Augustus closed them it was the first time in the last two centuries.

Great was the rejoicing of the people when this eventful ceremony was performed by their great leader, and a splendid sculptured altar was erected on the Campus Martius (the parade ground) in honor of the "Peace of Augustus."

With a few sharp, sad interruptions, this peace lasted 200 years at Rome though there were frequent distant wars in regions where the Roman legions were extending the boundaries of the Empire. During these 200 years Augustus twice again performed the ceremony of closing the Gates of Janus.

Many Join Celebration In Honor Of Augustus

During the whole year of 1937 and the summer of 1938, students, schools, teachers and all lovers of history and the classics have joined in celebrating the 2000th anniversary of Augustus Caesar, the founder of the Roman Empire. As a part of this celebration a fascinating pilgrimage was planned under the competent leadership of a number of prominent American professors.

Dedicated to the purpose of bringing a clearer understanding of Augustus and his achievements, the pilgrimage accurately covered the ground that was once the Roman Empire from the shores of Britain to those of Asia Minor. Briefly, the journey started in Egypt, proceeded around the Mediterranean, through Palestine, Syria, Lebanon, Cyprus, Rhodes, Asia Minor, Byzantium, Crete, Greece, and Rome.

In Italy the tour was naturally more intensive, including such places as Lake Como and Garda in the Alps, the Isle of Capri, which Augustus once owned, and even the battlefield on which Julius Caesar crushed forever the Gallic hero, Vercingetorix.

For the fortunate scholars who participated in the pilgrimage, there was an unforgettable experience, topped by the knowledge that they were giving a fitting tribute to their ideal, Augustus Caesar.

Polar Bears Defeat Kellys In Grid Clash

South Side Loses In Second Game Of Season By Score Of 20-7; Grab Early Lead.

A smaller but much faster Woodward of Toledo football team defeated an inexperienced South Side Archer eleven last Saturday afternoon by a score of 20-7. The defeat was the second one of the season for the Kelly Klads, and combined with playing in their own stadium and before a home town crowd, the defeat was a bitter one for the Archers to swallow.

After grabbing the lead in the early part of the second quarter, the Archers' play slowed down considerably and they permitted Woodward to score in the second quarter and to push over two more touchdowns in the final period.

One Touchdown Made South Side's lone touchdown came as the result of a blocked punt, which South Side recovered on Woodward's 5-yard line. On the third play of the second quarter, Fatherlee plunged through a huge hole in the line to score the Kelly Klads' first touchdown of the season. Bob Biedenweg booted the ball squarely between the goal posts for the extra point. The Archers held the Polar Bears back until the closing minutes of the second quarter, when Kaminski, Woodward back, threw a 15-yard pass from the South Side 25-yard line to Comming who ran the rest of the way to score. Kaminski kicked for the extra point.

In the third quarter the Polar Bears threatened to chalk up another touchdown when they drove to the Archer 10-yard stripe, but the Archers with a brand new team in the game threw back the Woodward threat and gained possession of the ball on downs.

Polar Bears Ahead After bombarding each other's territory with punts, in the early part of the fourth quarter, Woodward found himself possessing the ball on South Side's 35-yard line, and they immediately moved up to the 21-yard strip. At this point Davis, Woodward quarterback, sent Langais, substitute back, circling wide around his left end to score standing up. Langais also cornered the place-kick.

A short time later Woodward clinched the game when they turned a South Side fumble into a touchdown. Fatherlee dropped back for a punt but fumbled the pass from center and Woodward recovered it on the own 6-yard stripe. On the second play Langais broke through the South Side line and scored. Bankley's attempted place-kick for the extra point was low.

Archers Attempt Scoring After this last touchdown only a little time remained and the Archers filled the air from all angles with zeppelins in a desperate attempt to score, but were unable to click on their pass offense and the gun soon ended the game.

For South Side, Shimer, freshman fullback, stood out with his fine punting, while Langais and Raizko starred for Woodward.

Skirts and Sports

Bertha Coudret, Betty Hargan, Jeanne Smith, Joan Squires, and Rosemary Spore, accompanied by their student leader, Justine Coudret, hiked to Waynedale Saturday morning.

Some of the new freshmen G. A. A's are June Van Pelt, Marge Kruse, Lois Bremer, Kathryn Zaegel, and Marjorie Boese. You've joined one grand club, girls. Here's hoping you have lots of good times!

Our sincerest apologies to Miss Alice Dean. In the first issue of The Times, it was incorrectly stated that she spent her summer at North Manchester. The truth is that she spent only five weeks of her vacation there, teaching physical education in the college. This was certainly a great honor, Miss Dean. She also traveled through the east and did a lot of swimming in the Garrett pool.

Talk about Hazel Perry needing a map of Chicago! Apparently someone else needed one this summer. Wilma Carrier seemed to find big city life too much for her. She stood on the corner waiting for a bus until some policeman informed her to move on, that there were no buses on that street. Then she boarded a street car and proceeded to fall down on her bags. Such is life in a big city, Wilma.

What kind of acrobatics did Shirley Rubin do the other day while demonstrating speedball to the members of the seventh period gym class? You've really got some technique there, Shirley!

Marge Price presented Hazel Perry with a map of Fort Wayne the other day. We understand that Hazel thoroughly appreciated it, but she thinks that she knows her way around Fort Wayne better than in Chicago.

It seems that some of the hockey players need a little lunch before they can gain enough energy to play. At least Pauline Werling was seen eating an apple before she began to play. Anything to enable you to score those points, Pauline!

We wonder what was the matter with Eileen Hoffman the other day during her lunch hour. She will not admit much to anybody, but we have an idea of what happened. Don't forget, Eileen, a fast game of tennis will make you forget your troubles.

G. A. A. Begins Court Tourney For Semester

Frosh, Sophomore, Junior, Senior Matches Drawn; Many Sign Up For Event

The G. A. A. tennis tournament has begun, and the first match has been drawn. The opponents for the freshmen singles are as follows: Katherine Stenler vs. Vera Moser, Betty Hargan vs. Phyllis Fensler, Mary Menze vs. Sylvia Shorty, Kathleen Neith vs. Betty Littlefield, Orinda Braun vs. Arlene Loesser, Rose Stemen vs. Bertha Coudret, Carol Wittern vs. Marjorie Boese, Barbara Miller vs. Martha Stenler, Caroline Stalter vs. Lenora Mayer, June Whalen vs. Rosemary Spore, Kay Browning vs. Myrtle Ernst, Peggy Greaney vs. Neva Kirk, and Thomsie Hall will play the winner of the last match.

The sophomore matches have been drawn thus: Maxine Stough vs. Constance Deel, Martha Krauskopf vs. Dorothy Cooper, Francis Gross vs. Marian Seemeyer, Ruth Fuhrman vs. Elaine Hirsch, Joan Squires vs. Virginia Humcke, Mary Fry vs. Alice Sweet, Geneva Martain vs. Eva Jean Wylie, Marilyn Sondles vs. Bernadine Bender, Pauline Schoenher vs. Francis Nash, Peggy Harrod vs. Kate Lahtman, Betty Nichols vs. Jeanne Smith, Margaret Calkins vs. Hilda Schubert, Bernadine Pressler vs. Betty Thiele, Justine Coudret vs. Marjorie Voigt, and Lois Campbell vs. Barbara Brewer.

For the juniors the following is the line-up: Lucille Scheuman vs. Ruth Doehla, Ruth Hoover vs. Arlene Reinche, Helen Kesoph vs. Betty Harlan, Agnes Seiler vs. Dorothy Beyrau, Pauline Werling vs. Dorothy Spiller, Deloris Ulrich vs. Virginia Gogline, Dorothy Amstutz vs. Audrey Hall, Lois Jarvis vs. Betty Marquardt, Mildred Voigt vs. Elfrieda Hanke, and Norma Jean Sprunger vs. Louise Lovelace.

The senior lots fell thus: Marjorie Price vs. Elaine Hoffman, Nadine Mueller vs. Betty Showalter, Gwen Roberts vs. Mary Jane Rison, Frieda Schubert vs. Dorothy Bloemker, Marjorie Stratton vs. Hazel Perry, Margaret Wittmer vs. Virginia Porter, and Betty Neeb will play the winner of the Wittmer-Porter game.

Health League Plans For Year's Programs

This fall's Anti-Tuberculosis League educational program was announced by Miss Maxine Biebesheimer, executive secretary. The high school program includes the study of Healthful Home Living. The life that was spent by former Heroes of Medicine will be taught in the course. The purpose of the course is to help the students gain a knowledge to make them better home members. Every teacher is expected to make some contribution to the unit and home economic teachers may be expected to take a prominent part.

Dr. Werner W. Duemling, school physician, is co-operating in this educational program. All students are urged to take the Mantoux Test. This test discovers tuberculosis infection. The chest x-ray shows up disease in the lungs before the doctor can hear anything abnormal.

This program will be discussed at a Parent-Teacher meeting.

Enrollment Increases Here

Official figures show that the enrollment has somewhat increased in South Side. Last fall it had 1,896 students. Today it has 1,909 students.

Duemling Addresses Teachers

Dr. Werner W. Duemling talked on health problems at the teachers' meeting held Monday in the cafeteria.

Sportlights

Big Ten football practice has gotten under way with all the teams looking good enough to win the championship. The teams are engaged in intra-squad games through which several new prospects were discovered. At Indiana Coach Bo McMillan uncovered a new passer in Joe Nicholson, a sophomore, who tossed two touchdown passes in a regular-season game which the first stringers won 20-0. Six sophomores were in the varsity lineup. At Minnesota scrimmage has been eliminated. Coach Bernie Bierman started the tapering off of this year's squad as they open against the University of Washington next Saturday. The other schools have all got strong teams and almost all have discovered promising sophomores.

Mervyn Connors, White Sox rookie first baseman, recalled from Shreveport two weeks ago, hit three consecutive homers in the second game of a double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics. This is one short of Lou Gehrig's record of four in a row set in a game in 1932. On his fourth trip to the plate Connors got a double for a perfect day at bat and accounted for five runs.

Steve Sitko, a graduate of Central High School, is currently listed as the Number 1 quarterback at Notre Dame. It has been a long time since a Fort Wayne product was a regular at the nearby institution.

Again this year the National League is going to send a team into the World Series that is pretty well worn out by the hot pace that is being set by the first division clubs in the closing weeks of the campaign, while the Yankees, who have now clinched the American League pennant, will enter a team fresh and relaxed.

The National League race is far from over. It looks like the team that wins will be a setup for the Yankees. Cincinnati or Chicago would probably stand a better chance than the Pirates, who at present hold a small advantage over the others.

The battle in the American League is over as a result of the Yankees clinching the pennant September 18. The Boston Red Sox are holding down second place.

Jimmy Foxx is leading the major leagues in batting with a percent of 350. He is second in home runs and leads the American League in runs batted in. This is Jimmy's best year since he led the majors in home runs several years back.

Attendance at major league baseball games will surpass the ten million mark this year for one of baseball's best seasons. The American League is slightly ahead of the National League with 4,924,714 to the National's 4,918,770. The Yankees are the leading club with 1,066,601 persons in 72 out of 77 home games.

Book Dividers Distributed

Approximately 10,000 cardboard notebook dividers were distributed last week among the student body. In addition to the advertisements of the various firms, who are responsible for these dividers, the athletic schedules and school songs of the three high schools are printed on these dividers.

Eight Home Grid Games Are Listed

Schedule Will Not Be Easy To Compete Against; Price Of Football Ticket Is $1.00.

The home football schedule for South Side this year will prove anything but an easy schedule to compete against. The Kelly Klads' home schedule reads as follows:

October 1—Peru.
October 8—Michigan City.
October 15—Freebel.
October 22—Central Catholic.
October 28—North Side.
November 5—La Porte.
November 12—Central.

The price of the student and adult football season ticket is $1.00. The student football, basketball, and track season ticket is $2.50. The adult price for this type of season ticket is $4.50. The track season ticket is 50 cents for both students and adults.

Intramurally Speaking

Intramural activities are well under way this week, as tennis has opened, and cross-country has gotten under way. Tennis opened last Friday and cross-country opened last Thursday.

A little item of interest to Div of Diggers: If you should go out for intramural golf and should happen to be a winner you will automatically be shifted to the varsity squad. So let's see plenty of you duffers out at the Municipal course.

Bob York, one of our distinguished student leaders, tried his hand at running the other day; however, he claims he has too much "muscle" or something for such a sport.

In a recent race between several prominent intramural individuals, Charles Close, the Casanova of the sophomore class, was honored by coming in second from the last. I say honored because he usually places last; however, Fleet Foot York happened to be racing in this particular event.

In our midst we have an up-and-coming track star, Rudolph Wutke. Mr. Wutke is supposed to be one of the swiftest boys in South Side, even though he is only a sophomore. So by the time he's a South Side senior he really ought to have something here.

Bob Biedenweg Hopes To Become Football Mentor

Robert Orien Biedenweg was born in Fort Wayne in 1921. At the age of five he enrolled at the James H. Smart School. While attending grade school, Bob was interested in basketball and football. In 1935 he entered South Side High School, where he immediately went out for football and basketball. These two sports have taken up most of his time ever since; however, Bob does find time once in a while to attend a Letterman's Club meeting.

Bob's favorite subject in high school is manual training, his favorite teacher is none other than Miss Dorothy Magley.

Gives Teams Chances

Biedenweg is now engaging in his third year at varsity tackle on the football team, and his 95 pounds spread over a six-foot-three-inch frame are really going to be a powerhouse in there this year. When asked about the team's chances this year, Bob replied, "If the fellows learn their plays and if we really get in there and fight, we should win a lot of ball games."

During the winter months Bob devotes most of his time to playing basketball. He has played center on the reserves for the last two years and should play a lot of varsity basketball this year. In the summer time Bob works in a grocery store, and easily gets inspiration to keep in training by handling all the different kinds of food in the store.

Bob Likes Brunettes

Regarding the weaker sex, Bob prefers (you can't blame him) black-eyed brunettes and likes them tall and willowy. When asked his favorite radio program, Bob immediately replied, "I'll take Jack Benny any old day." Robert also said that he liked picture shows that contained plenty of blood and gore, and that his favorite actor is Mickey Rooney. Incidentally it would appear that Mrs. Biedenweg certainly didn't raise any sissy for a son.

"I think Bill Moss is a pretty swell fellow, and all the rest of the fellows think the same thing," Bob said, while he was being questioned.

Regarding his future education, Bob intends to go to Indiana University after he graduates from South Side. While at Indiana, Bob would like to study how to become a football and basketball coach, and, readers, I might add that in your truly's opinion, Bob would certainly make a double swell coach.

Hockey Schedule Will Be Started

Sophomores Hold Organization Meeting; Juniors, Seniors Drill On Game Technique

G. A. A.'s regular schedule of hockey games will be started tomorrow for the upperclassmen. An organization meeting was held for the sophomores last Friday when they elected captains and selected teams. The captains for the teams are Elaine Ferguson, Gloria Wiebke, Geneva Martin, Jeanne Smith, and Bernadine Pressler.

On team 1 are June Hoopingarner, Frances Gross, Betty Thiele, Irene Meyer, Laverne Mischfelder, Carol Lyman, Faye Gumpfer, Betty Misch, Marilyn Sappington, Betty Nichols, Maxine Strugh, Betty Medsker, Margaret Jensen, and Marie Shultz.

Team 2 is comprised of Betty Porter, Martha Jane Krauskopf, Dorothy Rarick, Betty Mann, Leanne Kensler, Violet Galbreath, Doris Fiker, Rosanna Weston, Betty Lou Stein, Marjorie Van Curen, Audrey Cooper, Jean Sheets, Helen Bolinger, Marilyn Miller, and Agnes Ruch.

On team 3 are Justine Coudret, Frances Nash, Marian Seemeyer, Joan Squires, Sarah Jane Makey, Gloria Staley, Hilda Schubert, Marie Lebanoff, Gertrude Merkle, Helen Squires, and Romayne Hediger.

On team 4 are Barbara Brower, Marilyn Sondles, Constance Deel, Lois Campbell, Florella Shimer, Maxine Sterling, Lois Gumpfer, Delores Garwood, Pauline Shonyer, Margaret Neroff, Ruth Fuhrman, and Wanda Rohlfing.

On team 5 are Mary Alice Dunten, Dorothy Cooper, Betty Pepper, Eva Jeanne Wiley, Margaret Brower, Leona Erhman, Mary Demetre, Elaine Jackson, Arlene Reinke, Mildred Hanke, Edith Herman, and Helen Ellenwood.

While the sophomores were holding their organization meeting the seniors and juniors were drilling on their technique. Hazel Perry was in charge of this practice. The points that they drilled on were dribbling, passing diagonally with partners, and field bulging.

Attends Turnfest

Maxine Muller attended the Lake Erie district Turnfest at Johnston, Pennsylvania. She found time to view the work of the National A. A. U. men's and women's champions on apparatus and met the United States champion tumbler, Joe Guilombardo.

Archer Gridders To Play Strong Bryan Team Tomorrow

Last Contest Out Of Town This Season

Green To Battle Ohio Eleven That Defeated Central Catholic Last Week 13-0.

Booting Of Green Is Looking Better

New Faces Seen In Starting Lineup With Fatheree As Chief "Find" Of Season.

South Side's up-and-coming grid squad will play their last road game tomorrow night under the floodlights when they travel to Bryan, Ohio, to take on a strong Bryan outfit. Bryan is the lone new game that the Archers will play on their 1938 grid schedule. Very little is known of the potential strength of the Ohio team, but the one report available cast a dark shadow on the chances of the Green and White tomorrow night. Bryan last week downed an unusually tough Central Catholic team by a score of 13-0.

Archers Are Improving
The Archers looked much improved in their last start against a powerful Woodward of Toledo eleven although they dropped the contest by a score of 20-7 for their second straight defeat. In the second quarter of the game, however, the Archers got a taste of blood when they converted a break in the form of a blocked punt into their first South Side touchdown of 1938 season as Fatheree ripped off a five-yard gain good for the score. However, Woodward came back to tie it up before the half ended and went ahead to score two more scores in the last period.

Solutions to two important problems confronting this year's Archer varsity were apparently found in last Saturday's game. In the South Bend game, one of the decided weaknesses in the make-up of the Archers was the poor punting displayed in that game. Last Saturday, Shimer, freshman fullback, stood out for his brilliant punting. Bob Biedenweg also came through in his appointed task of booting that point after touchdown. The one disappointment last Saturday was the failure of the Archer passing attack to click as it did in the South Bend clash. Passes were heaved fast and thick in the last quarter, but to no avail.

Jim Fatheree Outstanding
Jim Fatheree again stood out as the number one ball carrier Saturday. Fatheree is shifty and exceedingly fast and promises to be hard to catch in future Archer ball games. Several new names appeared on the Green and White starting lineup for the first time against Toledo. They were Bob Merchant at guard position, Ginger at center, and Fatheree at halfback. Stu Welborn will be back in action next Saturday as varsity quarterback. This will in all probability shift Saalfrank, who called signals for the Archers last Saturday, back to tackle.

The tentative starting lineup for the Bryan game is as follows: Cook and Braden at ends, Saalfrank and Biedenweg at tackle, McCammon and Merchant at guard, Ginger at center, Welborn at quarter, Moorhead and Fatheree at halfbacks, and Shimer at fullback.

Tigers-Catholic Fray Saturday Tilts The Lid

First Game In Race For Champion Of Fort Wayne Looks Like Good Battle.

Central's Tigers will take on an inexperienced Central Catholic squad this Saturday at the North Side field after the former's 32-12 defeat last Friday at the hands of Elkhart's Blue Blazers. The Purple squad, although rather new to the varsity at most posts, will put up a better fight this year than in the past because of the many good reserves on call to Coach Levicki.

Bill Hanley and Feling Talley starred for the Tigers in their last contest; while Butler's triple-threat work against Bryan nearly scored twice. It ought to be a swell show when these boys meet, as all three are capable of good work and are evenly matched.

Elkhart's heavy linemen and veteran backfield were a little too much for Central in their night game last Friday. In the fore part of the game Central's close formation did little damage to the Blue Blazers. In the fourth quarter, using a spread formation, Central went over the goal line twice; once when Bill Hanley made a long gallop and again when Hanley made a short pass to Talley. Dick Donovan scored two times for Elkhart although he is very light. Most of his teammates are heavy and the Blue Blazers outweighed the Fort Wayne team several pounds a man. Central tried a lot of passes in the first three periods when they were held scoreless. Elkhart did all their scoring in the first three quarters, massing their 32 points in these periods.

Elkhart's big quarter was the third when they pushed 19 points over the finish line. After that Central held the spotlight.

Curbing Is Replaced
Due to the construction tower outside The Times room, workmen had to tear out the sidewalk curbing. Now they are replacing it.

Veterans Form Nucleus For This Year's Team

Although few boys from last year's football squad returned this year, six boys out last year form a nucleus for the '38 team. They all will see a lot of action this season. From left to right are: Byron McCammon, Tom Moorhead, Walt Staigt, Ralph Saalfrank, Bob Beidenweg, and LeRoy Cook, the players South Side will depend on this year.

L. H. S. A. A. Sets "Aid Team With School Spirit," Requests New Archer Mentor

In spite of the strenuous work of getting the South Side Archers ready for the coming grid battles, Coach Bill Moss has found time to become acquainted with and like South Side.

The Archer coach stated that "from what I have seen of them, the South Siders are a swell bunch of kids. The one fault I find with them is that they have completely forgotten to get behind their football team."

Stressing the importance of school spirit behind any team as well as in it, Coach Moss hopes to see a large turnout of fans at the games played here at home.

Archers Defeated Twice
Although the Archers were defeated twice, he feels that the experience gained by the defeats will prove invaluable to them. Coach Moss pointed out that playing one of the tough teams in the state at South Bend, the Archer squad began to find themselves and play football. Surprising the crowd with a very accurate passing attack, they came within scoring distance twice but were unable to push over the line.

Working out on the average of two hours a day, the team is in fine shape and is rapidly improving its brand of football.

"If the team keeps on improving as rapidly as it has in the last couple of weeks, South Side is really going to have a football team," said the new mentor, adding, "we'll take more than just a couple of games this season, if the boys will get in there and fight."

Many Show Improvement
On the list of players who have shown marked improvement the coach places Goshorn, Moorhead, Staigt, Biedenweg, Fatheree, Saalfrank, Merchant, Cook, Ginger, and Art Miller, who, despite his size, is making a fine tackle. The coach also remarked that the kind of spirit he liked to see was being exhibited by Killer Miller and Stu Welborn, who in spite of injuries, have not missed a practice. Welborn, with a cracked wrist, has been running the track to keep in shape.

This season South Side has one of the toughest schedules of any team in the state. The team has been practicing hard. Those who have stood the stiff training are toughened up and are in shape to stand the long hard games.

"The boys who came out of the Washington game were not winded but were comparatively fresh," stated Coach Moss.

"The main thing this year," says the new mentor, "is to get the school spirit behind the team."

New Coach Talks At Pep Assembly

Bill Moss Requests Support Of Student Body, Bob Robinson Stresses Attending Games.

Mr. Bill Moss, South Side's new football coach, was introduced to the student body of South Side for the first time at the school's first pep session last Friday in the gymnasium. He was introduced by Tom Gallmeyer, South Side's new master of ceremonies for all the pep sessions.

Mr. Moss explained to the students that the success of our football team lies in the co-operation of the entire student body. He wants the students to root for our team and display a spirit that will help the team win its games.

The regular yell leaders for South Side's pep sessions now are Sam Hite, Bob Crankshaw, and Chuck Hawk. The assistant yell leaders are Bud Lampton and Ed Kettler.

Boys' Intramural Golf To Start Wednesday

Intramural fall golf will start September 28 with a meeting of all boys interested in competing in the tourney. This tournament will be used to select varsity material for South Side's golf squad next spring.

Entrants in the tourney play 18 holes of tourney golf at some public course. Entrants are divided into three classes, light, heavy, and middle-weights. Winners in each group have a chance to get on the varsity team. The date for the tournament has not been set.

Redskins Win Over Wabash In Home Game

North Side Footballers Are Victorious In Night Game With Apache Pigskinners.

North Side was the only one of three of the local schools to win their game last Friday night as they beat Wabash 19-6 at the Northern field. The Redskins were not as impressive as the score might indicate. It was the tenth victory in a row for North Side. The Red showed flashes of offensive power but revealed a lack of pass attacks and made several mechanical and mental errors.

Wabash gave the Redskins a swell battle and had the fans scared when they tied the score late in the first quarter. This score was made on the most outstanding play of the game when Rish ran a kickoff back 85 yards to score.

North Side scored again in the second quarter and never were in much danger during the second half, keeping the Apaches well bottled up in the last two quarters.

Outstanding in the running department were Everett Huth and Bob Cowan, sophomore halfback, while Gordon Turner, Young, Beams, and Hill showed up best on the line.

North Side made its first touchdown on a march from the 40-yard line in four plays and an offside penalty. Rish then made his spectacular run to tie the score.

The second score for North Side came on the first play of the second quarter when Cowan scored from the 41-yard line. Huth place-kicked for the extra point.

A fumble by Rish on his 39-yard line led to the third Redskins touchdown which Boyer scored from the seven-yard line. Werling's dropkick for the extra point was low. The rest of the game was featured by several fumbles that spoiled touchdown threats.

Service Club Adds 54 To Workers Roll

Recruits Needed To Man Patrol Of Locker Rooms And Halls During Day.

Fifty-four more service workers have been chosen by Miss Pittenger, Mr. Wainwright, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Flint. The students belonging to the service club have been selected from the list of applicants given to the above teachers for their selection.

The girls chosen to assist Miss Martha M. Pittenger are as follows: Dorothy Blomker, first period; Helen Faux, second period; Violet Galbreath, third and seventh period; Mary Emily Seibt, fourth period; Margaret Heine, second period and Evelyn Erickson, seventh period.

Mr. Jack Wainwright has many pupils helping him. They are as follows: period one, Alfred Hertel, Martha Smith, J. Kemp, Ruth Baade, and Ruth Berning; period two, Arthur Pontius, Fatherese, Mildred Beery, Joan Korte; period three, Peggy Zirkel, and Carol Whittier; period six, June Flaig, Gerald Polman, Cox, Eileen Lee, Jane Engleking, Bettellou Stein, and LeVonia Shoney; period seven, Jean Sheets, Bernitta Gregory, Betty Burns, William Fremion, Gwen Roberts, Melbra Brindle, Joan Earl, and Kathryn Eipper.

Twelve students assist Mr. Wilburn Wilson in the Visual Education office and in running the machine. Three girls help him in the office and the boys help when the machine is needed. The girls that help are: Phyllis Branning, Helen Faux, and Phyllis Frisinger. The boys are as follows: Mark Hall, chairman, Andy Bremer, George Finkenhausen, James Murphy, Bob Enslin, Max Kimball, Bob Ault, Winfield Buchan, and Wayne Hambrook.

As yet, only an incomplete list of hall and locker guards can be obtained. Mr. Flint announced that the following boys will guard the boys' locker room and the halls. They are Roy Ellingwood, Richard Weaver, William Whitsel, Richard Powers, Carl Goodwin, John Magley, Howard Poe, Robert Biedenweg, James White and Robert Martin. The girls have not been listed as yet.

Home Rooms Discuss Hard To Get License

Friday morning, during the home room period, the first safety lesson of the year was held. How to secure a school driver's license was the topic. These lessons will be held every Friday.

Students who do not drive were told to be careful when crossing the streets near the school; because young students who drive to school are not always careful of the pedestrians. Drivers were cautioned to be careful when driving to school, for their particular time for driving is at a busy hour.

The Traffic Department of the city government has carefully painted yellow lines at places near our school where there is to be no parking. These zones have been established for safety, and they must be observed. There should never be any parking at the school-house curb.

The final caution to student drivers was that they must display on their license plates the South Side Safety Emblem furnished by the school.

Forum Club Members To Draft Constitution

A constitution for the following year was discussed at the first Forum Club meeting held last Thursday in room 72. A committee was appointed to draft the constitution for the club. This committee consists of Velma Connert, Elizabeth Kelso, and Allison Arnold.

As this was the first meeting, there was no meeting protom. There was also a committee chosen to decide upon a subject for the next meeting, September 29. This committee is composed of Betty Sheddron, Peggy Proise, and Wilma Legemann.

Inter-Club Congress To Meet October 3

Inter-Club Congress will hold its first meeting Monday, October 3, at 3:30 o'clock in room 58. This meeting will be for organization. Officers for the coming semester will be elected and the annual projects of the club, such as Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, will be mentioned.

The Inter-Club Congress representatives from each club are urged to be present.

New Window Blinds Are Placed In School

For the last two weeks, workmen have been busy installing new window blinds. All the rooms from room 2 to room 14, inclusive, and from the library to room 98, inclusive, have these new blinds.

The school hopes to have all rooms equipped with the new window blinds soon.

Two Ask For Times

Requests for sample editions of The Times have hailed from California and southern Indiana. Mr. J. R. Mitchell, principal of Shields Junior-Senior High School at Seymour, Indiana, wrote to Mr. R. Nelson Snider asking for a copy or two of The Times. The reason he gave for wanting these was that his school was making a survey of the newspapers published in Indiana and adjacent states. The second request was made by Angie Mariani, a journalism student from Dos Palos, California.

New Student Enters

Dorothy Rohrbach, senior A, entered South Side this semester from Springfield, Ohio. She lived here formerly.

Graduate Undergoes Operation

Bob Geller, '38, underwent an appendectomy at the Lutheran Hospital. His condition was very serious but is improving.

Returns After Illness

Virginia Menze has returned after being absent a year because of illness.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

Miss Smeltz's general history 2 classes are finishing their notebooks. The material for these notebooks was obtained from "Modern Times in Europe", written by Schapiro.

In Miss Osborne's English six class, special reports were given by Oscar Winfield, Lois Keen, Dick Zurnstein, Gene Traut, Jack Rodell, Richard Shinn, Wayne Stair, Russell Crumrine, and Walter Howard.

Mr. Gould's Botany 1 classes are studying weeds. Each student is required to press, mount on paper, and name at least twelve weeds.

Miss Hemmer has set September 30 as the date upon which all of her English students will write book reports.

In Mrs. Riecke's public speaking classes, reports taken from magazines have been given. Some very excellent speeches have been given in some classes, but some of the best are as follows: period one, Eleanor Vesey, Janice Dyer and William Gernand; period two, Allen Mueller, Dorothy Rohrbach and Margaret Null; period three, Ruth Hower, Kenneth Warren, and Eugene Schmidt; period five, Dick Dyke and Marilyn Halpern; period seven, Jim Murphy, Tom Galmeyer, Bill Newhard, Dorothy Foellinger, and Virginia Shidler.

Mr. Gould's Botany 2 classes are now studying cells under the microscope.

The best themes written in Miss Osborne's freshman English classes were by Mary Ellen Barrett from the fifth period class and Janet Whetsel from the seventh period class.

In Mrs. Carson's Latin 4 class, Evelyn Erickson brought an interesting article from a recent Milwaukee Journal which told of the excavation of two graves from the site of ancient Troy.

Last spring Miss Oppelt requested the students in several of her classes to be on the lookout during the summer for interesting material pertaining to Roman life and customs. The following students have brought in articles, stories, and cartoons from various magazines and newspapers: Audrey Smith, Safford McMyler, Betty Elbersson, Don Meyer, Marcella Driftmeyer, Harold Martin, Janet Holtmeyer, Marilyn Wolf, Hilda Schubert, Elaine Hirschy, and Faye Gumpfer. These articles will be posted on the bulletin board in room 56.

In Mr. Plaskett's advanced industrial arts classes, Jim Glass and John Becker are making modernistic end tables, while Robert Kiester is making a telephone table.

In Miss Thorne's senior home room, two new students are Mary Lee Kixmiller and Evelyn Koomler. This home room will hold its election this week.

In Miss Peck's English classes, John Dingley and Jack Malcolm made the first book reports.

In Miss Mary Crowe's home room 142, Paul Fremion was elected chairman and Roy DeMetre was elected secretary.

Mr. Bex's 10B metal shop will be open for use very soon. This shop will be down stairs.

In Miss Rhinehart's period 6, English 2 class, Marcalene Bat-dorf, Ruth Alldoffer, Dick Derck, Joan Dutterer, and Phyllis Orr, made 100 on a ten-minute literature test concerning the boyhood of O. Henry.

Mr. Null's junior business 1 class is studying the telephone; his second semester class is studying first, second, and third class mail.

Next week, in Miss Mary Crowe's home room, Robert Formanek is going to tell of his recent trip to Europe. Of particular interest is his visit to Prague, Czechoslovakia, where, at this time, much interest is centered.

In Miss Hemmer's home room Herbert Glass, a former South Side student, recently related his exciting experiences at Culver.

In Miss Covall's typing 2 class, two students wrote perfect ten-minute tests. They were Sophia Kelak with a rate of 55 and Wilma Carrier with a rate of 44 words per minute.

In Mr. Sterner's Latin 1 class, periods 3 and 6, the students have learned to count to 100 in Latin.

The boys in Mr. Chappell's drawing classes have finished their lettering sheets and have started on their first drawing of the semester.

In Miss Emma Kiefer's English 7 classes, there are five new students from out of town. They are as follows: Ruth Ellison of Kendallville, Mary Lee Kixmiller and Dick Olech of Shortridge, Indianapolis; Frank Devlin of Kalamazoo, Michigan; and Evelyn Koomler of Arcola.

Miss Gretchen Smith, gym instructor, announced that all gymnasium classes are playing get-acquainted games and are practicing speedball technique. Dancing classes will not start until the handball court is cleared out.

In Mr. Sterner's Latin 2 class, period 7, Marjorie McNabb was the first student to report on a Latin collateral reading book.

In Mr. Wilson's period 1 civics class, Kenneth Warren received the highest grade in a test. In the second period, Kathleen Ramey has highest, and in the third, Frank Harp had the highest grade.

Kathleen Ramey was the first student to give a book report in Miss Demaree's English 7 class, while Dave Stolte was the first to give one in her English 3 class.

The Health classes of Miss Edith Crowe have been making experiments in the finger printing of their thumbs. They proved that fingerprints can be used for personal identification.

The following pupils of Miss Mary Pocock's English classes have made book reports: John Bonsib, Betty Koehler, Sam Bacon, Sarah Makey, Gwendolyn Roberts, and Lois Gumpfer. Mildred Hanke has completed all of her book reports for this semester.

Robert Colby, a freshman in one of Mrs. Welty's English classes, is leaving South Side to enter North Side.

Mr. Moss' General History 1 classes have been making interesting reports on the life of the Stone Age men and women.

Mrs. Welty's second year Latin classes have been struggling along without Latin books, as the books have not yet been received.

Much Of United States Seen By Students During Vacation

Extensive traveling within the borders of the United States gave pleasure to many South Side pupils during the summer months. Others spent time at the lakes while others followed the example of the ant and worked.

Following are some of the ways the Archers spent the vacation period.

Dolly Ormiston collected butterflies this summer but when she picked them up after they had dried they broke into pieces.

Don Neukam was thrilled with the event of seeing five wild deer.

Another of our newcomers saw the big city of Chicago, none other than Marjorie Moodie.

Truman Neuenschwander kept the animals company at a C. C. C. camp. "Don't give up the ship" was Leona Mayer's attitude when her row boat started to sink just as she was nearing the pier.

Kitty Clinard, one of our popular seniors, saw Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey.

Jane Abbett vacationed at Indianapolis.

Anita Catlett swam the waters of Lake James.

On the day the president spoke in Covington, Kentucky, three prominent South Siders heard him. They are Jean Catlett, Anita Catlett, and Helen Shank, '38.

Wanda Brown spent a week at Webster Lake this summer. She enjoyed swimming, hiking, and boat riding.

Leah Tassler went to Chicago and saw Field's Museum and Shedd Aquarium.

John Magley visited Niagara Falls. Rosella Koehler went to Pokagon State Park. She enjoyed following the many trails and bathing at the beach.

Liseu Kaiser took a short trip to Zanesville and Columbus, Ohio.

Ginny Humcki worked most of the summer.

Eileen Kieckling caught the limit in blue gills at Lake Papakeechee.

Dorthea Kissner saw a large straw-stack burn down.

Flora Bazzinett had trouble trying to keep her mouth shut and eyes open while riding on the sky ride at the Decatur street fair.

Pauline Bracht had the pleasure of Teacher Vacations On Farm; Attempts To Work Tractor

Does a tractor work like an automobile? Miss Amanda Hemmer has decided that it does not. While visiting a farm in southern Indiana, she tried to drive a tractor, but decided she had better control over her Dodge. Take it from a snoop reporter, Miss Hemmer looks grand in overalls. She is very handy with a hoe, and all the animals like to be fed by her gentle hands.

Miss Hemmer is also able to put up fruit (without spoiling), and she enjoys doing it. She did this at the farm she visited.

When driving her Dodge to enjoy the scenery, Miss Hemmer helped the W. P. A. workers progress in fixing a road.

In between these enjoyments, Miss Hemmer went to Kentucky and enjoyed listening to political squabbles.

However, her only worry was to keep her nieces and nephews out of her Dodge long enough to get any use of it herself.

Articles On Augustus Are Omitted In Issue

Additional articles on Augustus and his era will be run on another special page next week.

Students' articles which will not be printed on the two pages on Augustus because of lack of space are:

Richard Gerig, Roman Roads Yesterday and Today; Rosella Koehler, Augustus, Father of His Country; Jeanne Gumpfer, History of Life of Augustus; Kenneth Warren, Germany in Time of Augustus; Gwendolyn De Wees, Augustus, Builder of Empire; Helen Banks, History of Emperors Following Augustus; Eugene Senseny, Topography of Rome; Betty Elbersson, The Altar of Peace; Lois Gumpfer, Roman Architecture; Margery Rapp, Augustus As a Patron of Art; and Robert Young and Roy Heavner, Puer Romanus.

Had Operation

O'Lily Kensler is back to school after having an appendicitis operation.

Boys Should Apply For Guard Position

Boys who wish to be locker room guards should see Mr. Verne Flint in Room 106 after school or during study period. These boys are to guard the locker rooms during their study periods to see that no one enters.

Has Charge Of Page

Miss Gertrude Oppelt

Miss Gertrude Oppelt, head of the Latin department, has been in direct charge of the page honoring Augustus in this edition. Another will be published next week. She has been assisted by Mrs. Howard B. Carson, Mrs. Grace Welty, and Mr. Earl Sterner. Teachers and students have been working since last spring.

New Secret Room Furnishes Surprise To Happy Teacher

"We need more rooms to accommodate all our students," exclaimed the faculty. Architects were given the task late last spring. Rooms are what the teachers wanted and rooms are what the architects are building.

But what they did not bargain for was a room behind the east stairway. The architects are not at all sad or worried about this room and neither is Miss Blanche Hutto. She is very glad for this room, because in it she can store her art supplies.

The old Voorhees Room ought to receive the credit for this small room. It was because of its being torn out to build the stairway that the room exists. A doorway leading from the Voorhees Room into the art room, formerly belonging to Miss Mary Helen Ley, is partly responsible for the surprise room. When the door was opened, it was discovered.

Has 1,190 Stamps

Lawrence Warren's hobby is collecting stamps. Because he trades stamps with another person, his collection, which includes 1,190 stamps, is made up of many different stamps.

Former Instructors State Their Regrets On Leaving Archers

"I regretted to leave South Side," was a statement made by Mr. Harold Windmiller, former teacher in the commercial department. He is now head of that same department at Central High School. Mr. Windmiller commented that South Side was a very nice place in which to work, and he enjoyed his position here very much. Although he has not had much time to get settled in his new location, he believes he will be thoroughly satisfied.

Another teacher who left South Side last semester to start this fall at Central was Miss Mary Helen Ley. She was one of the art teachers here, but her new position puts her in charge of the art department at Central. Miss Ley said that she regretted to leave the pupils, school, and faculty of South Side. However, she is happy in her new location because of the cooperation of the students. She has introduced her own methods of teaching, namely individual work. "This gives the student an opportunity to do his own type of work, therefore they are more interested," states Miss Ley. This method, which is the only one of its kind in the state, was first introduced here at South Side.

Mrs. Lex Combs, formerly Virginia Montgomery, who was in charge of the study hall here at South Side last year, also left the school. She is happily married, but misses the school and thinks the new addition is wonderful. Mrs. Combs said, "House keeping is lots of fun; it's so different from what I have been doing." Her residence is on Hazel Hurst Drive.

Teacher In Military Home

Mr. Maurice Tudor, former South Side social science instructor, because of illness will not return to teaching. He is now a patient in the Military Home at Dayton, Ohio, and not in the World War Veteran's Hospital at Marion, Indiana, as was stated in the September 7 issue of The Times. It is reported that his health is improving. He was recently made a sergeant of company six.

Speech Pupils Can Take Part In Five Battles

First Meet Is October 10 At Wranglers; Talks To Be Three Minutes In Length

Frosh-Sophomore Contest Is Second

Others Are Extemp For Mc-
Alister Cup, Oratorical, Dramatic Declamations.

South Side students will have a chance to enter five speech contests this semester. Two of these competitions will be held under the auspices of Wranglers Club.

The first speech meet will be October 10 at Wranglers' regular club meeting. This contest will be Wranglers extemp. It is open only to Wranglers, and the speeches are three minutes long with an hour forehand for preparation.

The annual Freshman-Sophomore Speech Contest will be held some time in the latter part of October. This contest is in two divisions, one for freshmen and the other for sophomores. In this competitive meet the entrants have several weeks in which to prepare their speeches. The finals of this contest will be held next semester, only the first series being held this year.

Next on the public speaking contest calendar is the semi-annual South Side Extemp contest. This year a new cup is to be the prize. This cup is the McAlister Trophy, donated by Dalton McAlister, former ace public speaker of South Side. He won possession of the other South Side Extemp Cup after winning the contest three years. Last spring he tied with Rodney Stair, also a 1938 graduate in the finals of the contest.

Oratorical Declamation, to be held some time in January, and a Dramatic Declamation to be held at a December meeting of the club. Both these events are open only to members of Wranglers Club.

Winners in all of these speech contests will be honored at Wranglers annual banquet in the spring. Most of the winners are awarded medals for their efforts.

Many more speech competitions will be held next semester, along with the finals of some of the contests started this year. All of the inter-scholastic competitions in which South Side is entered are held the second semester.

Radio Enthusiasts To Get Auditions

South Side Students Desirous Of Joining Radio Club Are To Be At WOWO Station Friday

South Side students who wish to become members of the South Side Radio Players' Club; and who are interested in the four fields, which are announcing, dramatics, sound effects, and piano playing, are to be present at WOWO tomorrow night at 7 o'clock for auditions. These students are to sign the card on the gym bulletin board. The results of these auditions will determine the cast of characters for the term.

This term the subject of the programs to be broadcast by South Side students will be "Interviews with the Past." A series of interviews with William Shakespeare, Queen Elizabeth, Napoleon, George Washington, and Catherine the Great, will carry out the chosen theme. Central and North Side will have the same opportunities as South Side has. Central is to dramatize "Discoveries of the Past," and North Side has chosen "Answer Me This."

Puppeteers To Hold Bake Next Thursday

Plans for a wiener bake to be held at Foster Park October 1, were made at the meeting of the Marionette Club held Thursday in room 140. The new members will be initiated at this bake which will take the place of the regular meeting.

Nadine Mueller appointed entertainment and food committees which are as follows: Max Spencer, Royal Steiner and Janice Dyer, entertainment; and Ralph Ransome, Jeanne Hench, Mary Ellen Barrett, Jane Kleneffeler and Marjorie Dyer, foods. Members should sign up with and pay a dime to Miss Dorothy Magley in room 140 before school closes next Wednesday. Marjorie Dyer will meet her food committee Wednesday after school also.

The members discussed the presentation of a program for the South Side Reading Club at the Wayne Hotel October 6. Several puppeteers will give talks concerning marionettes and also present a short skit.

German Club Features Outing At Foster Park

German Club held a wiener bake at Foster Park Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Eighteen of the German Club members attended this meeting including the new officers. Several games were played and at 5:00 o'clock food, consisting of wieners, marshmallows, pickles, cookies and ice cream bars were served.

"Gala Night" To Be Held For Archers

Clubs Are Sponsoring Sale
Of Tickets To Paramount
For Stage Show, Feature.

"Gala South Side Night" at the Paramount Theatre, sponsored by Wranglers, the Music Department, Booster, Girls' Rifle, Boys' Rifle, So-Si-Y, U. S. A., and Social Science clubs will be held Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock, October 3.

These clubs are selling tickets to South Side students and their friends. For every ticket sold, the respective clubs will get five cents. This money will benefit the various organizations in different ways. You may buy a ticket from a member of any of these clubs.

Ozzie Nelson, his swing band, and Harriet Hilliard will appear on the stage. Besides this, the first run picture will be "Army Girl" starring Madge Evans.

R. Nelson Snider, Miss Rowena Harvey, Dorothy Rieke, Jack Wainwright, Ona Davis, and Burl Friddle are expected to attend. Mr. Friddle will be accompanied by the 1938 State Basketball Champions, with the exception of two, John Hines and Jim Roth, who are away at school.

1500 Club Will Open Activities With Roast

Tomorrow the 1500 Club will begin this semester's activities with a wiener bake, which will be held at Foster Park. Not only will South Side's 1500 Club be present but North Side's as well. First the election of officers will be held in the large pavilion, and then the bake will follow. Eleanor Vese, General Manager of the Times, will be in general charge of the affair.

Archer Teachers Tour West, But Fort Wayne Is Preferred

Knowledge! Adventure! Experience! These are but a few of the gains of Miss Nellie Covalt and Mrs. Grace Welty. These two South Side teachers, accompanied by Miss Covalt's sister, toured western United States during the past summer.

Taking the southern route, the travelers' first interesting stop was in Springfield, Illinois. There they viewed Lincoln's home and the Lincoln monument and tomb. In Missouri, Mark Twain's boyhood home was visited. After going through Kansas, they proceeded into the "Silver State" better known as Colorado. The famed Pike's Peak was "rather disappointing" to Miss Covalt.

See New Mexico

In New Mexico, the teachers stopped at Toos. Miss Covalt describes this town as "a quaint and picturesque village grown up around the ancient Spanish settlement. The Toos Pueblo there has been occupied by several hundred Indians since before the first Spanish explorers came to New Mexico and is the most perfect specimen of the first 'apartment house'." Mrs. Welty describes Santa Fe, New Mexico, as "a city of individuality and distinction."

The Grand Canyon of the Colorado is the outstanding feature of Arizona. While in Arizona, the Fort Waynians also viewed the Painted Desert and Petrified Forest.

More interesting places were seen in California than in any other state. Some of the places visited were San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Long Beach, Hollywood, Beverly Hills, and Catalina Island. While in San Francisco, the three sight-seers described the super-set of super hostesses it has been agreed that a better time could not have been had by all.

The Mirador, a spacious and beautiful structure, was loaned to Mrs. Rieke by the elder Mr. and Mrs. Rieke, whose joviality and hospitality added a "hominess" to the scene. The large, white frame-building is as pleasing to the eye on the inside as it is on the outside. When all the "sea-going" vessels were in use the other members draped themselves here and there in any one of the three cozy living rooms. Most, however, were partial to the parlor that sported the fireplace, toward which shivering sailing-boat fans could be seen running at intervals during the evening—especially the group that was out in the blowing gale for a matter of hours and who finally sailed off bounding main portward at twelve bells—and not nautical time, either.

Games Are Plentiful

The new game of Chinese checkers proved to be the most popular and absorbing means of enjoyment indoors. But here and there could be spied a game of checkers. A bridge three-some even managed to rake Hank Volkoff in on a game of bridge after promising him that they'd not play "contract" for which he seemed to hold some objections.

Just lend a little thought to how delightfully divine it would be to have two sailboats, a canoe, and a rowboat at your disposal. Then picture any person facing the realization of such a dream. You have now conjured a vision of the Extemp Club members at the height of his exultation after he has rallied from just such a pleasing blow.

Food Enjoyed

Upon arrival, everyone made a bee-line for the pier. Thence onward "not a sailboat was in sight," that is, of course, until the dinner bell advertised coming attractions. And were they attractive—and delicious, too! Talk about piece de resistance! (By the way, all you public speaking students, I'm going to reveal to you something special, which you should make the most of: Mr. Rieke makes the swiftest cake!) Skippers of the day, ranking equally in the A-No-1 class, were Bill Riethmiller and "Tommy" Gallmeyer, both of whom insisted on frightening one of their seawary passengers (me) by rocking the boat (the meannies!).

Laughs At THE LAKE

Phyllis Geller defeating three he-men, Ed Reeves, Allison Arnold, and Bob Byers, at a game of Chinese checkers. The rowboat which carried Bob Byers, Dotty Rhorbach, and Bob Safer circling around in the middle of the lake. Somebody (they blame it on each other) didn't know the technique of rowing!

First Extemp Meeting To Be Today At 4:30

South Side's Extemp Club will hold its first fall meeting at 4:30 o'clock today in the library. Subjects for speeches will be chosen promptly at 4:30, and all those present will be given until 5:30 to prepare their speeches. The members will then eat dinner until 6 o'clock, when the speeches will be given and criticized. The meeting will be adjourned at 7:30.

In Missouri, Mark Twain's boyhood home was visited. After going through Kansas, they proceeded into the "Silver State" better known as Colorado. The famed Pike's Peak was "rather disappointing" to Miss Covalt.

Favorite Is Washington

Washington, the evergreen state, seemed to be a favorite of Miss Covalt. "Seattle, a city of beautiful parks and gardens, picturesque boulevards, modern streets and buildings, was most enjoyable to me," says Miss Covalt. "Also Mount Ranier National Park was one of the places I enjoyed the most." A boat was taken from Seattle to Victoria, British Columbia, a typically English city with an old-world atmosphere.

Homeward bound, a northern route was taken by the travelers. Yellowstone National Park containing the greatest geysers in the world was another place that the travelers admired. The Black Hills and Sylvan Lake were gazed upon while in South Dakota. On through Iowa into northern Illinois. After stopping at a few towns of interest in Illinois, the trio guided their car back to Indiana.

Even though the trip was a thrilling, exciting adventure, the outskirts of Fort Wayne were a welcome sight.

So-Si-Y Holds Party Tuesday For Members

Purpose, Activities Of Club
Explained; Year's Program
Committees Chosen

So-Si-Y held its membership party in the Greeley Room, last Tuesday. Velma Connett gave a little talk which told the purpose and activities of the club. Beth Ellen Chadwick told the Chinese Legend of the butterfly and butterflies of different colors were given out. In that way the program committees for the year were determined.

Comprise Committee

Those on the first committee were as follows: Delilah Shaffer, Dorothy Diem, Virginia Menze, Doris Carmen, Esther Selzer, Dorothy Pifer, and Phyllis Branning. Those on the second committee are Helen Wiehe, Lillian Meeker, Beth Chadwick, Patty Lambakis, Alma Korte, Mildred Brett, Ruth Bade, Rosella Koehler, Ruth Gebhardt, Caroline Schueler, Marjorie Jackson, and Virginia Selby.

The following were on the third committee: Aleda Randol, Dorothy Gerdem, Helen Earlen, Wila Jean Sullivan, Marian Owens, Lillias Patton, Dorothy Karnap, Betty Rose, Marge Price, Kathryn Boerger, and Audrey Jefferies. Committee four is as follows: Mary Ellen Heddon, Phyllis Fackler, Ruth Ellison, Margaret Wiles, Betty Kinley, Phyllis Kaiser, Dixie Lee Hanna, Frieda Schubert, and Zola Prill.

The following are on the fifth committee: Dorothy Amstutz, Helen Karnap, Elsie Pederson, Irno Mick, Marjorie Morrison, Dorothy Bloemker, Betty Harlan, and Mary Emily Seibt.

List Pledge Group

Group six also called the Pledge Group are as follows: Jean Ewing, Wanda Brown, Billie Jean Stover, Sue Sweet, Shirley Seibert, Mildred Berry, Lillian Sherbondy, Rebecca LeFever, Helen Luepke, Mildred Korte, Doris Douglass, Dorothy Ringenberg, Margaret L. Davis, Doris Reinking, Lois Hagemann, Vivian Semler, DeLores Menefee, Doris Schrom, Miriam Oberkiser, Mildred Thayer, Margaret Wiltner, Olive Zahn, Janie Weir, Mildred Trout, Julia Ann Smith, Wilma Jean Sullivan, Verlene Wiedelman.

Games were played and the girls hemmed towels which will give them a service project. Refreshments of chop suey which was eaten with Chinese chop sticks were served. Many Chinese pictures decorated the room, and the attendance was 80 girls.

Wranglers Hold Picnic At Foster

Eighty Members Attend Event; Manage To Consume Large Amount Of Food; Play Games

Wranglers seventh consecutive annual picnic was held Monday evening at Foster Park.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Herbert Rieke, adviser of Wranglers' Club, the eighty members in attendance managed to put away twenty-four dozen wieners, twenty-four dozen buns, ten boxes of marshmallows, six pounds of potato chips, and ten gallons of sweet cider. Preceding the picnic, which began at 6 o'clock, a football game was organized by the members.

Following the refreshments, Eleanor Vese, chairman of the entertainment committee, directed a scavenger hunt. Teams were chosen by the three captains, Dick Garton, Phil McKay, and Bill Riethmiller. Each delegation was given three letters of the alphabet, and was instructed to find as many objects as possible beginning with those three letters. During the twenty minutes, the four groups scoured the park. The two winning team captains reporting ninety-five objects each were Dick Garton and Bill Riethmiller.

Those individuals finding the most number of articles on each team were Hank Volkoff, Bruce Bradbury, and Isaac Winfield. Each was awarded a handsome evergreen pencil. The losing team, of which Phil McKay was captain, was required to entertain the winners with stunts.

A community sing constituted the latter part of the program. Prominent among the leaders of this part of the entertainment were Roosevelt Blanks, Oscar Winfield, Bill Newhard, John Magley, and Bill Riethmiller.

Faculty Has Enjoyable Time At Music Camp As Guests Of Mr. Jack Wainwright

Why did the teachers of South Side make a rapid exit from the building last Friday evening? Why? Because dinner and all night at Camp Limerlost, music camp of Mr. Jack Wainwright, was in store for them. Automobile after automobile of the teachers, their families and children began rolling into camp at 4:00 o'clock, and by 5:30 all had arrived.

It's The Bunk!

When the assignments for the night's lodging were made, everyone proceeded to make up his bunk for the night. Some were given the rooms above the main lodge; some were assigned rooms in the dormitory; while others were assigned to cabins accommodating eight persons. Mr. and Mrs. R. Nelson Snider and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Murch were assigned to sleep in the hospital. Mr. Wainwright placed Mr. Snider and Mr. Murch in the hospital because he thought that they would be in the right place if they happened to eat too much food.

While the adults were making beds for their children, some of the members of the faculty proceeded to start a baseball game. This game proved that South Side has in the making some future stars for America's favorite sport. The girls must not be forgotten, for they held their own in the game. Jackyann Sterner, an old south pawer, proved to be quite a hitter and runner.

"Why Mr. Parks"

About 6:30 the faculty felt very hungry and began going toward the kitchen and dining hall, but the hungry multitude was not satisfied until 7:00 o'clock. Such a dinner that the South Side cafeteria force, under the supervision of Mrs. Mercer, had prepared. Quantity, quality, and service were ne plus ultra. The dinner course comprised baked ham, scalloped potatoes, cream corn, applesauce, sliced tomatoes, cole-slaw, hot rolls, and butter, and finished up with ice cream, devil's food cake, and coffee. Mr. Delvin Parks proved his ability as a No. 1 waiter during the meal and did the unmarried women teachers ever receive attention! Seventy-eight persons in all partook of this delicious dinner.

After dinner the new members of the faculty were introduced by Mr. Snider to the entire group. Mr. and Mrs. James I. Mills and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Pierce and daughter, Mrs. Lillian Scott and daughter, and Grandpa Noll's grandson, Keith, were the new members in attendance.

After the introductions, a roaring big bon-fire was started and all gathered around and enjoyed themselves. A number of the faculty were interested in the stars and displayed their knowledge of astronomy. The children entertained themselves with games.

London Bridge?

About 9:30 o'clock the children were packed off to bed and the adults went to the lodge and gathered around the fireplace. Mrs. Snider presided at the piano and the group enjoyed a good community sing. Later in the evening tables of bridge were formed. It was during bridge that a few teachers (Continued on page 6)

Old English Is Theme Of Three E's Meeting

Three E's held their first meeting on Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Emma Kiefer. The honor guests at this meeting were Mr. and Mrs. R. Nelson Snider.

Juniors and seniors who attended Three E's for the first time were Ruth Ellison, Helen Faux, Eileen Hoffman, Mary Lee Hines, Joan Hess and Bruce Bradbury.

A lesson in some characteristics of Old English was part of the program for the first meeting. Betty Daniels gave a report on derivatives. A poem about words was read by Frieda Schubert. A game which involved the use of synonyms, antonyms, and homonyms was played by the members who attended this meeting.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held on October 7 at a place which will be announced later.

"Danger—Men At Work" Tells Whole Story In Single Phrase

"Danger—Men At Work" might be a little too far-fetched, but at least it tells the story behind many Archer's summer vacations. Some of us built airplanes—so fragile that they often broke; some used our paints, made pottery; and others took long scenic trips.

But most of all, the majority of us enjoyed and made something of our last summer vacation.

Ruth King was in Chicago for several days. Rebecca LeFever spent her summer at the Lake and at Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

Mary Ellen Barrett had fun jumping from floating logs on Lake Superior.

Elinor Muntzing spent her summer making psychoanalysis of people. Laura Nahrwald spent her summer at the lake.

Lois Miller had an interesting time while at the Smoky Mountains. Helen Peck found the first day of school her most interesting experience of all summer.

Jack Meyer enjoys collecting and building airplane models. Gloria Orr journeyed to Kalamazoo, Michigan, this summer.

Sophia Kelak traveled through Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama this summer.

Mary Jane Kelly visited Lake James in August. She also visited Chicago, Indianapolis, and Washington, D. C.

Barbara Arney visited Northern Michigan this summer. Helen Henickson spent most of the Last week Richard Hickman, '35, was appointed professor of music at Michigan University. After graduating from South Side, Richard attended the Ernest Williams School of Music in New York City.

Dick Hickman Is Professor At University

Teaches In School Of Music,
Also Solo Trombone Work
In Symphony Orchestra.

Richard Hickman, a talented trombonist from this city, has been given a professorship in the School of Music of the University of Michigan. He will also do solo trombone work in the concert band and symphony orchestra.

Richard spent nine years in the News-Sentinel Band, during which he served as solo trombonist most of the time.

After graduating from South Side, he received offers for nine scholarships. He accepted the one for Ernest Williams School of New York City. In 1935 he was graduated and was chosen the most gifted musician in the entire school.

Soon after graduation he took part in a music festival conducted by the New York Town Hall. He won third place from entries all over the country.

Besides assisting with the band and orchestra, he will give private instructions in the University of Michigan Memorial Building. During his three years at Ernest Williams School of Music he had to compose a march, waltz, suite, and an overture. These were played by the symphonic orchestra while he directed.

Hickman had the honor of having his composition, "Overture in Bb" win third place in the music festival of Ernest Williams School.

Mr. Vonderau Stricken; Is Given Transfusion

Mr. Carl Vonderau, custodian, is seriously ill at the Lutheran Hospital. He became ill Saturday, September 24.

A blood transfusion was given Mr. Vonderau on September 26. Ned Kaser, a South Side student, gave his blood for the transfusion.

Two Former Archers Win Honor Awards

Two former Archer students won honorable mention in American Magazines recent Youth Forum Contest, the current issue of the magazine has announced.

These students were Leonard Koch, '38, and Herman Spiller, '37. Both were pupils in Miss Erma Dochterman's art class for four years. They were outstanding in their art work. Both were especially creative.

Leonard's design was done entirely in pencil; Herman's was done in water colors. Visions of America was the theme of the contest.

In this contest, which was national and open to any high school art student or art school student, nearly 232,000 contestants competed. For honorable mention to come to two students from our school is an honor.

This honor was only one of several received by these boys last year. Leonard Koch entered the Fort Wayne Art School this fall on a full time scholarship.

Meterites To Discuss Year's Plan October 4

October 4, Meterites will discuss and vote on the theme for the year. Plans for the skating party to be held on Friday, November 4, will be presented.

Mildred Hanke, program chairman, will give a short talk on the history of Meterites and a musical program will be given. The meeting will be concluded with games.

That Goes Over The Top;
Orders Amount To 1,104.

Five rooms have reached their one hundred per cent goal in this fall's Times campaign. June Enoch, agent of room 74, and Dick Aronhalt of room 76, were the first to reach this goal. Kolman Gross of room 144, Nadine Mueller, agent of room 34, and Lois Hoff, agent of room 66, also reached 100 per cent. These home rooms have already been given their candy bars, as is usual where the one hundred per cent mark is attained.

Lois Hoff is deserving of special recognition. Besides being a 9B agent, she ranks second in the history of the school as having secured a hundred per cent freshman home room. Virginia Goegein, present circulation manager of The Times, was the first to do this. This honor was bestowed upon Virginia when she was a freshman Times agent of room 24 in 1936.

Officially Close Sales

The campaign closed officially last Thursday, September 22. They do not mean that no more subscriptions will be taken, but that home room time will no longer be allotted agents to do their individual campaigning. Exactly 1,104 is the present total of Times' subscriptions. This is an increase over last week's 838. Several rooms' agents check one hundred per cent by only a few subscriptions, as is the case of Margaret Noll who is highest with 79 per cent.

A contest is being carried on between the assistant circulation managers. Book number six is now highest. The assistant in charge of this book is Emiliou Allendorff. The other books rank in the following order:

Committees To Be Announced

Mr. Newell Tarrant, director of Old Fort Players, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of Philo to be held in the new Greeley room on Monday, October 3. Mr. Tarrant is to discuss the technique of drama. The time of the meeting has been changed from 3:30 to 3:45 o'clock.

The program will also include the announcing of the decorating committee, headed by Janice Dyer, Thespian members, and the club's musicians and quartet. Virginia Fleming will give several piano selections. The singing of the club's closing song will conclude the meeting.

All 10A, Junior and Senior girls who have a grade of B or better in English are cordially invited to attend this meeting. They are to write a letter of application to Miss Elizabeth Demaree, club adviser. The purpose of Philo is to bring about a keener interest in literature among the girls here at school.

Gaul Divided Into Provinces By Augustus

They are Narbonnaise, Once Roman Land, Aquitania, Celtic, Belgic Districts. Lyons Is Chosen For Gallic Capital Former Tongue Disappears, Lower Classes Take Up Language Of Conquerors

Augustus, the successor to Julius Caesar, divided Gaul into four provinces—the Narbonnaise, Aquitania, Celtic, and Belgic Gaul. Narbonnaise was the old Roman province of Transalpine Gaul, along with a few neighboring districts.

The Romans took a conqueror's pride and interest in the new provinces. In the first century A. D. Pliny the Elder describes the Narbonnaise as follows: "In its flourishing civilization, its abundance of wealth, the nature of its customs and inhabitants, the Narbonnaise is second to no other province, it is, in fact, not a province at all, it is Italy." Aquitania is described by Pliny as a land of vineyards, studded with flowery meadows, rich in abundant harvests, happy in its fruitful orchards, its woods with their shady groves, its rivers, breathing freshness—a veritable paradise."

The old leagues and confederations of the Gauls had disappeared; there were no longer suzerain nations and client peoples. The three provinces of the long-haired Gauls, the Belgic and Celtic territory and Aquitania, were as a rule grouped under the administration of the same governor. Gaul was a union of peoples, independent of one another, of which the different groups were called by the Romans "cities."

Country Folks Influential
The country folk at their work and the foresters in their shady woods were active members of the "city." They enjoyed equal rights with the artisans at their stalls and the shopkeepers in their shops. In fact the rural population had most influence in the state; in order to be a member of the curia which was the Roman public affairs, a man had to possess at least twenty-five acres. The "city" burghers consisted of landed proprietors.

Just as each "city" had its capital, so Gaul as a whole was given hers, which hitherto she had never possessed. On the place where the Rhone and Saone rivers met was situated the town of Lyons, and this was the first capital of Gaul. Lyons soon became, not only the political capital of Gaul, but her economic and religious capital also.

The Celtic tongue disappeared in time from Gaul, slowly among the lower classes, but more swiftly in the upper classes who had rapidly taken over the language of their conquerors. Finally even the lower classes took as their language the Latin of the common people of Rome (plebeian Latin not patrician or classical Latin, the kind we read). French today is still a modified form of Latin.

Coveted Title Of Citizen
In another way the Gauls tried to make the best of their situation. They anxiously solicited the title of a Roman citizen, which secured them the protection of Roman law and practically guaranteed their prosperity.

As a matter of fact, the love of the people of Gaul for their Roman Emperor, Augustus, was astonishing—they deified him. An inscription on an altar at Narbonne runs: "The people of Narbonne have dedicated this altar to the divine Augustus and have vowed him an annual feast forever. May this be to the honor and glory of the Emperor Caesar, son of the divine Julius, Augustus father of our country, sovereign pontiff, and to the honor and glory of his wife and his children and of the Senate, the Roman people and the town of Narbonne, which dedicates itself and devotes itself forever to the worship of his divinity."

This to the Emperor of Rome! "Divine Julius" for the ruthless, unscrupulous conqueror who had laid waste their land, burned their villages, killed thousands of Gauls in battle, and led other captive thousands through the streets of Rome then on to death, slavery, and the gladiator pit! A far cry from the time the great Vercingetorix, with a poorly organized, untrained horde, defied the mighty legions of Rome!

Gaul was indeed conquered.

Women Of Today Have More Rights

Roman Matron Denied Many Social And Civic Privileges Won During Past Centuries

In comparing the life of a Roman woman with the modern woman of today we might say that the women of today have more rights, both civic and social. Often in the days of Augustus Caesar marriages among the aristocracy were made because of political or financial reasons, and in that case, marriages were not always accompanied by affection.

Both in the modern days and in the days of Caesar the women played a large part in the social life of Rome. In the passing of different ages, the position of Roman women varied. In the heroic age, they held a prominent position, but with the coming of democracy of the state, they sank into obscurity. As the years passed, the Roman women gained more rights. Now, as a result, the women of today have the right to vote and other privileges accorded to men.

At this period of time, the wives of the aristocrats did not have as many duties as the women of today, but some of the Roman women were slaves and did not live very pleasant life. According to a man's view, the women of that time seemed to have had the same position in the home as those of today, for Cato, a Roman aristocrat, was once heard to say, "We rule the world, but our women rule us."

Augustus Caesar and Mussolini Much Alike, Writer Declares

The movement to Caesarism in Ancient Rome invites comparison with the present day of fascist movement with Mussolini as the fascist champion. In both cases the former government had provided inefficiency and lacked public spirit. Mussolini and Julius Caesar alike emerged victorious from the similar circumstances. Caesar, due to his lack of tact, did not last long, however. Yet, if Caesar was the wrong man for the situation he made quite sure that his successor should be the right one. He named as his heir his great-nephew, Octavius, a shy youth, rather than his beloved friend, Mark Antony.

At Caesar's death, Octavius was left in a difficult position. Not only was the government again in the hands of the republicans who would fight, if necessary, but also the disappointed Antony was out for himself. Octavius, however, by means of propaganda, undermined Antony and was in a position to bargain with Antony on at least equal terms. Together with a third partner the two of them marched on Rome.

Octavius and Antony, after disposing of their opponents, were left face to face. The sequel—Antony fell in love with Cleopatra and married her. He had, indeed, played straight into his rival's hands, because Octavius could now justly claim to stand for Rome against a foreign menace. He seized the opportunity and, as the champion of Roman civilization against the threat of Oriental barbarism, he met and defeated his rival.

For several reasons Octavius' whole policy had a strong nationalistic bias. Likewise in all fascist movements today, nationalism has been conspicuous. Although in most countries national sentiment is a thing of long standing, in Italy it is of comparatively recent growth. When Mussolini came to power, Italy was still a land of divisions, having been united under one government for only sixty years. Class feeling ran high in Italy; north and south were divided; local feeling was intense. Italy was poor—it was a proletarian in a world of capitalist countries.

Progress Of Dictator
With Augustus (as Octavius was later called) things were different. The patriotisms to which he owed his created against Cleopatra had not to be created—it had its roots in the past. Romans were not a proletarian people. The difference begins to end with that, however. There, again, the Italians had only lately been united. About the same length of time, sixty years, elapsed between the unification of Italy and the time when Augustus took control, as elapsed between the unification of Italy in 1860 and Mussolini's march on Rome. To encourage a national outlook and to create a new Roman people conscious of their country's imperial place and functions was part of Augustus' policy.

In a dictator's progress there are three stages: the preparations, the seizure of power, and the consolidation of the position won. With the death of Antony Augustus' power became absolute. He had still, however, either to wipe out the opposition that remained or win it over. He chose to compromise and conciliate.

Augustus Ignorant Of Christ's Birth

Savior Born In Bethlehem In Reign Of Greatest Emperors; Vergil Makes The Prediction

During the reign of Augustus Caesar, a time of universal peace, there was born among the lowly. One who has had more influence on the world than all the Caesars or emperors of all time. Jesus was born in Bethlehem and the great Roman empire knew nothing of this event.

Augustus probably never heard of Jesus, for he died in 14 A. D., but Christ was put to death under the Roman law. His disciples gave their lives to the spreading of the new religion after his death.

Vergil, a poet of the Augustan Age, in his fourth Eclogue predicted the birth of a child under whose reign the world was to be regenerated. It has never been determined with certainty what child Vergil had in mind, but Christian writers of the fourth century identified this child with Christ.

As Augustus Caesar's reign was a peaceful one, he undertook to revive the old religion of the gods, Jupiter, Juno, Apollo, Minerva and others instead of continuing with the growing tendency to magic and astrology. Religion had been sadly neglected and Augustus did much to make his people religion-conscious again. This, in turn, brought about his other aims—social, political and moral.

It is said that Augustus would not permit the defeated gladiators in the gladiatorial shows to be killed. Under his rule a reform was passed forbidding a master to kill his slave without the process of the law. There was no persecution of Christians in his reign because this cruel procedure was not practiced until forty years after his death.

The reforms of Augustus were of the nature that Christ taught later. They both wanted peace and happiness for all men.

He formally restored control to the old republican institutions and thereafter took no step which should prevent him calling the state a republic and himself the first citizen. He kept the essentials of power in his own hands, however.

Power Depends On Grant

Likewise, Mussolini found compromise expedient. Theoretically, Mussolini depends on the crown for his appointment as President of the Grand Council of Fascism. He again resembles Augustus in this respect. Augustus was dependent on a grant made by senate and people for his powers legally but in practice his position was as unassailable as Mussolini's actually is. Both Augustus and Mussolini recognize the virtues of propaganda.

As in Mussolini's Italy, it was realized that the continuity of the regime must depend ultimately upon "the creation of a healthy body and a fascist mind." Thus in Augustus' day, boys were early trained as they are today in Italy.

In Augustus' day even before his death there were signs that the rising spirit had flagged. Today the question "Will Mussolini's efforts prove more lasting?" remains open.

Roman Amusements Much Like Those In Vogue Today

Like all other people of the world, the ancient Romans found that the old expression, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," was true. The Romans in the time of Augustus Caesar had amusements surprisingly similar to our own today.

The small children played with dolls, stuffed animals, and blocks just as we do. As they grew older they played such games as hide-and-seek, and tag. A favorite game of that time was "Rex" or "King", the group would choose a "Rex" who would command them to do whatever he wished.

The ancient Roman youths from the ages of 12 to 21 enjoyed more difficult sports. Swimming, racing, horseback riding and military games were not only for their amusement, but were considered part of their military training, which was necessary for all boys to have at the time. Dice games flourished then as now, and both boys and girls participated in them. Their dice, however, were oblong, and their games were slightly different.

Pets were also common in Rome at that time. As soon as children were old enough to appreciate them, they were given dogs or birds to play with and take care of. Considering the lapse of about 2000 years since that time there is an amazing similarity in games and amusements of the ancient and modern Romans.

Today in Rome, children begin playing with dolls, animals and blocks and work through the stage of hiding and tag games to the military training, (which also is given almost every Roman boy today) in much the same way as a boy or girl of 2000 years ago. This and other similarities between ourselves and the ancients, make us realize more and more how much we have gained from the civilization that Augustus Caesar knew, not only in amusements but in art, literature and language as well.

Roman People Traveled Most By Carriages

Good Roads Available For Travel On Land; Sailing Vessels For Water Travel

Traveling in the days of the Romans was a long, drawn out affair, and was very tiresome. Those people who could not afford horses and carriages had to go by foot.

The Roman vehicles had four wheels or two wheels, were for one horse or more and were covered or uncovered. These were either privately owned or kept for hire near the gates of important towns. Nowadays, our cars are allowed on the streets at any time, but the Romans had such narrow streets that the carriages were allowed out only at certain times when there would not be such great throngs of people.

Four Types Of Vehicles

There were four main classes of vehicles in those days. The first was the market wagon on which the produce was brought to town. The next were the transfer wagons (plaustra), which conveyed materials for public buildings. The third were the carriages on which the Vestal Virgins rode. The last were the chariots used in the Circus Maximus. For every day use, the people had litters or sedan chairs with slave bearers to carry them.

When the Romans traveled by water they had sailing vessels or sailing boats. Of course, there were no transportation companies so that the traveler by water whose means did not permit him to buy or charter a vessel for his exclusive use had to wait at the port until he found a boat going in the desired direction and then make plans as well as possible. We, of course, can go at almost any time on sea without having to charter or own a boat.

Roads Were Good

The travel by land was easier for the Romans than it was for the early pioneers of America. They had roads almost equal to those we now have, while the pioneers had only dirt roads. The Roman roads were all military roads built for strategic purposes.

First, a cut was made the width of the intended road and of a depth sufficient to hold the filling, which varied with the nature of the soil. The earth at the bottom was then made solid with heavy rammers. Upon this was spread a foundation course of stones, not too large. Over it came a nine-inch layer of concrete made of broken stones and lime. Then a six-inch bedding of fine concrete, in which was set the final course of blocks of lava or of other hard stone. Now, our roads are constructed in much the same manner, except that concrete, brick, or asphalt are used as the top layer.

Our ways and means of travel are much improved, but if the Romans had not given us any ideas, we might be traveling now, just as they did long ago.

Era Of Prosperity Prevails In Reign

Vergil Completes Most Famous Works; Greatest Age In Field Of Art, Epic Poetry, Prose

When Augustus became master of the world, a great era of peace and prosperity for the Roman people was begun. This was a time when great works of art and literature could be wrought and marvels were done in the field of poetry, for it was then that Vergil completed his most famous works.

Vergil went to Rome at this time and became a good friend of Augustus and Maecenas, chief adviser and friend of Augustus. Maecenas, seeing the useful possibilities of having a poet in the Imperial Court installed Vergil as such. Under the influence of Augustus and Maecenas Vergil wrote four books on agriculture, called the "Georgics."

The first book dealt with tilling the soil, the second with cultivation of fruit trees, the third with horses and cattle, and the fourth with the raising of bees. Written for the purpose of instilling a "back to nature" movement in the minds of the people, these books in poetry form are the most finished of Vergil's works. However, the "Georgics" were not his greatest works.

Vergil Encouraged By Augustus
The "Aeneid," Vergil's greatest work, came after the "Georgics." Encouraged by Augustus to write this great epic poem, Vergil did so. In the writing of it, Vergil read selections of the Aeneid before the Imperial Household.

The poem dealing with the founding of the Romans by the Trojan Aeneas was finished after eleven years of work. Vergil then decided to spend three years traveling in Greece re-fining and polishing his manuscript, but this wish was never fulfilled. On his arrival at Athens, Vergil, finding Augustus there, decided to return to Rome with Augustus, because he felt that his health would not permit him to continue his travels.

On the return trip Vergil contracted malaria fever and died at Brindisi, September 21, 19 B. C. On his death bed he requested that the "Aeneid" be destroyed because of its unpublished state but the Emperor, hearing of this wish prevented it. Thus the great epic poem of the reign of Augustus was saved.

Daily Roman Life Followed A Pattern Much Like Today's

THE DAILY LIFE OF A WELL-TO-DO ROMAN (43 B. C.)

A Roman gentleman is supposed to rise at gray dawn at which time he eats a scanty breakfast. After that the clients are let into the atrium, greet their patron with their "aves", receive his counter greetings, and get their money doles for service.

If the Senate is not convening he will often visit his banker upon the Via Sacra to talk over investments, will call at the mansion of a sick friend, will go to witness a will for another friend, or will go to one of the Basilicas, where still another friend is arguing a case. During all these rounds he is followed by some two dozen clients and freedmen as well as by as many slaves.

After that it is near dinner time. During the next hour after dinner anybody who can spare the time takes a short siesta. He then makes for the great baths where a great deal of real business can be transacted. By three o'clock all the formal duties for the day are finished and he is escorted homeward to wait in the garden for his dinner guests.

At last the evening is ended, although the time is only eight o'clock; but everybody has to be up again by the gray of dawn. The diners depart after thanking their host, and the slaves clear out the remains of the dinner, and put out the lights. Soon the whole household is asleep, ending another day in a well-to-do Roman's life.

Mussolini Restoring Grandeur Of Rome

Centuries ago the Romans built a magnificent city. Romans were known as prolific builders. Throughout the city, roads, public buildings and large amphitheatres were built. Aqueducts were also constructed to bring water to the city. The Appian Way was one of the best roads in existence at that time.

Mussolini is becoming a modern Caesar. At his command old Rome is being restored. Old ruins are being isolated and fresh ruins are excavated. Some of the old palaces are used to house Italy's modern achievements. The famous Arch of Constantine has been restored to welcome contemporary Caesars.

The grandeur of old Rome is being exploited as an inspiration for the new empire-conscious Romans. Mussolini will build the new Rome as magnificent as the Caesars did the old. JANET HOLTMEYER, Latin 4.

Caesar Honored By Stamp Issue

Seven Are Printed By Italian Government; All Reminders Of Ancient Days In Old Rome

In the early part of 1938 the Italian government at Rome issued a series of stamps in commemoration of the bimillenary of the birth of Augustus Caesar. This series consists of seven stamps with values from ten cents to one dollar and twenty-five cents.

All the stamps of this series are vertical in shape. At the top of each stamp are the words, "Poste Italiane" and "Bimillenary Avcoesto." In the lower left hand corner is the word "cent," while in the lower right hand corner is given the value of the stamp. The first stamp of this series is blue-green in color and has a value of ten cents. Pictured on this stamp is an ornamented pillar aloft on the sea. The second stamp of the series is an olive-brown in color and has a value of fifteen cents. Pictured on this stamp is a goddess holding several different types of war shields and javelins. The third stamp is a carmine color and is valued at twenty cents. Augustus Caesar is pictured on this stamp, and is shown standing in front of a temple beside an altar on which fire is burning.

The next stamp, valued at twenty-five cents and green in color, has pictured on it two standards of the legion with a large cross in the background. The thirty-cent stamp is also olive-brown in color and has pictured on it a statue of Augustus Caesar standing on top of a stone wall. On the upper left-hand side is a large star-shaped ornament. The fifty-cent stamp is lavender in color. It also carries a picture of a statue of Augustus Caesar. Across the foot of the statue are shown the hands of many people worshipping him. The last stamp of the series is valued at one dollar and twenty-five cents. It is blue in color and on it are pictured several warships aloft on the sea. All seven of these stamps are appropriate reminders of the Roman days in the time of Augustus.

G. A. A. Singles Court Tourney Is Near Finish

Nadine Mueller Noses Out Betty Showalter In Close Match; 16 Survive Second.

The G. A. A. singles tennis tournament is progressing rapidly, the second matches being nearly completed. Freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors are all eager to be crowned champion of their groups, and are giving some stiff opposition.

Senior Matches Played

Some fast and exciting games have been played within the last several weeks, but the hardest and closest was between two seniors, Nadine Mueller and Betty Showalter, Nadine winning over Betty by the close score of 4-6, 9-7, 6-3. Other seniors to come out victorious in the first matches played were: Margery Price, the winner being defaulted by Eileen Hoffman; Mary Jane Rison, winning over Gwen Roberts, 6-2; Frieda Schubert defeating Dorothy Bloemker, 6-1, 6-3; Hazel Perry, winning over Marjorie Stratton, 6-0, 6-4; and Jean Porter, defeating Margaret Wittmer by the wide margin of 6-0, 6-0.

Scores Are Listed

In the junior matches Lucille Scheumann defeated Ruth Deohla, 6-1; Ruth Hoover won over Marjorie Rison, 2-0; Helen Keschel over Betty Harlan, 6-2, 7-5; Agnes Seiler over Dorothy Beyrau, 6-1, 6-2; Pauline Werling over Dorothy Spillner, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2; and Virginia Goegein over Delores Ulrich, 6-0, 6-4. Audrey Hall played Dorothy Amstutz, winning by the score 6-0, 6-1; Lois Jarvis won over Betty Marquardt, 6-1, 6-1; Mildred Oigher over Elfrida Hanke, 6-1, 6-1; and Louise Lovelace captured the game from Norma Jean Sprunger, 6-1, 6-0.

The sophomores brought out some close scores in their first matches. Constance Deel defeated Maxine Stough, 6-0, 6-4; Dorothy Cooper took the game from Mary Jane Kraus, 6-3, 6-0; Frances Gross won over Marjorie Semeyer 2-1; Elaine Hirsch over Ruth Fuhrman, 5-7, 6-3, 2-0; and Joan Squires won from Mildred Hanke by default. A long match was played between Helen Fry and Alice Sweet, in which Helen was victorious over Alice 4-6, 4-6, 6-1. Other sophomores to win were: Genevieve Martin over Eva Jean Wylie, 6-4, 6-4; Bernadine Bender over Marilyn Soudles, 6-1; Frances Nash over Pauline Schoenherr, 6-0, 6-1; Gloria Wiebke over Katherine Lahrmann, 6-3, 6-4; and Jean Smith by the decided victory of 6-1, 6-2 over Betty Nichols. Hilda Schubert forfeited her game to Marguerite Kienle and Betty Thiele over Bernadine Pressler by the wide margins of 6-0, 6-0. Marjorie Voltz defaulted her game to Justine Coudret and Barbara Brower defeated Lois Campbell, 6-4, 6-3.

Freshmen Prove Mettle

The freshmen have proven that they will make good future tennis players. Betty Hargan took the game from Phyllis Fensler by the score 6-1, 6-1; Sylvia Shultz won over Mary Menze, 6-3, 6-0; Betty Littlefield over Orinda Braun, 6-0, 6-0; and Rose Stemen beat Bertha Coudret 6-1, 6-0. Marjorie Boese succeeded in winning over Carol Whittier 6-2, 6-1; Barbara Miller defaulted the game to Martha Stenler; Lenora Moyer defeated Carolyn Stalter by the close score of 8-6, 6-4; June Whalen lost to Rosemary Spore by the wide margin of 6-0, 6-1; another default was made by Kay Browning to give Myrtle Ernest that game; and Peggy Greaney lost to Neva Kirk.

Other Matches Played

In the second senior matches Nadine Mueller won over Margery Price by making it another close game, 6-4, 7-5; and Mary Jane Rison defeated Frieda Schubert in a long game, the score being 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Those juniors to win in the second matches were: Lucille Scheumann, Agnes Seiler, Pauline Werling, and Lois Jarvis. Not all of these matches have been played.

Sophomores to succeed in staying in the tournament during the second match are Constance Deel, Frances Gross, Helen Fry, Bernadine Bender, Frances Nash, Jean Smith, and Betty Thiele.

Betty Hargan, Rose Stemen, and Lenora Moyer are the freshmen that have played their second match and have been victorious.

Girls' New Rifle Prexy Is Dorothy Bloemker

Officers for the Girls' Rifle Club were elected at the meeting last Wednesday, September 21, held in room 92. The officers for the coming semester are: President, Dorothy Bloemker; vice-president, Eileen Hoffman; secretary, Marge Price; treasurer, Imogene Fabian, and Inter-Club Congress representative, Doris Williams. No shooting was done as the range is not in readiness for the rifle clubs. Plans for the skating party to be held soon were discussed.

Leaders Hold Dog-Bake

Approximately twenty G. A. A. and gym class student leaders met at Foster Park, Tuesday, September 20, for their annual gathering. This year it was in the form of a weiner bake. After roasting weiners and marshmallows, tennis and baseball were played. Miss Alice Dean and Miss Gretchen Smith were present.

Skirts and Sports

Chuck Perry and Fizz Schubert have quite a time every Sunday. Last week they went to Foster Park on their bicycles. Talk of lazy people, they didn't want to get off of their vehicles so they jumped the creek on them. They also tried to see how many trees they could miss by weaving in and out of them.

Velma Connitt likes the Chinese better than she does hockey. Wednesday evening she went down to the Mardarin instead of hitting the ball around with her team.

Marian Owens is getting her lip practice by pouting. She won't let out the reason, but we can guess. Yes, she has a "boil."

Flash Flash! Have you seen the latest? Miss Joan Gunter recently earned her 1500 points in G. A. A. By washing dishes and playing a give-me-eighty-cent game at home, she accumulated some coin. Then she sent to Chicago and bought her letter "S." Nice work Joan!

It is too bad every one could not have witnessed Margery Price's Tazman act. She tried to chin herself on the beams in the shower room. From what we hear she did not succeed so well.

Hazel Perry really takes her dancing seriously. She uses her brother as a statue so she can practice her natural dancing.

All girls who are playing in the tennis tournament are urged to play their second and third matches off during this weekend. Take advantage of the good weather, girls.

Bouquets to Virginia Springer and Gwen Roberts for scoring 2 points each for their teams in hockey Friday.

Girls, be sure to get your ties for gym. This is necessary so that the referee can tell the teams apart.

Goodbye now. Next week, girls, fill the little green box clear full. We especially want news about freshmen and sophomores.

Rest Room Changes May Be Temporary

With the changing of the various rooms in the school, the teachers' rest rooms have also been moved to different locations; however, the change is only temporary. The men's rest room is on the main incline in the office which Mr. Flint formerly used. The women's rest room is located in the first room south of the general office. The rooms may be changed, however, when the construction of the building is further advanced.

Archers Tennis Squad Obtains Many Laurels

Three Year Record Includes Twenty-four Game Total; Only One Lost, One Tied

Unknown to most of the student body of South Side, the Archers' tennis squad has been winning almost all of the laurels available to inter-scholastic playboys. In the last three years of inter-scholastic competition South Side's tennis team has lost only one game and tied one out of a total of twenty-four matches played. The lone loss was during the 1937 season and the tie in 1936.

Also in the last three years our team members have placed first in both singles and doubles crowns in the Northeastern Indiana Conference meets.

Harold Windmiller, tennis coach during this winning streak, has been transferred to Central so that a new net mentor will have to be found. It is possible that one of the other athletic coaches will take over the job.

In 1936 Eicher won the singles title and the combination of Eicher and Klopstein was too much for any competitor as they won the doubles title easily. Although the tournament had always been held in only one city until 1937, it was held in both Decatur and Fort Wayne that year. In 1937 Eicher won first in the singles at Weissner Park and at Decatur, then he teamed up with Klopstein to win the doubles while Larhman and Paul Dammeier took second place in the doubles competition.

This spring Paul Dammeier won first place in the singles and Dick Doermier and John Spencer took first in the doubles. Second place in the singles went to Bob Bolyard and second place in the doubles went to the combination of Bob Bolyard and Paul Dammeier.

The squad for the 1939 season looks good, as several of the boys from this year's team will be back for next year's contests. However, quite a lot depends on the new coach.

The date of the matches played in the last three years, the place of the school, and the results are as follows:

Date, May 5, 1936; school, Decatur, there; results, 4-1 S. S.

May 8, 1936; Bluffton, there; 5-1 S. S.

May 16, 1936; N. E. I. C., at Decatur; Eicher, Eicher-Klopstein.

Freshmen Form Opinions About Intramural Sports

Each semester there is a new batch of freshmen entering our portals. Most of these freshmen usually have interesting opinions on the new things they come in contact with in high school. Here are opinions of fifteen of our freshmen pupils on what they think of intramural sports:

Jack Precise: Intramural sports show the ability of boys.

Marshall Koehler: They're O. K. Junior Hartman: They're swell, and I think every boy should participate.

Noel Kline: They are all right. Clarence Marhenke: Gives one something to do in his spare time.

Earl Sweeney: O. K. and everybody should go out for them.

Paul Hench: Good for one physically and lots of fun.

Bill Martin: Good training for varsity sports.

Harold Loosen: I think they're great, because everyone has an even chance.

Junior Bolyard: I like them because there is a large variety of games.

Jack Miller: It gives good training to all boys.

Trandall Terry: They are very good things to enter, and I shall be in them some day.

Jack Meyer: Swell stuff and lots of fun.

Dick Trott: It gets one in shape in case he wants to enter varsity sports.

Upperclassmen Play Off Two Hockey Games

Victorious Teams Are Senior 1, Junior 1, 2, Soph 2, In G. A. A. Schedule.

Two sets of hockey games have been played off in the G. A. A. schedule. The first set of games were played on Wednesday and the second set on Friday. Victories were scored by the following teams: sophomore 2, junior 2, junior 1, and senior 1. In the 3:30 hockey game, Bernadine Pressler's sophomore 2 defeated Geneva Martin's sophomore 1 team by a score of 1 to 0. The solitary goal was scored by Captain Bernadine Pressler.

Juniors Win Games

Two goals, scored by Lois Jarvis and Marjorie Morrison, won the 3:51 game for the junior 2 team, captained by Maxine Morrison. Their opponents, Jeanne Smith's sophomore 3 line-up, did not break into the scoring margin.

Audrey Hall and Betty Marquardt knocked through two field goals for their junior 1 team and Captain Marion Feichter. The result of the game, which was played at 4:12, was a 2 to 0 victory over Gloria Wiebke's sophomore 4 group.

Hazel Perry, Gwen Roberts, Virginia Sprunger, and Marjorie Schelper pulled the seniors through the last contest at 4:33 with flying colors, by scoring six goals. They received little competition from Elaine Ferguson's sophomore 1 team who failed to score at all in the game.

Tie Games Played

On Friday, the game which was played at 3:30 between the junior 2 and sophomore 4 teams, seemed to be evenly matched since the score was tie with one field goal to the credit of each side. The goals were scored by sophomore Brower and junior Werling.

The 3:51 game was also a tie. Sophomore 1 and sophomore 3 contested under Captains Geneva Martin and Jeanne Smith, with Martin scoring one goal for team 1 and Hilda Schubert knocking one through for team 2.

Hazel Perry Outstanding
Marion Feichter led her junior 1 team to victory in the 4:12 game against Elaine Ferguson's sophomore 1 by a score of 1 to 0. The goal was made by Audrey Hall.

The senior team again scored a smashing victory when they nosed out the sophomore 2 team by a score of 5 to 1. Hazel Perry was outstanding in having scored three goals, but was closely followed by Gwen Roberts who brought in two. Cooper of the sophomore team scored one goal.

Intramurally Speaking

Tennis has gotten well under way by now. The net sessions are being held at Weissner Park under the leadership of Paul Dammeier, one of South Side's ace varsity net stars. It is still possible to sign up for the Racket Contest, so if you should be interested, by all means go to Weissner Park and tell Paul you want to sign up.

I want to make a little correction of a faulty statement which I expressed in last week's Intramurally Speaking. Last week I stressed the inefficiency of a certain person's running ability. However, this week, by a certain turn of events, that certain person was recommended as a football candidate by Burl Friddle. We hate to contradict Mr. Friddle but we're awfully afraid he doesn't know this person as we do.

If we had a swimming pool at South Side I'm sure we would have quite a team of Aqua Bugs. Two of our outstanding participants in such a sport would be Bob York and Harry Claget. Bob York is supposed to be the fastest breast stroke swimmer in South Side, while Harry Claget is the fastest 100-yard free style swimmer. Then we also have the two Brooks twins, who are also among the many speedy free style swimmers in our midst.

Speaking of swimming, I think it would be a wonderful idea if the boys' physical education division would form a swimming class for sophomore boys who would rather participate in this kind of activity instead of the regular class schedule. The classes could be held down at the Y.M.C.A., and those individuals who are interested could be given a swimming schedule telling what days they were supposed to attend the swim classes. The girls' division has such a plan in effect and I'm sure that if the girls' athletic department can have such a plan the boys certainly ought to.

Archer Eleven Will Face Strong Peru Squad Saturday

Green Hopes For Comeback On Own Field

Opponents Have Experienced, Speedy Team; Are Victors Of Last Season.

Kelly Klads Show Some Improvement

Southern Stadium To Be Scene Of Grid Clash; Injured Players To Return.

South Side will start its series of home games by tackling a favored Peru team this coming Saturday in the Southern stadium. Last year Peru came out on top in its clash with the Archers to the tune of 20-0. Although Peru has been defeated twice this season, they are reported to have plenty of speed and experience. The Archers, having failed in three attempts this season, hope to improve their record this Saturday.

Although the scoring has been one-sided in the previous Archer games, the brand of football shown has been steadily improving, and the Southerners are becoming more experienced with each game.

Beidenweg Leads Tackling
Bob Beidenweg has really led the Archer tackling in the last two games. Playing tackle in the Woodward game, Beidenweg managed to break through to make his share of the tackles. Having been shifted to fullback in the Bryan battle, he played a fine game of ball, participating in almost all the attacks.

Englehart also came through in the Bryan game accounting for most of the ground work and doing most of the passing in the second half. Stu Welborn will probably have played quite a bit against the Bryan eleven in spite of the cast on his arm.

The Green's passing attack has never clicked as well as it did in the first game against Washington; the timing was a little off during the game last week and a good many were fumbled or intercepted. Saafrank, Shimer, and Cook, who were kept out of the Bryan game because of injuries, will probably be back in the lineup against Peru.

Archers Should Improve
Although the odds are against the Green and White since it claims a lighter and less experienced squad, the Archers are expected to show considerable improvement over last week's performance.

Having once drawn blood in the Woodward clash, the South Siders will be hard to stop in the Peru game. The fact that the Archers are playing on their home ground should add considerably to their chances.

The lineup will probably be the same as last week's with the exception of Saafrank, Shimer, and Cook. Although Beidenweg has been doing most of the punting, Saafrank's brilliant punting, Stu Welborn, who proved an asset running back punts, will play quarterback. Art Miller, who did not play much in the Bryan game, will be back at tackle.

With the South Side fans to back them, the Archers should push more than one touchdown past the Peru eleven.

Archers Lose Gridiron Game With Bryan, O.

Buckeye Squad Makes Use Of Running, Passing Attacks; Final Score Is 32-0.

Bryan High School's grid squad once again took vengeance on a Fort Wayne football team as they administered a 32-0 drubbing to the Green and White of South Side Friday night. Only a week had passed since they had set back Central Catholic of this city by a 13-0 score. The defeat was the third straight for the Archers.

Have Smooth Passing
Bryan's smooth running and passing attacks were clicking in fine style and they chalked up the win in an easy fashion. Bob Dillman, Bryan's varsity quarterback, started throughout the contest but was offed fine support by his linemen who opened holes in the Archer line at will. Bryan scored at least once in each of the first three quarters while South Side had only one chance to score when the Green blocked a Bryan punt on the 19-yard line. The Archers lost the ball a moment later, however, when Bryan recovered Biedenweg's fumble.

Bryan drove 58 yards to get their first tally with Rosenthal plunging over from the 6-yard line to score. A few plays later Bryan returned a punt 25 yards to the Archer 17. Dillman then passed 17 yards to Brace in the end zone. Dillman also converted his attempt for the extra point.

In the second period, Bryan again got a drive underway which carried them 55 yards to a touchdown. Robinson paced off the last nine yards after taking a lateral from Dillman. The third period was featured by brilliant open field running on the part of Bryan backs. Dillman raced around end to gain 27 yards and a touchdown early in the third period and Brace traveled no less than 50 yards on a reverse for Bryan's fifth and final score of the game.

Biedenweg looked good for the Archers in the way of defense getting an unusual amount of tackles.

Fifty Harriers Drilling Daily For Long Race

Unprecedented Number Out For Cross Country; Title Quest In Two Weeks.

With over fifty participants, it looks as if cross country is going to have a successful year. At any rate it is a great improvement over last year when the crop of enthusiasts reached a total of ten.

Those taking part this year are as follows: Jack Snyder, John Gump, John Ensley, Duane Wake, Everett Trulock, Albert Speckman, Richard Tell, William Welch, Dale Landis, Robert Soest, Ralph George, Laurence Warren, Warren Brown, Kenneth Wollman, Harry Hageman, Rudolph Wuttke, Byron Singer, Emil Stern, Robert Byers, Don Meyer, John Davenport, Edward Meyer, Dave Stoete, Paul Dammeier, Wayne Hambrick, Robert Balman, Harold Martin, William Weber, Robert Blue, Ernest Dent, Dallas Zuber, Loren Sprunger, Jack Hostetter, Bob Hines, John Prociase, Jack Parker, Lee Harter, Marvin Reynolds, Charles Fiestkorn, Frank DuWalt, John Galbreath, Laurence Bogner, Ralph Vetter, Jack Kemp, Billy Martin, Fredrick Bill, Elmer Gumbert, Jack Meyer, Robert Moses, Gene McClain, Howard Ensley, and John Bornschein.

Mr. Louis Briner's group of hopefuls have been working out each evening for the last two weeks in the stadium. They hope to be in condition for the big race, covering a mile and a half, which is to be run in another two weeks. The final race will be run in three divisions: lightweight, under 110 pounds; middleweight, between 110 pounds and 130 pounds; and heavyweight, over 130 pounds. Participants will receive twenty points for taking part and twenty, fifteen, and ten points for first, second, and third places respectively in each division.

Student Leaders Serve As Officials Of Games

Many student leaders this semester are acting as officials for all games of tennis, speedball and hockey. These girls also are leaders for hiking and skating parties. The following girls are offering their services: Bernadine Bender, Marquerite Calkins, Dorothy Cooper, Justine Coudret, Mary Jane Derck, Betty Elbersson, Mary Jane Fry, Tompise Hall, Joyce Harwood, Margaret Jensen, Martha Jane Krauskopf, Betty Mann, Geneva Martin, Betty Medsker, Irene Meyer, Betty Mischo, Audrey Mutschleener, Frances Nash, LaVern Nolan, Hazel Perry, Bernadine Pressler, Shirley Rubin, Marjorie Shannon, Jeanne Smith, Marilyn Soles, Joan Squires, Betty Thiele, Violet Steinbauer, Martha Jean Thomas, Dolores Ulrich, Marjorie Van Curen, and Eva Jean Wylie.

Tigers Annex First City Tilt From Catholics

Irish Give Downtown Rivals Battle; North Side Shows Power Over Mishawaka.

Central's Tigers made their first bid for the city scholastic football championship last Saturday when they fought Central Catholic to a 14-7 victory. The Tigers nearly lost the game in the last half after holding a 14-0 lead when George Bitler heaved some successful passes.

Redskins Win
Those Redskins from the northern school also won, handing in their eleventh straight victory. The North Side team showed they could play football in the second half of their Mishawaka game when they pushed 18 pointers over the goal stripe. Mishawaka fumbled six times and lost 45 yards of penalization to help the Warriors win 24-6.

The Irish from Central Catholic put up one of the best fights and rallies of the current football season. All the fireworks went off during the second half, neither squad breaking loose for much action the first two quarters.

In the third period Central scored two touchdowns, and two good placements made the score 14-0. At this time the Tigers seemed to have the game on ice, but Bitler, outstanding C. C. halfback, started heaving passes with amazing accuracy and soon after the curtain period began he put the Irish back in the running with a 12-yard touchdown pass to Lerch. This was the fourth completed pass in Central Catholic's drive from Central's 44-yard stripe. In the last two minutes Bitler passed over the goal to Colone, but the ball was brought back when it was ruled Bitler wasn't five yards back of the line of scrimmage. The resulting penalty put the ball on Central's 21, and two more of Bitler's passes put the ball on the 3-yard stripe, first down and goal to go. However, Central now tightened up and battled two passes down, stopped a line plunge and then saw victory almost fly away when another pass was nearly completed.

Best Game Played
This game was one of the best ever played between the two schools and proves that football at Central Catholic is on the upswing.

North Side took Mishawaka's scalp rather easily when the Redskins began clicking in the second. Both teams started good but both slowed up soon after and the score was 6-6 at the half. In the third period North Side pushed over two touchdowns, the first after Mishawaka fumbled the kickoff on their own 23. Passes and line bucking pushed the ball over. Another Warrior fumble opened the way for another short touchdown drive that put the North Siders out in front 18-6.

In the last quarter the Redskins started on Mishawaka's 45 and a few minutes later, both teams using second and third string material, scored again to make the final score 24-6. Neither team made a point after touchdown.

Library Club Has Initiation Services

Members Have Wiener Bake At Foster Park Last Evening; New Members Are Initiated

Initiation of Library members into the club was held last evening at Foster Park in the form of a wiener bake. Initiates depicted story book characters, such as Mammy Yocum, Dan Cupid and Three Musketeers.

They were ordered to proceed down Rudisill to the park on foot. As a part of the entertainment, Janice Dyer read a poem entitled "The Murder of Cook Robin or Who Killed Pinky." It included the name of every initiate and old member. A prize was given to the person who carried out their particular character in the best and most complete detail.

At the meeting of the executive committee, Thursday, September 22, Miss Emma Schoup announced that a new member system has been installed. Instead of receiving one-third of a point for every hour of work, each member will receive a whole point. This will mean that members must have a total of 250 points at the end of two years' work in order to receive their gold L.

Ozzie Nelson Gets Diploma For Law, Becomes Swinger

It was June, 1930. The Dean of New Jersey Law School had just presented a diploma to a typical American youth. Instead of taking his seat with his class mater, however, the young man continued up the aisle and right out the door, into the seat of a waiting automobile and was off in a roar and a shout. A decision had just been made. The young man was Ozzie Nelson. The decision was that he would cast aside all thoughts of law after nineteen years of scholastic endeavors and continue the music that had been started as a means to earn his way through school.

Behind him was a scholastic and athletic record that would do justice to Mr. Ripley's "Believe or Not." His activities included everything from varsity quarterback to captain of the debating team. He was always near the top of his class, yet spent most of his spare time at the movies, or listening to trials in the local court.

The same tenacity of purpose that made him an outstanding figure on the gridiron and the campus rings has risen in the orchestral and radio fields actually sensational. The Nelson organization is composed of thirteen musicians. They are all clean-cut young Americans and form an impressive looking group. Contrast the expert individual technique and solid ensemble of "Mama Don't Allow It" with the soothing comforting style of "Stardust" or the finesse of the burlesque treatment of "Mrs. Astor's Horse," with any of the hundreds of original and unique duets and solos from the pen of the versatile Ozzie himself.

Ozzie Nelson's engagement at the Silver Grill of the Hotel Lexington, New York, in which all records for attendance and receipts were shattered, plus a new contract from his radio sponsors carrying it through July, 1938, an all-time record for length (five years), his successful engagements at the Astor Hotel in New York, Palmer House in Chicago, Coconut Grove in the Victor Hugo Hotel in Los Angeles, and the Palomar in Los Angeles, are best proof of his continued success.

Faculty Has Enjoyable Time

ers had a yen for murder—not over cards, but because a certain group of teachers who were not playing wanted to gather around those who were. They tell them how and where they were. Could anyone guess which teachers who would do anything like this? Here again came our friend, Mr. Parks, bringing apples and doughnuts.

At 1 o'clock most of those present retired for the morning—they went to bed but not to sleep. It seems that while some were playing cards, others became boys and girls again, for in some of the cabins the blankets were neatly stacked in a pile on the porch kiddy. The Misses Magley, Peck, Kelly, Osborne and Pocock are offering a reward for the culprit or culprits who did the dirty deed.

Ah Morpheus!

As it has been said, some went to bed, only to be awakened. The serenaders were out—they called it serenading. They called upon the Sniders and Murches, who were sleeping in the hospital.

Virginia Nunenkamp, a new home room member in room 56 from Portland, Oregon, will talk to the pupils in her home room about herself and her former home.

Mr. Gould's Botany 1 class is studying the veins and the structure of leaves. Several students have brought in leaves for study.

One of Miss Emma Kiefer's senior English classes is beginning the study of the novel.

On a recent English test given by Mr. Cook to two English classes, period 1 and 4, the following students made the highest grades: Jane Rindand, Maxine Fisher, Carol Whittier, and Gloria Stanley.

In Mr. McClure's home room Elaine Hirschy was elected chairman and Mildred Hanke, secretary. These officers will serve for the coming term.

Phyllis Hayner is working on a mural in Miss Hutto's advanced art class, period 6. Others working on murals are Maxine Ellerman, who is completing "The Travel Club," Eloise McKee, "Public Speaking," and Janice Dyer, on "Champion Game." This work is all being done with lecture class.

The students who qualified for the honor roll in Miss Covatt's Typing 3 class are Sophia Kelak, who wrote a 10-minute perfect test at 55.5 words per minute; Wilma Carrier, who wrote 44.4, and Roselene Newburn, 49.5.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

Miss Gretchen Smith, gym instructor, announced that in all of the girls' gym classes, the students are learning how to use their feet by kicking the ball, picking it up with their feet, and by passing it back and forth.

Mr. Bex's 9A classes have finished their drawings and some have finished their first exercise.

Andy Bremer and Eileen Hoffman visited the Naturalization department in the iDistrict Court for Miss Van Gorder's Government classes.

In Mr. Furst's home room 22, Harold Martin was elected chairman and Kathryn Lahrman, secretary.

Miss Bean's 9B cooking classes have been studying the preparation of salads. They will soon learn to prepare desserts. Her second semester students are equipping themselves for future life by acquiring some knowledge of the budget system.

In Mr. Makey's English classes the following students have made book reports: Ruth Bade, Dick Weaver, Eloise McKee, Betty Baker, Peggy Greaney, and Bernice O'Brien.

In Miss Crowe's fifth period U. S. history class, Richard Gerig made an excellent chart in red and blue ink showing the comparative lengths of ancient, medieval, and modern history. It also showed the places where some of the best known and significant happenings in each period occurred.

In the first written test which Mr. Sterner recently gave his Latin 1, period 6 class, Margaret Heine and Mary Ann Florence made 100.

In Miss Pocock's home room, Jeanette Warren was elected chairman and Fred Peters, vice-chairman.

Mr. Moss' general history classes have been making an interesting study of the Egyptians and their contributions to civilization.

Virginia Shidler has been elected program chairman in Miss Crowe's home room. The program committee consists of the following: Lillian Sherbondy, Margaret Null, Virginia Sprunger, Mary Sapp, Doris Seibold, and Mildred Sephel.

Mrs. Welty's senior home room elections are as follows: general chairman, Norton Nahrwald; assistant chairman from each row in the room are: Phillip McKay, Robert Meyer, Max Mitchell, and Elizabeth Most. These people are responsible for approximately a month of programs, and they plan to have each person in the home room take part one or twice during this semester.

So far this semester in Mr. Makey's English classes, Ruth Bade and John Gumpner are the only students to have made A grades on themes.

In Miss Dean's home room, Marjorie Sheldon was elected chairman; Martha Jean Thomas, vice-chairman, and Marjorie Voltz, secretary. The newly elected program chairman, Violet Steinbauer, appointed the following as heads of committees: Alice Sutter, vocational; Shirley Rubin, educational; and Audrey Smith, safety.

In Miss Van Gorder's occupation classes, the students have finished their first unit in "Getting the Right Attitude Toward Work." They also have turned in their scrap books for grading.

In Miss Hodgson's home room Richard Galmeyer was elected chairman; Betty Fremion, secretary; Clarence Freeman, social chairman for Tuesday; Harold Gernand, educational chairman; and Lois Gumpner, social chairman for Wednesday.

The boys in drawing 7 and 8 are inking their machine drawings.

Mr. Pierce's home room 82 recently elected officers for the coming semester. Those elected are: president, Rebecca Abbott, and vice-president, Doris Bollinger.

Virginia Nunenkamp, a new home room member in room 56 from Portland, Oregon, will talk to the pupils in her home room about herself and her former home.

Mr. Gould's Botany 1 class is studying the veins and the structure of leaves. Several students have brought in leaves for study.

One of Miss Emma Kiefer's senior English classes is beginning the study of the novel.

On a recent English test given by Mr. Cook to two English classes, period 1 and 4, the following students made the highest grades: Jane Rindand, Maxine Fisher, Carol Whittier, and Gloria Stanley.

In Mr. McClure's home room Elaine Hirschy was elected chairman and Mildred Hanke, secretary. These officers will serve for the coming term.

Phyllis Hayner is working on a mural in Miss Hutto's advanced art class, period 6. Others working on murals are Maxine Ellerman, who is completing "The Travel Club," Eloise McKee, "Public Speaking," and Janice Dyer, on "Champion Game." This work is all being done with lecture class.

The students who qualified for the honor roll in Miss Covatt's Typing 3 class are Sophia Kelak, who wrote a 10-minute perfect test at 55.5 words per minute; Wilma Carrier, who wrote 44.4, and Roselene Newburn, 49.5.

In Miss Hutto's home room 61, Bernita Eggers has been elected chairman; and Ernest Dent was elected secretary. Those elected for the social committee are Betty Clem, Pauline Childers, Bertha Coudret, Donald Cummings, and Warren Cook.

In a spelling test in Miss Schmidt's German 1 class, the following made 100: Elinor Muntzinger, Gene Brehm, Robert Hageman, and Janet Whetsel. Those following with a score of 99 are James Bunner, Robert Bushman, Annabelle Harrod, Margaret Kienzie, and Gene Seneny.

The boys in Mr. Chappell's drawing 5 class have completed their drawings on geometrical problems and are now making pictorial drawings.

In Miss Kelley's senior English class, the following were first to make book reports: Velda Oppenlander, Margaret Null, Eileen Hoffman, Gwen DeWees, and Donna Dennis.

Miss Kiefer's junior home room 58 had an election of officers last week. The results follow: president, George Schafer; secretary, Vivian Semler; and program chairman, Eugene Seneny.

The following students in Miss Covatt's typing 3 class qualified for the First Big Ten: Sophia Kelak, who wrote 55.5 words per minute; Joan Hoy, 51.1; Virginia Shidler, 49.8; Eileen Byer, 49.7; Betty Shedron, 49.1; Roselene Newburn, 47.2; Mary Jane Kelly, 47; Dorothy Gerdum, 46.5; Wilma Carrier, 44.4; and Norbert Holloway, 44.2. Mildred Thayer heads the Second Big Ten with 43.2 words per minute.

In Miss Dochterman's art classes, Roy McKee is doing excellent dry paint compositions, and Kathryn Beckman has created a beautiful composition in figures.

Harry Channes and Art Chevalier from Mr. Wilson's Civics 1 class, went to the federal building to hear the naturalization of an alien.

In Miss Magley's home room, officers were elected as follows: Heltha Hoffman, chairman; Marian Miller, program chairman; and Byron McCammon, secretary-treasurer.

LaVerne Nolan made the first book report in Miss Rhinehart's English classes.

In a recent test given by Mr. Pierce to his U. S. history class the following students made the highest grades: Dick Warren, Maurine Seibert, Walter Roemer, Tom Roy, Doris Williams, and Roland McVay.

In two of Miss Emma Kiefer's senior English classes, the students have completed the study of Celtic and the Anglo-Saxon period.

Elaine Hirschy was the first person in Miss Opet's Latin classes to make a book report. She reported on "Periklos St."

In Miss Thorne's home room, the following persons were elected: president, Charles Haugk; secretary, Marjorie Jackson; safety chairman, Arthur Hertel; vocational chairman, Mary Lee Kixmiller; and social chairman, Anna Lou Kowalski.

In Mrs. Rieke's public speaking classes, interesting experiences have been related by the students. They have been criticized by the classes as to their posture, the way in which they address the audience, their position on the stage, and the way in which they use their notes. The improvements made in these respects have been very obvious.

Girl Scouts To Hold Wiener Bake Tonight

All new girls are invited to come to the Girl Scout wiener bake which will be held tonight at Foster Park pavillion at 4 o'clock. Everyone must bring her own food.

This year, under the new leadership of Mrs. J. M. Purcell and Mrs. G. T. Roberts, many outstanding events have been planned. Some of these are a trip to Camp Ella J. Logan, several teas, and the annual Father-Daughter banquet which is held at Miller's Cafeteria.

During the summer months new officers were elected for Girl Scouts at a house party. The house party was held at the summer cottage of LaVerne Michelfelder at Tri-Lakes. Betty Marshall was elected president to succeed Beverly Griffith; Elaine Michelfelder as vice-president, and Tompkins Hall is to take the place of Peggy Harrod as secretary. Others elected were Hilda Schubert, Peggy Greaney, and Helen Cox, who will take the places of Jane Merchant and Elaine Hirschy. Helen is the new Inter-Club Congress representative.

U.S.A. To Entertain Members At Party

All freshman and sophomore girls will attend the membership party of the U. S. A. Club at 8:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Greeley Room should have an invitation. These invitations were given to the girls when they paid their dues to Miss Elizabeth Kelley, room 62, or to Mrs. Roy Welty, room 34.

Most of the girls who were here last semester will be in charge of the meeting. Jean Sheets is the chairman of invitations and her assistant is LaVerne Greiner. The refreshment committee consists of Marilyn Soudler, chairman and Eileen Hermann as her assistant.

Rozanna Weston, Iona Jean Tracht, and Louisa Haugk comprise the entertainment committee.

Breeds Hybrid Corn

Bill Ruegamet spent a good deal of time breeding hybrid corn. Besides learning a great deal, he met some of the greatest men in the corn industry.

Acme Of Femininity Is Hollywood Star, Harriet C. Hilliard

"Lovely Harriet Hilliard!" When making his announcement on the radio programs, lovely is always the adjective used by Ozzie Nelson when he refers to Harriet. Gorgeous, beautiful and glamorous are the adjectives applied to her by feature writers and newspaper columnists. Certainly no more charming bit of femininity has ever appeared in our midst.

In the midwestern city of Des Moines, Iowa, July 18—twenty-five years ago—where her grandfather was chief of police, Harriet Hilliard was truly born a trouper. She began her stage career as a six weeks old baby in a stage play called "Heir to the Hoorah," when her mother carried her on and off the stage. Most of her schooling was in Kansas City, Missouri, where she attended grammar school and high school, and then went to St. Agnes' Academy.

Begins Study Early

At the age of three she was given her first speaking part in the theater. Later, after the usual years of amateur dramatics mixed with her scholastic activities, Harriet studied dancing under Chester Hale. Still in her teens, she became the vaudeville partner of Bert Lahr, Ken Murray and other stars of the stage. She also played vaudeville as a single, and appeared in a series of shorts with Rudy Vallee.

It was in one of these shorts that Ozzie Nelson, then just coming to prominence as an orchestra leader, first saw her. Ozzie had been looking for something distinctive and smart. As a result of his idea Harriet and Ozzie became the first boy and girl to sing duets with a dance orchestra.

She likes football and new shoes. Her favorite food is chicken-a-la-king. Her favorite orchestra is Ozzie Nelson's, and her favorite orchestra leader is (guess who!)—uh—h-mm, that's funny, we almost forgot—oh yes! Her husband—Ozzie Nelson.

Tower Radio Magazine selected Harriet Hilliard as radio's most beautiful songstress, and her monthly beauty articles in that magazine which she wrote up until recently, fast became a standard for discriminating women. She weighs 110 pounds and is slightly more than five feet five inches tall.

Queen Of Ice

On February 1, 1935, she was selected as Queen of Winter at Lake Placid, N. Y.

On September 2, 1935, while she was appearing at the world famous Coconut Grove in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, she was seen by a movie-talent scout and signed to a contract for RKO pictures. Her first assignment was in the Fox Astaire-Ginger Rogers picture, "Follow the Fleet," in which she played opposite Randolph Scott, and her work won the plaudits of all the critics as well as established her as an up and coming movie star.

She also played in "New Faces of 1937" for RKO, and opposite Gene Raymond in "Life of the Party." She recently completed the Paramount picture "Coconut Grove," in which she played the lead opposite Fred Mc. Murray—and in which she introduced the song hit of the country—"Says My Heart."

NOT SO FUNNY:

The sniffling that at least three-quarters of us carried home.

The boys running off up town at Angola, where all were supposed to meet; leaving the girls to guard the cars; buying pie, ice-cream and last but not least, but loud, hamburgers and onion rings.

Back for the girls as a reward for their vigilance the penetrating odor of onions on their breath, which quickly permeated the air of the car, causing a whole package of gum to be used to drown it out. Main culprits: "Fanny" Garton and Chuck Bollman.

To clever names on the bedroom doors—examples, The Golden Pheasant, The Hummingbird, The Morning Dove, The Robin Nest and The Sea Gull; the very, very high, wide, and thrilling swings suspended from several giant oaks; its beauty emphasized by the early morning sun; the dinner, well, it was not a thing, nor a thing, but the unique sails on the Olympics I, and II (sail boats)—they were distinguished by one being red, and the other green.

HIGHLIGHTS:

About eleven o'clock Friday night Skippers Galmeyer and Riethmiller were sailing peacefully, calmly, and minding their own business (that is at first).

Suddenly a sailboat loomed on the horizon. Its sails gbing to the left and right, it appeared to be unmanned. Frantically they shouted to shore for aid (or so I understood). Then they steered for the pitching hulk! Both shouting orders, they grabbed it as it halted along side. One of the passengers, added her bit by reminding the boys that they should never let the Riekes know that one of their sailboats was "loose."

Then Skipper Galmeyer observed something lying on the floor of the boat, and supposed it to be Max Kimball, who had been known to lie thus in the boat. But the thing did not stir. Supposing that Max had been knocked out by the boom, or that he had fallen asleep, Skipper Galmeyer gave Skipper Riethmiller orders to slap him, and box him, or rather "beat him up" in general to awaken him. These orders without further ado, Mr. Riethmiller proceeded to carry out. But not for long, for there was a plop, it was not a thing, nor a thing, it was Max Kimball, it was Mr. Rieke! And were two skippers' faces red!!!

A Bit Sleepy?

It seems that certain male members of the party, of which James Murphy was one, held a conference Friday night which lasted until nearly 4:00 a. m. Saturday morning. After the meeting had adjourned, Jim Murphy, planning to retire for a few hours, knocked lightly on the door of his bedroom, which his room mate, Max Kimball, had negligently left locked. Then Jim called softly, fearing he might awaken the respectable folks who slept at that hour. Then, losing his respect for the sleepers and becoming desperate, he concentrated only on gaining entrance to his room.

His plan for doing this was to make the awoken average sleeper. But as circumstances pointed out, Max was not the average sleeper. So the harried Jim beat a louder tattoo on the door of The Morning Dove, and called still louder. By this time Mr. Murphy was being hurried still further by shouts of "Quiet!" But one sympathetic observer, Bruce Bradbury, offered his assistance. With the aid of Bruce, Jim managed to hoist himself up on the level of the transom, through which he viewed maliciously the prostrate form of Kimball, buried "knee-deep" in covers.

Drum Up Conspiracy

Lowering himself again to Bruce's level, Jim and his friend contrived a plan whereby Mr. Kimball could be successfully aroused. Bruce very kindly loaned Mr. Murphy his algebra. Very shortly after, Max awakened, due to the influence of a hearty "whack on the bean" by a physics book.

What Mr. Murphy said to Mr. Kimball when he got him alone no one will ever know.

Recall the chilly weather of last week end; now, believe it or not that included in the "bunch" were members (in amateur standing) of the Polar Bear Club. Janet Hartman deserves top honors, because she was la brasse femme—the only "gal" who summoned enough nerve to plunge into the icy water. The rest were who were refreshed were: Allison Arnold, Chuck Bollman, Bob Byers, Dick Garton, Ed Reeves, Bob Safer, and Tom Galmeyer (if there's anyone I have forgotten please accept my apologies, for you are certainly deserving of personal mention).

Skippers Race Sailboats

The chief event of Saturday morning was the relay race. The sailboat that each side was to use, was determined by a drawing. Mrs. Rieke was instructor for the red-sailed boat; Mr. Rieke for the green. The green won (hurray!)

his time on the farm this summer. He helped to make hay, drive the horses, and take down the slings.

Bill Weber says his most interesting hobby is cartooning. Although he has never had any lessons, he has liked cartooning for five years or more. His ambition is to be a cartoonist.

John Wells says that the lakes in upper Michigan are among the prettiest in the world. Glen Lake is one of these. He says its water is very beautiful. It is also surrounded by hills.

Constance Hirschy visited the original Limberlost Cabin, the home of Gene Stratton Porter, at Geneva. While there, she learned much about the life and writings of the author.

Helen Ellenwood's favorite hobby was sewing. She also enjoyed sun bathing.

Mary Jane Estep took a twenty-eight mile bicycle trip to her grandmother's.

On a trip to Indianapolis, Rita Murchland visited Riley Hospital, Butler Field House, and Broad Ripple Park.

Paul Murphy went to Findlay, Ohio; but the car broke down, and he was forced to hitch-hike home. He hitchhiked about four hundred miles this summer.

Betty Minniker traveled in the northern part of Wisconsin and visited Port Washington, a very old sea food port.

Howard Miller went to Chicago and Cleveland two different times to see ball games.

Eunice Lahrman, while staying at Eve Lake went fishing and boating. She saw a little boy, who was frightened by a turtle, jump out of the boat and nearly drown.

Arthur Miller took a trip to Chicago with a group of boys and then came back home to play football.

Max Mitchell spent most of his time fishing, swimming and dancing at the lake this summer. Once in awhile on Sundays he went to Chicago to see the Cubs play.

The most interesting sight Elaine Goette saw this summer were the sail boat races at Lake Wawasee. She could see the boats very plain from her cottage. The big white sails looked beautiful on the blue water. There were twenty-two boats in the race. Elaine thought this was the most interesting and prettiest sight she had ever seen.

Harry Clayette went on a fishing trip.

We want you to read The Times but not over someone's shoulder. Subscribe for yourself today!

Smile!—As spectacular as the parade of Library initiates down Rudisill to Foster Park in full dress.

The answer to a matron's prayer: The new stage in the Greeley room and the matron is Mrs. Reike.

Subscribe for The Times. Your subscription will be one big step toward getting that coveted subscription cup.

For the benefit of the freshies, a moocher's theme song is, "Your Times Is My Times." Don't be a moocher. Subscribe today.

And then there was the freshman who thought that team supporters were things that were used to hold up football players' socks.

There is one group of South Side workers that is seldom spoken of, and we think that it is fitting and proper to take this space to congratulate them on their long hours of work. This part of South Side is the Division of Visual Education. It owes its success to a very small number. These students have studied rather extensively in the art of showing motion pictures. The office staff has put in many hours after school in order to give the teachers a better and more efficient service. The division has worked long and hard in order that it might help the teachers and aid the students to a better understanding of his work. To these students who are working for the school and the Division of Visual Education we gladly say, "Thanks a lot."

Library Is Place To Study

Now that the Library is open to the whole school, it is in great demand. Students crowd the tables every period of the day, and those who are not quite so fortunate are turned away because of lack of room. It is a fact that many who do get in sit and talk most of the period, while some who are turned away really had a legitimate excuse for coming in to study. If you have no other reason for going into the library except to talk, it would be far better to stay out and give the other person a chance.

Keep Inside Of Building Clean

Veteran South Siders will recall how awful the chairs, tables, walls, seats, etc., looked last year before school let out. They were mutilated with signatures, pencil marks, and in other ways, almost beyond recognition. Now since the remodeling, the walls are refinished. We have newly shellacked chairs and tables in the Library, and there are several rooms with new equipment. Each and every one of you can help to keep them that way by not yielding to that destructive temptation. Just remember that we want to have as nice appearing South Side on the inside as it looks from the outside.

Duty of South Side Students to Reduce Menace to City Safety by Obeying Traffic Laws

If students of South Side would practice what the weekly safety lessons teach, it is highly probable that motorists could drive more peacefully and in less danger of meeting with accidents. There is nothing more antagonizing to a motorist than to have his driving interfered with by young people riding bicycles as many as four and five abreast down a busy street or highway. Many, many casualties have occurred simply because bicyclists didn't obey their traffic laws. In reality, Fort Wayne hasn't the proper accommodations for bicycling. However, pupils of South Side can and should help in reducing this menace to Fort Wayne safety. There are many ways in which operators of bicycles offend. Here are a few things to be especially careful of:—

1. Obey traffic signals the same as good drivers do.
2. Keep to the extreme right of the street at all times.
3. Ride single file.

Interesting Items

Hello, hello, hello! This is your exasperated scandal monger trying to dig out something new which no one knows but which everyone would like to find out. We're trying very hard to please you... So please like our stuff... and nonsense.

Ask Betty Scott if Mr. Wilson approves of making one's self up in class. One day last week she was asked to respond to an argument. Betty had been quite busy arranging her dark tresses, therefore she did not hear the question. Mr. Wilson remarked, "Betty didn't hear the question because she was engrossed in her hair." Which only goes to prove that brains are more than beauty to teachers.

An ex-Centralite has been seen here and there, as a matter of fact, every where that Betty Jean Pressler is. We can't figure out why she won't give the South Siders a break. We know that some of our guys are cocky, conceited, and goodlooking but you can only give 'em a try, Betty. That's a gentle hint!

We know we're very big city-ish and sophisticated, but we didn't know one of us could be so uneducated about the ways of the wild to not be able to find the fire box under an oven. You, astounded, may ask, "Who is this human absurdity?" It is none other than our friend, Vincent Bacon. At camp when asked to build a fire in an open fireplace, he put the wood in the oven. Mr. Wainwright got a big kick out of this. You'll learn some day, Vince. But it takes lots of time!

We hope to see all of you at the various hay rides and dances throughout the coming week and sincerely hope that you have a good time... But not too good.

Charlie Haugk, our current cheer leader, was recently playing tennis with Margery Price. When he arrived home, he was in such a daze that he couldn't remember the tennis scores... And Charlie's young sister, Louisa, is one of the prettiest redheads that we've seen in a long time. Laurence Phipps thinks so, too. Hi, Louisa!

The fresh young sisters of beautiful alumnae really live up to their predecessors... The Hensch family has been represented in the past by Jackie, '38, and now Jeanie, a pretty little freshie... Pat Hoff's young sis, Lois, is really a copy of Pat.

The first day at school saw several new combinations. Edmund Keer and Gwen Roberts... Betty Birely and Stu Welborn... Mary Ellen Barrett and Bill Getts of C. C. Keep up the good work... and we do mean school work!

Fashion ★ Flashes

The question of what the smartly dressed girl will wear this fall is uppermost in everyone's mind.

Here are a few hints:—

Your hat will be small and perched forward on your head. The trimming will usually be high.

The silhouette is highly fitted jackets, buttoned up to the small, round collar.

A dirndl in wool, full gathered skirt, wide girdle, short bolero edged in fur would make a smart ensemble.

Fingert jackets fitted or boxy, top narrow skirts.

Round yokes with rippled flares below and full length pleating in back are in the fashion spotlight.

Here's an idea that is both practical and smart: Muffs every size and shape not only made of fur but also fashioned of cloth to match coat or suit. Also wear a fur hood this winter to keep the wind from your neck.

Put metal embroidery around the neck and on the sleeves of your dressy woollens.

Stiff fabrics are in vogue for evening, including velvet, satin, and metal brocades. There are also many woolen evening gowns.

Colors—violet, fuchsia, plum and American beauty shades. Rusty tones are also good. Combine amethyst and deep dark red, egg-plant and pink, red and black. With black always use a touch of color.

Elbow length gloves, for evening, are fashionable once more.

We haven't said much about the fall footwear. The shoes this fall are really elegant. The dressy type include the platform shoe and wedge type. For sport the doghouse oxford is "tops." Spectators continue to be a good all around shoe.

Instead of wearing dark anklets with your dark skirt start brightening up a bit. Match up colored socks with your bright sweaters. Get some novelty belts and liven up your old cardigans and slipovers.

Make yourself a cute vest out of some woolen material you've had for years. Either zip or button it as you wish.

For that suit left from last fall, get a snappy blouse in a new fall shade.

A bright scarf to tuck in at the neck.

Get some velveteen and cover the lapels of the suit with it. This makes the suit look like 1938.

Active Archers Are Ones Who Enjoy South Sides' Clubs

If you will take the time to look around you, and are just about an average observer, you will notice that the students who get into the clubs and are really active around the school are those that are in that bracket commonly called the upper third of the class; while those in the lower two-thirds merely come to school seven hours per day and race home immediately after school unless by some misdeed they are detained by an eighth period. Of course you may find a few exceptions, but as a general rule this is true.

The reason that this is true can easily be surmised. An active body is a healthy body; and a healthy mind is the natural result of a healthy body. Recognizing this fact years ago, school authorities have gradually added extra-curricular activities into the regular school curriculum. This is to stimulate more spontaneous activity in the bodies and minds of students of today.

Extra-curricular activities offer another special advantage. You come in closer contact with your fellow students and with your teachers. You see the other side of their character... not the business-like class-room attitude, but the informal side. You'll never really get to know your teachers thoroughly until you become acquainted with them outside of class... after they have taken off the robes of a teacher and have again assumed the role of an ordinary citizen. Of course, this idea works both ways. Your teachers can become better acquainted with the other side of your character in much the same way. In as large classes as we have here at South Side, it is almost an impossibility for our teachers to become thoroughly acquainted with us.

Then, too, clubs offer experience and knowledge not to be gained in any other fashion. To make myself more clear, let me cite some examples. Take Wranglers, a club for aspiring public speakers, directed very ably by Mrs. Rieke. You gain experience with various types of speeches... after-dinner, humorous, oratorical, and many others. Contests are staged to sharpen interest within the club.

Now turn your attention to Rifle Club. This club teaches you to be a good sport, to be accurate and gives you a thorough knowledge of guns.

Forum Club teaches you parliamentary procedure. If you do not know how to conduct a meeting according to Hoyle, come to Forum and learn to conduct it according to Makey.

I could go on and on taking each club separately and explain their advantages but that would mean taking more than 35 clubs. Yes, South Side has more than 35 clubs to offer its students. Don't you think that we students could show our appreciation of all the opportunities offered by these clubs by supporting them with our membership? Wake up and become more active. Take advantage of the clubs before you graduate, because after you graduate you might not have the clubs to take advantage of.

Who knows all; sees all; and hears nothing? You guessed it. None other than your own dirt Commentator. Yep! That's me, all right. (I hope!) Anyway, I want to thank all you kiddies for the choice dirt that you sent in this week. Keep up the good work.

By the way of the high seas—Sam Bacon and Roy Heavner are surely carrying the eye for eye and tooth for tooth idea out in a big way. It's hard telling who's ahead now. While I'm dealing with Sam I might as well wise him up to the fact that a very nice and cute girl burns for him. Her initials are M. B. Here's another hint, she's got brown hair and is a prominent sophomore. If you don't catch on by now you're hopeless.

Marilyn Rose, a freshman, is a mighty changeable girl. She fell hard for a boy in the eighth grade (Bob Druhat), but Auther Pontius advised her to go for some one more here, say a junior or senior. What does Marilyn do but up and fall equally as hard for Charles Long, a junior. The only bad thing about the whole idea is that Chuck happens to go steady.

In Miss Crowe's sixth period history class there is a very cute couple that admire each other every day. All I know is that the boy's name is Warren and the girl's name is Mary. With this information somebody ought to be able to introduce them.

It seems that Marg Holthouse has forsaken Dudley Smith for that football hero, Byron MacCammon. Hey, Dudley, remember the song, "You Have to Be a Football Hero to Get Along with a Beautiful Girl?"

Seen here and there... Helen Schotemeyer and Arvel Paul. Ruthmary Riedy and Bill Newhard, Helen Gallmeyer and Jack Gross, Mary Lee Kixmiller and Roger Neff, Delores Daniels and Bob Merchant, Kent Bohne and Alice Laur, and to add that final touch, Jane Abbot and Morry Archibald.

Phil Pressler and Carol Grenary seem to enjoy being in the band more than ever now that they sit side by side in the clarinet section.

I'd like to say a word or two to all the guys I ever knew: You all want girls, I know too well, So I've got one I'd like to sell. Now boys, if you really want a bargain Go take a look at Betty Hargan.

Now wasn't that cute? That popular gal, Marilyn Chaney, has two boys on her string at the moment. They are Bill Vick and Bob Birkenbeul. Which one is your dream boy, Marilyn?

John Bonsib has us all a bit puzzled. He claims it isn't Betsy Dale any more, but he won't reveal who his latest passion is. It's all very mysterious.

Wanda Bowman is unaware of the fact that Russell Crumrine and Betty Burns make up for lost time every Sunday.

Maxine Fisher's heart is in Marion. The possessor of the key to her heart is Alan Gilmore. This thriving romance had its beginning at the lake this summer.

Two couples who have started going steady just recently are Flora Bassnett and Dick Kahough of Central Catholic and Ilene Brown and Bob Burkenbuell. Lots of luck to you, kids.

Ellen McKay still bears the torch for Bob Bergel but the flame isn't quite as bright as it used to be. Could it be that Bob is losing some of the attraction that he once held for Ellen?

Warning to Russel Long... Beware! Ruth Bennett is hot on your trail. She's a lady of ideas and when she wants something she usually gets it.

Romeo Don Hire really fell for Gloria Wiebe at a recent party.

Several boys have been seeking favors from Alice Sweet but it's getting them exactly nowhere because Alice is really on the level about this steady business with lucky Bob Dahman.

Arthur Puff, that glamour boy, would like to know if Marg Krouse still likes him.

Paul Herman... behave yourself and quit teasing Helen Curley's heart. It might develop into something serious and that would be fatal to all concerned.

Irene Butcher seems to think that boys are an interesting topic for discussion. At least I gathered that from the way she talked about Bob Freeman all the time.

Can it be true that Bob Cummings, who has so much to say all of the time, is speechless with Peggy Lou Berning? My, what an influence love has on some people.

Dick Fishering is all agog-gag over the fact that Eileen Eidner asked him to go on a hayrack ride with her. It must be an over sized case of love. Here's seeing to you through the keyhole... Your's truly.

Collecting Fish And Dogs Is Interesting To Junior Boys

"All the world loves a hobby," or at least that is the way it is here at South Side. Dick Didier, diminutive dictionary-talking junior, has had at the very least two very intriguing hobbies. About two years ago, he started a photograph service in collaboration with a Centralite, Bud Wall. At the present time, the boys are engaged in the fish business. They have an aquarium containing angel fish, sword tails, guppies, and several other kinds of tropical fish.

Jack Hodell, another junior, has several years been collecting dogs as his hobby. He has dogs of all colors, sizes, and shapes. These dogs, by the way, are china. Margaret Gross, Times editor, has the unique hobby of collecting penguins and elephants. To see them lined up in a train trucking toward the east is really a sight to behold. Going around, snapping unwilling subjects' pictures is Royal Steiner's favorite pastime. (Amateur photography to you.) I could go on writing reams and reams of literature about the favorite hobbies of South Side students because you can be sure that a great number of them have them.

Now just why do these students have a hobby? Why does anyone have a hobby? Well, simply to while away the extra hours in a profitable manner. One does not choose a hobby unless he is vitally interested in that particular thing and will get a lot of enjoyment out of it.

People with hobbies are invariably happy when they are indulging in their hobby and seldom do they have idle hours. You, who do not have a hobby, ask the question, "What shall I have as my hobby?" You alone can answer that question. You are the best judge of your interests, abilities, and individual talents. Consequently, it is completely up to you. Of course, some things can be said along that line to help you to decide upon the right one.

If all day you are engaged in work that puts you on a severe mental strain (for example, school) choose a hobby requiring physical exertion.

Pro and Con

It has been said that worrying never got a person anywhere but show me the pupil who does not worry a little at least over the outcome of a test or who does not become uneasy because the outcome of his report card was not as he had expected. He usually endeavors to improve and if he has enough sticking power, his outcome is bright. Much talk concerning the elimination of grades has been astir around the school. The supporters for the con side seem to be stronger than those for the pro side, but since every problem has two sides we shall endeavor to present both. To see what Mr. Pro has to say:

PRO—To see how strong the wall of defense is we find that there are a number of students and very few teachers who believe in the elimination of grades. This group of people claim that a student many times falls down in his work because he thinks he has worked hard and has not received proper pay for his time and effort. Perhaps it stands that he has rated himself along with another student who in the end did receive a higher grade. Such an outcome makes the pupil lose interest and gradually he slips.

Many teachers are in agreement that the method of grading and averaging used by some teachers is unfair. Records prove that a student once lost the honor of being Valedictorian because the average of the four years was a slight fraction of a percentage point below the victor's. To look back we might justify this loss with the solution that a teacher, through perhaps her method or by a mistake, cut off a fraction of a point which might have given the pupil higher recognition than he received.

Perhaps favoritism is displayed slightly in some class rooms and this might make the true grade slide slightly into a higher position. Many students have wandering eyes, especially during examinations, which determine the final grade. This way of getting a better grade seems unfair but the grade is what counts and this pupil passes on with this grade. Some teachers have more difficult methods than others and the pupils with the easier teachers always receive the higher grades.

CON—Mr. Con says that grades mean to a student exactly what wages mean to a worker. A raise in grades is as coveted by the scholar as a raise in wages is by the laborer. To think of working and putting forth much effort and sacrificing much time without some recognition and pay seems unreasonable. Grades tend to encourage a student to keep up his good work or push him on toward the road of betterment. To back up this side of the question we have the opinion of a prominent teacher and an Archer student. Mrs. Rieke states, "Grades are an indication of what you are accomplishing. If you have fair teachers, you benefit in knowing how you stand."

If a plan of no grades were adopted how could we possibly be sure who should be elected to the National Honor Society, who should be included in the four-year honor roll and who should hold the positions of Valedictorian and Salutatorian? Pupils are elected to fulfill these positions through their past record. If there were no grades to back them up, the system of plus and minus could not possibly be exact and thus the method would be unfair, because such signs as these would have no true significance.

Slavery At Stake When Naming Street After War Veteran

How the busiest street in Fort Wayne was named after a Southerner who favored slavery and the right of a state to declare void any laws passed by congress is an interesting story in itself.

It appears rather inconsistent that the pioneers, who were opposed to slavery, settled a city in the north and named it after a Southerner, who favored slavery.

But it really was not so unusual. Perhaps if we peek into the history of the past and give a few of the facts of the times will reveal the reason.

John C. Calhoun was a promising leader in congress, entering in 1811, when trouble was being had with Great Britain over the seizing of American naval crews.

Being a member of a committee on foreign affairs, he drew up a report which placed the issue of war. His record was clear.

Coming from Carolina where the Calhouns owned a plantation with many slaves, he was one of the strong group of leaders of the period hailed from that Southern State. South Carolina sent many men to Congress who became national leaders. Calhoun was one.

Calhoun was one of the men in Congress who favored the internal improvements for the West by governmental aid. Many statesmen opposed him, and he was often defeated.

From 1817 to 1825 Calhoun was Secretary of War in Monroe's administration, rapidly becoming a big leader in the country. In the meantime, Fort Wayne had developed greatly.

In selecting a name for the street which was destined to be the busiest street in Fort Wayne, the name Calhoun was not unusual. Slavery was not then a pressing question.

The men who named the street may have had political sympathy for the Democratic leader. That perhaps you and I will never know.

Archer Gridders To Meet Michigan City Squad Saturday

Tough Eleven To Face Green On Home Grid

Annexed Last Year's Game By Score Of 46 To 7; Have Plenty Of Power Again.

Lineup Uncertain Due To Changes

Coach Moss Shifting Players To Give Them Experience; Injuries Prove Slight.

South Side's Archer grid squad will try for its first victory next Saturday when they encounter a strong Michigan City eleven at the Southern stadium. This will be the fifth start for the Green who have previously suffered four straight defeats.

The Archers showed a great deal of improvement last Saturday against Peru although being outscored 20-7. Had the Archer pass defense not bogged down in the first half of the Peru game the outcome might have been totally different. The Circus City eleven scored once in the first period and twice in the second period directly or indirectly as the result of aerial heaves. The Archers then tightened their defense and held Peru scoreless the last half.

Michigan City is noted for its powerful football teams and will be tough to beat. Last year they took on the Archers at Michigan City and defeated them by a score of 46 to 7.

Many new faces appeared in the Archer lineup last week. Cook was back on the job again playing a good game until he was injured. Joe Loos played left tackle against Peru. Ferguson played a fine game recovering a fumble in the second quarter deep in the Peru territory. Roth, Close, and Braden were also new faces in the starting eleven. Although the four defeats have been by a wide margin of points, South Side has put up a good fight in every game and have battled until the final gun sounded. Shimer's 65-yard run, made in the final quarter on a 15-yard pass from Fatheree, was an example of what the Archers are capable of doing. Shimer did a brilliant job of open field running, eluding five tacklers to mark up the only score of the game. With their fourth defeat still fresh in their minds, the Green will fight hard to erase last year's defeat and at the same time to make a success of their fifth start this season.

Although quite a few players had to be taken from the game, none were seriously hurt and South Side will probably have a full lineup this Saturday.

As to the lineup Coach Moss has done considerable switching around giving the entire squad a chance for practical experience. Archer fans will probably see a good many of the same bunch who played in last week's game line up against the Michigan City squad.

Girls Lead Second Speedball Playoffs

The second set of speedball games was played in the gym Monday at 3:30 o'clock, with teams 1 and 3, led by Rose Stemen and Orlinda Braun, coming out on top.

Team 4, headed by Lenora Moyer, was defeated by team 1 with a score of 14 to 5. The outstanding players on team 4 were Betty Hargan, who scored three goals, and Constance Bender, who made two points. The honors for making the most points for team 4 are divided among Kathleen Neith, who made 5, Rose Stemen, who made 3, Thompsie Hall, who also made 5, and Betty Baker, who made 1. Orlinda Braun's team 3 won over Margaret Kienzie's team 2 by a score of 2 to 7. Betty Kammeyer and Jeanette Wetsel each made one point for the losing team. Peggy Berning proved to be the high scorer on team 3, making 3 goals.

Intramurally Speaking

Last Wednesday the Intramural golfers held their first meeting. More than forty boys are expected to participate in the tournament which will be held at Municipal and Brookwood golf courses. Last Saturday the boys held the first play-off at the respective clubs.

Some of the most expectant golfers entering the tourney are Gene Cassidy, Ed Reeves, Bob Robinson, Charles Feistkorn and Frankie Duwaldt. Gene Cassidy, Ed Reeves and Bob Robinson are all-around low scorers. All three have a powerful drive, a steady putt, and everything else that goes with successful golfing. Charles Feistkorn has one of the most powerful drives of the whole bunch, and will prove one of the favorites if he keeps that dynamite-drive in the fairway. Frankie Duwaldt is small but mighty. He has had plenty of experience and knows all the tricks of the game.

Even though there are favorites, there is always the chance of having a dark-horse come through and beat all the astounded so-called "semi-pros." There are such things as dark-horses in any contest, just as there are favorites.

Cross-country has gotten well under way by this time and all those out for this energetic sport find it very helpful for many of the varsity sports. It's too late to go out now, but there still is next year!

To Play Off Finals Of Tennis Games

Final Clash To Be Between Nadine Mueller, Virginia Porter; List Other Group Winners.

The senior tennis has been progressing; and, at this time, the semi-finals have been completed. The results show that Nadine Mueller was again victorious when she defeated Mary Jane Rison in a close match 6-4, 7-5. Virginia Porter came out on top in her game with Hazel Perry 6-0, 6-1. It remains to be seen who will emerge champion in the final clash between Nadine Mueller and Virginia Porter.

In the junior courts, Agnes Jane Seiler defeated Lucille Schumann 6-1, 6-3. Pauline Werling, by virtue of her initial win over Virginia Goeglein, will proceed into the semi-finals. Jarvis also defeated Boight 9-7.

Over the sophomore way, Gross is still in the running by virtue of her victory over Constance Deel. The sets were 6-3, 6-1. Helen Fry won out over Frances Gross 7-5, 6-2. Jeanne Smith, who was prominent in the summer tournaments, defeated Betty Thiele 6-1, 7-5, and then played the semi-finals to score a victory over Frances Nash 6-1, 8-6.

The freshman tennis singles are finished and Betty Hargan is proclaimed champion. In the semi-finals, she defeated Rose Stemen 6-4, 6-4; she then encountered Lenora Moyer, winner of the Moyer, Thompsie Hall match, to score her final victory of 6-4, 6-3. Betty will meet one of the upperclass champions to compete for the school championship at a later date.

Peru Gridders Beat Archers By Score 20-7

Green, White Squad Gets Touchdown In Last Quarter; Peru Marks Up Three

Peru's Circus City gridders handed the South Side Archers football squad its fourth straight defeat last Saturday, downing the Green and White by a score of 20-7 after a hard-fought battle.

Peru crossed the Archer goal once in the first period and twice in the second to account for their victory. The Archers put over their lone touchdown in the last quarter when Fatheree hurled a 15-yard pass to Shimer, who shook off a couple of tacklers and ran 65 yards to score.

The Circus City boys got out in the lead in the initial quarter when D. Horn fired a 25-yard aerial to Carry, who took the ball on a dead run and raced the remaining 15 yards to score. Buffington was successful in his try for extra point from placement.

Early in the second quarter Peru got a break when interference was called on a pass on the 23-yard line. The Circus City team converted this break into a score a few minutes later when Kreutzer went over from the five-yard line on a reverse around his left end. Betz's kick for the extra point went wide. Just before the end of the half, Peru put across another score as Horn tossed a 25-yard pass to Carry, who went the remaining 20 yards to score. Buffington converted the extra point. South Side's lone touchdown came on a pass in the fourth period with Shimer going over for the Archers. Fatheree's pass to Cook was good for the extra point. The rest of the final period was played in mid-field. The Archers made another threat to cross the Peru goal line when Ferguson recovered a Peru fumble on the visitors 23-yard line late in the second quarter. However, the Peru line held and the Archers lost the ball on downs.

Skirts and Sports

Apologies to all hockey players for the postponement of their games. But we can look forward to playing on a new and better field next week.

Congratulations are in order for Geneva Martin and Thompsie Hall, our new Inter-Club Congress representative and freshman representative.

Some girls just can't seem to grow up. For instance, our little Lucille Scheuman is still cutting teeth. How is that tooth, Lucille?

All of the student leaders can thank Geneva Martin for the fine chart which hangs on the wall in the gym office. It shows the position of the players and the flags on a speedball field.

Betty Thiele, a sophomore, would like to have one of our badminton experts instruct her in the rules and regulations of this popular game. She says, however, that she will have to wait until she takes her first lesson, as she does not think her gym clothes are quite the proper thing.

Due to the fine weather, we are having tennis tournaments in all the classes. They are all coming along splendidly. Nadine Mueller and Virginia Porter have already reached the finals in the senior class, while Agnes Seiler is in the finals of the junior division. The game between Lois Jarvis and Pauline Werling will decide who the other finalist will be. Congratulations to you all for going so far and by next week we will probably have a new crop of champs in tennis.

It seems that Margarette Calkins and Irene Meyers are so adept at swinging on the monkey bars that they are willing to give an exhibition. These girls first discovered that they had talent for this sort of thing at the student leaders' picnic.

Archery Club To Hold Separate Girls' Class

Separate meetings for boys and girls of the newly-formed Archery Club will be held it was decided Tuesday at the first meeting of the club. The boys will meet on Tuesday after school and the girls on Friday.

During the semester the boys and girls will hold combined tournaments. After the business meeting the group went to the stadium and shot at improvised targets. The purchase of regulation tournament targets are contemplated. The group also decided that a scoring and point system would be worked out. Letters with archery insignias on them will be given to the persons who qualify.

City Gridiron Clash To Be Next Saturday

Redskins, Tigers To Meet In Football Battle; Irish Will Clash With Garrett.

City series football games will headline the local scholastic football schedule for this weekend. This will be the third successive week, that a city series fray has taken place in the city.

North Side and Central will battle each other next Saturday afternoon at the North Side athletic field. Central Catholic will tangle with the Garrett Railroaders the same afternoon.

North Side, riding high with four successive wins for the season, appears to have just too much power for the lads from downtown. In view of the crushing 51-0 defeat the classy Redskins administered Central Catholic last Friday, North Side will enter the game as heavy favorites to come out on top. North Side has not been defeated by Central on the gridiron since Bob Nulf took over the job of coaching the Redskins four years ago. However, the boys from the Northern institute must guard against over-confidence, and they will have to be in tip-top shape to score a victory over the Tigers.

Central, on the other hand, with two wins, one which had to be forfeited, a tie, and a defeat, will enter the game as the underdog. But the Tigers can be counted on to give a fine performance, and they are certainly able to score an upset. Bouncing back from the 13-13 tie with Decatur, Central will be trying their hardest to break the jinx the Redskins have held over them in the past four years. North Side and Central are both tied in city series contests with successive wins over Central Catholic, and the game should be a hard-fought, wide-open type of game.

Central Catholic will perform at Garrett next Saturday. The Irish, coming back from the 51-0 shellacking that North Side handed them, will probably flash a brand of ball that will turn in a win for them against the Railroaders. Garrett has always proved a tough foe for the Irish and Central Catholic will have to work for what they get. Last year the Railroaders stopped the Irish by a 19-12 score, and with this in mind, Coach Levicki and the whole Irish squad will be out to avenge that defeat.

Howard Ensley, Vice-President; Russel Long, Range Officer; Other Officers Are Listed.

Robert Hageman was elected president of Boys' Rifle Club at its meeting last Friday night. The other officers are Howard Ensley, vice-president; Russel Long, range officer; Max Kimble, secretary. Carl Goebel was given the honorary position of executive adviser and was appointed Inter-Club Congress representative.

The program for the next semester was discussed, and it was decided the club would again enter the National Rifle Association competition.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, October 11. Anyone wishing to join should come to this meeting.

The Boys' Rifle Club has received three new Springfield rifles from the government. These rifles may be used by any member of the club who has paid their dues. In order to make it easier to join the club, the members have reduced the entrance fee, making it now only twenty-five cents. The club also has two Winchester Model 52 rifles, which are available to the members.

Freshman Room Changed To Club

Miss Eleanor Smeltzly Sponsors
Many Worthwhile Activities
In Room; Committees Chosen

During the past years, Miss Eleanor Smeltzly has made her freshman home room into a club. They do many things each year, such as giving Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets. Last Tuesday, September 27, the girls in her home room threaded eighty needles for the So-Si-Y girls. The following officers were elected and various committees appointed: President, Ruth Ann Stigler; vice-president, Jack Stine; secretary, Bill Thompson; treasurer, Bill Weber.

The program committee consists of: Chairman, Jack Stine; Doris Swaim, Patricia Towns, Earl Sweeney, Evelyn Strunk, Kenneth Vonderaue, Edward Welch, John Wells, and Mildred Vought.

The social committee consists of: Chairman, Bill Thompson; Phyllis Tyndall, Laurence Warren, Katherine Stemler, Vasilka Stephans, James Strawbridge, Bill Welch, Tom Welch, and Mae Vanderford.

Project committee: Chairman, Bill Weber; Evelyn Talbot, Mary Taylor, Richard Teel, Carol Trenary, Lee Terry, Joan Van Pelt, and Jack Vetter. Betty Rose Stump is room agent, and Miss Smeltzly is class adviser.

Viola Yanney, '38, Says, 'Office Work Very Interesting'

"I find the work in the office very interesting, and much more complicated than I had ever imagined," states Viola Yanney, '38. Viola was outstanding in her class because of her exceptional scholastic ability. During her high school career, she was a member of U. S. A., So-Si-Y, G. A. A., Travel, Philo, and Service Clubs.

Viola gained much recognition in the commercial department by typing sixty words per minute and for taking dictation at one hundred twenty and one hundred forty words per minute. She was chosen for National Honor Society in June.

Because of her outstanding ability, Viola was suggested for a position here. Viola tells us that her work includes taking dictation, typing, filing, telephoning, and various odd jobs. She states that she is under contract for this year only, but she so enjoys her work, that she would prefer to remain indefinitely.

David Slattery, 12B, Is Great Enthusiast Of Stamp Collecting

David Slattery, a senior, doesn't believe in having a girl in every port, as sailors do, but he does believe in having stamps from every station. He believes in saving stamps only of the United States and its possessions. He says, "Saving stamps from other countries doesn't pay."

David at the present time has five albums. A good estimation of how many stamps he has would be about two or three thousand. A few stamps are valued about five dollars. David, having swing in his blood, of course, would enjoy most the stamps connected with music. He has different classes of stamps in separate divisions. His stamps are obtained by trading and exchanging with his friends.

Stamps are not enough for this swingster in the line of collecting. He also collects sheets, blocks, plate numbers, signals, covers and first day covers. He has cachet covers from the Macon and the Akron on which he has autographs.

David is the secretary of the South Side Philatelic Society. He invites anyone who is interested in stamps to come and join the club. He need not have a stamp collection started, David says, "Even a person that can't read may follow the current events, history, or the happenings in the world through stamps."

Miss Harriet Bowe Is Guest At U. S. A. Party

Miss Harriet Bowe, Girl Reserve secretary, attended the membership party of the U. S. A. in the Greeley Room Thursday. Games were played, and refreshments were served.

The invitation committee consisted of Jean Sheets, chairman; LaVerne Greiner, assistant; Marilyn Sondles was chairman of the refreshments committee, and Eileen Hornmann was her assistant. The entertainment was furnished by Rozanna Weston and Betty Mann.

Venetian Blinds Installed

New venetian blinds were installed recently in the main offices, and work has been started on the cleaning and washing of the windows of the school. This work is necessary because of plaster and paint which has been splattered over the windows during building of the new rooms.

Principal Announces Grade Period Dates

Mr. R. Nelson Snider has announced the grading periods for this semester. They are as follows:

First period ends October 7; U and S grades issued October 11.

Second period ends November 9; mid-term grades issued November 9.

Third period ends December 9; U and S grades issued December 13.

Fourth period ends January 18; final grades issued January 18.

Various Remedies Tried By Students For Replacing Sleep

When the sandman misses your house some night, what are you going to do to occupy your time while you try to go to sleep? Here are some ways that some pupils have successfully tried.

Thomas Hall: I go down stairs and read when I cannot sleep.

Ruth Gumpfer: I count sheep.

Kent Lentz: I raid the icebox when I can't sleep because I get hungry.

Gerald Dial: I count sheep.

Barbara Roth: I worry about Herman.

John Lomont: I count pretty girls.

Marianna Klotz: I count sheep.

Mary Crick: I think of a dream and then start dreaming.

Orval Paul: I listen to the radio.

John Cragg: I think of pretty girls.

Gloria Kramer: I think of all the things I would like to have.

Valetta Favory: I read a book when I can't sleep.

Dorothy Heslip: I read a book when I can't sleep.

Jim Bumke: I stay awake when I can't sleep.

Keith Coverdale: I prop my feet up on the end of the bed, because it helps me to go to sleep.

Two Archers' Articles

Are On Youths' Page

Kenneth Warren, senior, had an article on his prize-winning dahlias published in the Youth's Passing Show Page in the News-Sentinel, October first. His dahlias have won over seventy prizes for him.

Jennet Whitel, also of South Side, had an article published in which she offered a prayer that war might be averted.

Vacationists Try Everything From Hitch-hiking To Working

Last summer over two thousand Archers, jubilant over the prospect of a three months' summer vacation, literally "let themselves go." Students tried everything—some fortunate to find steady employment. Others vacationed at lakes, took trips, or worked upon their hobbies.

Richard Teel's hobby is working with radios.

While at Klinger Lake, Michigan, Carolyn Cartwright and Jane Bowen went on a hike which ended up on a golf course. After wandering around a while, looking for golf balls, they saw some men on a hill. A few minutes later a ball landed near them and Jane picked it up. They then started for home and looked around and saw the men looking for a ball near the place where Jane picked the ball up. Results: they both left the course at once.

Imogene Fabian spent three evenings of this summer learning the rudiments of oil-painting.

Eugene Botz spent most of the summer building a workshop.

Joan Bradley visited among the hillbillies in Brown county.

One profitable means of transportation is hitchhiking. Andy Bremer traveled quite extensively in this way. He visited the capital of Michigan.

Betty Bolyard spent the summer at Coldwater Lake, Michigan.

Dot Bloemker visited Chicago, St. Louis, Fort Sheridan, and the lakes in Northern Indiana.

Don Burnside visited Pretty Lake and some of the other lakes in that vicinity.

Dorothy Brown and two other girls were the only ones at their cottage that could stay awake long enough to watch the sun come up over the water at Tri-Lakes.

Eileen Byer was sort of low down when she went into Canada through the Windsor-Detroit tunnel.

Betty Carey went across the straits and up to the locks of Lake Superior.

Teddy Confer traveled around Northern Indiana and up to Lake Forest in Illinois. She's also very thrilled over the big bass she caught.

Robert Taylor made hat-bands of snakes' skins which he caught himself.

Pauline Schoenher passed the time away by reading, swimming, bicycle riding and playing tennis.

Marilyn Sappington visited the animals in the park at Marion, Indiana.

Esther Schuler divided her time between the lake and Kendallville.

Marie Schultz went to the lake for a day.

Harold Schmidt went to Canada, and the Dearborn Village at Detroit.

Junior Moves To California

Marilyn Halpern, a junior, left today for Alhambra, California.

New Addition Of South Side Is Completed

Improvements Of Archer Institution Will Be Ready For Usage Within Week.

WPA To Finish Cleaning Building

Entire Commercial Department Will Be Transferred To Recently Built Floor.

Improvement of South Side has finally been accomplished, and the new addition will be ready for use within the next week or so. Everything has been installed in the building except for the electric wiring which has not been finished in some parts of the school.

The only job remaining is that of cleaning the new part of the building. This job is being accomplished by WPA workers who cleaned the entire building earlier this fall. As soon as the cleaning process is completed, classes now being held in other rooms will be moved. All of the commercial department will be moved to the new addition on the upper floor where eight new rooms have been added. Also constructed on the second floor was a new Greeley Room, two new study halls, and several new offices. The new Greeley room has a kitchenette and a dressing room of the stage included in one end of the room. The two new study halls will be used extensively next year when the present study hall will be converted into an auditorium. The study hall next to the cafeteria can also be used as an extension for the cafeteria if it becomes crowded by opening the connecting doors. The tables to be placed in this study hall will be of a type suitable for use in the cafeteria.

The second floor offices are much larger than the old ones and have private offices for Mr. Snider, Miss Pittenger, and Mr. Flint, as well as a large general office.

A lighted trophy case donated by the Art Club of this school has been installed in the hall near the main office and several trophies have been placed in it.

The upper story has three drinking fountains and three modernist clocks. The hall floors are all covered with black linoleum and the walls are painted a cream color.

While the new addition was being built this summer many of the older class rooms and halls were also painted, and the remainder will be painted next year when a second floor will be put on the eastern end of the school, and the auditorium is to be constructed.

To Give Three Music Events During Term

Assemblies On November 8, December 13, January 10; Participants Announced

South Side's Music department will present many music assemblies this semester. The assemblies will take place on November 8, December 13, and January 10. One of them was held October 11.

Many of South Side's pupils make these assemblies possible. Those who play instruments in the band are: Audrey Jeffries, Safford McMyler, Harold Layman, Charles Wehmer, Lucy Smith, Shirley White, Gerald Wulleman, Philip Pressler, Thelma Pifer, Kenny White, Robert Safer, Joan Korte, Rudolph Wuttke.

Albert Verweire, Robert Stock, Roger Ryan, Charles Neuschwander, John Wells, Morris Sprinkle, David Slattery, Bob Shimel, Naomi Koopman, Bill Roth, Morton Nahrwald.

Arthur Longworth, Jack Kemp, Evelyn Koelm, William Amspaugh, Phyllis Ann Stein, Gerald Polman, Herbert Jasch, Bob Gerion, Richard Fisher, Robert Anweiler, Don Burns, Mae Arick, Jack Glenn, Elaine Hirsch.

Robert Allen, Billy Foye, Dorothy Amstutz, Dale Amstutz, Alison Arnold, Jeanne Gumpfer, Constance Hirsch, Richard Gerig, John Gumpfer, Richard Dyke, Gerald Dial, Lavon Byer, Eileen Byer, James Bunke, Vincent Bacon, and Bob Gregg.

The orchestra also helps to make the assemblies possible. The players in the orchestra are: Robert Allen, Ruth Bade, Elaine Boergers, Virginia Collins, Richard Dauner, Betty Elbertson, Richard Graue, Pave Gumpfer, Dorothy Hall, Mildred Hanke, Charles Haug.

Herbert Jasch, Nick Markoff, Helen Merritt, Betty Nichols, Margaret Null, Loretta Rinearson, Annette Snoke, Pauline Schoenherr, and Hilda Schubert. Many of those who play in the band also play in the orchestra.

Five Archers Attend Hi-Y Retreat At Lake

South Side was represented by five boys at the Hi-Y retreat held at Blackman Lake, October 1 and 2. The Archers present were Dick Buchholz, Roger Neff, Jack Bostick, Maurice Lehman, and Morton Nahrwald. The purpose of the retreat was to train boys for leadership in the Hi-Y club.

They discussed the problems of the clubs and membership, and held a very interesting panel discussion. The members attending the retreat have great expectations for the club during the coming year.

To Address Students

Mr. William Lacey

Mr. William Lacey, secretary to Fire Chief John C. Stahlhut, will give a talk in connection with fire prevention week in assembly this morning.

P-T. A. Group Makes Plans For Fall Fete

October 24 Is Date For Annual Open House; Tour Of New Building Feature

South Side's Parent-Teacher Association is making preparations for its annual open house for parents and patrons of the school. The meeting will not be in the form of a "back-to-school" night as has been the custom, but will feature a tour of the new and improved sections of the building.

Schedule Open House
The open house is scheduled for Monday evening, October 24. Following inspection of the school under student guides, parents will be allotted about three-quarters of an hour to visit the various classrooms of their children. Refreshments will then be served in the cafeteria. Mrs. Frank Bollman, chairman of the hospitality committee, will have charge of cafeteria service. Under the direction of Mrs. A. K. Remmel, ways and means chairman, a bake sale and sale of refreshments will be carried on in the halls.

List Committees
Mrs. John D. Bostick, association president, has appointed chairman and committees for the ensuing year as follows:

Freshman chairman, Mrs. A. L. Peterson; sophomore chairman, Mrs. S. C. Clelland; junior chairman, Mrs. H. E. Hartman; senior chairman, Mrs. Victor Ross; ways and means, Mrs. A. K. Remmel, chairman, assisted by Mrs. P. W. Iba, Mrs. C. E. Hudson, Mrs. K. C. Eberly and Mrs. H. H. Tracht; membership, Mrs. H. W. Garton, chairman, assisted by Mrs. W. J. Gernand, Mrs. A. C. Gallmeyer, Mrs. H. E. Naege, Mrs. George Bacon, Mrs. C. Showalter, Mrs. Charles W. Klinefelter, and Mrs. M. H. Meritt; publicity, Mrs. Emanuel Stock, chairman, assisted by Mrs. P. H. Scheele, Mrs. J. G. Bundy, Mrs. M. J. Abbett, and Mrs. H. L. Feaser.

Hospitality, Mrs. F. G. Bollman, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Leo Ohme, Mrs. John C. Carmar, Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. Charles G. Beal; program, Mrs. John Brooks, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Charles Geller, Mrs. M. E. Murphy, Mrs. Robert Wylie, Mrs. H. W. Cook; telephone, Mrs. Carl Hornberger, chairman, assisted by Mrs. W. J. Gernand, Mrs. Paul F. Thela, Mrs. A. H. Schaaf, Mrs. B. W. Hartman; student aid, Mrs. C. H. Matson.

Congress Elects Term's Officers

Heads Are Carl Hall, Evelyn Kruse, Richard Buchholz, Carl Goebel, Dick Weaver.

Carl Hall was elected chief executive of Inter-Club Congress at the club's organization meeting September 26, in room 58. Other members elected to major positions are Evelyn Kruse, vice-president; Richard Buchholz, secretary; and Carl Goebel, treasurer. The Forum Club representative, Richard Weaver, was appointed club parliamentarian by Miss Emma Kiefer.

These officers met in room 58, Tuesday, October 11, to begin planning the projects for the coming year. Representatives from various clubs holding membership in the Congress are Carl Hall, Lettermen; Bill Riethmiller, Wranglers; Doris Williams, Girls' Rifle; Dick Hebermehl, Travel; Jean Sheets, U. S. A.; Gloria Staley, Meterites; Dorothy Amstutz, So-Si-Y; Evelyn Kruse, Library; Richard Buchholz, Social Science; Max Wagner, Math-Science; Clayton Jensen, French; Joan Cox, Girl Scouts; Jean Fortified, Lettin; Dick Weaver, Forum; Carl Goebel, Boys' Rifle; Geneva Martin, G. A. A.; Roger McVay, Junior Math; Helen Savage, German; Donald Hensch, Philatelic; Wilma Carrier, Mariemette; and Betty Daniels, Three E's. This list is not complete, because several clubs have not yet announced their representatives.

October 17 is the date set for the next Inter-Club Congress meeting.

Teachers' Convention Will Be October 27-28

The Northeastern Indiana Teachers' convention of 1938 will be held here October 27 and 28. The state teachers' convention will be held at Indianapolis at the same time; and the teachers will be permitted to attend either of the conventions. All students will be excused from school during that time. Activities for the affair will be announced at a later date.

Bob Robinson Is First Place Extemp Victor

Bob Safer, Tom Gallmeyer, James Murphy, Ed Reeves Also Place As Winners.

Bob Robinson, whose subject was "Internes In Government," was adjudged winner of Wranglers' first extemporaneous contest of the year held Monday afternoon in the Greeley Room.

Second, third, fourth, and fifth place winners, and their subjects are, Bob Safer, "Dictator--American Style"; Tom Gallmeyer, "What Surprised Me Most About Congress"; James Murphy, "Mr. Roosevelt's Balance Sheet," and Ed Reeves, "The White House No-Man." All subjects were taken from the Readers Digest.

The meeting was held in the new Greeley room and all contestants spoke from the stage. Room 190 was converted into a study hall, over which Sally Moorhead presided. Each contestant at the given time drew three subjects, and put back two, keeping the one he preferred. Forty-two minutes were allotted each entrant for study. Four minutes was the time allowed for the completed speech.

The chairman was Jean Gumpfer, and the doormen were Charles Will and Bruce Klotz.

Following is the complete list of the entrants in their speaking order: Joyce Reed, Richard Dyke, Dorothy Bollman, Robert Safer, Ed Reeves, Reba Coppock, Donna Lou Foutz, James Murphy, Jeanette Warren, Bob Robinson, Bruce Bradbury, Dick Garton, Bill Riethmiller, Morton Nahrwald, Betty Shedron, and Kenneth Warren.

At the next meeting, October 24, Wranglers' pot-luck-initiation will be held in the cafeteria.

Speech Confab Will Be Held In November

Freshmen, Sophomores To Compete In Tests; Five-Minute Talks To Be Given

The first series of freshmen-sophomore speech contests will be held November 9 and 10. Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke, head of the public speaking department, has announced. These are not elimination contests. At each individual contest, first, second, and third place winners will be announced and will be honored for their accomplishment in the field of public speaking at Wranglers' banquet in the spring. Later, the winners of these contests will compete for the Psi Chi Xi plaque to determine the freshman-sophomore winner.

The contestant must deliver a five-minute argumentative speech with or without the use of notes. There will be no rebuttal. Each entrant has the privilege of selecting an upperclassman coach for himself, or of having one selected for him. It is the duty of the coach, who has proved his ability in this field, to aid the contestant step by step, from selection of his resolution to perfection of his delivery.

By entering the contest, the freshman or sophomore gains his eligibility to Wranglers' Club, the only other means is to join a public speaking class. The advantages of entering such a meet might be enumerated as follows: (1) it develops speech ability, (2) it aids in class recitation, (3) it helps the club member to take part in proceedings.

Representatives of Mrs. Rieke were selected to explain the details to the freshmen-sophomore English classes October 12 and 13. All who are interested must then sign with Mrs. Rieke in room 190 by tomorrow. The contestants will be introduced to their coaches Tuesday, October 18, the eighth period in the study hall.

South Side Artist Wins City Award

Roy McKee Gets Sweater Offered by W&D; Lora Lee Montgomery Writes Best Ad Copy

Roy McKee, a junior A and a student of Miss Emma Dochterman, won first place in the contest conducted among the three public high schools by Wolf & Dessauer to obtain the best sketch to illustrate an advertisement of a sweater which appears in this week's issues of the high school papers.

The sketch appears in this issue and illustrates the advertisement written by Lora Lee Montgomery, Times advertising manager, whose ad copy was considered the best submitted by South Side entrants.

Only one sweater was offered in the art contest, but a sweater was awarded at each school for the best ad writing.

Jim Glass, a member of the State Championship basketball team, modeled the sweater and McKee sketched from life. McKee's sketch will appear not only in The Times but also in The Northern and The Spotlight, and will be a short musical program. Games will conclude the meeting.

The entries were viewed by J. Irving Latz, president of W&D, J. Wesley Dye, advertising manager of the store, Mr. Geise, department buyer, the manufacturer of the sweater who was in the city on Monday, Mr. F. E. Bennett, business manager of The News-Sentinel, and Miss Rowena Harvey, adviser of publications.

S. P. C. Elects New Officers At Fiist Meet

Bill Gernand, Donna Foutz, Bruce Bradbury, Jeanette Warren Are Heads.

Bill Gernand and Jeanette Warren were elected president and vice-president respectively at the first meeting of the year held by Student Players Club last Friday. Other officers elected at the meeting were Donna Lou Foutz, secretary and treasurer, Bruce Bradbury, point recorder, and Kenneth Warren, Inter-Club Congress representative.

These officers will remain in office the entire semester at which time another election will be held, with the exception of point recorder, a two-year job. These officers will be in charge of the meetings of the club while they are in office, although committees will arrange the programs.

A farce comedy, "A Woman A Woman For A That," was also presented at the meeting. The characters in the play were: Bill Gernand, a horse doctor; Beverly Ann Griffith, a wealthy but ignorant woman; Bob Safer, a young play boy; Jeanette Warren, a woman doctor; and Donna Lou Foutz, a beautiful young nurse. The play deals with a woman who is a doctor and a play boy who becomes ill and is cured finally by the horse doctor. The play presented on the new stage in the new Greeley Room, was under the direction of Kenny Warren.

The retiring officers of the club were: president, Tom Sellers; vice-president, Helen Cox; and secretary-treasurer, Ina Claire Chappell.

The committee to arrange the program for the next meeting of S. P. C., November 11, is made up of the following people: Margaret Null, chairman, Jim Brooks, Paul Geiser, Bruce Bradbury, Virginia Schilder, June McAlister, and Helen Weihe.

Philo's Fall Frolic Will Be Monday

Committees Are Named For Affair; Members Should Sign, Pay 15 Cents In Room 68.

Philo's Annual Fall Frolic will be held Monday, October 17, in the new Park at 5:30 o'clock. The theme is to be kept as a surprise until the meeting, but an extremely interesting program is being planned by the entertainment committee.

Committees for the Frolic were announced by Margaret Null, club president, and general chairman for the affair. They are as follows: publicity, Dorothy Hall and Audrey Hall; food, Maurine Seibert, chairman, Kathleen Ramer, Della Rauner, and Marjorie Jackson; finance, Gwen DeWees, chairman, and Avel Bridges; fuel, Moties, and front Veldt Oppenlander, chairman, and Betty Daniels; entertainment, Betty Lou Geake, chairman, Phyllis Geller, Betty Neeb, Betty Marquardt, and Frances VanBuskirk.

Since this meeting is one of the highlights on Philo's calendar, a large attendance is expected. All members attending to attend should pay 15 cents and sign up in room 68 by 3:30 Friday. Although it is not absolutely necessary, it would be better if all girls planning to go would also pay their dues when they sign up.

Meterites Will Give Play On October 18

The play, "How the Story Grew" will be given at the next meeting of the Meterites, October 18. Phyllis Lauer will give a short talk on the scene, costuming, and characters of the play. Included in the cast of "How the Story Grew" are Dorothy Guilden, Elaine Hirschey, Martha Jane Krauskopf, Emaly Remmel, Helen Savage, Carol Whittem, Marjorie Roberts, and Marjorie McNabb. The play will be directed by Romyne Rediger. A lesson will then be a short musical program. Games will conclude the meeting.

Archer Clubs Sponsor Annual Skating Parties

Several clubs in South Side have already planned dates for their skates. The first skate to be held will be sponsored by the Meterite Club on November 4, and the last skate scheduled for the semester will be held on January 7, by Philo. The only date which will give a short talk on the scene, costuming, and characters of the play. Included in the cast of "How the Story Grew" are Dorothy Guilden, Elaine Hirschey, Martha Jane Krauskopf, Emaly Remmel, Helen Savage, Carol Whittem, Marjorie Roberts, and Marjorie McNabb. The play will be directed by Romyne Rediger. A lesson will then be a short musical program. Games will conclude the meeting.

Rating Is Tied By Redskins In Cup Race

Archer Publication Reaches Same Mark As Northern; Award Trophy Later

Both North Side's high school paper, The Northern, and The South Side Times are tied in the present subscription race between the papers from the two schools. The two publications are less than one per cent apart in the contest for possession of the trophy awarded to the paper with the highest percentage of subscriptions.

The Times has 1,117 subscriptions at this time while The Northern has only 916, but the difference in the number of students attending the two high schools brings the percentage to about 60 percent. There is a slight difference in the percentage, and this may cause the contest to be lengthened considerably. The trophy will not be awarded to one of the schools unless that school is sufficiently ahead of the other.

May Delay Award
The awarding of the trophy may be postponed until the end of this semester when all subscriptions must be paid up, for the percentage may change some when the separate campaigns come to an end. Some students may not finish their payments for the two publications and others may move to other towns.

South Side did not have possession of this trophy last year, but the year before, in the fall of 1937, The Times won the award. Eleanor Vesey, general manager of The Times, said about the close race, "Since we are so close to winning, I don't see why we can't nose out North Side's paper. Certainly South Side has more school spirit than North Side."

Six Perfect Rooms
Six home room agents now have one hundred per cent rooms. These agents are Nadine Mueller, 34; Lois Hoff, 66; June Enoch, 74; Dick Aronhalt, 76; Jeanette Warren, Library; and Kolman Gross, 144. Candy bars have been distributed to all of the students in these home rooms. Several other agents believe that they may be able to get one hundred per cent rooms. Book number two, with a total of 212 subscriptions, under the direction of Marjorie McNabb is leading this week. In second place is book number four under the direction of Maurine Seibert. Her book has a total of 209 subscriptions.

The room agents and their rooms and percentages for this week are as follows:

424 Tickets Sold For Year's Games

Expect Large Sale For Basketball Season To Begin November 14; Parents Buy Score.

A total of 424 season tickets have been sold in South Side's annual season ticket drive. This total includes all of the tickets sold for cash and on the installment plan and those sold for the football games only.

It is expected that a large number of tickets will be sold for the basketball season as many requests for these tickets have been received at the season ticket office from both students and their parents. These tickets go on sale November 14, two weeks before the season opens.

Exactly 372 student tickets for football, basketball, and track have been sold at the present time, 60 of these being purchased on the installment plan. Parents and others interested in South Side athletics purchased an additional 25 season tickets. Ten students and seventeen adults bought football tickets also.

This year's ticket campaign has been one of the most successful ever held at this school and it is expected that a larger number of tickets will be sold before the basketball season starts. South Side's winning of the state basketball championship has encouraged the ticket sale greatly.

Three E's Select Dates Of Meeting

Eight New Members Present At Gathering Of Word Group; Talks, Games Are Featured

Dates for the meetings for the school year were announced at the gathering of the Three E's Saturday evening at the home of Betty Daniels. New members included Mary Lee Kixmiller, Margery Rapp, Betty Neeb, Joann Bradley, Vivian Semler, Margaret Davis, Morton Nahrwald, and Roger Neff. It is hoped that the members will immediately select the date on which they wish to entertain, in order that the program for the coming year may be given at the next meeting.

Margery Rapp gave a short talk on the "Root Words" of the English language. Gwendolyn DeWees read an article on the "Ups and Downs," showing the overuse of these words. A lesson in pronunciation of Anglo-Saxon words was directed by Miss Kiefer. Games pertaining to the derivation and spelling of various English words were played. Refreshments were enjoyed by the group.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Friday, October 21. It is, however, undecided where the meeting will be held.

Custodian Returns Home

Mr. Carl Vonderau, custodian of the Archer school, returned home from the Lutheran Hospital early last week. His condition, now greatly improved, had made several blood transfusions a necessity. If he continues to improve, he will return to school within the next two weeks.

Stamp Club Holds Service To Honor

New Officers Are Installed By Robert Bloemker, '34; Mr. R. Nelson Snider Gives Talk

Carlton Clem, president; Thelma Pifer, vice-president; David Slattery, secretary; Norman Fortness, treasurer; Melvin Schivarty, sergeant-at-arms; Wilmer Bengs, point recorder; and Don Hensch, Inter-Club Congress representative, were installed as new officers of the Philatelic Society.

Installation was performed by Robert Bloemker, valedictorian '34, and a former president of Stamp Club last Wednesday evening at a called meeting of the organization in order to install officers, hold its second semi-annual honor services, and to present the first program of the year directed under the auspices of the new officers.

Because of reconstruction in the building last spring, club pins were awarded informally in room 64 in order that members of the club may wear pins during the summer. Those receiving club pins are: Max Stobaugh, Carlton Clem, Ed Turner, Robert Hirschey, '38, Jack Feller, and Wilmer Bengs. Silver pins were awarded David Slattery and Marjorie Crago, '38. As the record stands, Bruce Bradbury and David Slattery lead the group with 1,400 and 945 points.

Key speakers of the evening were Mr. R. Nelson Snider, who discussed "What Constitutes A Good Club," "Officer's Day," an annual first program feature, was opened by a short address by Carlton Clem, the club's new president. Dave Slattery and Edward Turner talked of the new presidential series and presidential cachets. Norman Fortness exhibited several cartoons made by Janice Dyer, Times cartoonist, in discussing postal offices. A stamp game was played and taffy apples were served.

Two 1500 Clubs Will Hold Roast

Archer, Redskin Journalists To Have Wiener Bake At Foster Park; Election To Be Held.

1500 Clubs of North Side and South Side will join for the first meeting of the new semester which will take the form of a wiener bake. It will be at Foster Park, October 14, in the large pavilion. Eleanor Vesey is in general charge of the bake, and Julia Smith will collect the money. The fee for this meeting is twenty-five cents. Eleanor announced today that everyone should be there at 5:30. All members are asked to meet in the large pavilion before the bake so that an election of officers can be held.

Refreshments consist of potato chips, wieners, buns, and Coca-Cola. The meeting is in honor of the sixteenth anniversary of the founding of the South Side Times.

Grad Appointed On Board

Among five men appointed by President Herman B. Wells to Indiana University's Board of Acons, highest student tribunal, was Manuel Rothberg, a junior at I. U. and a graduate of South Side.

Come One! Come All! Help The South Side Yearbook Attain The Goal Of 1,000 Sales.

Circulation Managers Nadine Mueller, Phyllis Geller Will Aid In Campaign

Class Gathering Planned Monday

R. Nelson Snider Addresses Pupils; Rowena Harvey, Kenny Warren To Speak.

Monday, October 19, will mark the official opening of the 1939 Totem campaign. Max Spencer, editor, states that, "With the cooperation of the rest of the staff, we hope to publish a bigger and better 1939 Totem." Details of the campaign will be announced at a senior meeting which is to be held in the gym after school on Monday. Speakers at the meeting will be Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, Miss Rowena Harvey, publications adviser, Max Spencer, and Kenny Warren who will explain details of the campaign.

To Be Leather-bound
The price of the Totem will be $2.00, which may be paid at one time, or in installments of 25 cents a month. The yearbook will be bound in leather, and for those students who subscribe before December 2, which is the deadline for the third payment, names will be printed in gilt on the cover. After April 21, which is the deadline for subscriptions, $2.25 will be charged. As a special inducement to agents, a free Totem will be given to the person selling the greatest number of yearbooks.

The senior picture campaign for the Totem was officially opened on Thursday, October 6. Students may pay $1.00 charge for printing to any senior picture agent or in the Totem office. Photographs may be purchased for $3.00 half dozen or $4.50 for one dozen. Pictures may be taken at any time, without appointment, until November 4, which is the deadline.

The major Totem staff are: Max Spencer, editor; Kenny Warren, business manager; Nadine Mueller and Phyllis Geller, circulation managers; Janice Dyer, publicity manager; and Margie Quackenbush, Laura Jane Reed, Bob Byers, Eugene Schmidt, Dick Buchholz, Hazel Perry, Dick Garton, and Margery Wallace, assistant circulation managers.

Under each of these assistants are seven agents. Margery Wallace: Bob Bolyard, Nancy Valiton, Frances VanBuskirk, Peggy Bacon, Gwendolyn DeWees, Janice Dyer, Patty Lyman.

Hazel Perry: Wilma Carrier, Marjorie Clapp, Max Wagner, Annette Snoke, Betty Daniels, Donna Dennis, William Gernand.

Richard Buchholz: Margaret Null, Virginia Shidler, Doris Siebold, Ruth Bade, Beth Ellen Chadwick, Velma Connitt, Lilius Patton.

Dick Garton: Betty Franklin, Carl Goebel, Dorothy Hall, Phyllis Hayner, Donna Foutz, Beverly Griffith, Kitty Clinard.

Margie Quackenbush: Betty Neeb, Joan Porter, Elizabeth Most, Anna U. Kowalski, Mary Lampton, John Magley, Aubrey Kogge.

Laura Jane Reed: Velda Oppenlander, Jeanette Warren, Helen Wiehe, Imogene Wright, Dick Zieg, Lois Rea, Dorothy Rohrbach.

Bob Byers: Helen Banks, Dorothy Bloemker, Betty Bolyard, Joan Biedler, John Dossell, June Enoch, Helen Faux.

Eugene Schmidt: Bill Newhard, Ed Reeves, Frieda Schubert, Julia Ann Smith, Mary Treen, Eleanor Vesey, Joan Hess.

Music Assembly Features Guests

Mildred Gernanson And Robert Cotheral Sing For First Music Fete; Many Numbers Played

The main features of South Side's first music assembly held Tuesday, was a guest soprano, Mildred Gernanson, and a guest tenor, Mr. Robert Cotheral. Mr. Gernanson, who had been here last year, came again to direct the chorus in singing the song, "The Little Brown Bird."

The band accompanied Mildred Gernanson, Mr. Robert Cotheral, and the chorus in singing the songs, "Will You Remember" and "The Italian Street Song." They also played the following selections: "Under the Double Eagle," by J. F. Wagner; "Alice Blue Gown," by Harry Tierney; "Song of Love," by Sigmond Romberg; and Victor Herbert's, "Favorite."

June Flaig, a sophomore, played two selections on the harp.

The orchestra played "Lohengrin," by Theodore M. Tobani; "March Minutaire No. 1," by J. Schubert; and "Minuet From G. Minor Symphony," by W. A. Mozart.

From what we hear, freshmen are even more pleased with South Side after that most excellent music assembly Tuesday.

We had a promising example of the good reception of our radio system in the broadcasting of the World Series last Thursday.

A club's first difficulty is to get a lot of students to join; then comes the hardest task of all—that of getting members to pay their dues.

Said the high and mighty sophomore to the insignificant freshman very condescendingly, "If further immigration restriction will keep your likes out, I'm for it." Hmm!

If you see anyone going around striking dramatic poses and shouting to high heavens the glories of the radio, you can be sure they have been chosen for South Side Radio Players.

Finish Not Start Is Deciding Point Of Life

The Worlds Series is over and some of us are happy about the results and some of us aren't. But as you noticed in this years World Series it wasn't always the one who led at the first of the game who won that particular contest but it was the result of the game that told you who won and who lost.

It's that same way in life. If one should start out successfully on the road of life, that isn't the deciding point between success and failure. The deciding factor of one's life is not the start but the finish. Successful people are not always benefitted with a head start in life's race, but they must fight and work like anyone else to come in first. So, if you got a bad start this year in school, remember the race has just begun and it's the finish that counts.

To Prevent Loss Of Life And Property Is Sanity

With a screaming fire truck as its herald, another burning house is transformed into a pile of ashes, simply because some careless person forgot to extinguish a burning match or have a certain wiring fault repaired. As ancient as the tale of Adam and Eve is the much needed cry for fire prevention.

Annually, seven days are set aside out of every year to commemorate prevention of fires. Assemblies are staged in almost every school during this week, and speakers are featured in order that they may get across to the unrealizing students the immediate need for less carelessness along these lines.

Not only is the loss of dollars greatly increased by these all-too-frequent fires, but often times lives are given, because some one has not been able to run to safety in time.

We should all take advantage of fire prevention week and make it a life-time commemoration.

Time For Modern Youth To Give Some Thoughts To Problems Of The Day

Now that the European situation has cleared up somewhat, it is about time for us to switch our thoughts back to American soil and take stock of ourselves. The hackneyed question, "Will United States succumb to dictatorship?", immediately pops into our heads. Thanks to various politicians and pessimists, this question is inclined to be treated as somewhat of a joke, but it is nevertheless of utmost importance to our welfare.

Its answer lies solely in the young people of today. Hitler's success in Germany is due largely to the fact that he won over so completely Germany's youth. Communism is not being accepted in China by the oldsters, but again it is youth who follows blindly. In the case of Germany, however, the younger generation has known nothing but Hitler. With them it is also a case of comply or else—and in China ignorance is the culprit.

Neither of these excuses may be used in the United States. Next year many "jitterbugs" will "truck" merrily off to college. In these institutions of learning far from their sheltered homes, they will come in contact with fiery-eyed fanatics, who use their right of free speech to preach against the government which guarantees that very right.

Will the unsuspecting student be swayed by such wild oratory? If he has any common sense at all, he will turn "thumbs down" on the whole fantastic scheme. A good resolution for the younger generation would be: "We will keep our eyes, ears, and minds open." But if anyone should forget this in the excitement of meeting his first Communist, he could just say, "Am I a man or a mouse," and then hop to it.

Fort Wayne's Safety Record Credited To Lt. Custer Dunifon

The city of Fort Wayne should have the safety record of the United States securely tucked away by now—unless some careless individual has marred the record. Fort Wayne is the only city in Indiana of approximately the same population to go for such a long period of time without a traffic fatality.

Previously, this record was held by Providence, Rhode Island. Providence went 125 days without having anyone killed in a traffic accident. Lieutenant Custer A. Dunifon of Fort Wayne's police force is largely responsible for the showing this city has made. Through his vigorous safety campaign among school children in particular, he has lowered the death rate.

School principals have also been responsible for the "no accident" period by conducting effective safety campaigns in the schools. Perhaps this city can raise the record so high that no other city can approach our record, and it is to this goal that we should look, for there is nothing as good for a town as being safe, to draw new residents and satisfy the present ones.

Just Five Little Words With Very Large Meanings

What five words should high school students use most? This perplexing problem was recently answered by Mr. Makey of the English Department. In giving these five words to the students, Mr. Makey suggested they should be lived as well as spoken.

LAW is the first word in the list. Law is a word often misunderstood. Some people live according to their own laws while others live according to the laws of the land. You have seen both types of people right here in school, those who do as they are told and those who do the opposite. We leave it to you as to which group you are in.

JUSTICE is word number two on the list. Justice for the right and justice for the wrong. Simply meaning that the ones who do wrong will be punished by justice and those who live a fit life will be rewarded. Justice always triumphs.

COMPENSATION comes third on the list. Get something more out of your school work than just high grades. While some students may feel that high grades are a just compensation for their schooling, other students disagree. They feel that their education gives them a broader conception of mankind. These students work hard in clubs and school activities.

LIBERTY is word number four. We have a personal liberty that other peoples do not have. Free speech, free press, and a right to worship our God. Take, for example, Germany where Hitler is the only one who has freedom. Never confuse liberty with this last example.

CONDUCT is the last word. Watch one's manners and doings. Here, at South Side, we would have the student do as he does at home.

Fashion ★ Flashes

Tweeds, herringbones, stripes, mixed colors, tiny hats, and piled hair, all of this makes my head whirl; nevertheless, here's the flashes for this week.

We all like the reversible coat, both from the standpoint of fashion and usefulness. Here is a new version, quite a clever ensemble. A shorter reversible coat, about fingertip length, and boxy. One side gabardine, the other side plaid. This tops a short, pleated matching plaid skirt.

A high-cut skirt, one extending above the waist line, with one of those short hand-knit sweaters, is a new note.

Suede and chamois are the smartest thing in the way of trimming for dresses, even formals and wraps. Put a colored suede on your wrap or dress. Make a very wide belt to match.

Another novelty trim is wool plaid in the form of a long scarf and girdle.

By the way, knit yourself a long, wooly scarf and wear it around your neck this winter. Match it with a little knitted stocking cap with a long tassel. Mix the bright colored yarns together for a stunning effect.

A new style of sleeve is the leg-o-mutton. This makes one think of shirring and high necklines. That's exactly right. High necklines with strings of beads are here again.

Now is the time for all you smart girls to bring out your heirloom jewelry. The large jeweled brooches, clips, rings, and bracelets that grandmother wore, you will again don.

For a smart fall suit use a sporty tweed material. Tweeds are even being used for evening wraps.

Pee Wee Is TOTEMING

It's A Great Life--Learning To Become A Public Speaker

Students at South Side, if they only realized it, have unlimited opportunities as far as public speaking is concerned. Just stop and think of all the phases of this subject that are yours merely for the taking.

The first, and probably the most important as far as getting a background for public speaking, is the Public Speaking class itself. It is under the guidance of that excellent speaker and teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke. You can be the worst type of speaker, have all kinds of fear of speaking before an audience, and yet, Mrs. Rieke can mould you into a fine public speaker. You ask some students why they don't join a class and the answer is usually, "Oh, I'd be scared stiff." That is the poorest excuse one could offer. The "scared stiff" they are the better Mrs. Rieke likes them. Few, even really good public speakers can get up without at least a faint feeling of emptiness in the pit of the stomach; and everyone is at least a tiny bit nervous about facing an audience.

If you think you are nervous or would be nervous, judge yourself by the following example. Mrs. Rieke tells of a boy who, while he was speaking, shifted about on his feet so much (because of nervousness) that he lost his balance and fell to the floor. Yet, this same boy, after he had taken two semesters of public speaking, was able to face an audience without an outward show of nervousness. And this was not an accident, it was "planned that way." Mrs. Rieke has a formula for putting people at ease. Usually she starts out by making you laugh, which of course eases the tension. Then she will tell you what a privilege it is to talk to such a fine audience, thereby retting the listeners all puffed up and in a receptive frame of mind. By this time instead of feeling as if you were going to the guillotine, you are feeling pretty good and discover that all qualms of fear have left you. Then you get up and give a talk that is a howling success (sometimes). Regardless of what you do in later life, you can always use public speaking.

At the present time the classes are engaged in debating. Owing to the fact that there are so few second semester students, they have to give their argument in other classes to give the first semester students an example of how it's done. Each class, when all contests are completed, will have heard three contests consisting of four debaters in each. The second semester will have a chance to sit back and see what first semester students can do.

Sun Rise

Clothed in its brightest dress,
The deep blue sky seems
To be hiding a secret far Beyond our greatest dreams.
Ah, there in the distance,
I view, perhaps the world's Greatest wealth! The sun
Is from its hiding place unfurled.
First a deep orange and now
Turning slowly to gold.
In its splendor, it seems to say,
"Come and see, those who hold."
—Etheldrea Behling, Room 94.

Kelly Koed Kut Ups

Cupid had been gallivanting around quite a lot this last week. Yep, I always did say that you can't keep a good guy down.

As I was snooping around here and there I caught wind of a couple of brand new romances. In fact they're so new that the boys and girls hardly know it yet themselves. There's nothing like being ahead of the news.

Either Dick Warner discovered Billie Lou Beaver or Billie discovered him. I wouldn't be for knowing which. Delores Daniels still burns for tall, dark and handsome Bob Merchant. This romance is merely a continuation of their last year's heart interest.

Pete Meyers has made no secret of the fact that he has more than a mild interest in Jean Russ. As a matter of fact, remember that Jim Phelps is the lucky man in Jean's life.

Don Redding has been asking Martha Jean Smith for dates lately. It's too bad that it won't do him any good because Martha refuses flatly to be wooed.

Millie Frank was broken hearted when that certain boy left for school, but she didn't weep long because Jack Hogan was kind enough to see Millie's plight. He stepped in and is now doing a wonderful job of substituting. But don't get me wrong, Millie is still faithful to her true love.

The name Bob seems to hold a fascination for Virginia Scherer who deserted curly headed Bob Waldorf, of Central, in favor of Bob Beidenweitz.

Bob Hines and Maurine Leas are still twining it. This romance has been going for so long it's hard to remember exactly when they did start going together.

Who is the mysterious boy that flirts with Joan Squires in the gym every fifth period?

Betty Anne Boesse really believes in going a long way for romance. At least she has to go to Crestline, Ohio, for her one and only.

Don't Be "Poisonal!"

The personal approach isn't always poison. There are times when it makes the heart beat faster and so is awfully, awfully good. It is effective when you meet a man on the dance floor and want to register quickly, and when you have a little while—a very little while—alone with somebody. But we don't need to tell you that. You know it! I am just going to label the kinds of personal approaches which from a social point of view are pure poison!

It is important to know about them because at home you are almost always allowed to be personal. Your mother is personal in a nice way. Perhaps she may remark as you come in to dinner, "I wonder if we could do something about the way Janie stands?" Or if you are moody she may say thoughtfully, "What's biting you?" Maybe your brothers and sisters will tell you your date isn't liked by their friends. Well, you can make these personal remarks in the family but not out in the world.

It won't be so very long before we will push out from our homes. You may go to a new school, get a job, or have various plans for the future, so you simply have to realize that there are many times and places when it is "poor stuff" to be personal.

It isn't smooth to make personal remarks about what other people wear. You've been brought up to select your clothes carefully, put them on correctly, and then forget them. Although you often get them back home, it is childish to expect startled cries of delight at what you are wearing. Really smooth men don't discuss what you wear, even in complimentary terms. They say, "You look lovely tonight," or "Blue is your color." Remarks you could make to a friend in the dressing room in praise of a gown are out of place when you have joined the party. I really don't need to tell you that you should never, never ask about a friend's clothes. "Is that a new dress? Where and when did you get it? How much did you pay for it, if you don't mind me asking?" Of course she minds! Even if you do it admiringly, you are being too personal.

The sophisticated approach is to take clothes for granted, to pay compliments only when the occasion seems to demand it, and then to make them rather general.

Don't drag your own tastes and distastes about food into table talk. "I simply love the liver," accompanied by a slight shudder, gets you nowhere and spoils the dish for everyone else. You unconsciously expect the world to care how you react to food. It doesn't so snap out of it. Talk like this puts you in a class with old people who discuss their stomachs and their teeth.

Don't assume that everybody else has an intense interest in your affairs. What happened to you Tuesday afternoon doesn't interest anybody else unless it has some purely personal appeal, such as being very funny. And girls, when a boy asks you what you are knitting, for goodness sakes don't insist on telling him about the boy you met last summer that you are knitting the sweater for.

A dinner table or a party is not the time to make extremely personal inquiries—to ask about a very sick person, for instance. The boy beside you may have just been told that there is no hope for his mother. You will make him very unhappy by bringing up the subject. If you want to show him that you care, ask him, gently, alone. Don't make any inquiries in public if there is the slightest chance that you may embarrass someone by doing so.

Augustus

Out of the chaos of despair
He roused a mighty nation;
But he heard no encouragement,
No cheers of exaltation.
Not until the fight was o'er,
And a victory had been won,
Did people start to realize
Just what this boy had done.
For no one thought he might have power
To gain his uncle's throne.
They thought of him as just a child;
Not yet fully grown.

But Octavius Caesar was no child.
Neither was he a fool.
For he made a friend of Cicero,
To use him as a tool.

Mark Anthony, too, he made a friend,
Old grievances forgot,
And, with Lepidus and Anthony,
He formed a murderous plot.
Kindly, brave old Cicero,
That was to be killed,
For the wishes of Octavius
Were now all fulfilled.

When the people of Rome accepted him,
Through Cicero's kindly words,
Then unruly tribes were conquered
By Anthony's gallant swords.

Octavius murdered both these men,
Without a show of pity,
For he must clear his pathway
To rebuilding of the city.

Octavius built a drainage system.
He also laid new roads,
Rebuilt old temples, built some new,
And many fine abodes.

He then encouraged simple things:
A simple religion and life.
For Rome was tired of constant wars,
With all their bloody strife.

The Romans came to love this man,
Who, to gain his ends,
Had been so ruthless; but who now
Began to make amends.

They made him consul seven times;
But the seventh time he said,
"Your freedom and Republic I give you now, Too long you have been led."

Amid loud cheers of thankfulness,
And shouts of admiration,
Octavius was hailed by all
As Saviour of his nation.

So, though he used a murderous way
To realize his dreams,
Historians have decided
The end did justify the means.
JOYCE REED, Latin 4.

Wee Sketches Of Our Big People

By Dorothy Gore

Personality, capability, and comeliness are only three of the elements he's made of. Ricard, better known as Dick, is one of the swellest of our well seniors. He hails from Indianapolis, our fair capital. Being a good participator in outside activities, he is a member of Extemp Club, president of Wranglers, Three E's, sports writer for The Times, Library, Social Science, and is one of the assistant circulation managers for the Totem staff. Along with being a member of these many clubs, Dick is a top-notch scholar, who works hard and gains a lot. He is the brother of that famous Latin wizard, Betty, a graduate of last June.

Public Speaking is his favorite subject and along with it comes Mrs. Rieke. Dick displayed his public speaking ability in the extemp contest last April, in which he placed third. Desiring to follow in the footsteps of his father, Dick desires to become a physician or surgeon. Upon graduating next June, he hopes to have his name in the list of new freshmen entering Northwestern University.

Sizzling Spanish steaks and brunettes, until a good blonde comes along, are his two chief likes. It seems odd that Dick was stranded with four redheads at extemp club, but he didn't seem to mind it. Moochers come under his list of dislikes, thus showing that he is a loyal supporter of The Times.

Dick enjoys traveling immensely because we find that he has done some extensive traveling in Northern Michigan and Canada.

Dick is really a grand student and a swell person to know. Speaking of knowing, meet Dick Garton.

Pro and Con

How will television, an unknown entertainment, affect our radio listening and movie going students? Well, this is a very excellent debatable subject.

PRO

When television creates something new of its own, it will become interesting and significant. Already, ten or fifteen people may be televised very clearly. One thing of overwhelming interest is the use of the latest cameras. They are mounted on trucks and moved to the appointed spot. Then one of the true miracles of modern day occurs. Because they can be set up near a grandstand, they can transmit a baseball game to you pitch by pitch, hit by hit, errors, runs, and putouts, not a few hours later, but at the very moment of occurrence. Moreover, tennis matches, parades, prize-fights, inaugurations, boat races, horse races, and other interesting activities can be given to you.

In many theaters television has been received on the screen and in England the people are very enthusiastic over this invention, as it gives them an opportunity to see American comedies which they enjoy tremendously. Beauty contests also would be very good for television as one does not know the outcome of these affairs.

An additional complement for television is the fact that gradually a new style of acting will develop, and not the forced and artificial type often given in the movies. All in all, television is a very excellent new discovery, and will be enjoyed when you receive the effect that the person who is televised is in your own room instead of many miles away.

CON

This new entertainment may gradually become more publicly accepted, but will it take the place of the movies and the radio? No, it will not! To many ardent radio listeners, it would appear as a great disadvantage, because it would eliminate all imaginative qualities a person might have. And, after all, a person with a good imagination usually makes a success of himself. For instance, consider a thrilling mystery story re-enacted over the radio and the great fun it would be to imagine the pursuing of the gangsters, the capture, and the prosecution. These incidents would not be enjoyed as much by the public if televised, as the acting would be disturbing, because the sound effects would be going on continuously and the players would be perfectly calm, not taking part in the excitement at all as you would expect. In another way one would be disappointed, if you imagined your favorite radio personage to be one type and when televised he would have an entirely different appearance. Minor hindrances are smallness of size in pictures and blurriness.

Peggy Bacon says, "In its present form television is too expensive for most people to use."

Dancers To Study Various Routines

Three New Dances Taught To Members Of Club; Seventeen Girls Sign Up For The Year.

Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Dean, sponsors of the Dance Club, announced that the club will study three dances this semester. They are the Sea Weed Dance, to be taught by Marjorie Quakenbush and Lois Campbell; the Adagio Couple Dance, and the Spanish high heel dance, for which teachers have not been chosen.

The members of the club for this year are Marjorie Quakenbush, Miriam Jackson, Aleda Randol, Delores Ulrich, Raifido Landadito, Teddy Conner, Joyce Cleaver, Lavonne Geisner, Mary Griffith, Billie J. Stover, Audrey Smith, Elaine Helms, Lois Campbell, Marilyn Wolf, Marjorie Hoyer, Peggy Harrod, and Velma Lehman, pianist. These girls will help furnish entertainment for tea dances, assemblies, and the G. A. A. spring exhibition.

In order to become a member of this club, one must have had experience in dancing. The club meets every Thursday. Miss Dean will be in charge of the first dance, the Sea Weed Dance.

Marjorie McNabb Heads Freshman A Home Room

Election of officers of the Freshman A home room S was held September 30. Marjorie McNabb was elected president; James Barrett, vice-president, and Jean Peterson as secretary.

The following committees were chosen:

Vocation: Chairman, John Gumpner, Peggy Greaney, Kathryn Guild, Donald Stroebel, and Wayne Turley.

Social: Norma Whitsett is chairman. Her committee consists of Richard Trott, Bob Gregg, Nancy McKay, and Roger McVay.

Safety: Chairman, Bernice O'Brian, Norman Fortress, Arthur Howard, Gertrude Irmsher, and Olive Miller. Joan Cox is in charge of the scrap book to be made later.

Movies Serve As Help In Movement Of Fire Prevention

Motion pictures have long been the leaders in setting styles of dress for men and women, but it is only recently that the style in approved electrical appliances and wiring was noted by the Electrical Inspection Bureau in motion pictures, namely in Dick Powell's recent film success, "Flirtation Walk".

In the scene showing the room of Cadet Powell and his room mate, the cords on the study lamp carried small banelets, used to indicate that they had been tested for safety by the Fire Underwriters. The cord, after being carefully tested, has a label placed upon it reading, "Underwriters Laboratories Inspected Cord." Such a label is attached to every five feet of cord.

In the educational work now being conducted by the Bureau, posters, which point out safeguards to fire produced by faulty electrical appliances, are being posted for the public. These posters advise against the running of cords under rugs, the placing of cords at door jams, and the running of cords over radiators or steam pipes. They also recommend that whenever additional wiring is needed, home owners should be sure that all wiring is under the direction of a competent electrical contractor, and that the work is inspected by the Electrical Inspection Bureau.

It is a definite step ahead to find movie producers interested and instrumental in saving lives and property via their participation in fire prevention movements.

Carol Whittner, Marjorie McNabb, and Joan Cox gave talks in home room S, 9A home room. The talks given about various school clubs were to promote interest in club activities.

Pupeteers Initiated At Fall Wiener Bake

Jeanne Hench, Ralph Ransome, Jane Kienefelter, and Mary Ellen Barrett were initiated into the Marionette Club at their annual fall wiener bake at Foster Park on October 6. The initiation was in charge of the entertainment committee, which was Janice Dyer, Royal Steiner, and Max Spencer. The members tried their skill in acting and impersonating during the guessing games.

The food was in charge of the committee comprised of Jeanne Hench, Ralph Ransome, Jane Kienefelter, and Ellen Barrett, headed by Marjorie Dyer. As a special treat, each member was given a small pumpkin pie presented by the South Side Reading Club for which the Marionette Club recently gave a program.

Michigan City Defeats Green By Score 7-0

Lateral Pass Is Responsible For Archers' Fifth Consecutive Loss Of Season

A Michigan City lateral pass play in the fourth quarter was responsible for the South Side Archers' fifth straight defeat of the season by a score of 7-0. South Side, showing remarkable improvement over the week before, consistently outplayed the Red Devils for almost four quarters. However, their hopes for a victory were dashed in the closing minutes of the game by an aerial attack that resulted in the only score of the contest.

First Quarter 0-0

Wise, colored, left half for the Red Devils, shot around his left end for 30 yards on the very first play of the game. With the ball on South Side's 48-yard line, Michigan City attempted three line plays that barely gained a yard, and finally had to kick. The Red Devils started kicking at the South-erners' goal soon after, when Weiler hauled down an Archer pass on his own 35-yard line and hiked it back to mid-field. Lenderack hit center for 9, then Wise scampered around end to the Southerners 16-yard marker. At this point, the Archer line braced and held the Red Devils' line. The quarter ended with the ball on South Side's 14. After exchanging goals, Michigan City missed on an attempted pass and was forced to punt out of danger.

From the end of the first quarter to the fourth, the game was definitely in South Side's favor. The Archers gained consistently on passes and through the Red Devils' line. Biedenweg and Weiler also exchanged long punts with the South Side full back doing sensational kicking. One of Biedenweg's boots went out on the Red Devils' 6-inch line.

Opens Winning Drive

Michigan City opened its winning drive late in the fourth quarter with a pass from Weiler to Lube, and then a lateral to Wise which was good for 18 yards. With the ball on the Michigan City 30, Weiler flipped a pass to Wise which was good for 8 yards. This play was again followed by the lateral pass play which was good for 30 yards. With the ball on South Side's 32-yard line, the Red Devils passed through the fast Archer secondary for another 30 yards. South Side finally took time out but it was too late and two plays later Sanderak, Michigan City back, hit the center of the South Side line and scored. Weiler converted the extra point with a perfect drop kick.

After the kick off, the Archers tried desperately to score with passes but it was too late and the game ended with the ball in Michigan City's possession.

Geography Department Tours Parts Of State

The Physical Geography department of South Side went on their annual tour of Indiana on Thursday, September 22. Forty students and ten parents left in twelve cars, led by Mr. Lloyd Whelan at about one thirty. The caravan left Fort Wayne by way of the Maysville road to visit the outlet of old Lake Maumee. From there they went to road thirty to see a typical beach slope and beach ridge of the old lake. After this they went to the Smith road to visit another outlet of Lake Maumee and the ridge between the St. Marys and Wabash rivers. Next the caravan visited the highest point in the county on the Chapman road, and the Cedar Creek glacial drainage channel between roads one and twenty-seven.

Attention, G. A. A.'ers!! Come one, come all, and sign up for the annual G. A. A. Halloween party to be held Friday, October 21 at 7 o'clock. For only ten cents you have loads of fun and get plenty to eat. Take the advice of those who have gone before and don't miss it.

We wondered why there was so much laughing in the gym office every noon hour, and finally have found the answer. It seems Margery Price and Gwen Roberts have found a new way of greeting each other. For further details see these two girls, and in case you're interested they will show you how it's done in ten easy lessons or less, and with no cost. Here's hoping you get lots of students, girls.

The subject of why Ruth Doeהל goes out for sports has long been a topic for conversation among the girls. We wonder, Ruth, could it be because of a certain Don?

What's this we hear about the seniors winning over the juniors last Friday in hockey by only one point? The senior heroine was none other than the "king of swat," Pauline Oetting. Nice work, Pauline, maybe you'll have more co-operation next time.

Congratulations to Betty Hargan for winning the freshman tennis tournament! Lenora Meyer, runner-up, gave her some stiff opposition, but she came through victorious by the score 6-4, 6-3. That's the way, Betty, there's nothing like earning lots of points in your freshman year, and we wish you lots of luck in the finals.

Other girls to whom credit is due are Jeanne Smith, Agnes Seiler, and Jean Porter for coming out victorious in the sophomore, junior, and senior matches, respectively. Lots of luck to all of you and may the best player win.

Why was Pauline Werling heard singing during hockey last Friday? Was it just from joy of living or was it something else? We wonder, Pauline, can't you give us the answer?

Porkhide Prosperity Just Around Corner Is Archers' Opinion

Optimism is the by-word of those who watch the rise and fall of South Side's football prospects this season. Despite the bad start this season, fans are definitely looking for better times just around the corner. The Archers have proved to be a fighting bunch of boys and have shown that they can give a good account of themselves against any team.

Although they lack valuable experience they are rapidly coming up to the standards of a first-rate squad. By the fight the team has shown on the field against superior teams, it has won the respect and support of a somewhat skeptical school.

Some of the best versed in the probabilities of porkhide prosperity are the following who have submitted their ideas of South Side's chances in the coming grid battles.

Tom Gallmeyer—Although they have won no games, their chances are good.
Sam Hite—A swell chance if they fight.
Don Wolford—A good chance.
Oran Marlow—A good chance if the boys fight hard.
Dick Craig—A good fighting aggression.

Dick Warner—Pretty good chance with Cook and Braden at ends.
Kenny Erne—Chances are fine.
Paul Dammier—O. K., after a little experience.
Bill Reithmiller—All they need is experience.
Gene Senseny—Good spirit, and a good team.
Jim Winters—Swell chances.

On Legion Team

Dick Laird played with the American Legion baseball club. Dick had a better time playing in out of town games than he did in Fort Wayne.

Played Baseball

Verlin J. Lahrman and a group of boys would choose sides and play baseball. They would name themselves after big League teams. Verlin named his team the Giants.

Many G. A. A.'ers Take Hikes, Skate

Five Earn Points Skating; Forty-six Hike To Waynedale, New Haven, Other Places

Many G. A. A. members have taken active participation in hiking and skating. In the last four weeks Wayne-dale, New Haven, Stellhorn Bridge, and around town have been the chief routes for the hikers. The majority of the skaters have earned their points at Bell's Skating Rink.

Those who have participated in skating this year are Bernadine Bender, Bernice Bender, Betty Crum, Dorothy Herrmann, and Virginia Humke.

Those who have taken hikes are Dorothy Amstutz, Wana Mae Bacon, Bernadine Bender, Bernice Bender, Peggy Berning, Dorothy Beyrau, Lois Bremer, Betty Burns, Marguerite Calkins, Bertha Coudret, Justine Coudret, Mary Alice Dunten, Elaine Ferguson, Pauline Gregory, Faye Gumpfer, Lois Gumpfer, Ruth Hoover, Dorothy Hermann, Betty Hargan, Martha Jane Krauskopf, Elizabeth Kelso, Lenore Kensler, Geneva Martin, Mary Menze, Gertrude Merkel, Vera Moser, Audrey Mutschleiner, Frances Nash, June Neith, Betty Nichols, Hazel Perry, Bernadine Pressler, Mary Jane Risson, Lucile Scheimann, Pauline Schoenherr, Jeanne Smith, Rosemary Spore, Virginia Sprunger, Joan Squires, Maxine Stough, Carolyn Stratter, Delores Ulrich, Pauline Werling, June Whelan, Jeanet Whetsel, and Eleanor Wittwer.

Grid Team's Brain Found Under Locks Of Stuart Welborn

Charles Stuart Welborn was born on a farm way out in Hancock County, Indiana in the year 1922. At the ripe old age of two years, accompanied by his parents, he moved to Fort Wayne. Stu's early mental development got off to a good start at Harrison Hill Grade School.

Upon entering South Side Stu went out for football and he has been out ever since. He likes all his high school subjects and also likes all of his teachers. During the summer Stu spends most of his time working on his grandfather's farm.

Under Stu's curly thatch of hair (which by the way is his pride and joy) lie the brains of the South Side football team this year. His signal calling during the games directs every play the Archers make. Welborn is about 5 feet 11 inches tall and he says he weighs 150 pounds; however, this is debatable since most football players mentally add a few pounds to their weight. Upon being questioned about Bill Moss, Stu replied, "I think he is a swell guy and a swell coach." When asked about South Side's chances in the city series games, Stu sort of went out on a limb and said, "South Side has a swell chance to make a good showing, and I think we will beat Central and Central Catholic when we play them."

Bing Crosby's show is Stu's favorite radio program. Curly doesn't have any particular favorite in the cinema world; however, he does prefer picture shows that have plenty of murders in them. Regarding the opposite sex, Stu gave our writer the impression that swing music was a lot more interesting than girls could ever be. Some people seem to get Mr. Welborn's first name mixed up. They never can tell whether it is a name or a condition, and so Stu has made a public request through the broad arm of the press, that he be called Charles instead of Stu.

Charles doesn't belong to any club in South Side. Football takes up all of his time. However, as soon as the season is over, he will probably be interested in the Letterman's Club.

As far as Stu's future intentions are concerned, he hasn't any yet. He does intend to go to college but he doesn't know which one.

Stu is only a junior in South Side, and next year he should develop into a real triple threat for the Archer football team.

Who Makes The Holes

In the last few weeks that our football team has seen action on the grid-iron, little mention has been made of the work done by our linemen. In this article are mentioned some of our outstanding linemen and the work they have done.

In the end positions, Leroy Cook has been playing a flashy game of ball. Leroy is only a junior, and we should hear more of him next year. Dick Goshorn, although he had had practically no experience in games before this year, has developed into a fine end.

"Blackie" Braden, a junior, has played in some of our games this year and has been doing a good job. More of him next year. Maurice Lehman has also played a good game this year.

In the tackle department, Chuck Close seems to be outstanding. Although Chuck does not tackle in just the manner our coach tells him to, he is usually able to bring his man down. Art Miller, although he is not as big as Chuck, makes up for it in intestinal fortitude and drive.

Bill Shultz has played in most of our games this year and has been responsible for many nice tackles. Joe Loos, a sophomore, has played quite a bit this year, and by next year should be one of our best tackles.

In the guard position, Byron McCammon seems to be outstanding. Byron is one of the fastest men on the line. Besides being able to block, he also gets quite a few tackles. Bob Merchant has played quite a bit this year. Bob is one of the hardest hitting men on the team.

Bill Steup is one of our best blockers. Bill has played in most of our ball games this year. Dave Roth is only a junior. He has played a good game this year and should be very good next year.

"Red" Ferguson is the outstanding center this year. He has been doing an excellent job of blocking and tackling, as well as centering. When it comes to fight, "Red" certainly has it in him. Byron Gingham, a freshman, played in some of our games and did a very good job. We should hear more of this boy in the years to come.

Although the backfield men make the touchdowns, it is the men on the line who open up the holes for them to run through.

G. A. A. Plays Off Hockey Games

Senior 1, Junior 2, Sophomore 4, 3 Teams Win; Three Make 1-0 Final Score, One 2-1.

G. A. A. hockey games were played Friday, October 7 on the new field and teams senior 1, junior 2, sophomore 4, and sophomore 3 defeated junior 1, sophomore 5, sophomore 1, and sophomore 2 teams.

In the first game between Hazel Perry's senior 1 and Marian Feister's junior 1, the score was 1-0 in favor of the seniors. Pauline Oetting made the only goal to win the game for her team.

Maxine Morrison's junior 2 beat Elaine Ferguson's sophomore 5 in the second game by the score of 1-0. Hertha Hoffman made the only score in the game.

Gloria Weibke and her sophomore 4 team defeated Geneva Martin's sophomore 1 by the score of 1 to 0. Lois Campbell made the goal, and through this her team won the game. Jeanne Smith's sophomore 3 team defeated Bernadine Pressler's sophomore 2 by the score of 2 to 1. Justine Coudret and Bernice Bender made two points for their winning team. Bernadine Pressler made the only score for her team.

G. A. A. Will Have Halloween Party

Annual Affair To Be Held October 21; One Of Main Events Of Year; Committees Named.

The annual G. A. A. Halloween party will be held on October 21, at 8:00 in the cafeteria. This is one of the largest events on the club calendar. Miss Smith has announced that a novel program, dancing, refreshments, and prizes for costumes are the features to be offered during the evening, all for the price of ten cents. The affair will be open to all G. A. A. members and also to their friends.

The committees who will undertake the arrangements for the party have been announced as follows: Food, Audrey Hall, chairman; Betty Marquardt, Betty Hargan, Carol Whit-tern, and Dorothy Amstutz; program, Hazel Perry, chairman, Frieda Schubert, Martha Jane Krauskopf, Clara Makey, and Velma Lehman; decorations, Thompsie Hall, chairman, Marjory Price, Peggy Greaney, Rose Stemen, and Gwen Roberts.

The prizes and the tickets will be in charge of Betty Showalter and Jeanne Smith respectively. Betty Showalter will be assisted by Donna Dennis and Wilma Carrier, and Jeanne Smith will be aided by Mary Alice Dunten and Justine Coudret.

Students Express Different Opinions On Grid Uniforms

No doubt you have heard one of the many programs on the radio in which various people are asked questions about different things of interest to the majority of people. Well your scribe is using the same principle when he asks you your opinion of the new football uniforms worn by the Archer squad in their home games throughout the football season.

Answers to my question, "What do you think of South Side's football suits?" were as follows:

Safford McMyler: Oh, I think that they're peachy.

Lola Rodriguez: They'd be better if they wore white socks with them.

Killer Miller: I like them fine.

Kathryn Kosch: They're loud.

Richard Dorsch: They'll do in a pinch.

Louis Hallenstein: Awful.

Dick Stuary: I'd like them better if they wore white shirts with the green pants.

Joel Salom: Not so hot.

Roy Heavner: The players look like ballet dancers in the new suits.

Mary Lampton: I think they're swell.

Joyce McAlister: O. K. I guess.

Max Spencer: The suits make 'em look like dwarfs.

Doris Seibold: I like the suits. They are a pretty green.

Betty Micho: Pretty nice.

Bob Safer: I don't like them.

Jeanne Gumpfer: After you look at them for a while they begin to look okay.

June McAlister: They are all right.

Allison Arnold: I think that they're all right.

Maurine Leas: Gosh—What'll I say.

South Side's Squad To Meet Froebel's Eleven Saturday

Team Reports Show Backfield Is Plenty Fast

Will Show How Much Experience Archers Have Gained Since First Game.

Ground, Aerial Attack Is Good

Goshorn, Braden, Loos, McCammon, Roth, Biedenweg, Steup, Close To Play

South Side's ball club will take on another tough opponent on their home ground Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock when they match plays with Froebel. Froebel is reported to have a fast backfield with plenty of power in the line.

The Green came to life against Michigan City and kept the ball down in the foe's territory most of the afternoon, lacking the final punch necessary to score.

Michigan City got their chance late in the last quarter and took the ball to the one-yard line. The Archer line stood a real test for two downs allowing no gain. However, on the third try the lumps managed to break through. Bob Biedenweg led the Archer attack, playing splendid ball and kicking out of tough spots again and again. Shimer came into the game for a short time showing some good punting and running.

The Archers showed decided improvement in the game, and are expected to do as well against the Froebel team although Coach Moss will probably go easy, saving something for the Central Catholic game which will mark the Green's entrance into the City Series. The hope for the coming games has definitely risen in the Southern camp since the display of power against the Red Devils.

All eyes will be on the Froebel-South Side contest this Saturday which will show just how far the Archers have come from the inexperienced eleven that took the field against Washington of South Bend. The Archers have partial experience, fighting spirit, a fair ground attack, and a better aerial attack to match the fast, veteran backfield and the strong line of Froebel.

Those who saw steady service against Michigan City and will probably be in the lineup this Saturday are Goshorn and Braden at ends, Miller, Loos, and Close alternating at tackles, McCammon, Steup, and Roth changing off at guards, and Ferguson at center. In the backfield will be Biedenweg and Shimer at full, Moorhead and Patherer at half, and Welborn and Pyock changing at quarter.

With five defeats charged against them these boys will be out there trying to chalk up the points and come out on top in the struggle with Froebel.

Officers' Election Held By Bowmen

Heads Are Robert Henry, Chief Archer, Carl Stump, Harvey Everett, And John Chedester.

An election of officers was held at the first meeting of the newly formed Archery Club, October 4, in room 46.

The following officers were elected: chief archer, Robert Henry; field officer, Carl Stump; point recorder, Harvey Everett; and inter-club congress representative, John Chedester.

Due to rain, the boys remained inside to study a demonstration and explanation of point of aim. During the meeting the weather cleared up enough to enable the boys to go outside.

The club intends to run tournaments every month and the plan to be used for the basis of presenting a "S" letter to the boy who scores at least 450 points during a single contest in the coming year. The boys are making their own bows and proceeding with a great deal of success.

Open Holes For Archer Backs

Two mainstays of the Archer line this season are LeRoy Cook (left) and Bob Biedenweg. Both are lettermen and saw action in last season's battles. Any success which the Green and White may have this year will be to a great extent the result of fine blocking and tackling on the part of these two linemen.

Local Elevens To Face Easy Outside Teams

Tigers Encounter Auburn; Redskins Foe Is Garrett; C. C. Will Face Decatur

Fort Wayne prep schools should have a comparatively easy time chalking up wins over their out-of-town foes this weekend. Auburn, Garrett, and Decatur are the local high school competition for the week, and out of the three schools named none of them seem equal to the task of defeating one of the local elevens.

Central Faces Auburn

Central will meet Auburn next Saturday afternoon at the northern athletic field. The Tigers should have little trouble in repeating their last year's performance when they beat the Red Devils by 35 to 6 count. Auburn was beaten by 50-0 score recently by Bluffton and from all appearances, the Red Devils should be easy pickings for the Tigers.

However, Central may suffer from a let down after the terrific battle they gave North Side last week, and the Tigers may be in for a busy afternoon. Coach Murray Mendenhall will probably give his varsity a much-needed rest, calling on them as little as possible during the course of the game. The Tiger reserves will share most of the burden for Central, next Saturday, and Mendenhall will probably use as many of them as possible.

C. C. To Battle Decatur

Central Catholic will engage Decatur at the North Side athletic field Friday afternoon. Held to 6-6 tie by Garrett last week, the Irish will be raring to chalk up their first win of the season at the Yellow Jackets' expense. Garrett defeated Decatur by a score of 13-0 this year, and the Irish believe they can do as well as Garrett did. Central Catholic last season nosed out Decatur by a score of 6-0 after a hard-fought battle. The Yellow Jackets recently held Central to 13-13 tie and they may hand the Fighting Irish a surprise Friday afternoon.

North Side will continue their march toward a claim on the mythical state gridiron title, when they engage Garrett next Saturday afternoon at the Railroaders' gridiron. The Red Skins after four hard contests will have a chance to catch their breath before they play Boase of Evansville on October 22. The Garrett game will give Coach Bob Nulf a chance to see some of his reserves in action and also a chance to give them some experience.

Redskins Tackle Garrett
Last year North Side handed Garrett a 25-22 beating and the Redskins should do as well this time as they did last year. The only thing that might beat the rampaging Redskins is overconfidence and a general all-around letdown after the Central game. But this is hardly expected and North Side should get by with an easy afternoon.

All-City Chatter

Jim Boedeker, captain of this year's Central Catholic basketball team, has begun practice with about fifteen of this year's prospects who are not playing football.

Central's Tigers really gave the racing Redskins a battle in their city series game last weekend. The Central boys showed great improvement in holding the crushing running attack of the North Siders to two touchdowns while they scored one themselves to lose by 13-6 in a game that was more exciting than a regular college game.

North Side will try to make it five straight this week and their fourteenth consecutive victory in the last two seasons when they meet Garrett next Saturday.

South Side will meet a strong Froebel eleven this week in a game that will act as a barometer for their city series encounter with Central Catholic the following week. The Archers have a much improved team and are beginning to appear as a dark horse in the race for the city crown. Central Catholic still remains as a threat although they have been beaten twice already.

Refreshment Statistics For Games Announced

Miss Mary Pocock, one of the concession faculty advisers of the Booster Club, has announced the amount of refreshments sold at the home football game October 8. Paul Johnson and Albert Speckman sold the most pop corn. Betty Clem sold the most taffy apples.

Because the weather was so warm, more Coco-Cola was sold than usual. The pop corn machine from The Grill was moved to the stadium for the football game last Saturday. Mr. Herb Kenworthy from The Grill operated the pop corn machine.

There were green and white cheese cloth pennants on the west side of the stadium where the South Side students sat. On the east side of the stadium where the students of Michigan City sat there were red and white pennants of cheese cloth. These were put up under the direction of Miss Blanche Hutto, decorations committee faculty adviser.

Tigers, Redskins Due For Victories

Scribe Forsees Easy Wins For Red, Blue; Both Prove Merit In Hard Games Of Past Week

North Side's rampaging Redskins and Central's fighting Tigers seem due for a couple of rather easy wins in their respective games with Garrett and Auburn. Both North Side and Central played good hard games last week, and they showed that they can really cut loose on occasion.

Frank Werling, the Redskins' hard running player, is expected to lead his team to victory over Garrett's Railroaders on the basis of his performance against Central last Friday. Werling is a fine all-around ball player and is one of the hardest runners in the city. He was the main power behind the throne in the clash Friday, and his team should take Garrett, unless they get in a slump which is possible after their 13-7 win over the Tigers.

Central is expecting Bill Hanley, star backfield man, to shove his team over the Auburn Red Devils. Bill played a swell game against North Side and with his team showed that the Tigers are hard to stop. Auburn has a good squad, but it is doubtful if the Devils can stop Central's flashy attack. On the basis of competitive scoring it is believed that Central will take Auburn by several touchdowns.

Central and North Side both might take the all-city title if either South Side or Central Catholic can trip one of the teams in an off moment, and the power the teams have displayed in their games so far have shown that they will be hard to beat. North Side is already being hailed as Indiana's best prep school team, and if that is so, Central is right behind them. Both teams have a little too much stuff on the ball to be taken by many of the teams in this section of the country.

Intramural Golf Boys Should Turn In Scores

All boys who have entered the intramural golf tourney have been requested to turn in their scores so that the higher scores can compete in the final tournament. As soon as the scores have been handed in to Burl Friddle, a drawing will be made to determine opponents in the final matches. This tournament probably will not be held till the end of this week.

The winners in this final tourney will undoubtedly be chosen to represent the school on the varsity golf squad next spring.

Goes to Fort Wayne National Bank

Rosalyn Gale

Miss Rosalyn Gale, daughter of Mrs. Lola M. Reed, has accepted a position with the Fort Wayne National Bank.

Miss Gale is a graduate of South Side High School, ranking in the upper third of her class. She decided on a business career and enrolled with International College in Fort Wayne, and graduated this past month from the Executive Secretarial Department.

Freshman Teams 2, 3, Win Speedball Games

The freshmen proved that they were very good speedball players by the fine playing which they displayed at the games last Monday. On the east field, team 1 led by Rose Stemen met team 3 under Orlida Braun and defeated them 7-0. Those who contributed points for the winning team were Peggy Greany, Rose Stemen, and Dolores Bodenhorn. On the west field, Keinzle's team 4 was defeated by Le-nora Moyer's team 2 by a score of 12-2. Outstanding players on team 2 were Bertha Coudret, Rosemary Spore, and Betty Hargan.

Jack Glenn Plays Ball

Jack Glenn held membership in a softball league, and in spite of not being on the winning team that won a trip to Chicago, he enjoyed the playing.

Art School Awards Four Scholarships

Roy McKee, Clara Hawse, Lisea Kaiser, Basil Thompson Are South Side Art Recipients

Two pupils from Miss Erma Dochtermann's classes and two from Miss Blanche Hutto's classes received the scholarships which were offered by the Fort Wayne Art School for art study on Saturday mornings.

One from Miss Dochtermann's class was Roy McKee, 11A, Art 6 student, who has had two previous scholarships in Dayton, Ohio, Art Institute before he came to Fort Wayne and has been in her classes for two years. He has had experience as a helper in art studies. He intends to go into the field of art, earning his way in a little business he worked up this summer, putting signs on windows.

The other student from Miss Dochtermann's classes was Clara Hawse, 11B, Art 3 student, who is especially talented in costume and fashion designing.

Those students who received the scholarships in Miss Blanche Hutto's classes were Lisea Kaiser, 10B, Art 3 student, and Basil Thompson, 12B, Art 7 student. Both students have been interested in life drawings.

Thoughts Of Fun At Lakes Still Linger With Archers

Extensive trips were enjoyed by some South Siders, unique experiences came to others, but the majority of pupils received their chief summer recreation at nearby lakes.

Mary Cathering visited the Smoky Mountains this summer. She was up very high and thought it was very beautiful looking around. She saw an old mountaineer and a bear which she thought were very interesting.

Helen Guysinger's most interesting experience was when a storm came up while she was out on the lake and nearly upset the boat.

Bob Hageman's most interesting experience was when he saw a horse shoe pitching contest between Fort Wayne and Detroit.

Eunice Lahtman, while staying at Eve Lake, went fishing and boating. She saw a little boy, who was frightened by a turtle, jump out of a boat and nearly drown.

Trendell Terry earned money this summer doing odd jobs.

William Thomson and some of his friends spent their time building model airplanes. When they finished their models, they took them down to a vacant lot to test them for distance, time, and endurance.

Patricia Towns had the experience of sailing in a sailboat this summer. Carol Trenary visited the Ford Motor Plant at Dearborn, Michigan.

Theda Tyndall motored to Lake Wawasee with some friends for a picnic lunch.

Committees for the Wo-Ho-Ma Club meetings were elected at the second meeting of the Wo-Ho-Ma Club on October 6 in the Greeley Room. The chairmen are as follows: October 20, Installation, chairman Betty Wyss, Eileen Goddard, and Kathryn Goerger; November 3, Program and Entertainment, chairman Gertrude Merkel, Dorothy Allen, and Helen Wyss; November 17, Play, chairman Joel Earl, Patty Lyman; December 1, Program and Entertainment, chairman Betty Wimmer, Betty Lapp; December 15, Christmas Party, chairman Louise Haugk, Norma Jean Sprunger, and Mildred Korte; January 12, Potluck, chairman Eileen Hermann, Eileen Kiessling, and Marjorie Gerding.

Miss Eleanor Smeltzly gave an interesting talk on "My Trip to Australia." The theme selected for the discussion at Wo-Ho-Ma Club meetings is "Home Life Of Today And Yesterday." Patty Lyman was selected representative for Inter-club Congress. Eileen Goddard was in charge of the hand shake game.

Studied At Epworth

Pauline Nordyke spent part of the summer at the Epworth League Institution. The entire morning was taken up by classes, her favorite being choir. In the afternoon, swimming, boating, and other activities occupied her time.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

In Mrs. Welty's English 4 class, Thomas Young has earned the required number of points for collateral reading.

Miss Crowe's Health classes had an examination over the first two units. Those receiving 95 or above were: Ilene Briggs, Katherine Ernsberger, Susanne Sweet, Louise Lovelace, Dorothy Rohrbach, Virginia Menze, Jeanne Gumpfer, Joyce Harwood, Joyce McAlister, June McAlister, James Murphy, Ella Jo Reed, and William Reithmiller.

Kenny Warren, a student in Miss Pocock's home room, was the author of an article on dahlias appearing on the youth page of the News-Sentinel. Basil Thompson, also a member of this home room, won a scholarship to the Fort Wayne Art School.

Phyllis Lauer gave an interesting talk on the famous Greek Pericles, in Mr. Moss' General History class, period 4.

In the English 3 classes of Miss

Pocock's the following pupils made A or A— on a test over the Merchant of Venice: Betty Koehler, Eloise Updike, Lois Gumpfer, and Helen Ninde.

To show that Latin is used today, Phyllis Mueller, one of Miss Oppelt's Latin 1 pupils, brought in from the American Turnerbund Society, which has for its chief objective a sound mind in a sound body, a diploma bearing this Latin quotation, "Mens sana in corpore sana." An emblem, also of this society indicating this same quotation and showing a picture of the "Discus Thrower," was brought in by Pauline Schoenherr.

For the vocational day in Miss Thorne's home room, Evelyn Kromler reviewed an article by President Hutchins entitled "Who Should Go To College." On the safety day in Miss Thorne's home room, Alfred Hertel reported on the three types of accidents which need immediate first aid.

South Side Evening Is Successful Affair At Theater Opening

South Side Night held at the Paramount Theater was a gala affair. The crowd was tremendous, and the cheers were given with great enthusiasm. The vaudeville, which consisted of Ozzie Nelson's swing band and his troupe, seemed to please the audience greatly.

After the conclusion of the stage show, Ozzie Nelson introduced the master of ceremonies, Jack Brazy, a student at South Side High School. Then Jack entertained for a few minutes with an act of magic, using silks to create a magical transformation.

South Side celebrities announced at the theater were Burl Friddle and his 1938 basketball champions, namely, Don Beery, John Chedester, Carl Hall, Bob Bolyard, Harold Kitzmiller, and Jim Glass. Other honored guests mentioned at the theater were Mr. Jack Wainwright, Miss Rowena Harvey, Mr. Ora Davis, and Mr. A. Verne Flint. The cheer leaders who led the yells were Tom Gallmeyer, Charles Haugk, and Sam Hite.

Concluding the program, the pit orchestra played the South Side school song. Not only was South Side honored at being guests of the theater, but also North Side and Central as well; and Jack Brazy was master of ceremonies for all schools.

Totem Sales On First Day Beat Record

Exactly 201 Subscriptions Are Obtained By Seniors On Initial Campaign Date

Ed Reeves Tops Among Solicitors

Leads With 14, Followed Closely By Bill Newhard; Girls In Second and Third

"The Totem's" first day campaign, under the supervision of Kenneth Warren, business manager, broke all previous first day records, by attaining 200 subscriptions. The goal, which was set for 100 subscriptions, was completely doubled. Those agents making the highest sales were Ed Reeves, 14; Bill Newhard, 12; Phyllis Hayner, 11, and Helen Wiehe, 10.

The price of The Totem will be $2.00 until November 4, which is the deadline for the campaign. This sum may be paid in full or in installments of 25 cents a month until the amount is paid in full. For those who subscribe before November, names will be printed on the yearbooks. After the campaign, The Totem will cost $2.25. Deadlines for payments will be November 4, December 2, January 27, February 24, March 24 and April 21.

Details of the 1939 Totem campaign were discussed at a senior meeting which was held in the study hall Tuesday afternoon. Speakers were Mr. Snider, Miss Harvey, Phyllis Geller, Nadine Mueller, Kenny Warren and Max Spencer, who presided.

Following is a list of The Totem agents and the rooms to which they have been assigned:

Margie Quackenbush, 2; Nancy Valiton, 4; Marjorie Clapp, 6; Mary Lampton, 8; Annette Snook, 12; Donna Dennis, 14; Julia Ann Smith, 22; Aubrey Kellough, 24; Laura Jane Reed, 25; Peggy Bacon, 26; Janice Dyer, 28; Lois Lea, 29; Betty Neeb, 30; Margaret Null, 32; Marjorie Wallace, 34; Eugene Schmidt, 38; Hazel Perry, 44; Robert Byers, 50; Anna Lou Kowalski, 52; Richard Buchholz, 54; Kitty Clinard, 56; Lillian Patton, 58; Gwendolyn DeWees, 60; William Gernand, 61; Margaret Gross, 62; Dick Zieg, 64; June Enoch, 66; Virginia Shidler, 68; Bob Bolyard, 70; Joann Bradley, 72; Helen Banks, 74; Phyllis Hayner, 75; Ed Reeves, 76; Frieda Schubert, 77; John Magley, 80; Imogene Wright, 82; Helen Faux, 85; Wilma Carrier, 90; Mary Treen, 91; Bill Newhard, 92; Patty Lyman, 94; Betty Daniels, 96; Jeanette Warren, 98; Eleanor Vese, 108; Velda Oppenlander, 110; Max Wagner, 140; Frances Van Buskirk, 142; Dorothy Lander, 144; Herman Ankenbruck, 146; Dorothy Hall, 172; Dick Garton, 174; Betty Bolyard, 176; Betty Franklin, 178; Ruth Bade, Study; Beth Ellen Chadwick, Study; Velma Connitt, Study; Beverly Ann Griffith, Study; Joan Hess, Gym; Helen Wiehe, Library.

The three city high school year books competed with books from thirty states.

Torch Club To Visit Journal-Gazette Plant

Thursday, October 27, the Torch Club will inspect the plant of the Journal-Gazette. This bi-weekly meeting has been made possible by the efforts of Dick Brouwer whose uncle is employed by the paper as a reporter.

At the meeting last Friday, the club journeyed to Mr. Joe Plaskett's farm eight miles west of town. There were fourteen boys present and three men, Mr. Sprinkle and Mr. Lehman, who helped Mr. Plaskett.

The officers elected at the first meeting of the year are, president, Charles Wehmyer; vice-president, Dick Brouwer; secretary-treasurer, Ralph Herd, and Inter-Club Congress representative, Donald Penn.

Besides the trip through the Journal-Gazette plant, the club also has many other activities planned.

Charlotte Kern, senior, has been absent from school because of appendicitis attacks.

First Scottish Rite Dance Is Saturday

Dances Are Again Being Sponsored Due To Popularity Of Last Year's; Dates Are Set

The Scottish Rite is again sponsoring a series of young people's dance parties for the 1938-1939 fall and winter season. The dances last season were so well attended and enjoyed by the young people and friends of Scottish Rite and Masonic members, that it was decided to start the series early.

The dates and themes decided upon are: October 22, gingham and overalls; November 19, sport; January 21, snowball; February 18, Valentine, and April 15, spring formal.

Sons and daughters of Scottish Rite and Masons, members of Job's Daughters and DeMolay and their friends are welcome. Tickets are available only from Scottish Rite members, who must request them from the secretary, Samuel S. Geake. Every young person in attendance must come sponsored by a Scottish Rite member, though not necessarily from a Masonic family.

Music will be furnished by Eddie Camden's 10-piece band of Chicago. Eddie Camden was formerly with Don Bestor's orchestra.

The committee includes the following: Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Roembke, general chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Strodel, Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Merchant, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sparks, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Riethmiller, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Schell, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krueper, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Forks, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bixby, and Mr. and Mrs. Gled Bowen.

U. S. A. Members Do Needlework At Meet

Needlework for the Y. W. C. A. was done at the U. S. A. Club meeting on Thursday, October 13, in the Greeley Room at 3:30 o'clock. This consists of the washing, hemming and ironing of towels.

Miss Kelley gave the girls green feathers with white felt S's to sell for five cents. This is to give them service for the club.

Louisa Haugk played several selections on the piano to entertain the members while they were working. Jonajean Tracht and Maxine Crago also played several pieces.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider

Now that South Side has had its rejuvenation, Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, has many additional duties of assigning class rooms, figuring out complex schedules, supervising the finishing touches and seeing that the building is kept looking new.

Year Books Get Laurels In Contest

Totem, Legend, Caldron Awarded First Places In Journalistic Event; Many Compete.

The Totem, The Legend, and The Caldron of 1938 were awarded blue ribbons as first place winners in the fourth annual critique and contest of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. This announcement was made at the first of this week by Joseph M. Murphy, director of the association at Columbia University.

The Totem was entered with year books from schools having an enrollment of 1,501 to 2,500.

Central idea, layout, editorial content, photography, engraving, printing and typography, paper stock, and binding of each book were the major points which were judged. The best possible score was 1,000 with the greatest emphasis on the editorial content.

The three city high school year books competed with books from thirty states.

Miss Mary Pocock Tells Of Change Made In South Side Since Institution First Started

By Dorothy Bloemker

"I think the greatest change in South Side since I attended it is the large increase in the number of students," remarked Miss Mary Pocock, first South Side graduate to be added to the faculty.

"Most of the other changes are due in part to this increase. For instance, there have to be stricter rules with a larger attendance. Then there were only 800 to 900 students, and the halls weren't as crowded as they are today, one reason being we didn't have to have lockers in the halls.

Remembers Six Clubs

"Today, South Side has a large number of clubs." In the school days of this young teacher there were only about six clubs; namely, Philo, So-Si-Y, Wranglers, Math-Science, 1500 and the boys' Hi-Y.

"I worked on The Times as copy reader," Miss Pocock stated, "and it is quite different now than it used to be. The Times room was room 20 and there was no press room. The papers always had to be taken to Central High School for printing.

"The paper itself was much smaller, but as soon as we began entering it in contests it took honors right away."

"Miss Harvey had long hair when they were today," remarked Miss Pocock. "In fact, nearly all of the teachers that have bobbed hair now had long hair then."

Choose School Colors

"During my school days there were not any music assemblies. We usually had paid entertainments and not many of them. I do remember the first assembly, though. We discussed whether the school colors should be purple and white or green and white. My, there certainly was a debate on that subject."

"Another difference," she remarked, as she heard some girls getting their

Laud School Board For Their Excellent Construction Plan

The entire reconstruction work done on South Side centers around one controlling force—the Fort Wayne Board of Education. The Board was responsible for the bonds which were issued to raise the needed sum for the reconstruction work. This bond was first presented to the people of Fort Wayne for their approval, and then to the Board of Education for their approval.

After the board had completed this first and most important step, they prepared the instructions for the architect so he could make out the plans. The next duty which was put before the board was to check over the carefully planned diagram of the architect. Next came the advertising and selling of the bond issue. The board states that this was the lowest interest-bearing issue ever sold in the state.

The school board then had to supervise the advertising of the contracts and the receiving of the bids. After they had picked the lowest bidders, the chosen bidders were established and were contracted to put in the heating, lighting and plumbing systems, and to do the general contracting.

One cannot question the outstanding achievements which the Fort Wayne School Board has strived so hard to attain. There are new and modern offices for the principal, dean and guidance department. There are new rooms for the music department, new Greeley Room to be used for club dramatics, a new, better-lighted and properly-ventilated study hall, and many new class rooms.

Miss Elizabeth Kelley Speaks To Club On South American Trip; Refreshments Served

"Come to Travel Club and hear all about South America" was the invitation to yesterday's meeting in the Greeley Room. The meeting was opened with the regular business session, under the direction of the president, Bill Newhard. At the conclusion of the business meeting, the program was turned over to Lois Holtmeyer who introduced the speaker of the day, Miss Elizabeth Kelley. Miss Kelley told all about her trip during the summer in South America.

At the conclusion of the educational part of the program, games were played, and refreshments were served, consisting of cookies in the shape of South America, with "S. A." printed on them.

The next meeting of Travel Club will be held in the Greeley Room on November 2.

Choose Totem Editor New 1500 President

Max Spencer, Totem editor, was elected president of South Side's 1500 Club at a joint meeting of North Side's and South Side's groups held in the form of a dog-bake Friday evening in Foster Park. Bruce Bradbury was elected vice-president; Betty Daniels, secretary; and Margery Rapp, treasurer.

Those attending from North Side were Shelly Wagner, Rose Stieber, Alice McGhee, Jean Scott, Bill Gerhard, Tom Suedhoff and Dick Roberts. Eleanor Vese was general chairman and Julia Ann Smith was food chairman. Assisting her were Joan Hess and Lora Lee Montgomery.

Class Officers To Be Elected This Morning

Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors To Name Heads For Year, Home Room Period

Principal To Try New Election Plan

Pupils To Write On Ballots Six Persons For Office; Paper To Publish Results

Class elections, under an entirely new plan, will be held by sophomores, juniors and senior classes this morning during the usual home room period. After trying out other plans in previous years, Mr. R. Nelson Snider, principal, will inaugurate the new system this morning. Results of the election may be found in next week's Times.

Students will write the names of six persons they feel capable of holding office on prepared ballots; these will be sent to the new general offices and there will be tabulated by Mr. Snider.

Last year, a system was devised whereby home room representatives voted in a body and selected candidates. These were then sent to each of the large rooms, and a final vote was taken.

Philo's Fall Frolic Has Gypsy Theme

Highlight Of Program Furnished By Fortune Teller; Dance Accordions Selections Given

Philo's annual Fall Frolic was held at Foster Park, Monday evening in the form of a wienner bake. The theme, "On a Gypsy Trail," selected for the affair, was carried out in a colorful program. Miss Martha Jackson, accompanied by Alice White, did a Gypsy dance, and a Central graduate played on the accordion that old Gypsy favorite, "Dark Eyes." The highlight of the meeting was furnished by a Gypsy fortune-teller who later turned out to be Miss Gertrude Oppelt, Latin instructor. Miss Martha Pittenger was a guest. Several members of the entertainment committee came in Gypsy costumes.

After a treasure-hunt in which treasures were found by Dorothy Gerdorn and Audrey Hall, popular songs were sung under the direction of Francis Van Buskirk. Various games were also played. Prizes for the games went to Annette Snook and Lois Lea.

The menu consisted of wieners, buns, doughnuts, cider, apples and marshmallows.

Committees in charge were as follows: Publicity, Dorothy Hall and Audrey Hall; food, Maurine Seibert, chairman, Kathleen Ramer, Della Rauner and Marjorie Jackson; finance, Gwen DeWees, chairman, and Avel Bridges; entertainment, Betty Lou Geake, chairman, Phyllis Geller, Betty Neeb, Betty Marquardt and Francis Van Buskirk; food, sticks and fire, Velda Oppenlander, chairman, and Betty Daniels.

Archer Extemp Club Will Choose Subjects

This afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the South Side Extemp Club will hold its fourth meeting. Members will choose their subjects and will have until 5:30 o'clock to prepare them. At that time supper will be served. After the evening's meal, the meeting will continue until 7:30 o'clock with the speeches.

The guest critics for tonight's affair will be Mr. Paul Miller and Mr. Otto Grant, Jr.

At the last meeting the meal consisted of chili, brought by June and Joyce McAlister and Charles Bollman, while Ed Reeves and Mrs. Rieke brought the dessert. The guest critics for last week's affair were Mrs. Virginia Kincaid and Mrs. Lex Combs.

Mr. Russell Clark Has Important Part As School Engineer

Students, in handing out compliments, do not fail to include all persons who have aided the school tremendously. Mr. Russell Clark, the engineer in our school, is a person who plays a very important part. Without his efficient engineering of all the mechanical facilities in the building, one would consider this institution a very draft and uncomfortable place to be. Mr. Clark has been employed at South Side since the opening of the school in 1922. Before accepting this position, he was employed at Central and Harmar schools. His responsibility is to regulate and oversee all the mechanical details of the building, which includes the heating and lighting, control of the clocks, bells, and fire alarms. When asked a few details about his job, he replied that he enjoyed the work tremendously, despite the complications that arise now and then.

The heating plant, which is located south of the band room, is a very interesting part of the building. There are gigantic furnaces, complicated temperature clocks, deep coal shafts, transmitters, and many other devices which produce a rather vague feeling in one if Mr. Clark is not on hand to explain in detail the operation of each machine.

In cold weather, the heating plant is run continuously day and night. Mr. Clark works during the winter months from 6 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night. However, he works now from 7 to 5.

Mr. Clark says, "I believe the installation of the heating system will be very efficient, because originally the heat began in the center of the building at a temperature of 120 degrees, but before it reached many of the rooms its intensity had decreased a great deal."

The fan room, which is still in use, has three fans, each of which plays a very important part. The east fan regulates the ventilation in the east side of the building and half of the end; the west fan takes care of the west side and half of each end; the remaining fan regulates the gymnasium. Fans drive enough air to change the air in the building every seven minutes.

In regard to the lights and power, there are 4000 volts in the transmitting room at 4,000 volts, it is then transformed and the juice that goes on the switch board is 220 volts for power and 110 volts for lights. Moreover, all of the batteries which run the clocks and bells are controlled also in the engine room. Approximately eighty-nine rooms are being heated now besides the gymnasium, the locker rooms, and rest rooms.

S. P. C. Will Give Play November 14

"The Fourth Mrs. Phillips." Is Title Of Comedy Selected By Cast; Committee Is Named.

A cast for a production to be given by members of the Student Players Club was chosen at a meeting held last Tuesday at the home of Bruce Bradbury. The play, "The Fourth Mrs. Phillips," will be presented at the regular meeting of the club, November 4.

The play is a comedy dealing with an actor, Warwick Phillips, who is 60 years old, who intends to marry his fourth wife who believes him to be only about 30 years old. All of the action takes place in the living room of the great actor, Mr. Phillips. The play is complicated by the presence of the other three wives of Warwick Phillips, and also by a newspaper reporter.

The characters in the play are as follows: Bob Arthur, a newspaper reporter; Marston Valle; the first three wives of Phillips; Warwick Phillips; and Dolly Harrison, his proposed fourth wife. Bob Brooks will be in charge of the stage properties used in the production.

Margaret Null is in charge of the committee, and other committee members are Helen Wiehe, June McAlister, Virginia Shidler, and Bruce Bradbury.

Completion Of Building Project Is Result Of Strenuous Efforts Of School Board, Executive

South Side building project Number 1, completing of this new addition, has been the result of strenuous effort on the part of Mr. Merle J. Abbett, Superintendent of Fort Wayne Public Schools, and the Board of School Trustees.

"This project included the construction of new class rooms and the correction of building faults, which in many respects was of serious need," pointed out Superintendent Abbett. "The most important of these were the roof leakage and the poorly ventilated study hall, both of which have been corrected." Mr. Abbett stated, "The health of the students of Fort Wayne means much to me," a statement which confirms that which we have long believed and are grateful for. He added that the guidance department, the administration department, the dean's and principal's offices are now in unity. Such a scheme boosts the efficiency of the school executive group.

Contemplate New Rooms

Building project No. 2 is now contemplated for the near future.

The two principal reasons for building in two units, said Mr. Abbett, "are that we didn't have enough bonding power to sell enough bonds to cover the cost of all the proposed work, and there wasn't time in the summer to issue new bonds and complete the work. Had such a plan been carried out, it would have meant that 2,100 students would not have entered school until early in November."

In dispelling the possibility of any

Mr. Merle J. Abbett

If it had not been for the persevering and effective efforts of Mr. Merle J. Abbett, superintendent, South Side would not be the beautiful, modern school it is today.

Wo-Ho-Ma Group To Install Officers

Lois Gumpfer, Louisa Haugk, Elizabeth Kelso Will Enter Offices; Dues Must Be Paid

The new members of Wo-Ho-Ma will be installed in the club this afternoon in the Greeley Room at 3:30. The officers who will take part in this ceremony are: President, Lois Gumpfer; vice-president, Louisa Haugk; secretary-treasurer, Elizabeth Kelso. Eileen Goddard will be the voice.

Patty Lyman of the "Spirit of Home Economics," The old members will sing the initiation song. Joan Earl and Patty Lyman will lead the song. Miss Crissie Mott has announced that the new members should pay their dues before the installation. After the installation, games will be played.

The committee for the initiation is as follows: Chairman, Kathryn Borer; Eileen Goddard, assistant chairman; Doris Douglass, Betty Kinley, Norma Haley, Barbara Miller, Margaret Wittman, Mildred Thayer, Margaret Kingle, Katherine Bultemier and Marilyn Anweiler.

Twenty Mothers Join South Side Gym Class

Twenty mothers have joined the Mothers' Gym Class, which meets every Monday night from 7 until 9 o'clock. However, there will be no meeting Monday, October 24, because of open house. The mothers have enjoyed active part in various exercises and in volleyball. This class welcomes new members who might wish to join. Fifteen of the members have signed up so far. They are: Mrs. Bunell Ault, Mrs. C. G. Fries, Mrs. G. A. Longworth, Mrs. H. C. Connitt, Mrs. C. E. Hudson, Mrs. Grover Shannon, Mrs. John Duiser, Mrs. Eva Ringginberg, Mrs. Ray Teeple, Mrs. J. B. Close, Mrs. R. S. Peguignot, Mrs. R. V. Foreman and Mrs. John Bostick.

To Discuss Politics

Mr. Allen Lomont, a Fort Wayne attorney, and State Representative, who will give a talk to Mr. Wilburn Wilson's fifth period civics class today, has chosen "Politics" as his subject.

Home Room Period To Start At 7:30; Forty-five Minute Interval Will Follow

Tiny Times Issue Will Be On Sale

Refreshments To Be Offered In Cafeteria, Booths In Halls; Chairmen Listed

Under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association, Open House Night will be held next Monday, starting at 7:30. It is to be a combination of the former Back-to-School meetings and a showing of the new part of our building. Because of this change, plans for the procedure of the evening will be a little different from the schedules of previous years.

First, the parents of the students will meet in the home rooms. During the time allotted for the home room period, the selected parent who is presiding as home room chairman will introduce the visitors and explain the nature of the student's work. Some time during the home room period there will be a broadcast from the office which will probably feature Superintendent Merle J. Abbett as main speaker. This period, having ended, there will be a three-quarter hour interval during which the parents are invited to visit with their children's teachers in the various classrooms.

Student Guides Are Aides

After the visiting period, a tour of the building will be conducted by student guides. At all times during the evening the P.T. A. will have sales booths in the hall. At the end of the tour, ice cream and cake will be sold in the cafeteria.

There will be no specific drive for P.T. A. membership this year; however, those parents who are desirous of becoming paid members may sign up at this first meeting. Of every twenty-five cent membership the P.T. A. must send twenty cents to the state this year. The goal is set at a minimum of one hundred members, so that the school is entitled to one delegate. Every parent and patron of the district is actually a member of the organization, whether he pays or not.

The Tiny Times will be sold in the halls during the evening by Times representatives, so that the parents may become acquainted at least on a small scale, with the school paper. Purchase price will be whatever the

Latins To Discuss Naming Systems

How Roman People Were Named To Be Topic For Second Meeting Of Latin Club Today; 3:30

"How the Roman People Were Named" will be the topic of the second meeting of the Latin Club in room 36 tonight at 3:30 o'clock. The committee which is in charge of the discussion is Phyllis Tyndall, chairman; and June Flaig, Reba Copcock and Doris Carmen assisting her.

Phyllis Tyndall, the chairman, will talk on "Confusion of Names," and Reba Copcock's topic will be "Praenomen, Nomen and Cognomen." "The Single, Double and Triple Names" will be June Flaig's topic, and Doris Carmen will speak on "Additional Names."

After the discussion of the topics, a contest called "I am a girl, what's my name?" will be conducted by Phyllis Tyndall. In order to play this game, a general knowledge of Latin is required. After the contest, refreshments will be served.

Archery Club Officers Are Elected For Year

The newly formed Archery Club, under the direction of Mr. Joe Plaskett, met Friday, October 7, and elected officers. Doris Hilbish is the chief Archer, which is equivalent to the position of president of other clubs. The field officer or vice-president is Joan Roose. The office of secretary and treasurer have been combined into point recorder to which Vera Jane Wells was elected. Clara Makey will represent the Archers in Inter-Club Congress.

After the meeting the girls adjourned to the stadium and had target practice. Mr. Plaskett taught the correct position to take when shooting. The club meets every Friday and the dues are five cents a week. Any girl interested in Archery may bring her tackle and come to the meeting tomorrow in room 46 at 3:30.

Math-Scientist Group To Hold Masquerade

Math-Science Club will hold a Halloween party at its next meeting, Wednesday, October 26, in room 114. All paid-up members are to get their tickets from Miss George Anna Hodgson in room 80, right after school on October 24 or 25.

At the party, Halloween prizes will be given, and Halloween refreshments will be served. John Magley and Eugene Schmidt are in charge of the games to be played. The members who are going to the party are supposed to go masked.

Remember, freshmen, the new banisters were not made to slide on.

Simile: As hard to get as enough ads for a school publication.

South Side is now a beautiful place to live in. Let's keep it that way.

Whoever said America didn't have a labyrinth should just take a look at South Side.

Being two-faced is ordinarily an undesirable feature but in the case of our new clocks, it's an excellent idea.

Thanks to the people who made the repairs and new addition possible for us. We certainly appreciate it.

Salesmanship?: Telling non-subscribers so often to subscribe for The Times that after a while they get tired of hearing it and subscribe. Maybe not, but it works.

New School, New Plaster, Paint Let's Keep It Looking New

Now that South Side's face lifting process is finally completed, it is the duty of all the Archers attending this school to keep the building in its present condition. This aim cannot be achieved by pulling pencils along the walls of the halls; it cannot be done by scratching the new paint job off the walls; it cannot be done by other such malicious acts.

We should all be proud of our rejuvenated school and the one way to show our appreciation of the building now that it has been repaired and added to is to keep South Side school in good condition. The only possible way to show our parents and all of the people who are responsible that we are appreciative of their efforts is to refrain from doing any damage to South Side.

So, let's keep South Side as it is—in fine condition.

Archers Agree That South Side Is Bigger, Better School of Ed.

"South Side is now a bigger and better school to be educated in," said hundreds of Archers, when they returned to the portals this fall. South Side is better in two ways this time. First, in beauty, and second, in precision of construction. As we all agree, South Side is a wonderful sight to look at. Before the construction work had begun the school was a shabby looking one-storied building which looked more like an exaggerated match box than a place where pupils spent two-thirds of a day.

The school is now blessed with a most charming second layer, which not only adds beauty to the structure but also provides more class room for our many hundreds. Perhaps, if the reconstruction had not taken place, we might have been awakened in our classes by the thundering sound of pounds and pounds of brick and plaster falling on our heads. Such a deluge might have happened because in the original structure of the building cheap tile had been used in some places. However, the taxpayers made it possible to reconstruct and thus prevent what might have been a horrible disaster.

No Longer Understudies For Sardines, South Side Students Praise Reconstructed School

Every tick of the clock brings nearer the long awaited moment when South Side's new addition will be completed. When that time comes, even in the excitement of seeing who can use the most super-superlatives, the men who made the whole thing possible should not be forgotten. It was the school board and Mr. Abbott who first realized that South Siders were merely understudies for sardines, due to the crowded conditions of the halls. The leaky roofs added to the fishy motif, as we had to swim to classes on rainy days.

With the aid of the taxpayers, the school board's brilliant idea ripened into a bigger and better South Side. Two stairways lead up to the roomy second floor, where the spacious offices and many cheerful class rooms are located. The remodeled Greeley Room with its stage and kitchenette makes a delightful club room. On the first floor, the enlarged Times room is a constant source of pleasure to the staff. The public address system provides both cultural and educational programs.

So, many thanks to you, school board and taxpayers, you've given us a school really fit for Champions. And we'll try harder than ever to live up to it.

Don't Be A 'Never-Proud, Never-Clean'

Here is an example of a typical student who attends the "Never-Proud, Never-Clean" school in a large, dirty city.

Coming down the hall, from his last period class in which he has just failed a test, "Ever-Careless" Bill is trying to figure out why he received such a contemptible grade in English. The test was easy, of course; but the trouble was—one had to know it. But Bill was still in a quandary as to how he had ever gotten it. It was probably a mistake. (Unconsciously he is running his pencil along the wall, making a heavy black line all the way.) Here comes his friend, "Never-Wash" John; let's listen in.

"What do you say, John? By the way, what did you get in that test? Oh, you did? Well, confidentially I... buzz...buzz...buzz!" (In the meantime John is trying to retrace lines on the walls which are already too deeply engraved, with a pencil which he has just sharpened for art class.)

"Well, here's where I run off. So long, Bill." On down through the hall John pushes his way with much effort. Arriving at his destination, he slams the door back against the wall as he walks into the room. Banging his books down on a somewhat "musty" desk, the somewhat unconscious lad "falls" down into his seat, kicking small particles of paint and wood from the desks situated close by him. Taking out a pencil, he starts making his initials in his desk and the desks around him. In case you may not have guessed it by now, this room is a likeness of what we now call "Study Hall." Deeper and deeper he marks the lines on the face of the desks. Now the bell rings and John scurries back to his seat. He stretches himself out in the desk and places his dusty shoes upon the rear of the chair placed in front of him. At ease at last; we suppose he is thinking.

Finally the hour has slowly come to a close and it is now time for lunch. Shall we follow John into the locker room and see how well he keeps his personal belongings?

"Gee, I'm hungry. Can hardly wait to get out of this dump," remarks John to himself. Down the hall he rushes, shoving people to and fro. At last he reaches the locker room. Into it he dashes. Jerking the much used lock on his locker door, and after the usual amount of banging and kicking, the thoughtless lad finally succeeds in opening it. And as he is doing so—Bang! Everything falls out at once!

"Why does everything have to happen to me?" he remarks to himself in pity. "Oh, well, I'll just pile them back as usual," he says, doing so as he speaks.

An hour later this same young man returns to school, weighted down by the goodies which he has selected as a practical lunch, these being candy bars, taffy apples, lolly pops and chewing gum. Eating them one at a time, sometimes before class, sometimes after, other times between periods and even during classes, John scatters the papers in the already cluttered halls, and shoves his way from class to class.

Well, as we have said before, that is an example of a typical student attending the "never-proud, never-clean" school in a large city. But what about the "always-proud, almost always-clean" school? You know we do have them. In this school we have no "Never-Wash" Johns and one or two "Ever-Careless" Bills. The students in this school are proud of it and actually want to keep it clean and neat to uphold its reputation. Everyone puts paper in the proper receptacles, refrains from marking the desks, and puts on the soft pedal in closing lockers. Cleanliness and order prevail here, whereas in the other school it was a matter of the survival of the fittest. Don't each and everyone of you, honestly, prefer the second school?

We of South Side like to think, and are practically right in thinking so, that we have a school of the second type; but not altogether. True, we are ever-proud, but not as "almost-always-clean" as we might be. Much as we hate to admit it, there are several "ever-careless" Bills floating around. You could see for yourself what would happen if we all went around kicking desks, lockers, and such. We would have nothing left but a horrible ruin of what was once a beautiful modernistic school. If everyone of us at South Side would treat our school in a manner of this sort, would we be proud to say "I attend South Side" as we are today? No, we would not.

But thus does the average student go through high-school, never trying to better the school in any way, 'till at last comes the week called "Clean-Up Week" and then everyone gives in and does his part. A new campaign for cleaning up the halls, rooms, lockers, floors is started. Then is the change in every school. Every pupil refrains from tossing papers here and there. Usually this is carried on but for those five glorious days called "Clean-Up Days," but let us set a new record. Let us say, "We, the students of South Side High, in order to form a more perfect school, resolve to carry on this work through all the days in which we are able to work within its portals."

So—"Do your part—START TODAY."

New Teachers Added To School Certainly Deserve Public Commending

When grade school students think in terms of addition, they think of arithmetic; but when South Siders think in terms of addition, they think of the new rooms and teachers added to the South Side premises and faculty this year. Seemingly the actual remodeling of South Side has had much more publicity than the addition of new teachers. Now we, the students, have to live with these teachers and we should know who they are and what place they have here at South Side.

First of all it might interest you to know that six teachers have been added to the South Side staff of instructors. They are Mr. James I. Mills, Miss Blanche Hutto, Mr. Bill Moss, Mr. George Collyer, Mrs. Robert Scott and Mr. Clyde Pierce. Each and everyone of these teachers has shown in their short stay what fine jobs they can make of their individual tasks here at South Side.

Although it might not seem so at first thought, Mr. Moss and Mr. Collyer have, probably, the hardest jobs of any of the new instructors...not the task of teaching Latin declensions to freshmen nor that of pounding chemical reactions into senior heads, but the momentous job of turning out even a fairly good team out of the inexperienced material which they have to work with. Taking the fact into consideration, that very few of the boys on the present football team have ever had any experience before, we must all agree that the coaches have done a good job. Besides being assistant football coach, Mr. Collyer is the track coach and is already getting his boys into shape.

Mrs. Scott's job of presiding over the study hall is certainly no easy one. Having some two or three hundred students in the hall for six periods is no party, especially if they are of the Rover boys or Eileen Harris types. Mrs. Scott has managed the pupils marvelously and the percentage of school skippers is undoubtedly low.

The latest addition to the Art Department is Miss Blanche Hutto, formerly of Forest Park, who is very

★ Fashion Flashes ★

This week's fashion flashes are going to be entirely different, due to the vast change in style in South Side architecture. We wish to call special attention to the new Greeley Room with its beautiful modern decorations. By modern, we do not mean the squared-off lines of modernistic architecture, but we do mean the up-to-date conveniences of a club room.

If Mr. Greeley could see the new room which has been named for him, we believe that he would truly be happy. As Walter Winchell would say: Flash! The new Greeley Room at South Side is, definitely, a blessed event.

Just like a page from a fairy book this room appears as it greets the eye. Probably the most distinctive and appreciated feature is the stage which will serve a very useful purpose to the various clubs in giving dramatic presentations, especially to the S. P. C. Since the stage is framed in dark-stained panelling, the pictures formed upon it will be suitably and charmingly surrounded.

Another modern convenience which is an outstanding feature of this recently built chamber is the indirect lighting. The light fixtures are silver and green. When the room must be artificially illuminated it is bathed in a soft light and none of the glare of old fashioned lighting is present. Before one may enter this room, it is necessary for him to pass through a heavy wooden door that is strangely reminiscent of the period of history in which the story "Kidnapped" took place.

Radiators, too, have taken on the aspect of beauty since they have their modernistic tan coverings. The Greeley Room is a splendid example to prove that architecture in schools has definitely improved.

ably taking the place of Miss Mary Helen Ley, now the art department head at Central high school.

The Social Science department was not slighted by any means and now boasts of a new addition in the form of Mr. Clyde Pierce, a new history instructor. Mr. Pierce hails from the Franklin school where he taught history.

We have a combination of basketball coach, principal and civic teacher in Mr. Mills, new instructor of commerce. He came from Urbana High School in Urbana, Illinois. He is taking Mr. Harold Windmiller's place, who, too, has been transferred to Central to be at the head of the commercial department.

With such an array of new talent, together with the old talent, South Side should set a new high in turning out well-informed graduates.

News - Vues

Next Monday evening, South Side's Parent-Teacher Association will hold its eleventh annual Back-to-School Night. Many of our parents undoubtedly in touring our newly built addition, will remark and wonder about the many improvements that we have today.

Some may even think it unnecessary that we have so many conveniences, and of how the money used in building and in the construction of these things could have been used to aid such worthy projects as the clearing of slums and bad housing conditions in Fort Wayne, the fields of social service work and the various agencies that have done so much good for the people of our city, upholding as an argument that they were educated without the conveniences and expense that we have. But did they thrive by it? Did they gain the knowledge and experience that students today are gaining?

Taking up their proposition that we spend more time, effort and money on service work in the help of welfare agencies, is it not just as important to the individual that we strike at the core of the matter and combat it by means of education?

In saying this we realize that slums must go and that welfare agencies must continue until their work is done. We shall and must realize that today, we will become the citizens—good or bad—of tomorrow.

Without a firm foundation how can we expect to tower in the social orders of tomorrow? Unless the youth of our day are taught properly today, welfare agencies and social science bureaus shall continue on a grand scale.

We do not mean that the next generation will be without crime and corruption, but that you realize that it will be the product of the next, and the next, and the next. A perfect civilization may seem hopeless and far distant from the disaster and greed of today, but one cannot blame us for wanting to improve ourselves and bequeath a generation that realizes our mistakes and can improve upon them.

That is our ultimate hope. We merely wish to "start the ball rolling" toward a more civil civilization.

In New York, in preparation for the 1939 World's Fair, a metal cylinder seven feet in length will be buried far beneath the fair grounds. It will contain, in microscopic detail, a cross-sectional view of twentieth-century life; our ambitions, our defeats, joys, hopes and sorrows.

It will, in a sense, contain the educational progress of our world today. We laugh today about the style of Puritan education, so much progress have we made, and we like to think that our educational standards are supreme.

Kelly Koed Kut Ups

Instead of the same old dirt column, we've decided to clean-up a bit this week.

Have you ever suffered a skinned knee and bruised bones from one person's carelessness at some time? Did you ever receive a push in the back in South Side's halls that sent you and your books flying all over creation? Have you ever felt somebody's pencil jabbed in your back? Of course you have.

All these nerve-racking things are something of the past now that we have a brand new and better organized school. It no longer is necessary to walk from one section of the school to another merely to be able to get up stairs, thanks to the construction of two flights of stairs at the south end of the building.

Remember last year when we walked down dark gloomy halls to get to our class rooms? That also is a thing of the past. Now we have freshly painted light-colored halls, which can be kept that way if thoughtful students would overcome their desire to write and scribble on them.

We also have new furniture and linoleum which should inspire carefulness on the part of students in the use of penknives, pencils and ink. Just remember when you are marking on the desk all the trouble and expense you are causing the school board and the taxpayers who have been kind enough to appropriate the money for us so that we could have all these added modern conditions. We should show our sincere appreciation and gratitude by keeping our school clean and neat and in tip-top shape.

We can do all of these things and more if we take time to think before we act. No matter how much you would like to trail your pencil behind you and leave a mark on the sands of time, think of the trouble and expense you are causing others, also keep all of your pencils and knives out of sight so that they will not tempt you in the least.

To sum it all up, following is list of things to remember.

1. Avoid congregating in the halls discussing your life history with your friends.
2. Keep all pencils and pens out

Reconstruction Of South Side

It was the year of '38 That marked the calendar And the workman had taken his motor Our dear South Side to jar.

Tired our ears as the battered drum And we yearned for the end of the day

And we chew the dirt as the cow chews cud And the grit didn't make us gay.

A student has stood in the noisy hall The dust was in his mouth, As he's watched the churning motor blow The dirt now West, now South.

Last year the rooms had a peaceful air,

Put for a while no peace was near. The students they blew the dust from their lungs, And no word was spoke without sneer.

Larger and larger grew the holes, By drills which make great noise, The plaster crumbling fell on the floor And was kicked about by the boys.

Down came the axe and smote again The school in all its strength; We shuddered and paused like frightened steeds, Then ran the school's whole length.

Come hither! Come hither! My little student,

And do not frighten so, For we can teach in the loudest noise That ever carpenters know.

So, seated in warm and dusty rooms, Amidst the ringing blast, The teachers talked in questions dire, But pupils didn't know what's ast.

O, teacher! I hear the hammers clang, I say, what can it be? It's the building program at South Side High, Let's steer for the open sea!

O, teacher! I hear the sound of guns! O, say, what can it be? Some motor drilling through plaster thick,

I wish they'd stop—says she.

O, teacher! I see a gleaming light! O, say, what may it be? But the teacher answered never a word.

Worn to a frazzle was she.

Then the students clasped their hands in prayer:

That safe they all might be; And they thought of next fall when all of this Would very much finished be.

And slow through the periods, long and hot,

Through the stifling heat and noise, Like mechanical humans they study on Towards the center of all their joys (vacation).

At summer's end in the new wide halls A student stands aghast, To see the portals of South Side High So changed and fair at last.

The rain no longer finds its way in. The ceiling's plastered well. The class rooms are large and plentiful,

And no new inclines—swell!

Such was the year of '38. During wreckage and great repair, Carpenters saved them all from a drowning death, of sight to avoid scalping some unsuspecting person and to squelch that desire of scribbling on the walls.

And gave them a stage most rare!

3. Do not carve on the desks or mark on them in any way.

4. Keep in mind that there is plenty of room for all in the halls if certain persons remember that five minutes is enough time to get to your classes.

5. Walk at a moderate pace through the halls.

6. Do not walk five in a row down the halls.

These few rules shouldn't be hard to follow if each person makes it his business to obey them, and by following them the students will prove their appreciation for the things that have been done for them.

Letter To Taxpayers

Taxpayers:

Allow us to express our gratitude for the heavenly, yes heavenly, new addition and improvements to our building. You cannot possibly realize what it means to have elbow-room, to be able once more to study at a desk or table, rather than in the band-room, gymnasium, or any other inconvenient location, and not have books, notebooks, et cetera, slipping from our laps onto the floor.

One detail seemingly minor, is not really so. That is the efficiency of the new large type of blind used at the triple-sized windows in the classrooms. Old sol may exert himself all he pleases now, but there will be no blinding, stray rays to dodge as with the single type blind. To make the matter clear: Instead of three narrow blinds at a window, there is one wide one.

The new arrangement provides for more suitable office space. Mr. Snider, Miss Pittenger and the office staff all realize this, and are grateful.

Says Mr. Snider, "For the first time we have adequate space for a school body of this size. Then, too, there is no possible doubt but that it is more convenient."

Miss Pittenger appreciates her new quarters. "I think we shall be very happy here," she said.

Miss Dorothy Alderdice enumerated a great many improvements which result in more comfortable working conditions in the office. First is the Venetian blinds; hence, cooler afternoons. Second, the greater space allows for a better and more handy filing system. For comfort and correct posture are the two new metal frame, leather padded, swivel chairs. The new type monophone is "the object of my affection" of both Miss Alderdice and her assistant, Viola Yanne. Then, too, there is the indirect lighting. And as if this weren't enough, there is a separate room for all mimeograph paraphernalia.

Says Miss Harvey, in referring to the bigger and better Times and Totem room and press room, "It is infinitely more convenient to have the Totem office in the same room, rather than in the cubby hole down the hall and under no supervision. Of course, the increased space in the press room makes for increased speed in work. As a result we are progressing smoothly and the new press enables us to print a paper in about half of the former time."

South Siders Agree New Greeley Room Is Favorite Addition

"I like all of the new things; but I don't know which I like best," stated most of the students when interviewed by your roving reporter. Incidentally, the question we asked them was "Which improvement or addition to South Side do you like best?" The Greeley Room was the favorite of most of the students questioned. They thought the stage was the best part of it, and don't we all? There were many other additions that the builders may have thought would go unnoticed, but not much can escape the eye of a South Sider. Here are their opinions as follows:

Dorothy Jagers—"The drinking fountains are nice. I like the water spurts up so high."

Cathryn Dinkel—"I like the new clocks."

Mary Jane Derck—"I like the new rooms, and the tables in the history room are better than desks."

Lois Bloemer—"The floor up stairs is prettier than it is down stairs."

Gerry Thomas—"I think it's swell that we have so many more rooms, but I like the Greeley Room best."

Bob Hageman—"I like the new crop of good looking freshmen."

Dick Shorter—"I like the new inclines. (Sometimes we wonder what these upperclassmen could have been doing during all of their years here.)"

Evelyn Kruse—"I like the new odors. (She couldn't have given the chemistry room last week, could she?) The Greeley Room is nice because of the stage. I also like the public address system."

Eleanor Kneller—"I'd like the new radios if we could listen to the ball games in Mr. Murch's classes."

Marjorie Noodle—"I like the elevators. (She's a freshman, so that explains it all.) I like the new offices, too."

Elene Bracht—"Gosh, I don't know. I haven't been around enough."

Violet Reiter—"The Greeley Room is much better than it used to be."

Latin Mottoes Of Well-Known Colleges Given

Oxford of England Included In Schools Listed; Yale, Indiana Have Same Motto

Almost all of the leading colleges and universities have mottoes taken from the Latin. Some of the more common ones are:

Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut—Lux et Veritas: Light and Truth.

University of Southern California, Los Angeles, California—Palman Qui Meruit Ferat: He Who Deserves It Acquires the Palm of Victory.

Hood College, Frederick, Maryland—Corde et Mente et Manu: With Heart and Mind and Hand.

MILDRED HANKEE, Latin 3.

The Dogs Have Gone To Jack

It isn't raining rain, it's raining dogs on the Hodell "hang-out." That is a rather crude statement, but true, nevertheless. The "raining of dogs" is due to the influence of Jack Hodell, who has the interesting and unusual hobby of collecting dogs, that is, of the inanimate class.

At present he boasts of a collection of 210 of these tiny animals. His hobby originated about seven years ago when he realized that there were four sets of decorative dogs in his home. Deciding that this condition suggested a hobby, he set about adding to this small, but eventually mighty group. It was accidental that he discovered a dog which has been in his family for forty years. It is made of china and is prized highly by its present owner, because it is the oldest dog in his collection.

Ses animeaux are made of various materials, among which are metal, cloth, clay, porcelain, wire, blown glass, copper, wood, ivory, and stone. Besides being of many materials, they are of many countries, several of which are Japan, China, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Holland, Mexico, England, and the United States. The variance in size is from about six inches to one fourth of an inch.

Several of his pets may be readily classed as rare. One of them, made of clay, was formed by Anton Lang, who played the role of Christ in the Passion Play. It was given to Mr. Hodell by Mrs. Koerber. Another was carved from wood by a deaf-mute, who is paralyzed all except his hands. This one is from Michigan. Still another is of blown glass and was presented to him at a magician's show by the artist himself.

He keeps the dogs in his room on a shelf-like contraption (hoping he will pardon the description) which bears a faint resemblance to the Lincoln tower, that is, it is tiered. Due to the cramped condition of his objects, it has become necessary to build two more sets of shelves. And at present it appears that he is going to be forced to build yet another.

Most of the dogs were given to him; a few of them were purchased. Due to an article published on the Youth's Passing Show page of the News-Sentinel, twenty dogs have been added to his collection.

"Besides these," he added at the close of the interview, "I have my real dog, Wimpy. He helps."

New Construction On School Results Better Than Expected

Midst the noise of the elevator in the construction tower, the clanging of steel beams, the calls of the workmen, and the pounding of the hammers, the students worked.

Mr. Ted Hagerman, of the Hagerman Construction Company, commented on the good behavior of the students in that they kept away from the rest of the dangerous places during the actual construction.

Construction Pace Rapid

When asked about the construction as a whole, Mr. Hagerman stated that the speed of construction was better than he had anticipated. It usually takes at least two months to get necessary structural steel, but the steel was obtainable in two weeks time. Good weather with little rain aided greatly in bringing about a speedy completion. The most difficult job was to keep the rain out while construction was in progress. Due to the fact that we had little rain lessened this problem. A clean record in connection with serious accidents was maintained.

The workers found that the old cut stone, which was around the top of the building, was deteriorating and that some day it would crumble and topple. Due to this bad condition, new cut stone replaced the old. A new roof was also made.

The match of the new face brick with the old is very good. The old brick is slightly darker than the new because it has stood all kinds of weather for sixteen years. In time, the new brick will darken and the mark where one ends and the other begins will be completely gone. Special brick had to be ordered because this same type of brick is no longer made.

Many Men Employed

Few people realize the large number of men employed in remodeling our building. Two hundred men worked steadily throughout the long summer months to get the building ready for the opening of the fall semester.

Among the improvements is the new type of acoustic ceiling which was put

North Side Paper Wins Spelling Bee

Bruce Bradbury, Archer, Takes First Place In Finals; Jean
Scott, Redskin, Is Second

A spelling match between six members of The South Side Times and six members of The North Side Northern was held Tuesday, October 11, at 7:30 o'clock over WGL to ascertain the "Hoosier Student" of Fort Wayne. The Northern team defeated the Southern team by one-half point.

Members of the South Side team were Eleanor Vesey, Peggy Bacon, Margery Rapp, June Flaig, Anna Lou Kowalski and Bruce Bradbury. The alternates were Max Spencer, Ronald McVay, and Helen Banks. Members of the North Side team were Tom Suedhoff, Ellen Kattell, Isobel Fabian, Dick Roberts, Jean Scott and Alice McGahey.

Those who entered the finals were Eleanor Vesey, Bruce Bradbury, Jean Scott and Tom Suedhoff. Bruce Bradbury took first place, winning three dollars, and Jean Scott of The North-Side team took second place. The alternates were Max Spencer, Ronald McVay, and Helen Banks. Members of the North Side team were Tom Suedhoff, Ellen Kattell, Isobel Fabian, Dick Roberts, Jean Scott and Alice McGahey.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider pronounced the words and mixed in poetry and journalism questions. Franklin Tooker, a former South Side student, was the announcer.

The judges were Shirley Lentz, Max Spencer and Alice Ludwig, a North Sider.

A "Treasure Chest" spell was held after the spelling bee and Max Spencer won ten cents for spelling kangaroo; Ronald McVay won ten cents for spelling waist coat; and Mrs. Lillian Scott won twenty-five cents for spelling vanquish.

Student Aid Is Sought For Law Enforcement

Custer A. Dunifon, lieutenant of traffic, has requested the co-operation of all the students by refraining from parking in front of homes and business houses. Parking by the stadium is unlimited in time. Many ways have been attempted to prevent this practice; however, if this situation is not stopped, drastic action will be taken, such as time limit parking, which causes the students a great deal of inconvenience, Sergeant Dunifon states.

I. U. To Be Host To High Schools

Field Day For Students Will Be Held At Bloomington; Many Features To Be On Program

In order to see the football game at Indiana University on Saturday one must have an identification card, which may be obtained from Mr. R. Nelson Snider. This game, between Indiana and Kansas State Universities, will be held in connection with the fourth annual high school field day and the twelfth annual Boy Scout Day on October 22, 1938.

Other features on the program besides the football game are the swimming races, science exhibits, campus tours, parades and troop reviews.

Throughout the morning there will be a reception at the field house. From 8:00 to 10:00 a. m. there will be many campus tours which will start from the field house every fifteen minutes. There will be a program in the field house from 11:00 to 11:15. This program will consist of a concert by the Indiana Band, a welcome speech by Coach Bo McMillen, and wrestling and gymnastic shows. At 11:30 luncheon can be purchased at the refreshment stand or at the field house. The first call for the parade will be at 12:00 o'clock noon. The parade of organized Scouts will be from 12:15 until 1:00 o'clock. The review of all uniformed Scout Troops will be held in the stadium between 1:00 and 1:30 after which the preliminary football game will begin. The highlight of the day's entertainment will be the football game between Indiana University and Kansas State University which will take place from 2:00 until 4:30 p. m. At 4:30 the program will come to a close.

Times Celebrates 16th Anniversary

Archer Publication Is Receiver
Of Many Awards; First Issue Was Printed In 1922.

For sixteen years The South Side Times has been published during the school year. On October 6, 1922, the first issue was printed. At that time the staff was small, and much hard work was spent on each issue. The first issue had four pages, was only five columns wide, and was eighteen inches long. Today the papers are seven columns wide and twenty-two inches long.

Last year's Times maintained its scholastic record by receiving national honor ratings from Quill and Scroll; an All American award from the National Scholastic Press Association; and maintained its Medalist rating award by the Columbia Press Association.

During the past summer The Times press of last year was enlarged. The Times room increased in size, and a newly purchased second-hand press was set up in the new press room.

Another improvement was made during the summer which greatly helps the production of The Times. The improvement was incorporating The Totem and The Times into one general room. The publication offices are to be separated only by a partition. The new quarters were obtained by moving from room 18 to include Miss Adelaide Fiedler's old room 16. The old Totem office on the west side of the building was received by the Department of Visual Education.

Teachers Help In Study

The teachers who assist Mrs. Lillian Scott in the study hall are Miss Rose Mary DeLancey, Miss Pauline Van Gorder, and Miss Clara Schmidt. When the new study hall next to the cafeteria is installed with seats, Miss Olive Perkins, Mr. Lloyd Whelan, Miss Clara Schmidt, and Mr. George Collyer will be in charge.

New School Steps Are Very Pleasing To Most Archers

"You can please some of the people some of the time, but you can't please all of the people all of the time," someone said. But that isn't true here at South Side, because everyone is agreed that they like the new steps, so the builders seem to have pleased all of the South Siders for all of the time (we hope). Everyone we interviewed about the new steps was quite in favor of them and "happy about the whole thing."

The main disadvantage, though, about the steps is that we can't go up them until those terrifying "stay out" signs are removed.

One girl, namely, Hazel Perry, likes the steps because they are different. Audrey Hall said she liked them, because she was sure they would keep the downstairs halls from being so crowded, especially in the south end of the building.

"They are so compact," says Mildred Trout. "I was afraid they would be all spread out, but I like the way they just curl around." As an afterthought, Mildred also added that a person looks much better going up steps rather than inclines.

That lovable, laughable, little Jimmy Weaver decided it was time for us to hear from him, so he said, "Those steps are swell. They really are a great improvement over the inclines." (He talks like a high school student once in a while, doesn't he.)

Alice Lake stated that she thought they were better, because they were easier on high heels. Helen Karnap thinks they're O.K., but she's only been up them once. (Boy, do you rate! They wouldn't even let us on the first step.)

"They're handier and there is not so much confusion on the steps," says Joan Hoy, "like there is on the inclines."

The steps add something to the school," says Edna Volz. "They are so different I think I'll like them."

Your's truly just bumped into another advantage to steps. Coming by the Calhoun street entrance, inside the building, a two hundred pound football player (if he doesn't play football, he ought to) must have thought he was making a line drive down the incline; anyway your's truly was in the way. How we wish we had been in front of the steps when he charged, at least he couldn't have come as fast.

Fifteen Leave Archers' For Other Institutions

A list of the students who have withdrawn from South Side since the beginning of the fall term is as follows: Erma Eisenhaur, Vincent Minger, Paul Semlar, and Isabel Maze, who went to Central; Betty Jane Viat and Kenneth Collis, left for Central Catholic; Ester Gratz, Marion Bahl, and Dorothy Tilden withdrew from school; Robert Colby, North Side; James McClure, Elmhurst; William Cargile and John Cargile, Pennsylvania; Marilyn Halpern, California; and Harriet Horst, Bluffton, Indiana.

Two students entered South Side Monday, October 3, Lionel Gebhardt from Kendallville and Paul Butler from Central.

Jeanette Warren Is New Major
Staff Member; Plans Formed
For Big Issue At Times Meet

Jeanette Warren, 12B, was appointed star reporter by Eleanor Vesey, general manager, at a staff meeting of the South Side Times last Thursday evening in the Times room.

Those who talked at this meeting are Helen Banks, co-managing editor; Margery Rapp, co-managing editor; Betty Daniels, business adviser; Laura Lee Montgomery, advertising manager; Virginia Goeplein, circulation manager; Ed Reeves, sports editor; Bruce Bradbury, news editor; Joan Hess, assistant business manager; Eleanor Vesey, and Miss Rowena Harvey.

Plans were made for the big Construction issue, this week's paper, and the Tiny Times, the small Times published for Back-to-School Night.

Miss Harvey complimented Max Mitchell, a sports writer, for writing good stories and for handing in stories early, and Laura Lee Montgomery, advertising manager, was complimented for her splendid work on The Times for getting the advertisements in.

Many Teachers Laud Archer Pupils For Excellent Work Done During Last Week

In Mr. Murphy's Civics classes, Velda Oppenlander received 100, while Jeanette Warren, Marjorie Price and Kitty Clinard received 95 in an achievement class.

Martha Ann Schelle is planning a Halloween party for Mr. Wilson's home room, 108.

Mr. Makey's English 8 class is beginning the study of Milton's poems.

The students who made A grades on a recent idiom test in Miss Perkin's French 4 class are: Ruth Bader, Joe Bex, Margaret Gross, Dorothy Hall and Marjorie Sheldon.

In Miss Magley's home room vocational, educational, safety, and social chairmen have been elected. Bob Palmer was in charge of the social program the last time. He asked questions about social problems of the high school student. Such problems as dutch dates were discussed. Miss Magley was very well pleased with the response of the class. The next time Jack Parker is going to give a talk on Socialized Medicine.

On a recent test in Miss Perkin's second period beginning French class, Virginia Fleming, Phyllis Frisinger, Suzanne Sweet, Ella Jo Reed, Anna Anderson and Hilda Leininger made grades above 90.

Joe Bex, in Mr. Makey's English 8 class, made 100 on a test over the history of English literature.

In Mr. Sidell's General Math class the students are making up their own problems in circle graphs and solving them.

In Miss Kiefer's English 7 classes, the students have been having a lot of fun trying to read "Chaucer" in the original.

In Miss Dean's home room on Monday of last week, Joyce Reed interviewed Francine Remmel on her chosen vacation; on Tuesday an interesting contest, "What's My Name?", on the lives of famous people was conducted by Shirley Rubin. On Wednesday, Marilyn Wolf entertained the class by dancing and playing the accordion.

Lillian Sherbondy was first to finish a garment in Miss Rehorst's sewing class. The garment was a moire silk jacket.

The students in Miss Hemmer's English classes are to have made their second book reports by November 4.

James Craig, a student of Miss Fiedler, made a perfect score in an Algebra 4 test, covering the work of the first month.

On the last vocational day in Miss Kiefer's home room, 58, the students were given a self-analysis test by Eugene Senseny, program chairman.

On a recent test given by Mr. Sidell to his sixth period Algebra 2 class, the following students made a grade of 100: Maxine Fisher, Norman Fortress, Harold Gerbers and Marjorie McNabb.

In Miss Peck's English 1 class, Glen Dager made a perfect score on a three-minute test on Medieval English, given Friday.

Miss Rehorst's sewing classes last week had a Consumer's Exhibit from the Bureau of Home Economics in Washington, D. C. The exhibit was on "How to Buy Women's Coats."

When Miss Peck's English 6 classes were studying Short Stories, Bruce Bradbury, Delores Menefee, Jeanne Shinnick and Peggy Zerkel reported on 28 stories.

Mr. Plasket's Industrial Art 1 classes have started the construction of their furniture projects. Three principal types are being made: End tables, telephone stands and radio stands.

In Mrs. Carson's home room, Joe Ratliff was elected president and Don Parkinson, vice-president.

Miss Smeltz's newly formed Home Room Club had its picture taken recently. This picture will be kept and be compared with the picture taken when they are seniors.

Mrs. Rieke's public speaking classes have been giving speeches on short stories. A few of the most interesting speeches were given by Margaret Null, Betty Bolyard, Kitty Clinard and Betty Daniels of the second period class. Second semester students took part in a speech contest competing with students of all classes.

The pupils in Mr. Moss' general history classes have been making special reports on famous Greek orators and philosophers.

In Miss Edith Crowe's home room, the pupils had a true and false contest about the members in the home room. Only one person had all twenty questions correctly answered.

In Miss Peck's English 6 classes, Bruce Bradbury, period 1, and Sophia Kelok, period 7, made A+ on the final examination on short stories.

Pupils in Mr. Post's period 4 commercial law class, who received the grade of 100 are Pauline Werling, Delores Ulrich, and Verlene Weideman. Those who made 90 are Vivian Bushue, Betty Junghans, Ewald Koch, Rebecca Le Fever, and Eileen Schelper.

In Mr. Plasket's industrial art 1 classes the boys are starting on the construction of end tables, radio stools and telephone stands.

Miriam Jackson and Milton Haller in Mrs. Carson's Latin 4 class were first to make collateral reading reports. Both reported on "With Caesar's Legions."

The following students of Miss Oppelt last week kept up the standard in the various classes by writing short tests of 90 or above: John Bonsib, Ruth Dauner, Frank DuWaldt, Bob Hines, Eileen Horman, Phyllis Lauer, Caroline Lichtenberg, Elizabeth Most, Bernadine Pressler, Marjorie Roberts, Hilda Schubert, Alice Sweet, Janet Holtmeyer, June Hoopingarner, Elizabeth Kelso, Betty Koehler, Katherine Kuntz, Janet Anderson, Harriet Greer, Carol Lyman, Dick Theye, Mary Treen, Ivan Truman, Eloise Updike, Janice Weir, Martha Thomas, Margaret Kutsch, Marcelle Driftmeyer, Betty Elbersen, and Audrey Smith.

Betty Baker and Bernice O'Brien, students in Mr. Makey's English classes, have completed their outside reading reports for the semester.

In Mr. Cook's period 3, English 6 class, Norbert Holloway exhibited a scrapbook of pictures and poems supplementing the work in American literature.

Miss Perkins' sixth period French 3 class has been having tests on irregular verbs. Rena Mae Bennett and Francis Gross have made the highest grades.

The officers elected in Miss Demaree's home room 68 are Billy Martin, chairman; and Gene McLane, secretary.

In October, 1937, Miss Peck gave her English 3 class a standardized test. Last week she gave this class another one in which Betty Dibble made the greatest improvement and Betty Hines made the second greatest improvement.

In Miss McCloskey's home room, the following pupils were elected: Helen Faux, chairman; Helen Banks, vice-chairman; and Betty Bolyard, secretary. Helen Faux is planning programs for special days.

Hilda Lehman is the first of Miss Magley's English students to get her fifteen points for outside reading.

In Miss Thorne's home room, June Holzworth read a chapter from the book "Behave Yourself" entitled "School Days" on their social home room day.

Harold Martin, a member of Mr. Furst's home room, gave an interesting talk to Miss Oppelt's home room on pigeons. At one time Harold was in possession of about fifty birds. Now he has six.

In Miss Miller's history classes, Velma Connert, period 7, and Vera Berning, period 2, gave reports after visiting the Naturalization examiner in the Federal building. The naturalization examiner interviews the aliens who wish to become citizens.

Carl Hall was elected chairman of Miss Hemmer's home room 174.

In Miss DeLancey's English 4 class, Paul Keil made 100 on the first test on Julius Caesar.

Those who made above 90 on a test in Miss Perkins' beginning French class are as follows: June McAlister, Joyce McAlister, Dorothy Foellinger, Clara Makey, Vivian Semler, Fritz Lohman, Dick Warner, Carolyn Keel, Suzanne Beck, Jack Riddings, Tom Gallmeyer, and Doris Dickmeyer.

Room S, 9A home room in charge of Mr. Verne Flint, Miss Lucy Osborne, and Mr. Ernest L. Walker elected their home room officers last week. They are: president, Marjorie McNabb; vice-president, James Barrett; and secretary, Jeanne Peterson.

Those having the largest weed collections in Mr. Gould's Botany 1 classes are: period 1, Maxine Ellerman; period 2, Mildred Berry; period 4, Erma Jackson; and period 6, Marcella Brackmann. Each of these students had collections ranging from thirty to fifty weeds. Erma Jackson had the largest collection, containing fifty-three weeds.

In one of Mr. Makey's English classes last Tuesday, Francine Remmel handed in a perfect grammar paper.

Recently four new members were added to Miss Shoup's library staff. They are Erma Jackson, Elizabeth Rose, Phyllis Tyndall, and Betty Ellingwood. The staff now has twenty-eight members.

In Mr. Gould's 3 and 7 period Botany, 2 classes, Mary Ellen Larimore and Jean Fortriede handed in the best drawings on cell-division.

In Miss Emma Kiefer's home room, there have been no absences for over two weeks. The students intend to extend this record.

In Mr. Post's Bookkeeping 1 class the pupils are learning to post in ledgers.

In a recent test over the study of leaves, in Mr. Gould's Botany 1 classes, the following persons made 100: Period 1, Ruth Ellison, Phyllis Fackler, June Holzworth and Basil Thompson; period 4, Joyce Harwood and Roberta Maggart; period 6, Virgil Guebard and Doris Hilbish.

In Miss Oppelt's Latin 4, period 6 class, James Brooks made a model of a Roman "Palx Muralis," a pruning fork, which was used for breaking down the walls of a city during the times of Julius Caesar.

Miss Smith's dancing classes are learning a primitive dance to the accompaniment of a drum.

Margaret Kutch, one of Miss Oppelt's Latin 4 pupils, made 100 on a test over the first nine chapters of Julius Caesar.

On the last social day in Miss Emma Kiefer's home room, 58, Shirley Sidle read a story to show sportsmanship at a football game.

Mrs. Rieke's public speaking classes are having exercises to develop gestures. First semester students will start their argumentative contests on Monday.

The following committee chairmen were appointed in Miss Kiefer's home room: Monday, James Bumke; Tuesday, Mary Brinker; Wednesday, Marilyn Burns; and Friday, David Bundy.

On darky quizzes in Miss Peck's English 6 classes, Keith Spiker and Bruce Bradbury made an average of A.

In Mrs. Carson's Latin 1 class, David Bundy has reported on three collateral reading books.

In home room 30, Richard Zieg read a chapter from "Boy Dates Girl" on good manners at home.

Mary Bowliby, Frank DuWaldt, Katherine Kuntz, June Flaig and Hilda Schubert received A grades on a recent literature test over the "Merchant of Venice," given by Miss Demaree, to her English 3 class.

Mr. Makey's English 2 students have been learning how to order clothing. Taking advantage of their opportunity, they are writing orders for mink coats, the latest fabrics, and the costliest styles.

In a series of tests in Miss Fiedler's three Algebra 1 classes, Lois Bloemker, Richard Fowler, Grace Ealing, Hilda Leininger, and Phyllis Ann Stein made perfect scores for the first month, but Lois Bloemker was the only student who made a perfect score for the first five weeks. The total number of points earned was 115.

Bill Morgan, a student in one of Miss Dochtermann's art classes, is working up large figure compositions in pastile and dry paint.

Mr. Allen C. Lomont will speak today on the Indiana State Legislature for Mr. Wilson's 1:00 o'clock Civics class.

A lettering boys in Miss Dochtermann's art classes are making "yell" cards for use in the gym.

In home room 34, Lum McDowell discussed printing as a vocation. In this he pointed out that there was more to printing than merely setting type. One should have a knowledge of mathematics and chemistry as well as an adequate knowledge of English. In order to make cuts, one must also have some knowledge of art.

Parties Given In Dedication Of New Room

Mrs. Dorothy Rieke's Pupils Give Talks To New, Old Public Speaking Rooms

Mrs. Dorothy Rieke's public speaking classes have recently held class parties which were for the purpose of dedicating the new public speaking room.

The public speaking class, period 1, had its party October 18. Carl Goebel was chairman of the committee. Phyllis Geller, John Dosewell, Eleanor Vesey and Allison Arnold were on the committee. Henry Velkoff was toastmaster. The speakers were Dick Buchholz, "The Welcome"; John Chedister, "The Dedication of the New Room"; Janice Dyer, "The Prophecy"; and John Crickmore, "Farewell to Room 178." Doughnuts, taffy apples, and cider formed the menu.

Dave Slattery was the chairman of the party committee for period 2. public speaking class. The theme of the party was the "Room-Warming of 190." The toastmistress was Phyllis Hayner. Joyce Reed gave the class prophecy. Farewell to the old public speaking room was the topic of Dave Slattery's speech. Bud Porter welcomed the first semester students and Margaret Null dedicated the new room. The room-warming speech was given by Dorothy Rhombach. Marilyn Wolf entertained the class with a dance.

Third period public speaking class party was October 7. Their theme was the house-warming or dedication of the new room. The party chairman was Charles Bohman. Those on the committee were Anna Anderson, Betty Shredon, Kenneth Warren and Eugene Schmidt. Eddie Reeves was toastmaster. Before dinner, speeches were given by Robert Byers, "Future of the New Room"; Anna Anderson, "Basis and Future of Public Speaking"; Marion Owens, "Memories of Room 178." Charles Will laid the corner-stone of the future. Speeches were given after dinner by members of the class in answer to the question, "Why did you select public speaking as a class and what do you think of the new room?" Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke was the speaker.

On October 7, the fifth period class had their party with Dick Shorter as toastmaster. The theme was "Shut-terbug Click." The various speakers and their topics were Betty Neeb, "Class Prophecy"; Don Osgood, "Sports, the First Two Games of the World Series and Our Own School Sports"; Dick Dyke, "Why I Want to Join the Navy"; Bob Hageman, "Why I Like to Have My Picture Taken"; Eugene Tigges, "His Flame"; Anna Lou Kowalski, "Problems of a Public Speaker." Max Kimbel was the party chairman. Others on the committee were John Magley, Anna Lou Kowalski, Bruce Klotz, Dick Shorter and Lela Gregory.

Those on the committee for the sixth period class were Stanley Wolf, Jim Murphy, Dorothy Gardner, Mary Lynn Harvel and Bill Newhard who was also toastmaster. Their program consisted of a quartette by Tom Gallmeyer, Jim Murphy, Alex Azar and Bill Newhard. Speeches were made by Mary Lynn Harvel, "Welcoming of New Students"; Dorothy Gardner, "Memories of Room 178"; Virginia Shidler, "Advantages of 190, the New Room"; Martin Nahwald, "Life History of Mrs. Rieke"; Tom Gallmeyer, "Look-Out of the Class." Refreshments were potato chips, sandwiches, olives, cookies and ice cream.

Eleanor Vesey To Be Head Of Tiny Times

Eleanor Vesey will be the general manager of the "Tiny Times" a miniature paper published annually. This will be the fourth time Eleanor has held this position and before that her sister, Virginia, had it for three years. This paper will be a small three-column copy of the regular South Side Times, consisting of an editorial page, sports and news pages, pictures, and a cartoon. It will have eight pages.

This miniature paper will be sold to parents for whatever amount of money they wish to give at open-house night on October 24.

The copy editors are Jean Forierde, Emilou Allendorph, and Richard Gerig.

The reporters are Wilma Lageman, Bud Lampton, Mildred Hanke, Jessie Freeman, Kolman Gross, Nancy Hess, Bob Robinson, Irene Kirk, Betty Bolvard, Jeanette Warren, Phyllis Fackler, Betty Daniels, and Dorothy Bloemker.

Vocational Movies Stopped

Vocational movies will not be shown this year, as they have been in the past, because there is no place to show them. When these movies were shown, they were shown in the old Voorhees Room and the admittance was five cents. Mr. Wilburn Wilson and his visual education committee had complete charge of them.

Graduate Heads Fraternity

John Bremer, a graduate of South Side who is editor of the Ball State News, has been elected president of the Ball State Teachers College Chapter of Pi Gamma Nu, national honorary social science fraternity. He is one of two Ball State seniors to have received a third renewal of a county scholarship.

Mr. Ben F. Geyer, former president of our School Board; Mrs. David S. Vesey, secretary; Dr. V. H. Hilgeman, treasurer; Mr. William T. McKay, and Mr. Willard Shambaugh deserve recognition for bringing about the reconstruction of our school. Mr. Ben F. Geyer was president for the past six years until the recent elections, which were held the first week in August. For the past two or three years the board members have made every effort to bring about the present changes. Their work consisted of complying with the state requirements, issuing and signing all bonds, consulting architects, and letting all contracts.

Variety Is Keynote Of Ways Kelleys Spent The Summer

All work and no play...you know the rest. If that old saying is true, then most of our pupils should have received good grades Tuesday, as play was generously indulged in by them this summer.

Marjorie Dyer visited the Brookfield Zoo of Hollywood, Illinois. She took special interest in the "moat system" which she describes. "By this I mean that the animals are not in cages, but are kept from the visitors by a deep ditch dug between the animals and the paths used by the visitors."

Being in camp at Lake Shipshewanna evidently caused Donna Taylor to turn poetic. She describes a wonder of nature, "The fog would slowly lift from the water and the sun would shine out in all its glory."

Bob Holloway and another boy took a canoe up to Tri Lakes this summer. They camped out and cooked their own meals.

Sally Hobbs visited Nauvoo, Illinois, this summer. At one time this was a Mormon settlement and there are still many old Mormon buildings standing. Ruthmary Riedy, while taking a motor boat ride, with three girls, ran out of gas. Three boys rescued them and after they became better acquainted, Ruthmary found that one of the boys was her first cousin.

June Schilling worked this summer. Martha Reiter visited at nearby towns.

Jack Hogan and seven other boys started from Charlevoix, Michigan, at night and went to Harbor Springs in a forty-six-foot yacht. They had trouble with the generator so at 1:30 o'clock they had to start back.

Gladys Hanke visited Hammond and Chicago.

Norma Haley visited Rome City.

Jane Hahn played tennis and visited Chicago, Detroit, and Milwaukee.

Rud Haberstroh spent his vacation in a small town in Pennsylvania.

Ray Bushing saw the New York Yankees play.

Vivian Crill went to the state fair. Don Campbell visited the National Sailboat Races at Lake Wawasee.

Anna Brockmeyer enjoyed the Ohio Caverns and a tour through Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, and Kentucky.

Ralph Meyers spent a good deal of time on his hobby which is collecting stamps.

Richard Markowitz visited Cincinnati, which is a city of hills. One of the hills there is so steep that the street cars must be pulled up by means of a pulley.

Richard Koebler had an interesting experience that turned out for the worse. He went fishing one day and when he saw his cork go under he reeled in his line, of course. To his surprise he had a great big pike. Not being able to recover from this shock, he lost the fish.

Betty Pepper was on a farm most of the summer.

Clare L. Long used her summer vacation for reading.

Eleanor Lambert's most interesting experience was taking a picnic lunch to the woods and eating it.

Dean States Rules About Lost, Found

A few rules for turning in lost and found articles have been announced by Miss Martha Pittenger. She also stressed the fact that everything that has been found, no matter how small, should be turned in at her office, because the thing that seems the least important may be of the greatest importance to the owner. Some rules to observe in case you find something that does not belong to you are as follows:

1. Turn all lost property in to Miss Pittenger's office.

2. Ask people with whom you associate if any of their property has been lost.

3. If you are a loser of something, don't hesitate to go to the office of Miss Pittenger in quest of it. If it hasn't turned up the first time you ask for it, go back until there is absolutely no further hope.

4. Put your name in ink on all your school property. Then it can be more easily returned.

Forum Of Augustus Honored Heroes; Concealed Slums

Since September 23, 1937, to September 23, 1938, is the anniversary of the two thousandth birthday of Augustus Caesar, it is only fitting that we should consider some of his achievements in the building of Rome.

The deficiency of room in Rome for legal business prompted Emperor Augustus to build a rectangular forum enclosing the temple of Mars.

Since it was difficult for him to purchase the site for the forum from private owners, he was compelled to construct two semi-circular apses at the northwest and southeast sides.

Two rows of rectangular niches were put in the circular walls of the apses. In the top row they put trophies, and in the bottom row they put statues of Roman heroes from Aeneas down.

The heroes had their names and honorable rank inscribed on the base, while their deeds were inscribed in a marble slab on the wall below. The temple of Mars, one of the most magnificent in Rome, was surrounded by white marble pillars. The wall was of a stony substance lined with marble. The wall around the forum was double to protect it against fire and to hide the slums of the surrounding neighborhood. The standards and flags which the Romans got in wars were put in the temple, while statues of the victors and many works of art were in the forum.

Letter On Grooming May Win Toiletries For South Side Girl

"What Good Grooming Means to Me" is the subject of a prize letter contest held by the Toilet Requisites Company. Any South Side girl is eligible to participate in this contest in which the purpose is to stimulate interest in good grooming.

Other entrants will be college girls and those belonging to Girl Scouts, 4-H, or other girls' clubs which have good grooming as an essential part of their program.

The letters are to deal with any phase of the general subject—What Good Grooming Means to Me—its effect upon poise and personality and how it can help one in future business, social and home life. They will be judged solely upon the basis of the thoughts and ideas contained in them, not upon the manner of presentation or expression. It is suggested that they range in length from 100 to 1,000 words. Entries must be postmarked not later than December 5. They must be addressed to Editor, Toilet Requisites, 101 West 31st Street, New York City.

Pictures of the winners will appear in the January issue of "Toilet Requisites." There will also be nine prizes which are either perfume or sets—such as creams and cosmetics sets, make-up sets, purse ensembles, brush sets, bath sets, traveling and overnight cases, lipstick and compact sets, and manicure sets.

Winners will be notified and given the list of prizes from which to select their choice. All of the prizes are from well known perfumers and cosmetic makers such as Lucien Lelong, Helena Rubenstein, Schiaparelli, Coty, Harriet Hubbard Ayer, Chanel, Mary Pickford, La Cross, Bourjois, and Maybelline. The prizes are valued from $5 to $35.

Wainwright Purchases Press

Jack Wainwright, music teacher here at South Side, purchased the old press of the School Press and the small press of Louis Bonsib, '36, for his printing office in the basement of the lodge at Oliver Lake. This summer he used it to print letterheads, bulletins, catalogs, etc., for the camp.

Graduate Is Honored

Miss Eleanor Monesmith has been honored at Franklin College, where she is a freshman student. She has been asked to become a member of the Wigs and Cues Club, a dramatic organization, and has also been selected for the college choir.

Improvements Partially Due To Publication

Issue Of Last Year's Times Has Pictures, Articles About Crowded Condition

The South Side Times is partly responsible for the improvements that have been made on this school, through a large Improvement Campaign issue published November 11 last year.

This special issue was a paper of sixteen pages and was published in conjunction with the National Educational Week program held by the schools of the nation.

Conditions Depicted

Many pictures and articles about the crowded conditions that students of South Side had to contend with were published. This issue was published before it was definitely known that this school was to be improved.

Mr. Merle J. Abbett was the author of an article in the special issue of The Times, and he also made a speech to the parents of this school's students at a back-to-school night program. Both his speech and his article had to do with the crowded conditions in some of Fort Wayne's school buildings.

Editorials were written about the throngs eating in the school cafeteria and the difficulties in holding assemblies because of the lack of an auditorium.

Articles Varied

Some of the articles published in this issue of The Times were about the need of expansion in the building, by R. Nelson Snider; the work of Horace Mann in the field of education; the lack of equipment for the health department; crowded conditions under which students took gym; the need of larger locker rooms; need for some permanent club rooms; about the great need for more class rooms because South Side was built to hold 1,500 and 2,000 pupils were attending school; better lighting conditions; and about the need of an auditorium in which to hold assemblies and speech contests.

The special issue also contained articles on safety, on present dress styles, and on other school subjects.

Freshmen Consider "Gods And Heroes" Uninteresting Book

Freshman English classes are required to read and report on the book, Gods and Heroes, as one of their home reading books. Everyone is entitled to his own opinion, and here are the opinions of some of the freshmen on the question of whether or not freshmen should be required to read Gods and Heroes.

Dick Lockhart: I don't think you should have to read Gods and Heroes, because it's more like a fairy tale than freshman literature should be.

Paul Johnson: I think we should because it helps us to understand Homer's Odyssey better.

Richard Kilpatrick: I don't think it's interesting enough to be required to read.

Ruth Hageman: It's too dry to have to read.

Carolyn Snoke: I like to read that sort of thing.

Ruth Werkman: I don't think we should be required to read it, because not everyone likes that type of book.

Natalie Hoppe: I don't think we should have to read it, because it's awful.

Marianna Klotz: I think it's too dry to read.

Bob Guion: I don't think that any home reading book should be compulsory.

Mary Burt: I don't like that type of story.

Marilyn Loomis: I'd rather choose my own reading books.

Peggy Berning: It's according to how interesting the book is, because I haven't read it yet.

Dan Auer: It's not interesting enough.

Senior Has Appendectomy

Fred Stolte, senior, was absent from school for the last two weeks because of an appendectomy. Each student in Miss Georgianna Hodgson's third period geometry class wrote a letter to him at the St. Joseph Hospital.

Safety Broadcasts Will Begin Friday

Mr. R. Nelson Snider has made arrangements for a series of safety lessons to be broadcast on the new loud speaker Friday mornings during the home room period. The committee chosen to arrange the programs was Mr. Paul Sidell, chairman; with Miss Lucy Osborne and Mr. Cook to assist him.

Mr. Sidell and the committee have a new idea for the programs. This new plan is to have students in X English classes write scripts for the safety broadcasts. These broadcasts should be from 3 to 8 minutes in length. Possibly some of the best ones can be used in assemblies. Mr. Sidell has much pamphlet material which he will be glad to lend to the script makers. At the presentation of the program, due recognition will be given the writer.

The first few lessons will be devoted to safety in the home.

City Gridders Squads Take Three Games

Redskins, Irish, Tigers Win Over Garrett, Decatur, Auburn Last Week-End

North Side, Central, and Central Catholic each brought home the bacon last week, North Side winning its fifth in a row, Central Catholic breaking into the win column for the first time this season and Central winning one of the two games they played during the week end.

North Side, still going at high speed, rolled up a 46-0 victory over a Garrett eleven at the Northern stadium Saturday. The Redskins scored early in the first quarter as the result of a blocked kick, Hill marking up the first six points for the Red. Werling on an end run of fifty yards, cluded the scoring in the first quarter. Taylor accounted for another touchdown in the second quarter with an off-tackle play for four yards. Cowan added eight more points to the score in the third. Irving went over the goal with a pass from Young. Heiber snagged a pass in the end zone to add the final 6 to the 46-0 score. The Redskins played beautiful ball, showing some brilliant running, blocking. The Garrett eleven fought hard to hold their strong opponents but were unsuccessful and failed to pierce the Northerners' defense.

The Anderson Indians gave the Centralites a surprise 6-2 licking in the first of the two contests on the Tiger schedule last week. Barely out scored, the Tigers put up a tough fight trying to take the game. They succeeded in gaining more yardage than the Indians but Anderson was able to keep them from raising their score. Central's only score was a safety when Richardson broke through the Anderson line and nailed Pate in the end zone.

The Indians made their score early in the third quarter when Pate broke loose on the twenty-six yard line and did not stop until he crossed the goal. The Tigers have the upper hand for the most part during the game but were unable to shake the Indians, although at one time they succeeded in taking the ball to the Anderson one yard line before they lost it on downs.

Central Catholic hit pay dirt last Friday when they played Decatur in the South Side stadium. With the fine playing of Bitler, Prough, and Colone and a line which continually opened holes in the Decatur line, the Irish were able to beat the Yellow Jackets by the score of 39-18. The Jackets drew first blood early in the first quarter when McConnell ran 38 yards for a touchdown as the result of a blocked kick. The Irish retaliated with a 65-yard drive, with Prough doing his share, ending in a touchdown. The Irish scored again in the second quarter by a pass from Bitler to Colone. However, before the half was over Decatur also completed a pass for a touchdown, but failing to convert the kick left Central Catholic in the lead at the end of the half.

The Irish pulled themselves further into the lead in the third quarter by turning two intercepted passes into touchdowns. Still fighting the Decatur eleven succeeded in completing a 28-yard pass for a touchdown. But a long drive and a plunge tallied another touchdown for the Irish, and two long passes from Bitler to Colone added another score before the game went off.

Central's Tigers played to a 29-13 victory over Auburn in the North Side stadium last Saturday. Coach Mendenhall had hoped to save his varsity for the Huntington clash this coming Saturday. Starting the reserves the Centralites found themselves behind by the score of 13-2 at the end of the half. The only score made by the Tigers in the first half was a safety, good for two points when the Central tacklers caught Hines back of his goal line. The Red Devils put over two touchdowns before the half closed.

The second half saw the varsity Blue in action. The Red Devils did no more scoring, but the Centralites piled up the score rapidly. DeWald, Hanley, Knothe, and Kulesza each scored for Central before the final gun.

Many Girls Earn Points For Tennis

(By Donna Dennis, Betty Showalter)
Congratulations and bouquets to Jeanne Smith for capturing the highest honor possible in tennis—that of school champion! Although Jeanne is only a sophomore, she has carried off the championship honors as ably as any senior could have done. We wish you all the success in the world for keeping up this grand record in your future tennis matches, Jeanne.

Bernadine Bender seems to be sure of the fact that sophomore hockey team will be very successful this season. Her main reason for thinking so is that she is playing forward to the best of her ability. Keep up that old fighting spirit, Bernadine!

To Whom It May Concern: Every Friday night a certain boy can be found watching very attentively the hockey games. At the same time, a certain sophomore captain seems to be exerting himself to play her best. The captain couldn't be Bernadine Pressler, or could it?

Eventually the sophomores will learn. Joan Squires put her shin guards on backwards at the hockey games last Friday night. She simply could not understand why the people who made the shin guards put the buckles on the wrong sides. Have you found out, Joan?

Anyone watching the games Friday night would have mistaken Miss Smith for one of the players. She surely was doing a lot of jumping around trying to get out of the way of flying sticks. That's one good way to get exercise.

It has been whispered about that Frances Nash would like very much to see her name in this column. Please take notice, Frances, your wish is granted. Now all we would like to know is for what particular reason you wished it to be in.

If anyone accidentally steps into a little hole on the south field, spraining their ankle, it will probably be the hole that Gwen Roberts dug while trying to hit the ball. Maybe we can get a bigger ball for you, Gwen.

Goblins, ghosts, and witches may be seen flitting here and there tomorrow night. But they will be only some of our G.A.A.'ers going to their annual Halloween party. What mystery! What fun! What excitement! Don't miss it!

Intramural Individualities

An outstanding individual in intramural sports who has shown that he is an all-around intramural athlete is Frank DuWaldt. Frank is a sophomore this year and is a small but mighty lad who knows his stuff. This year Frank went out for intramural cross-country and intramural golf in which he was very active. He is a pretty good tennis player and plays a lot of it.

In fact, Frank likes practically every sport that exists, and no matter whether he has ever played it before or not, all he has to do is know the rules and you'd think he was a veteran at the game.

However, Frank seems to have an uncanny sense for golf. No doubt the reason for this is because he is so closely associated with the game, as Frank caddies at one of Fort Wayne's country clubs during the summer season. Frank has played plenty of golf, and he has watched plenty of people play it. In case you want to know anything about the game of golf look up Frank DuWaldt who knows all, sees all and hears all about that great game of golf.

Now don't get me wrong when I say that Frank is an all-around athlete, for that doesn't mean that he neglects his studies just for athletics. He is one of the most scholastically inclined pupils of the entire sophomore class. Frank is taking the college preparatory course and he excels in every subject. Last June Frank received an award at the Recognition Day ceremonies for doing the most outstanding work of any freshman in English I and II. So now it is my pleasure and privilege to introduce to you an individual who excels in both sports and studies—Frank DuWaldt.

Sportsmanship Is Discussion Topic Of Athletic Paper

School sportsmanship was discussed in no uncertain terms in a recent bulletin of the Indiana High School Athletic Association. The bulletin deals first with the question of whether or not the matching of a football squad of twenty boys with a squad of forty boys is fair competition. Since football is chiefly a game of endurance and stamina, it does seem unfair to make one team of boys play against three or four in the course of an afternoon and then call the larger squad a superior team, Mr. Trester pointed out.

A limit is set on the number of men on the tournament squad of a basketball team, each school being allowed ten players. The sooner a restriction is placed on the number of men constituting a football squad the sooner the game will take on a more sportsmanship aspect, the bulletin points out. Since the object of all rule makers is to equalize the conditions under which each team plays, the definite need of limiting the reserve strength upon which a coach can draw is obvious.

The question of ethics is another major factor in school sportsmanship. Should the players in a contest be required to play not only according to the rules of the game but according to the spirit of the rules? A list of forty such questions was placed in the bulletin for consideration by the teachers and the students. Among the more important are:

1. Should the coach, principal or official require that the rules be followed?
2. Should players question the decisions of the official?
3. Who should select the officials for the games?
4. Is it right to do whatever is not forbidden in the rules?
5. Can disconcerting noises, when an opponent is attempting a free throw in basketball, be defended?
6. Do players in a game have the right to expect the best in playing, skill, training, sportsmanship, etc., from their opponents?

Nearly all of these points and many more go to make up the reputation of the entire school. The fans should remember that their actions as well as the actions of their team are included in determining the sportsmanship of the school. Mr. Oliver Wendell Holmes stated this very nicely in eighteen words, "...to pay up, to own up, and to shut up if beaten, are virtues of a sporting man."

Archer Fans Think C. C. Game To Bring Needed City Victory

This Saturday will see one of the most important games which South Side will play during the whole season as this game will probably decide whether or not South Side is tough enough to beat the North Side grid squad. For Central Catholic was tremendously defeated by North Side by the outrageous total of 51-0. If we can defeat C. C. by such a fair total we have a Grade A chance of being city champs.

According to a few of our many Archer supporters there's no doubt about it that the majority of us are all backing the team with all our might. Some of the various opinions on our chances of winning are:

Dick Dosch: Even chance, maybe.
James Barret: We'll probably beat them.
Dick Green: Well, we've got a good backfield.
John Dingley: I don't know.
Dave Lowe: We ought to win if we put a little fight in the game.
Joel Salom: They're pretty good, I think.
Edgar Kettler: I think we've got a pretty good chance.
Bob McKay: We'll lick the pants off them.

David Azar: Pretty good.
Dick Gallmeyer: From the showing in the Michigan City game, I think we'll beat them.
Bob Wylie: Pretty good, if we keep going like we have been.
Bob Young: We'll not only beat Central Catholic, but North Side and Central also.
Bill Siebold: We'll barely beat them.
Bud Lampton: If we play a defensive game like we did in the Michigan City game, we'll beat them.

Louis Hallenstein: I hope we come out on top.
Bob Safer: As an authority, I sincerely believe that the outcome of the skirmish shall prove favorable to the winning team; however, it is also true that it may prove disastrous to the loser.

Route 30, East of Fort Wayne

Intramurally Speaking

The intramural golf preliminaries are all over and we're all ready for the finals of the tournament which are to be held at the Municipal Links—as that will be the course where the Varsity Squad will play next spring. The final skirpish will be held October 22.

Those participating in the finals of this event are the winners in their various groups of the preliminaries. The finalists are as follows: Harry Feaser, Ralph Hamilton, Thomas Hall, Bob Robinson, Frank DuWaldt, Charles Feistkorn, Bud Tieman, Wayne Stair, Dick Zieg. All these boys have proved that they're plenty good golfers. Their scores are pretty evenly matched; so this ought to be a plenty good and a plenty close contest.

Last week in the various gym classes several of the students in each class were honored by taking charge of the classes. Mr. Friddle thinks that this is a very good idea for it gives one a chance to get up in front of a group of people and talk to them freely, and it also gives one a chance to show his leadership among a group of individuals. Personally your scribe also thinks this is a wonderful idea.

Last Friday, in one of our most prominent gym classes, Burl Friddle showed his talent in ballet dancing. Mr. Friddle showed all the class attitudes the old ballet which goes as follows: Toe, heel, point, kick.

So, in closing, why don't some of you guys take a hint.

Off Tackle Slants

South Side will play the underdog to Central Catholic for the first time in the nine years that games have been scheduled between the two schools. The Irish have been established as favorites but will be up against that toughest of foes, old man jinx. Not wanting to stick out our necks by making a prediction, we will let it go at a guess—South Side by one touchdown.

That well-known wrecker of teams, injuries, again took its toll on the Archer squad in the Froebel game. Griffin, who started at right-half for the Green, was hurt in the first quarter and Bob Briedenweg, varsity fullback, suffered a leg injury during the last half. Both boys will be missed as the Archers meet Central Catholic next Saturday.

The Archers were victims of a bad break Saturday when an intercepted pass accounted for the first Blue Devil score. Apparently off on the wrong foot, the Archer defense let down, permitting Froebel to put across no less than five touchdowns.

Our pick for the outstanding Archer player of the Froebel game is LeRoy Cook. Cook played almost the entire game at end; and, while his play was not particularly flashy, he was in there fighting all the time.

Ralph Saalfrank Is Prominent Mainstay On Archer Gridiron

In 1921, Ralph Walter Saalfrank was born right here in Fort Wayne. South Side did not know that seventeen years later they would have among their two thousand, the same Ralph Walter Saalfrank, only he is now a very fine athlete and a swell all around fellow. Ralph (just call me Sully) is really only beginning to get athletic recognition here in South Side. He went out for basketball last year and immediately landed a forward berth on the reserves. This is also his first year for football, and already he has proven himself quite useful to have around. When the occasion arises Sully can alternate from tackle to quarterback position and seems to fit in either spot quite successfully.

Sully received his early education at the Emmaus Lutheran Grade School. He entered South Side in the year 1936. His favorite subject is industrial arts, and Mr. Makey heads the list as his favorite teacher. Sully likes swing music, but he isn't much of a rug cutter. He does not have any favorite radio program in particular, but he does listen to Charley McCarthy once in a while. Ralph was a member of the Emmaus Church basketball team when the team went to Indianapolis to play in the finals. He attributes some of his basketball skill to this championship team.

When asked the main trouble with South Side in the last three games, he replied, "There isn't enough school spirit back of us, and we haven't shown enough fight in our games." During the summer Ralph plays softball. He pitches for the Fairfield Merchants. His team won third place in the Mike Kelley league, and it was mainly due to Sully's fine pitching.

"Bill Moss is a swell guy even if he does make us work hard. I didn't even know how to hold a football before I came out for the squad this year," Saalfrank said while being questioned. He also said, "We still have a good chance for a swell season if we show a little fight and work hard." The writer might add that in his opinion South Side might not have such a good season this year, but next year Ralph certainly ought to be a powerhouse in that lineup.

New Student Here
The new students who have entered South Side are John Werner from Anchorage, Alaska; Lionel Gebhardt of Kendallville, Ind., and Ralph Thompson of Detroit, Mich.

Jeanne Smith Wins Net Championship

Sophomore Titlist Defeats Opposition In Other Classes To Take School Tennis Crown.

Jeanne Smith, a sophomore, was crowned the tennis champion of the school in the G. A. A. tennis tourney when she defeated Agnes Seiler by a score of 6-4, 8-6 last Monday night.

In her class tourney, she had defeated Helen Fry 6-3, 6-1 to become the champion of her sophomore class. This earned her the right to meet the senior champion, Gene Porter. Gene had defeated Nadine Mueller in a closely contested match 7-5, 10-8 to become the senior champion. The great upset came when Jeanne scored an easy victory over the senior, Gene Porter, 6-3, 6-0.

Agnes Seiler, the junior champion, had defeated Pauline Werling 6-3, 6-4 in the final round of their class tournament. She met and triumphed over Betty Hargan, the winner of the freshman class. Their score was 6-1, 7-5. Betty had won her way to the finals by defeating Lenora Moyer by the score of 6-4, 6-3.

Archers To Open Drive For City Championship Saturday

Green Eleven To Meet Irish In Grid Clash

Central Catholics Are Favorites To Win, Though Tradition Is Against Them

Bitler Is Center Of Purple Offense

South Side Is Victim Of Bad Break In Froebel Game, In Form Of Interception

South Side's band of Archer grid warriors will launch their drive for the coveted city championship next Saturday afternoon when they take on a surprising, fighting Irish squad from Central Catholic. The Green and White who suffered their sixth straight defeat at the hands of Froebel last Saturday are pointing to the city series clashes this year to make up for a so-far unsuccessful season. The Archer schedule is arranged in a manner to permit the inexperienced Archers to acquire much needed experience before facing any city schools.

Central Catholic, for the first time in the nine years the two teams have tangled, are given an excellent chance to beat a South Side football team. In fact, they have been made favorites to win the game next Saturday. However, the chances of the Irish will be lessened by that mighty force of tradition, and beating C. C. has almost become a tradition for Archer teams. On the basis of comparison of scores the Irish have a slight edge over the Archers, but these scores can never be depended on in predicting the winner of a football game.

Central Catholic will depend on its flashy offense to outscore the Archers, while if the Green and White are the victors it will probably be the result of a superior defense. The C. C. offense is centered around Bitler, Irish triple-threat back.

The Archers were victims of a bad break in the form of an intercepted pass early in the first quarter of the Froebel game last Saturday. From here on the Archer defense was not quite fast enough to stop feet-footed guys back. LeRoy Cook, Dave Roth, and Englehart played a good game for the Archers throughout, and Bob Biedenweg was in there fighting till an injury forced him to the sidelines.

In Central Catholic's game with Decatur in the stadium last Friday it was offense against offense with the Irish finally winning out by a score of 39-18.

Coach Bill Moss substituted frequently in the Archers' game with Froebel in order to find the best possible combinations and also give as many players as possible a chance to gain valuable experience. It is therefore a rather difficult problem to name a starting line-up for the Central Catholic game. Nevertheless tentative starting line-ups are as follows:

South Side	Pos.	Central Catholic
Cook	LE	Stanczak
Close	LT	Weikart
McCammon	LG	Kelly
Ferguson	C	Dehner
Roth	RG	Maxwell
Loos	RT	Wertrick
Goshorn	RE	Mahar
Welborn	QB	Alter
Englehart	RH	Colone
Moorhead	LH	Bitler
Beidenweg	FB	Prough

Nine Boys Reach Finals Of Tourney

Intramural Golf Finalists To Stage Contest At Municipal Golf Course On October 27

Nine boys will compete in the finals of the annual intramural golf tournament to be held at the Municipal Golf Course, October 27, during the annual teachers' convention.

The nine entrants selected for the finals out of a field of more than twenty are: Harry Teaser, Ralph Hamilton, Thomas Hall, Bob Robinson, Frank DuWalt, Charles Feistkorn, Bud Tieman, Wayne Stair, and Dick Zweig. Every one of these players is good, and all are prospective varsity material.

This golf tournament is conducted to reveal varsity talent. One of the reasons the tourney is to be played at the Municipal Course is that the varsity team probably will use this course next year.

Several of those entered in the tournament are underclassmen and should go places on the varsity. The varsity golf squad lost most of its good men last spring through graduation, so there is a place for some good players on the team.

The golf tourney is held in three classes, lightweight, middleweight, and heavyweight, as are all intramural contests.

Teams To Meet Tough Grid Clubs

North Side, Central Will Play Evansville and Huntington In Coming Clashes On Week-End

Two of the most attractive games of the season are in store for the followers of the North Side and Central football teams this week-end. North Side will tangle with Bosse of Evansville Friday night at the northern athletic field. The following afternoon Central will meet the Huntington Vikings at Huntington.

North Side's drive toward the state football title will meet plenty of trouble in the form of Bosse of Evansville, when they play that team next Friday night. If the Northerners can get by Evansville, they have a great chance for the title. However, Evansville has a veteran team back from last year, and the Redskins are in for a hard evening. Last year North Side whipped Evansville by a score of 13-0. This year they will have to fight every minute of the ball game to do as well as last year. The Redskins, however, had an easy time with Garrett last week, and Coach Nulff's boys believe that they can turn in a win over Evansville.

Central will also have anything but a dull afternoon when they meet Huntington next Saturday. It has been some time since these two teams have met on the football field and a hard-fought game is in prospect. The Vikings have a big, fast, ball club, and they also have so far enjoyed a fairly successful season. The Tigers will probably get a real workout. But the boys from downtown are anything but pushovers themselves. With such stars as Hnley, Tally and Kulesza carrying the groceries for the Tigers, Central hopes to turn in a win.

All-City Chatter

For the first time in the history of their rivalry, the Central Catholic Irish are favored to beat South Side's Archers. The teams have been battling it out for nine years, and the Irish have never won a game from the Southern squad. This year, however, they seem to have the Archers outclassed in all departments of the game. Central Catholic defeated the Decatur Jackets last week for their first win of the season while the Archers lost their sixth straight. The Archers, however, have been looking forward to their city series games as a chance to atone for an otherwise disheartening season.

North Side, striving for that mythical state football championship, will meet its greatest hurdle next Friday night under the floodlights of the Redskin field when they take on Bosse of Evansville. Bosse has almost the same ball club that held the Northern powerhouse to a 13-0 victory last year. There is a good chance that North Side's string of five straight victories will be spoiled as Bosse has lost only one game and that by one point to its city rival, Reitz.

North Side seems to have an almost ideal triumvirate of backs on their undefeated football team in Bob Cowan, the sensational sophomore; Ev Huth, and Frank Werling, captain of the team. These three boys have been responsible for most of the Redskins' gains this year, all of them making long runs and gaining consistently on power plays, not to mention passes. These same boys will also be the cause of many headaches when the basketball season rolls around, as they

Froebel Wins Over Archers By Score 34-0

Blue Devils Outweigh S. S. Over Ten Pounds Per Man; Are Speed Kings

South Side's Archer grid squad suffered their sixth straight loss last Saturday afternoon at the hands of a heavier and speedier Blue Devil outfit from Froebel of Gary. When the smoke of battle had cleared, Froebel had beaten the Green 34-0.

Outweighing the Archers over ten pounds per man, the Blue Devil line did not once permit the Archer attack to pass its 40-yard stripe. Meanwhile Froebel backs, the fastest on the Archer schedule to date, provided plenty of scoring punch.

The Archers got off to a good start when, after kicking off, on the first three plays they drove the Blue Devils from the 16 to the 6-yard line. However, a few plays later Froebel got a break which resulted in their first touchdown as Bekowf intercepted an Archer third down aerial heave, tossed by Englehart and intended for Biedenweg, and ran 49 yards to score. The plunge for the extra point was good and the Blue Devils led 7-0 at the end of the first quarter.

H. Brown, colored Blue Devil half-back, who caused plenty of trouble every time he ran the pigskin, ran 12 yards around end to account for the second Froebel score midway in the second quarter. J. Brown placed-kicked the extra point.

In the third quarter the Blue Devils put over two more touchdowns to lead 27-0. The first of these came as the result of a 48-yard run by Blair, another Froebel speed king. Price plunged for the point after touchdown. A few minutes later Price chalked up another six points as he went over from the 5-yard stripe to climax a drive of 70-yards. The drive was sparked by Blair who ripped off a 30-yard run to the Archer nine-yard line to set up the score.

The fourth period was a loosely played affair with numerous penalties being inflicted upon the Blue Devils. Many substitutes saw action in this final period. Henik, a Blue Devil sub, got away for a 69-yard sprint for Froebel's final score. Romik converted his attempt for the extra point to make the final score 34-0.

In the closing seconds, Froebel

Marcia Allen Named Rifle Range Officer

Marcia Allen was appointed range officer of Girls' Rifle Club by Dorothy Bloemker, president, with the consent of Rosemary DeLancey, faculty adviser, at a recent meeting of Girls' Rifle Club. Shooting was practiced for the first time this term.

Many girls will have enough points at the end of the semester to receive their letter. The requirements for this award are targets with 20, 25, 30, and 35 points on them. There should be ten targets of each number. Points are also earned by attending ten meetings which give a member 100 points. Twenty points for each rating acquired is given, totaling 80 points if the four ratings are earned. If the members work sincerely on these requirements it is possible to earn a letter within a year.

No new members were taken in this semester unless they were upperclassmen as the club was too large to function properly last semester.

again threatened to cross the Green and White goal, but a fumble on the one-yard line gave the Archers the ball as the gun ended the game.

Frosh Speedball Team After Honor

Team Displays Excellent Playing In Game With Margaret Kienzle's Squad On Monday.

It looks as though Rose Stemen's freshman speedball team is headed for first place in the freshman speedball tournament this year. The excellent playing which they displayed in their game with Margaret Kienzle Monday evening helps to prove this statement.

In this game Myrtle Ernst started the scoring by making a touchdown for team I, and Thompson Hall made another one before halftime was called. Team II made their only touchdown during the first half. Eight more points were added to Stemen's team's score before the final whistle blew, making the score 12-2.

Orlida Braun's team and Lenore Moyer's team are both trying to come in second in the tournament. When the two teams met Monday, Moyer's team had won two games to Braun's one, but the final score showed that Orlida Braun's team had outplayed Team IV and defeated them 5-2.

Personal fouls were called on many of the players on both sides. The girls seem to be pretty good at making their penalty kicks, since five of the 7 total points were made by penalty kicks. Captain Braun led her team in scoring, while Makey and Coudret tied for the honor of being high scorers on the opposing team.

Mary Fry, Betty Lapp, Eva Jean Wylie, and Frances Nash were referees.

Articles Enumerated By Snoopy Reporter With Headache Pills

By Bob Robinson

The next time you can't go to sleep at night, try counting the articles in the construction of the new addition to our portals.

In order to prepare you for your mid-night vigil your scribe toured the new part of South Side with a box of aspirin in one hand and an adding machine in the other. The results of this scrupulous search for material are of rather doubtful origin, for after only a few minutes your truly ordered more headache tablets.

However, I found out that the newer portion of the school has 954 panes of glass, the common eight by ten size that you can't see through, used in many doors, and 408 separate panes of glass for the outside windows. Sixty-six window shades cover these panes, and protect us studies from the merciless rays of the sun.

Also put into the new addition were 168 light bulbs and globes with seventy-four switches to control the lights, and 255 door knobs and cupboard handles. Exactly 116 electric plugs grace the new part too, along with seventy-two heat-giving radiators, three drinking fountains, three clocks, and a lighted trophy case donated by the Art Club of this school.

The two new stairs in the building each have fifty steps apiece in case you're interested.

SO...whew, am I glad that recital is over. If you are ever bothered by insomnia try counting little articles around this school, your house, or whatever you may be near, although I would not advocate this stunt in English class.

By now you are probably wondering if I can tell you how many bricks there are in this building and all I can say is...FOOEY.

Puppeteers Will Show New Members Shop

The new members of the Marionette Club will be shown the puppeteers' workshop tonight at the club meeting. As this is the first meeting held in the workshop, it will have to be put in order and the stage set up. A discussion will be held and, perhaps a choice made, on the play for this year's puppet show.

For the purpose of instructing the less-experienced members on how to manipulate marionettes, the club will be divided into groups under Janice Dyer, Marjorie Dyer, Lillian Sherbondy and Bill Morgan. One of these groups will present a short skit at each meeting. This will give all the members actual dramatic experience. The members are requested to bring their dues at the meeting tonight.

Student Is Injured

Russel Cummie, a junior, while playing football early this week, broke his foot and leg. He will be absent from school about six weeks. Russel's home room, 76, is sending him a basket of fruit.

Will Give Skating Exhibition At Bell's

Jimmy and Jean Lidstone

The arrangements have been completed to bring Great Britain's champions here. They will perform at 9:30 p. m., Wednesday, October 26, at Bell's Skating Rink, Route 30-24, east of Fort Wayne.

Manager Bell said, Jimmy and Jean Lidstone, sister and brother members of the National Skating Association, organization of Great Britain, are to give exhibitions. It was announced by Fred Martin of Detroit, secretary and treasurer of the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association, of the United States, that it has been recently recognized and taken into the Amateur Athletic Union. This ranking gives roller skaters of the United States equal terms with members of fourteen associations of ice skating which have representation on the Olympic Committee, and roller skaters now can compete with foreign countries.

The English skaters, champions of figure and dance skating steps, will give exhibitions in a number of rinks in Eastern States and for the Indiana skating fans.

The Lidstone couple will perform at Bell's Rink but will appear in no other place in Indiana.

Archers Ferret Out Secrets Of Weatherman's Dual Roles

To interview Mr. Robert Wilson, naturalization examiner from the District Naturalization Office at Detroit, Michigan, a group of government students, including a representative from each government class, and Miss Pauline Van Gorder, Miss Mary Crowe, and Miss Hazel Miller, government teachers, were visitors at federal post office.

Mrs. Jane A. Keefe, deputy clerk of the United States District Court, made the arrangements for the interview. Mrs. Keefe is the former Jane Allen, '31.

Examine Judge's Chambers

The original purpose of the visit was to be present at the examination of the applicants for citizenship by Mr. Wilson. This plan, however, was subject to the wish of the applicants, whose privilege it was to decide whether or not they wished an audience at their examination. Their decision was not in favor of the audience. As Mr. Wilson explained, they are naturally nervous at the prospect of the hearing and visitors would serve only to distract them. As a result, the students were shown through the post office during the hearing and were taken to Mr. Wilson's office afterwards for a private interview.

The library, judge's chambers, and court room all proved to be interesting to the students who examined the bookcase, tried the witness chair and even experimented with His Honor's swinging chair.

The students, however, were not to be contented with the beauty of these rooms, and so they climbed to the third floor, there to roust the weather man out of his musings. The weather man proved to be very agreeable and took them up on the roof to show them his instruments and explain their workings.

Having explored all available parts of the building, the students came back to the office of the Clerk of the District Court to begin the interview with Mr. Wilson.

Show Arrival Certificate

Mr. Wilson explained that before a person can even begin to apply for naturalization papers, he must prove that he is in the United States legally. He can do this, if he entered the country after 1906, by producing a Certificate of Arrival. This certifies that he has been lawfully admitted to the United States.

He may obtain his first papers, or Declaration of Intention, upon his immediate arrival in the country. This first paper is sometimes issued on the applicant's mark rather than his actual written name. On the second papers, however, he must write his name in English. This is quite a problem as, besides being difficult to do, the applicant is nervous, which doesn't help matters at all. Sometimes a half-dozen papers are ruined in the course of trying to sign one properly.

Mr. Wilson avoids this problem by providing practice papers. Besides being able to write his name in English on second papers, he must be able to read enough English to understand what is in the Constitution, and he must also express his belief in our form of government.

Some Are Ineligible

There are a number of things which render the applicant ineligible to receive papers. Mr. Wilson gave as an incident one man who had been convicted of possessing and selling liquor without a license. The only way he could receive his papers would be for him to wait five years in which he has not been convicted and so establish the necessary five years of good character. Many cases are not accepted because of educational reasons. Some people who come up are so excited that they appear more stupid than they actually are. Those who are better qualified have more confidence and are usually less nervous.

On the other hand, people who are very well educated apply for citizenship. For instance, Mr. Wilson recently received an application from a man who has been employed for eleven years at the Lincoln Life Insurance Company as a secretary to an executive. He is an immigrant from Canada and was very well educated there.

Refuse To Bear Arms

A difficulty which Mr. Wilson frequently runs up against is the one concerning people who refuse to take an oath to bear arms in defense of this country. In this case it is usually against the applicant's religion to swear to an oath, so he is asked to affirm instead.

Mr. Wilson stated that his work was very interesting but that if the people would come down there with the attitude that he is there to help them and not to persecute them, he would find his work much easier.

Teachers Find Joy In Hearing Lecture By Blind Essayist

Six teachers of South Side, who attended the lecture given by Miss Helen Keller Sunday night, expressed their opinions of her as follows: Miss Susan Peck—It is almost beyond understanding how she ever learned to speak. Her accomplishment is a result of the marvelous teaching she has had.

Miss Elizabeth Kelley—She is such a fine example of a person who has overcome difficulties, that she makes the rest of us feel that we do not use our senses.

Mr. Edna Gould—Her accomplishment shows the value of persistence.

Miss Gertrude Oppelt—To see Helen Keller is to experience the unusual.

Miss Crissie Mott—The whole evening held a spirit of reverence. Miss Edith Crowe—I thought it was a very enlightening evening and very worthwhile.

Many Archer Grads Are Honored At I. U.

Several of our ex-Archers have been outstanding in activities recently while on the campus at Bloomington. Dick Schannen, '35, is the new recording secretary of the Blue Key, a honorary fraternity for upperclassmen. Jack Mueller, '33, has been elected alumni secretary for the Blue Key. Maxine Morrison, '38, was elected to sing second soprano in the University Women's Glee Club.

Joan Bonsib, '38, and Vivian Woods, '38, have been exempted from one semester, and Melvin Eggers, '33, from two semesters of English after the three scored high grades in a special examination. Fred Nye, '36, has been elected president of Theta Chi social fraternity. Louis Bonsib, '36, has been advanced to junior manager of the swimming team. The Folio, a literary magazine, has as its student book reviewer Edyth Thornton, '35. The School of Law has named Warren Baker, '32, on the board to edit the case notes section of the Indiana Law Journal.

Archers Articles Are On News-Sentinel Page

Three members of our school have shown their talent in writing articles about their hobbies and poems in the "Youth's Passing Show." They are Janet Whetsel, Etheldrea Behling, and Joyce Reed. Janet wrote about her chain book idea, which she said came to her through the desire to pass on good books. Etheldrea wrote a poem titled "Early Bird's Flight". Joyce wrote a short story portraying a twelve-year-old Chinese boy engaged in a battle with the Japanese.

Mrs. Scott Absent

Mrs. Lillian Scott's absence from the study hall recently was due to the death of her mother, who lived in Warsaw, Indiana.

Mrs. Lex V. Combs, formerly Miss Virginia Montgomery, teacher of Room 8, took Mrs. Scott's place while she was gone.

All Times Payments Due November 18

All payments for The South Side Times must be made by November 18, it was announced today by Virginia Goelein, circulation manager of the school publication. At the present time there is no agent who is entirely paid up, although several home room agents have only about a dollar in payments out.

It is expected that within a week, some of the agents will have all of their money paid.

The 50-cent campaign will begin in a few weeks.

Intramural Tennis Winners Named

Mr. Louis Hull is in charge of the book store this year. He has announced that books not available at the first of the term can now be secured.

South Side Addition Promises To Bring Advantages To All

South Side's new addition will bring many advantages to the teachers and pupils. A few of these advantages are the new Greeley Room, general offices and new study hall.

The new Greeley Room is better than the old room, because it has a small kitchenette and a stage. The kitchenette is a great advantage, since clubs will now have a place in which to prepare refreshments and to wash their dishes. The stage gives the drama students a chance to put on short plays for entertainment for the club.

Miss Martha Pittenger and Miss Dorothy Alderdice enjoy working in their new offices much better because they have more room for all their equipment. The new lighting system will also be a great advantage.

The new study hall will be an improvement to both the teachers and the pupils. It will enable the pupils to work under quieter conditions.

Students Aid Moving

Miss Nellie Covalt and Mr. Earl Murch supervised the moving of the commercial department to the new location in the south part of the building. The students who helped them move it were Melvin Schultz, Robert Hollaway, and Nord Krauskoff. The thirty-five students in Miss Covalt's seventh period class also aided in the moving.

Ed Reeves Leads With 26
Subscriptions; H. Wiehe,
Kitty Clindard Are Next.

Picture Drive Is Still Progressing

223 Seniors Pay For Photos,
Only Seventy-two Pupils
Have Them Taken So Far

As tabulated Monday evening, The 1939 Totem had 394 subscriptions. Monday climaxed one week of selling during the campaign which is to end November 4. However, any one subscribing before December 2 will have his or her name printed in gilt on the leather cover. All students are urged to subscribe as soon as possible. The price is $2.00, paying it all at once or on the installment plan; however, fines will be charged if payments are not made on time. Eddie Reeves is the leader to date in the number of subscriptions sold with a total of 26. The other leaders as recorded Monday are Helen Wiehe, 17; Kitty Clindard, 16; Dick Buchholz, 15; Phyllis Hayner, 15; Bill Newhard, 13; and Mary Treu, 13.

Schmidt's Book Leads
There are eight books, the leading one being under Eugene Schmidt with eighty-two subscriptions. The other books, their leaders and number of subscriptions are as follows: Book 1, Marjorie Wallace, 23; book 2, Hazel Perry, 48; book 3, Dick Buchholz, 67; book 4, Dick Garton, 42; book 5, Marjorie Quackenbush, 30; book 6, Laura Jane Rea, 31; and book 7, Bob Byers, 23.

Assigned To Rooms
The above named are all assigned to certain home rooms to get their subscriptions.

Two hundred twenty-three seniors have paid for their pictures which are to appear in The Totem, but only seventy-two students have had them taken at the Jefferson studio to date. The captain of book 1 is Anna Lou Kowalski; she has sold 16 pictures. Those in her book are Marjorie Quackenbush, 30; Laura Rea, 31; Edward Reeves, 26; Eugene Schmidt, 7; Frieda Schubert, 3; Virginia Shidler, 5; Julia Smith, 8; Annette Snook, 7; Mary Treu, 13; Nancy Valiton, 4; Francis VanBuskirk, 4; Eleanor Vesey, 6; Jeanette Warren, 2; Marjorie Wallace, 4; Helen Wiehe, 17.

Canada Selected For Stamp Topic

Don Parkinson To Head Meeting; Club's Annual Skating Party
To Be At Bells' December 2

Don Parkinson, chairman, Dick Browner, Mark Stobaugh, Jack Hodell, Betty Clem, Maxine Case, Ed Turner, Mary Virginia Russ, and Bertha Couderet will direct the activities of the Philatelic Society during their second program meeting of the semester, November 2. Canada has been selected as the meeting's topic in order to carry out the semester's theme, which is "Progress of the Americas via Stamp." The semester's program will be given to each member at this meeting. They will contain a list of the club's activities for the year, a list of standing committees, and the club song.

Bob Wylie will head the December 14 program meeting of the club using Central America and Mexico as a theme. South America will be the January meeting, headed by Edward Turner.

December 2 has been announced as the date for the club's annual skate to be held at Bell's rink. Carlton Clem will act as general chairman. The sixteenth of next month, a regular stamp exchange will be held.

A package containing a record of the club's activities will be sent to a beginner's stamp club in Dania, Florida. The club's sponsor read of the South Side group's yearly program in a monthly magazine and wrote to Miss Pauline VanGorder, faculty adviser, asking for information.

Safety Chairman

Mr. Paul Sidell
Mr. Paul Sidell has been named safety chairman in charge of the regular weekly safety program to be broadcast over South Side's new radio system. Students in various English classes will co-operate with the safety group by writing safety scripts for presentation.

Faculty Almost One Hundred Per Cent Strong In Objecting To Vacation Study By Archers

(Editor's Note:—This is the first in a series of monthly polls to be taken by The Times in order to ascertain a cross-sectional viewpoint of South Side's students and teachers. This week, faculty members co-operated by answering questions concerning class preparation by students.)

(By The Poll-Of-The-Month Editor)
Almost the entire teaching staff thinks students should not be required to study during vacations.

Fifty per cent of South Side's faculty thinks that students should study about an hour for each subject.

Thirty-three per cent thinks a student should study about four hours a day.

Opinion is pretty much divided concerning students studying during week-ends.

Sixty per cent feel that a student cannot adequately prepare for class recitation during one study period.

Ten o'clock is generally accepted as the time "all good seniors should be in bed."

Teachers think students should not cram for tests.

Two to one odds can be secured in favor of our present grading system.

Taking each question individually, South Side's faculty registered many diversified opinions regarding the questions asked by The Poll-of-the-Month Editor. When the faculty was given these sheets, discussions were held in many classrooms, as to the content and texture of the questionnaire. The form, it is to be understood, was merely a brief outline, assuming that most of these questions had been discussed before. Therefore, the essential idea of the sheet was to gather these opinions together and tabulate them. Results are as follows:

Decide On Preparation

Question One: How long do you think a student should study each day in class preparation for a particular subject? One hour led forty-five minutes by twenty-five per cent. Taking into consideration that a student has seldom more than twenty-five minutes class study, twenty-five minutes, it must be realized, must then be spent either in a study period or outside of time spent in school.

Question Two: How long do you think a student should spend each day in preparation for all of his classwork? In South Side, students with a regular program generally carry four and second questions, it is easily made known, that South Side's faculty is quite lenient when it is known that four hours are accepted as an answer. About an hour then is left in spare time to study other subjects. The time allowed by other teachers as in answer to the question are as follows: Three hours, two hours, until the assignment is finished, five hours.

Leisure-Study Combination
Question Three (briefly): Should a student be required to study during a week-end or should that time be devoted to leisure? Opinion was divided equally between faculty members with the exception of a few who thought a combination of the two was ideal.

Question Four: Do you think students should be required to study during vacations? Ninety per cent stood for no study during vacations. Only six thought class preparation for the next day's assignments should be made. One of these replied, "What do students wish, an education or just grades?"

Question Five: Is an hour's preparation in the study hall suitable for class recitation? Sixty per cent of South Side's faculty said "No." Others commented, "Yes," if the student truly concentrates.

(These were counted as "yes" when tabulations were made.)

No Later Than Ten

Question Six: At what time should a student retire at night regardless of whether or not lessons are prepared? About eighty per cent of South Side's faculty admitted ten o'clock was about right—later "if an emergency arose." Four faculty members agreed that nine o'clock was "just right," and two members registered eleven o'clock.

Question Seven: Should students cram for exams? Sixty per cent, no; twenty per cent, yes; twenty per cent, review only.

Question Eight: Do you favor our present grading system in preference to a "pass or not pass" system? About sixty per cent said yes. About forty per cent decided that the present system was not at all "workable." Two opinions contributed are as follows: "I favor a system whereby students would receive no grade at all, but would contract to do a certain piece of work; as soon as the work is completed, a new contract is made"; and "I think that a pass or not pass system is quite right if an additional mark could be given for outstanding work."

Gets Autographs On Plaster Cast On Broken Ankle

Here is a question. Who broke his ankle playing football Sunday and is now at home with it incased in a plaster cast? None other than that red-headed Archer, Russell Crumrine. He is not only confined to his home for a week, but is collecting autographs on his plaster cast.

Sunday afternoon a group of boys congregated for the purpose of playing football. Among them was a certain 11A of whom we have been speaking. During the course of the game, Russell happened to get the ball. Of course, everyone piled on top of him. Result, a broken ankle.

When anyone comes to see him, Russell has his autograph before he leaves.

His home room, 76, sent a committee to take a basket of fruit to him.

Marionette Club To See Program

Special Invitations Are Issued To Puppeteers For Show To Be Held At Wolf & Dessauer.

At the meeting of the Marionette Club held last Thursday in the workshop, Miss Erma Dochtermann issued a special invitation to the members of the club to usher at a puppet program to be given by the art and primary departments Friday morning, October 28, at 1:30 as a part of the Teachers' Convention. The program, which will be held in Wolf & Dessauer, will feature Miss Margery Batchelder, honorary president of the Puppeteers of America. She comes from the Ohio State University and will be assisted by three pupils from that institution. Using rod puppets, which are manipulated from below, they will present the play, "Saint George and the Dragon."

The members were also given an opportunity to purchase tickets at a special price for a program given by the Yale Puppeteers at the Fort Wayne Art School last Tuesday.

Four groups formed for the purpose of instruction are as follows: Virginia Hill, Marcia Allen, Max Spencer, Jim Strawbridge and Janice Dyer, leader; Dick Green, Jeanne Rensch, Miss Dorothy Magley, Ralph Ransome and Margery Dyer, leader; Wilma Carrier, Donna Dennis, Mildred Berry, Betty Showalter and Lillian Sherbondy, leader; Mary Ellen Barrett, Royal Steiner, Nadine Mueller, Janice Klemmelter, and Bill Morgan, leader. These groups will in turn present a play at the meeting. The new members were then shown around the workshop and given a chance to work the puppets.

Meterites' Skate To Be November 4

Helen Savage Is General Chairman Of Affair; Ticket Head
Is Lois Gumpfer; Issue 450

Meterites made final arrangements for their skating party to be held November 4 at their meeting Tuesday, October 18. Helen Savage is general chairman of the skate.

Lois Gumpfer, ticket chairman, announced that 450 tickets have been made. The lieutenants in charge of the ticket groups are Gloria Staley, Joan Cox, Dorothy Gilden, Harriet Greer and Romanus Rediger. Mildred Berry, ticket chairman, appointed Betty Ann Bohn and Bettie Lue chairman, respectively, of the next two meetings. Phyllis Laver, social chairman, announced that at the next meeting the new members would be initiated.

It was decided that Meterites would, as usual, send a Thanksgiving basket to some needy family. Marjorie McNabb was asked to make arrangements for the hay-ride to be held soon.

Margaret Heine played a selection, "Robin's Return," on the piano. Phyllis Laver then gave a short talk on the scene, costuming and characters of the play, "How the Story Grew." The play was then presented. Romanus Rediger was the director and the characters were Martha Jane Krauskopf, Marjorie Roberts, Emalyn Remmel, Carol Whitner, Helen Savage, Elaine Hirschey, Dorothy Gilden and Marjorie McNabb.

To conclude the meeting, Ione Jean Tracht took charge of a game called "Automobile Romance."

In Goes Nickel; Out Pops A Needed Pencil

"A stitch in time saves nine." So thinks the office girl. She just took up to the stencil machine, turns the cute looking little crank, and out pops a shining yellow pencil.

There is a law which prohibits slot machines, but the one in the office just isn't that kind.

This little machine is situated in the general office in a position which is handy for all those who need a pencil.

Grad Is Honored

Robert Klopfenstein, '37, was honored last week by being picked as one of the eight students of Lake Forest, Illinois, College, chosen for inclusion in Who's Who in American Colleges.

This book is published annually. It contains names of students together with records of their accomplishments from colleges all over the country.

Freshman-Soph Contest To Be November 9-10

Speech Entrants Number
115, Argumentative Talks
To Be Five Minutes Long

One hundred fifteen contestants have signed up for the Freshman-Sophomore Speech Contest, to be held November 9-10. Fifty-eight are in the sophomore division and fifty-seven in the freshman division.

A separate contest will be held each period of the day, and from each division three winners will be picked. The first and second place winners will compete in another contest held at a later date. All the speeches will be five minutes long and of argumentative type. The contestants met in the study hall last week and were introduced to their coaches. The contestants and their coaches are as follows:

Inter-Club Group Lists Committees

Members Are Appointed To Get Thanksgiving Baskets; New Representatives Are Present

Committees, which are to serve for the first big project of the semester, that of the Thanksgiving baskets, were announced at the Inter-Club Council meeting held Monday, October 17.

They are as follows: Writing of the bulletins, chairman, Doris Williams, Dick Buchholz, and Betty Daniels; collecting food, chairman, Max Wagner, Dick Weaver, Carl Goebel, Donald Hensch, and Bill Hebermehl; packing the baskets, chairman, Bill Riethmiller, Roger McVay, Clayton Jensen and Evelyn Kruse; collecting money and buying necessary goods, chairman, Evelyn Kruse, Patty Lyman and Dorothy Amstutz; and the committee for delivery, chairman, Carl Goebel, Gloria Staley, Velda Oppenlander, Kenneth Warren and Morton Nahrowld. These committees will start work immediately on the task assigned them.

Those representatives who were but recently chosen are: Patty Lyman, Wo-Ho-ma; Velda Oppenlander, Philo; Kenneth Warren, S. P. C.; Donald Hensch, Torch; Morton Nahrowld, Hi-Y; Clara Makey, Girls' Archery; and Betty Daniels, Three E's.

Each member was told to ask his club whether it wishes to give twenty-five cents a semester toward buying various holiday decorations and pay that sum now or wait until it is needed. Reports will be given at the next meeting.

We wish to correct a statement in last week's issue in regard to new club officers. The newly elected secretary is Bill Riethmiller and not Dick Buchholz as The Times stated.

Math-Science To Hold Masquerade Tonight

At the Math-Science Club Halloween party this evening at 7:30 o'clock, Eugene Schmidt and John Magley are to be in charge of entertainment, games, etc.

The party is to be held in room 114, the new northwest study hall, under the supervision of Miss Georgianna Hodgson and Mr. Elma Gould, the club adviser.

All members are supposed to come masked and in costume. Appropriate prizes will be awarded for the best costumes.

Halloween refreshments will be served.

Two North Side Clubs To Give Dance Friday

The North Side Psy-Chem Club, in connection with the North Side Hi-Y, will sponsor the "Rug Cutters' Ball" after the North Side-South Side game on Friday night, October 28. The decorations will be in the colors of both schools so that the South Side students will feel as welcome as the North Siders.

Music will be provided by Larry Fenton, a new and popular orchestra leader of these parts, and his swingsters. Admission which will be taken at the gate will be twenty-five cents.

Mrs. Lillian Scott, a teacher at South Side, will be one of the chaperones.

Program Announced For Art Educators Friday, October 27

Miss Erma Dochtermann, president of the Art Section of the Northeastern Indiana Teachers' Association, has announced the program for the Art Educators on Friday, October 27, at 9:30 a. m. at Wolf & Dessauer.

The first feature will be a puppet show, "St. George and the Dragon," presented by Marjorie Batchelder and Company from Columbus, Ohio. Miss Batchelder is instructor in Fine Arts at Ohio State University and is president of the Puppeteers of America. She is nationally known, and Miss Dochtermann considers herself very lucky to have obtained her.

Miss Dochtermann has invited the South Side Marionette Club to serve as ushers. They will be attired in colorful smocks and will add brightness and gaiety to the picture. The annual Art Club luncheon will follow the puppet show. It will be served at Wolf & Dessauer and the guests of honor will be Miss Batchelder, her company of three, and Miss Alice E. Hall.

Miss Elizabeth Gilmartin, supervisor of art in Toledo public schools, will speak on "Living in the Arts," Thursday at 1:30 p. m. She will illustrate her talk with a movie of art activity through the grades in Toledo.

Miss Blanch Hutto, who recently has been added to the South Side Art Department, is assisting Miss Dochtermann in the plans for this section. Miss Hutto has become personally acquainted with Miss Batchelder through her interest in puppetry. Will assist Miss Batchelder and her company.

Wo-Ho-Ma Club Installs Initiates

Fifty-Four Have Initiation By Candle Light; New Heads For Ensuing Year Enter Offices.

The new members of Wo-Ho-Ma were installed in the club last Thursday, October 20, in the Greeley Room. There were fifty-four new members installed. The ceremony was a candle light service.

Lois Gumpfer, president; Louisa Haugk, vice-president; and Elizabeth Kato, secretary-treasurer, entered their new offices. Eileen Goddard was the voice. The "Spirit of Home Economics" was Patty Lyman. Joan Earle led the songs while Kathryn Boerger accompanied the singing on the piano. All the members sang the initiation song.

There was community singing after the installation. Drum-sticks were used for refreshments.

The committee for the initiation was as follows: Chairman, Kathryn Boerger; Eileen Goddard, assistant chairman; Doris Douglas, Betty Kinley, Norma Haley, Barbara Miller, Margaret Kingle, Katherine Bultemier, and Marilyn Anweiler.

Philo Will Hold Initiation Monday

Lois Rea, Helen Banks, Margery Rapp, Beverly Griffith Will Be In Charge Of Initiates.

Initiation of new members will feature the next Philo meeting, October 31 at 3:45. Invitations have been sent to the initiates, who are as follows: Rebecca Abbott, Ruth Hoover, Miriam Jackson, Pearl Wallen, Betty Brindle, Kathryn Beckman, Mary Lee Kimmiller, Marian Miller, Marjorie Dyer, Josephine Frosh, Anna Anderson, Vivian Bushroe, Katherine Ernberger, Edith Summers, Phyllis Branning, Dorothy Foellinger, Virginia Fleming, Hertha Hoffman, Alea Randol, Margaret Wiles and Bernice Etzler. Both formal and rough initiations will be held.

Lois Rea, vice-president, and Helen Banks, sergeant-at-arms, will be in charge of the initiations with Margery Rapp and Beverly Griffith assisting. Dues must be paid by the next meeting or they will be doubled. They may be paid in Room 68, Wednesday, fifth period, to Annette Snoke, treasurer.

South Side Vacationists Believe In Phrase "See America First"

Last summer many footloose Archers took the phrase, "See America First," as their motto and devoted much time to sight-seeing. Others, without leaving Fort Wayne, spent enjoyable hours at work and play.

Joan Korte visited a friend in Monroe, Michigan, and spent some time at Lake James.

Ronald McVay went on a two weeks' trip to Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, New York, Boston, White Mountains, Schenectady and Akron.

B. Jacobs spent a few weeks at Lake Wawasee with some friends. While writing a letter on the pier of her cottage at Lake James, Eileen Hoffman dropped Mary Jane Kelly's fountain pen in the water. After many futile efforts, it was retrieved.

Bargaret Hart played nurse maid to a spoiled little four-year-old neighbor girl who turned out to be quite a problem.

Mary Lee Hines has sympathy for the water-boy of the circus since she had to be water-girl for the thrashers on the Hines' farm.

Lorain Iba attempted to overcome her inferiority complex on the tennis court.

William Weikart's hobby is collecting match tops. He collects them

P.T. A. Conducts Open House Night

Parents Visit Different Class Rooms; Merle J. Abbott Is Speaker; Tiny Times Is Sold.

Under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association, open house night was held on Monday, October 24, at 7:30 o'clock. It was a combination of the former back-to-school meetings and the showing of the new part of our building. Thus the plans for the procedure of the evening were different than those of the previous years.

The parents of the students met in the home rooms. During the time allotted for the home room period, the home room chairman introduced the visitors and explained the nature of the student's work. Superintendent Merle J. Abbott was the main speaker during the broadcast from the office over the loud speakers.

A three-quarter-hour interval was had in which the parents visited their children's teachers in the various classrooms.

After that, a tour of the building was conducted by student guides. All evening the P.T. A. had sales booths in the halls. Cake and ice cream were sold in the cafeteria.

The Tiny Times was sold in the halls during the evening by representatives of The Times.

Times Staff Has Changes Made

Betty Daniels To Be Business Manager; Julia Smith Will Be Editorial Page Editor

Two important changes were made in The Times staff at a general meeting held in Room 16 on October 21. Betty Daniels, who was formerly the business adviser, was promoted to business manager. Julia Ann Smith was shifted to the office of editorial page editor. She was formerly the business manager.

At the meeting plans for a big issue to be published November 3, prior to American Education Week, were discussed. Bruce Bradbury spoke to the reporters about the big issue, and Betty Daniels spoke to the ad solicitors. Miss Rowena Harvey addressed the staff and complimented them on the last issue of The Times. Eleanor Vesey acted as chairman.

Archers' Articles Are On News-Sentinel Page

David Bundy represented the Archers on Youth's Passing Show Page in the News-Sentinel, October 22. He had a story of his collection of arrow heads along with his picture. David told how his father used to collect them as a boy and then turned his collection over to him. He said that they range from one to five or six inches in length. In his collection he has about a hundred mounted on a board with pictures of two Indians. Ethelreda Behling wrote a poem, entitled, "Wings of Prayer,"

Industrial Arts Class Has Conciliatory Feast

Mr. Henry Chappell, our industrial arts instructor, was a guest of honor at a banquet given him by his students on the day that U. and S. cards were given out. The boys in the sixth period class decided to have a feast, and everyone was to bring something. The plan turned out grandly, and among the items brought were candy, watermelon, apples, oranges, turnips, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, bananas, tomatoes, cucumbers and onions. Everyone in the class received S's, but we don't believe the food made any difference.

Safety, Pep Assembly Both Held Last Friday

Two assemblies were held last Friday. The first one was held after the home room sessions. At this assembly there was a talk on safety. The second one was held at 3:45 o'clock. This assembly was a pep session at which Mr. Moss, the football coach, gave a talk about the team and stressed how the cheering sections at the games played a big part in the players' winning the games. A new feature appeared at the pep session in the form of cards telling the names of the yells. This makes it possible for everyone to know the name of the yell before the students start to yell it.

Come On! Subscribe For Best Totem Ever Published By South Side Senior Class

A good yearbook went on sale a short time ago, and it is the duty of every loyal South Sider to support this annual enterprise. The Totem campaign began October 18, and it will continue until November 4, at which date the drive officially closes. After that time The Totem will cost $2.25 instead of the usual $2.00.

Max Spencer, Totem editor, and Kenny Warren, business manager, have promised that one of the best yearbooks ever published by a South Side staff will be put out in 1939. This year The Totem is to have a leather cover, and everyone who subscribes to the yearbook before the campaign closes on November 4 will have his name inscribed on the cover.

Every year The Totem wins laurels for this school and certainly this annual publication should be the pride and joy of South Side. However, the only way The Totem can be published is by the money paid for subscriptions and pictures, so let's get behind the Totem subscription campaign and—get your Totem subscription today.

Everyone's Demanding Safety On Part Of Bicycle Riders

"Safety first" are the co-words of every man, woman and child in America today. The very fact that safety is needed in every community today has been stressed to the very nth degree.

The idea has been narrowed down to the greater portion of school-going boys and girls, the bicycle riders. This group is staging a "safe cycle" campaign, and while the action originally started in a Manhattan high school, the idea is being given serious consideration by other institutional bodies.

The general aim of the federation is to awaken the need for safety in the mind of students, by having them check up and record their own safety record in cycling.

A committee is appointed to interview the city chief of police regarding city ordinances. Securing this information, the committee draws up a code of rules for the student body itself.

With such an excellent example of safety campaigning before them, not only students but the entire multitude of adults should awaken to the far reaching cry of "We need and must have safety!"

Watch Hands, Feet

Now that we have actually realized a beautiful new building with clean bright walls, glistening window panes, new curtains, and soft treading floors, what can we, as students, do to keep it in good shape? How many fingers unconsciously touch these walls every day leaving a little mark? When waiting for someone in the hall, how many times have the heels rested against the walls leaving an ugly black smudge? How often have we thrown open the windows never watching to see if they touch the curtains? No one would harm our new building intentionally; it is only through carelessness that we do it. Let us watch our hands and feet so the building will remain beautiful during the entire year.

Lower Than Amoeba

The lowest person in the world is a cheater. A cheater can even be classed below the lowest type of criminal, for one who cheats not only commits a crime on somebody else but also on himself. When one copies work off of another person, he is cheating himself by committing such a crime as this. If one is at all interested in learning and attaining knowledge, he must do his own work. Criminals commit crimes on other people, but cheaters and so called "copy cats" cheat themselves.

October is the month of harvests, good times and food, and the month of Halloweening; but every thing can be carried to an extreme, as is Halloweening every year. Halloweening causes destruction and many other unwanted things, so let's resolve that when we go out Halloweening we won't destroy property.

Let's back our football team during the North Side game; you know we can't be licked until the final gun goes off.

In a short time we probably will be wearing our warmest clothing, because it is beginning to get really cold at last.

Congratulations to the new class leaders. They all should be satisfactory.

The Totem campaign has started, so let's support this very worthy project.

Halloween Is Eve Of Gaiety, Pranks When Witches Play

What does Halloween really mean? Of course, it means an enjoyable time for all, but it also has a much more educational meaning than that. Halloween, on the evening of October 31, is the time when all young people indulge in a great deal of gaiety and pranks, a night to play at being witches, ghosts, and fairies.

This evening is so called, because it is the eve of the Christian festival of all saints. The name means Holy Eve, a time originally set apart to honor the memory of all saints. The building of bonfires, the cracking of nuts, bobbing for apples floating in tubs of water, and the telling of fortunes and ghost stories, which are now customs are all relics of paganism.

Students, about thirteen centuries ago, in case you are interested, pagans celebrated November 1 as All Spirits Day, when all spirits, both good and evil, were believed to be on earth. Even after the pagans adopted Christianity, they still observed many of their old customs, including those which have survived as the Halloween diversions of today.

In past years the ceremonies peculiar to the occasion in Scotland were of a highly superstitious nature and Burns' poem describes them very humorously.

Shakespeare writes in connection with Halloween,

"Where the bee sucks there suck I;
In a cowslip's bell I lie;
There I couch when owls do cry;
On the bat's back I do fly."

There is less of historical and educational interest in connection with this holiday than with most special days that are observed in the schools, but all young people find a peculiar fascination in its weird legends.

Now to get back to 1938 and South Side. There are ways, students, to celebrate Halloween wholesomely and still have a joyous time. However, on Halloween night, consider the rights of others and do not destroy property. In closing, I want to give you a popular version of the ten commandments, "Mind your own business."

Jitterbug Jabber

This week we're going to have a regular jam session. And we don't mean swing. This week we've found out a little bit of everything about students including what they do outside of school. In other words, how they earn enough money to take their best girl to a weekly show.

It is really very funny when one strives very hard to break one's leg in order to have one's best girl bring one a radio and a box of beautiful bonbons. This practice is not very popular, but we know a young fellow, Russ Crumrine in particular, who so aggravated the members of the opposing football team that they all piled on top of him. He came out underneath with a scrumptious twisted tibia. We heard from very reliable sources that his "boy friends" are beating his time with Wanda. But Wanda took him a radio so that he wouldn't get lonesome. Wise girl.

If you, the student body of South Side, would like to know the reason that the Rialto Theatre receives so much of the patronage of the feminine portion of humanity, all you have to do is jog down to that theatre and gaze upon the ushers. I say gaze because that is all that anyone is able to do. Those lucky boys are Max Wagner, Bashful Bob Meyers, and Royal Steiner. Those great buttons on their uniforms caught this scribe's eye and we think they're worth noticing.

Flash. Hot off the grid. Masterful Joseph Bex has really gone out for football. Now I know that our team will come out on the bottom. That is a mistake. It should read top!

Young love is a beautiful thing. As is first love. Ask Billy Knoll if he doesn't think so, too. Barbara Brower might influence his heart, too. Don't forget Brownie, Babs. But Mueller would be grateful if you would.

In these days, it is very hard to find any dirty dirt and equally hard to find any dirt at all. We'd appreciate it very much if someone would get into a fist fight with someone else and let us know about it. So long and please get a couple of black eyes.

Mrs. Henry Ruger Visits Reconstructed South Side Building

"I am used to small schools, so South Side seemed quite large and wonderful to me when I visited it," remarked Mrs. Henry Ruger after her visit to South Side last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Ruger was the houseguest of Miss Pauline VanGorder for a week, which terminated Monday when she left for New York. She is the wife of Professor Henry Adams Ruger, instructor of psychology and mathematics at Columbia University.

While at South Side, Mrs. Ruger visited the botany classes which are under the guidance of Mr. Elmer Gould. She taught botany in several high schools in the University of Wisconsin and in Colorado College, so it was an interesting time that she spent in Mr. Gould's classes. She stated that she could see the difference between college and high school botany, but that both were very instructive. She has also been instructor of psychology at the university and college mentioned above.

During her visit to the school of the champions, she saw the new additions and the radio system that is now in use. She also visited Miss Martha M. Pittenger and Mr. R. Nelson Snider and later stated that South Side should be very proud and happy to have such interesting and capable people for their dean and principal. Miss Mary McCloskey's English classes were also subject to a visit from this interesting visitor.

Kelly Koed Kut Ups

Dots and dashes, lots of flashes, from gutter to gutter and shoveled to me. In other words I mean there's a lot of dirt this week.

After feeling Weinraub got over that old feeling for Rose Steiber of North Side he ran up against a lovely named Rena Bennett, and you do have to admit that Rena is something to rattle against, fellows. Anyway, Izzie fell hard and from all appearances so did Rena. They try and cover up this romance by saying that they are just friends but anybody with half an eye-sight can see that it's love with a capital L.

It seems that Bill Peters couldn't find anybody that fit the bill in South Side so he traveled over to North Side and found the one and only of his young life. The lucky girl is Betsy Beard.

Kitzmiller had the same trouble it seems, at least it certainly appears that way. He has been seen here, there and everywhere with Pat Becker, also of North Side.

Roy Heaven is very much that way about a certain Miss Hall. I'm sorry but I can't tell you whether the feeling is mutual or not. Time, alone, will tell, I hope.

Those two freshies, Eugene Reichert and Bob Geyer, seem to have taken the feminine hearts by storm. Even some of the older girls are wishing that they were young again. What will happen next, I wonder.

That Casanova, Dick Garton, has become quite a Romeo of late. Yes sir, he stepped right in there and took a good grip on the fems of South Side. The gal who seems to rate top honor with him, though, is Laura Jane Reed. Nice going, Laura.

Paul Wolford seems to make his mind up as to whom he should go for.

On one side is blonde Wanda Bowman and on the other side is Arlene Snyder. I have to admit that it is a pretty hard choice to make. But Paul, have you forgotten that little cutie, Mary Sites?

Marilyn Loomis has been enchanted by a member of our band, but she refuses to reveal his name. What's the matter, Marilyn, is he too good to risk losing?

Frances Eggers is making quite a hit with that dark haired Juan Rodriguez. She really has something there.

Our bashful senior Bob Meyers has been seen again with that beautiful brunette Dorothy Laur of St. Catherine's Academy. Could it be serious? Bob still seems to rate with Virginia Goegelein. I think it's a toss-up between the two.

Several students have been clamoring for some more of those goofy inventions that were so popular last year. Here are just a few.

1. Chairs without seats for people who would rather stand.
2. Telephones that don't ring for people that don't know anybody.
3. Folding beds that don't unfold for people with insomnia.
4. Lamps without lights for people that are always in the dark.
5. Step ladders without steps for washing windows on the ground floor.
6. Fountains without water for people that aren't thirsty.

These crazy inventions are easy to think up, so put on your thinking caps and start thinking and send in all of your inspirations in care of the mailbox. I hope that the mailbox will be fixed any day now but in the meantime don't feel at liberty to read and take all of the dirt. So long until next week. Yours truly.

Halloween Is Great Sport; But Don't Carry It Too Far

Boys of high school caliber, ordinarily quite sophisticated, act very strangely on Halloween night and nights prior thereto. To see a lad of large size stick a pin in a doorknob is indeed strange to an older person who observes this petty foolery. Sticking pins in doorknobs, however, is one of the lesser evils instigated during this season.

Some boys wish to expand their Halloween celebrations and consequently do much real damage. A few of these jokes, such as stretching ropes across the sidewalk for the unwary to trip on and pulling the trolley of street cars are likely to do personal harm to some unlucky person. Breaking of overhead lights, mutilation of stop signs and such horseplay are Halloween stunts that cost the city hundreds of dollars.

Not only is city property damaged but also that of its citizens. Windows and lights are broken and private property is destroyed as youth makes its yearly splurge.

Destroy Property

Not only is the destruction of property unwarranted but it sometimes results in the pranksters running afoul of the majesty of the law in the form of the policeman. We recall a very recent incident which will probably bring forth memories to the pranksters involved. In this particular incident when the officers appeared on the scene, pranks were forgotten and sprinting was the order of the minute. As the policeman loomed into view, the pranksters recalled instantly all the stories they had heard about the unfortunate persons who fell into the hands of the law, and not wishing to share their experiences, started to sprint. (As a matter of information to anyone who wishes to participate in one of these sprints, there are no set rules. It is "catch as catch can.")

Asks Students Question

Now, pranksters, one question—What becomes of that bravado and courage which is so manifest when these marauding expeditions are planned and are in the process of fulfillment? Where does this bravado go when the law is sighted? Does it all go to your feet?

Now, seriously, for a moment, whether our students are planning or were involved in any previous entanglements, we do not know; but let us forget the pleasure we may derive from these questionable antics and let us give some thought to the persons who may be damaged, either in person or property. Let us resolve that our school will be one whose students will not be justly charged as having participated in vandalism and hoodlumism.

Archer Pet Peeves Of Great Variety Related To Scribe

Good morning everybody! This is your roving reporter traveling from border to border and coast to coast trying to find out everyone's pet peeve. Is there some little something that annoys you? For instance, burnt toast, long fingernails, mosquito bites, certain people, losing things, alarm clocks, flat foot fogies, or people who can't sing, but think they can.

When asked "What is your pet peeve?" the following people replied: Betty Birely: Stu Welborn.

Jeanne Gumpner: Shoe strings that break just when you are ready to start for school.

Betty Haney: People who aren't on time.

Phil Pressler: Little sister!

Marilyn Hull: People who break dates for no reason at all.

Don Knorr: Bertha Coudret.

Phyllis Lauer: Kids that call up and won't tell who they are.

Virginia Lee: Boys!

Jim Glass: Girls who think I am stuck up when I go down the halls and I don't see them.

Juanita Likens: Books.

Allison Arnold: Women drivers.

Katherine Kuntz: People who get their angora sweaters all over everything.

HISTORY VS. HILLBILLIES

United States History, sociology, citizenship, occupations, government and civics—there you are, take your pick!

To the average student facing a tall, stalwart line of superfluous names, to the student who has only a hand-shaking acquaintance with "history" in its simplest form, to the student who thinks that a text book is the lowest form of life, please believe that dead, anemic, wandering souls from the pages of your textbooks are not dull creatures.

To those of you who see Napoleon at Waterloo, Washington at Valley Forge, and Cleopatra in Egypt, try to remember that there are human sides to these characters. They aren't so bad after all when you can appreciate what they went through, lived and died for.

You can have a choice between the national debt in 1910 and how many people lived there, when, if you wish, but knowing Abraham Lincoln, in a sense, was the first well-known American hillbilly, and that Oscar Wilde, one of the better English playwrights, wore velvet breeches, and carried a sunflower in his hand everywhere he went, you might enjoy history even a little more. Even present day history has its humor.

There are countless examples. Reading several good biographies about several famous people greatly increases historical knowledge. Ask a teacher for a good biography to read. She'll be ready to tell you of a good one.

History as taught in high schools today had no right to be stale or stogy—not with empires being smashed, kingdoms overcome, wars being fought, inventions made known, and with our up-to-the-minute news flashes from foreign countries. Formerly, perhaps, history was boring, today it has no ground for such an opinion. Today, many students have heard the coronation, have heard Hitler speak at Nuremberg. Why, even in South Side, many classes listened to the World Series.

The student who rants and tears his hair over history's dullness has no legitimate excuse to stand on. Perhaps with a teacher who delves into statistics or a stogy textbook, there might be some chance for reply, but one can't complain year in and year out about the same old subject.

There is the type of misfit who enjoys only Orphan Annie, Popeye and the sports pages. But, we may thank our daily newspapers, even neglecting our lucky stars that they come only once in a lifetime.

Bit Of Humor, Pun Makes Dull Class Just Loads Of Fun

Humorous bits add greatly to the regular hum-drum of every day class life. Perhaps at the crucial moment when everyone has his mind directed on a certain subject, out of the clear sky comes either a pun or a bit of humor. The dread silence of the room changes as if by magic to a roar of hilarious laughter.

We mention a few causes of this uproar. These things happened in a certain history class about three weeks ago. This certain class was in the midst of a serious discussion concerning the scalawags and carpetbaggers of days gone by. A certain student was to give a report on these two classes of the so-called political men who were always getting themself the cream of the crop when it came to fulfilling political offices. The reporter was in the depths of explanation when all of a sudden his tongue twisted and instead of saying "carpetbaggers" the student said "carpetbeaters." Every face, including that of the teacher beamed brightly. The silent laughter soon became audible.

This second little cause of hilarity was also over a matter of history, but this time the real source was a specific date. The teacher asked a certain member of the class to tell him the date of the election of 1786. The students gazed longingly at the ceiling and then answered, "I don't know."

This was about as bad as the time the girl was asked the date of the Fourth of July and she likewise didn't know the answer.

The last of these little ditties occurred in one of those famous public speaking classes. The genial teacher asked the secretary for some reports—s-s-s-s. The clever secretary arose quickly, replying, "I have a report-t-t-t-t." Some little controversy followed as to whether it was a report-t or reports-s-s-s.

Wee Sketches Of Our Big People

By Irene Kirk

Small, eyes of hazel, and curly sandy, brunette hair describes the features of a person who occupies a rather prominent place among the senior classmen. She may be seen quite frequently hurrying to and from the Times room early in the morning or late at night attempting to obtain news for the school paper.

One of her most noticeable characteristics is gazing off into space when she has a few spare moments, completely oblivious to all things about her. If there is anything in possessing a great imagination, I am sure this person has one behind that perplexed brow. She prefers tall blonds for gentlemen friends and her heart-throb is here in Alma Mater.

Chief dislikes are boastful and unreliable people. As to foods, she likes taffy apples and hot dogs. For a pastime she takes her little, black cocker spaniel for evening walks. Belongs to the Times staff, Wranglers, Totem, Archery, Service, Latin, G. A. A., and Booster.

Secret ambition is to become an editorial writer, and with her determination and reliability combined don't you believe that she will reach this goal? Students, meet Betty Bolyard, an interesting companion.

Of All Improvements Greeley Room Remains Tops With Archers

The school year which opened September 7, 1938, is the most memorable year since that very first day of school in 1921! For this year, South Side has finally acquired that which she has long hoped for. More space!

Of utmost importance to those who are immediately concerned with the editing of The Times is the addition of a new Times Room. This year we have a large room of which we are justly proud.

Since the publication of The Totem, as well as The Times, is under the direction of Miss Rowena Harvey, it is certainly much more convenient to have The Totem and Times offices combined.

Several students have noticed and voiced opinions about the various merits of the new features of the school. . . .

Carl Hall likes the new study halls. . . . He thinks that they will be grand places to have dances with big name bands like Kay Kayser. . . . Melvin O'Brien likes the new linoleum, especially in the new study hall upstairs. . . . Newell Beatty said that the stage in the Greeley Room merits special attention in his opinion. . . . (We think so, too). . . . Everything impresses Barbara Brower. Phyl Mueller and Virginia Nunenkamp are equally awed by the radio system. . . . Max Spencer thinks the new radio system is the swiftest improvement because it provides a means of direct contact with the office. Jessie Freeman shares the opinion of many that the most outstanding new feature is the Greeley Room because it has a stage.

Dorothy Pifer: I think the new study hall is grand. Doris Schrom: I like the new stairways, and the curve in the halls upstairs reminds me of a college.

Frieda Schubert: I like it pretty well, but the floor are too slippery.

Juanita Wolford: I think it's just grand.

Loretta Rinearson: I like the new typing rooms.

Sarah Smeltzer: I like the new enlarged rooms upstairs.

Why did Mildred Brett get so excited when she heard that there were visitors coming from Charleston, West Virginia.

Joe Bex seems to be very much attracted to Jane Abbott in second period English class.

Dorothy Phorback and Bill Reithmiller are a twosome nowadays.

As you wander through the halls, if you haven't used your eyes before, use them now. . . . For you will see such interesting items as: New clocks in the upstairs halls, new checkered linoleum on the floors. . . . stairs instead of inclines in the south halls (and, by the way, the stairs are said to be hard to find if you're upstairs), new offices for the "heads" . . . new blinds in class rooms and Venetian blinds in the main offices and a kitchenette in the new Greeley Room.

We're still looking forward to more new things which will be added from time to time, but now all we can say is "thanks" to those who made the addition and improvement possible.

Fashion ★ Flashes

It seems that we have not stressed color combinations enough, so we are going to take care of that right now, because this fall everything is color and more color.

Autumn will see many purple and lavender shades. An enchanting color team is deep wine and pale blue. Here is a combination of three, olive, beige and plum. An elephant gray suit with a mustard blouse would be smart. Or, put a deep, dark brown coat over a rose-colored dress. If you have a deep violet coat wear a lavender dress under it. Climb out of the groove with a green-blue coat called teal instead of the conventional black. Another trio of colors: Wear a prune skirt with a beige blouse, under a sage green sport coat. Well, you have by now an idea of the most popular shades and can assemble your own colors.

There is a gold rush to bags, to gloves, to whatever it gives the proper gilded look. Leather bags and especially suede bags are trimmed here and there with gold. The cuffs of gloves are dotted or designed in some way with gold. Have you seen the new butterfly clips, buttons, pins and buckles? The gold butterfly is now the favorite trimming for formals, dresses and suits.

Flowers are being worn, not only as corsages, but in place of pins and clips. Wear a square corsage as you would a jabot or brooch. When you pile your hair, catch the curls with a flower comb. Carry out the 1900 look of your costume by adorning a barrel muff with a cluster of lilies, buds and foliage.

Little fur hoods with fur boleros to match will be seen very much at formal affairs.

If you have a plain, black velvet evening dress change its appearance by fastening a large square of chiffon to your shoulder with a large rhinestone clip.

Archer Eleven Will Meet Tough Northern Squad Friday

Red's Gridiron Will Be Scene Of City Clash

Battle Is To Be Staged At Night Under Floodlights Of North Side's Stadium

Green Will Face Strong Opponent

Rival Holds Great Advantage With Experienced Players, Perfect Record

South Side's scrappy football eleven will take on the toughest opposition of their entire ten game schedule next Friday night when they meet North Side's undefeated Redskins under the floodlights of the northern playing field.

The Redskins won their fifteenth straight victory last Friday when they defeated Evansville, the second ranking team in the state, by a 13-0 score. North Side will enter this all important city series clash with a fifteen game winning streak at stake. Having been established as overwhelming favorites for the coming clash, there is that possibility that the Red attack will bog down giving the Green a chance to spring an upset in the face of the powerful Red attack.

Favor Reds' Team
The Green and White on the other hand, will enter the North Side game with a seven game losing streak to show for their efforts on the gridiron this fall and have everything to win and nothing to lose.
A flashy but consistently powerful backfield has been the big factor in the Redskin attack in their games to date. The combination of Turner, Werling, Huth, and Cowan is the best seen on a local gridiron in quite a few seasons.

Led by Captain Frank Werling, who is one of the hardest running backs and best passers seen around this fall, the Redskins present an undeniable ground game which is on occasion very well aided by spectacular aerial heaves. Cowan, flashy sophomore back, has been doing a swell job in lugging the pigskin for the Red this season.
Ev Huth can always be depended upon to smash that line when a couple of yards are needed to pick up a first down. Gay Turner fills perhaps the most important position in the entire backfield. His services as blocking back are absolutely essential in order to give the ball carriers a chance to get going.

Form Aerial Attacks
The Archers have found their best weapon of attack to be advances through the air. Englehart to Cook or Moorhead forms a sparkling combination which was largely responsible for the touchdowns registered against Central Catholic last Saturday. Stu Welborn also handled some of the pass heaving for the Archers.

South Side was on the unfortunate end of two third quarter breaks which led to Central Catholic touchdowns last Saturday. The first came as a result of a poor punt which was kicked from 12-yard line and went out of bounds on the 22-yard marker. A penalty and five running plays gave the Irish their first score. The second touchdown was the result of a blocked punt which Stanczak recovered over the Archer line. The Archers got their score the hard way, by virtue of an 85-yard drive climaxed by Red Moorhead going over on a reverse play.

Group Possible Players
Coach Moss used two full teams against Central Catholic last Saturday. The Green put up a good defense against the Irish and their last quarter offensive drive looked good. The probable lineups for the North Side game are as follows:
South Side North Side
Cook.....LE.....Beams
Loos.....LT.....Hill
A. J. Ferguson.....LG.....Scheibenhager
E. Ferguson.....C.....Go. Turner
Roth.....RG.....Young
Close.....RT.....Bordner
Goshorn.....RE.....Russell
Welborn.....QB.....Ga. Turner
Ahlmeyer.....RH.....Werling
Moorhead.....LH.....Cowan
Biedenweg.....FB.....Huth

Dick Theye Is Elected Junior Rifle President

Officers were elected at the Junior Rifle Club meeting, Wednesday, October 2. Dick Theye was elected president. Bob Ault was elected vice-president and chief range officer in charge of the rifle range. Bob Showalter was elected secretary-treasurer. The number of points each member had was reported.

Due to all those who helped to decorate, sell tickets and plan the program for the G. A. A. Halloween party it was a grand success and we feel sure that everyone enjoyed himself.

What is all this talk by Velma Connett and Dot Bloemker about "Grandma"? You can hear them in the gym office fifth period any day. Who is grandma? What does she like? What does she dislike? Why?

We hear that one of our freshmen has not yet learned to keep her fingers out of certain things, especially while playing speedball. It seems that Etheldrea Behling was the unlucky girl. Her finger was injured. We hope that she will be able to play again next Monday.

Meeting many girls from other schools and learning about their athletic associations was enjoyed by the girls who went to the play day held by the girls' athletic group of Kendallville. They were Marjory Price, Hazel Perry, Freida Schubert and Joan Squires.

It seems that Halloweening is still enjoyed by many of our G. A. A. members, including the dignified seniors. But we know that nothing tragic or destructive is ever done.

Intramurally Speaking

The 1938 Intramural Tennis Tournament is now history and those who won are proud champions who, no doubt, well deserve that honor. Those who were acclaimed victors in the three divisions of the tournament are Max Stabough, Bill Martin and John Waldschmidt.

Max Stabough gained his honor by defeating Runner-upper O'Brien, who put up a swell fight. The scores for this final bout were 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.
John Waldschmidt achieved his crown by downing "The Mighty Hantana," who showed that he had what it takes. The final scores for this particular confab were 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.
The winner in the third division, Billy Martin, won this honor by defeating Brower by the score of 6-0, 6-2.

Tomorrow is a big event for all the golfers who made the finals of the Intramural Golf Tournament. The tournament will be held at the Municipal Course. The golf tourney will be held in three classes. They are lightweights, middleweights and heavyweights, as are all other intramural contests. So now the best of luck to you nine boys that are going to compete for the South Side Intramural Golf Championship.

In the boys' gym classes last week, the students did exercises called calisthenics. This type of exercise helps to promote strength and gracefulness, and calisthenics are also very interesting as well as helpful. The gym classes have also been practicing the opening of ranks and various other such calisthenics. Mr. Briner feels that such calisthenics helps very much in developing one's mind as well as his body because in this type of exercise the individual must think and work fast.

In all of our intramural sports so far this year, there has been an unusual trend toward a sportsmanlike spirit, so let's continue our fine work throughout the rest of the season and for many seasons to come.

Archers Lose First City Tilt By Score 13-7

Central Catholic Conquers South Side Gridders For First Time In Ten Years

Central Catholic's fighting Irish capitalized on two third quarter breaks to down the South Side Archers for the first time in ten years of competition by a score of 13 to 7. Playing heads up football, the Irish scored two quick touchdowns, one as the result of a poor punt and the other by virtue of a blocked kick.

The Irish had waited ten long years to defeat a South Side football team. When the breaks presented themselves midway in the third quarter the Purple attack was quick to take advantage of them. A poor kick from the Archer 12-yard line which went out of bounds on the 22-yard stripe set the stage for the first Central Catholic score. Four plays, coupled with an Archer offense penalty put the ball on the one-yard line from where Prough plowed over for the touchdown. Dehner's attempted placement was wide.

Substitute For Archers
Coach Bill Moss immediately sent in the second string. A few plays later the Archers were forced to punt from deep in their own territory. Stanczak sifted through the Green and White line to block Braden's kick and it was Stanczak who recovered the ball as it bounded over the goal for the second Irish score. Prough plunged for the extra point.

The first half was an evenly played affair with each team receiving an excellent opportunity to get into the lead. In the opening quarter the Irish drove to the South Side five-yard line, but here met with a stubborn Archer defense, and lost the ball on downs.

The Archers had their chance to score in the second quarter when a 25-yard run by Englehart put the pigskin on the Central Catholic 12-yard line. However, Dehner, Irish center, then intercepted a first down Archer pass to end the scoring threat.

Score In Third Quarter
In the third quarter the Irish pushed over their two touchdowns to go into a 13-0 lead. They had another chance to score this period when Maxwell recovered an Archer fumble on the nine-yard line. Colone circled end to the one-yard line two plays later, but the play was nullified and Central Catholic was penalized 15 yards for holding. The Archers then took the ball on downs.

The Archers, with their varsity back in the ball game, made a desperate bid to avert defeat in the final quarter as they pushed over their lone touchdown. Taking the ball on their 25-yard line the Archer attack began to get under way. Cleverly mixing passes and running plays the Archers made three consecutive first downs.
Englehart then let fly an aerial heave, which was taken by Cowan on the 11-yard line. Englehart carried the ball to the four on an end run. Two plunges took the ball to the two foot line from where Moorhead went over on a reverse play. Biedenweg placekicked the extra point.

C. C.'s Ball
With four minutes of playing time remaining the Archers were not yet licked. Central Catholic, however, took the ball on their own 40-yard line and drove to the Archer 31 where the game ended.

Redskins Conquer Evansville, 13-0

North Side Wins Over Bosse By Exhibiting Accurate Attack Of Passing; Is Given Test

North Side pulled another trick out of the bag by exhibiting an amazingly accurate passing attack Friday against Bosse of Evansville. Frank Werling definitely proved himself a triple threat man by adding passing to his other accomplishments. Beating Bosse, one of the most highly rated teams in the state, by the score of 13-0 puts the Redskins hot on the trail of another state championship.

During the first quarter North Side depended entirely on their powerful running attack but were unable to get within scoring distance. Hammering away at the Redskin line, the Bulldogs managed to fight their way into Northern territory early in the second quarter. Living up to their reputation the Bulldogs gave North Side's squad plenty of gray hair before Huth recovered a fumbled forward pass on his own four-yard line. Werling kicked out of danger for the Redskins. The Bulldogs still hanging on drove again to the twenty-four yard line where the gun at the end of the half caught them.

Redskins Scalp Opponents
Showing their championship calibre North Side's eleven staged a drive during the third period, Huth, Cowan, and Werling lugging the ball. Werling climaxed the drive, passing to Rode-meyer in the end zone from the fourteen-yard line for six points. Huth kicked the extra point.

Bosse threatened again shortly after this in the third period. Taking a North Side punt on the Red thirty-eight-yard line, the Bull Dogs went to the eighteen where they banged down and lost the ball on downs.
The rampaging Redskins scored again in the fourth quarter as a result of an interception by Huth who took the ball on the Bosse twenty-eight before he was stopped. A pass from Werling to Cowan gave the Redskins another first down on the four yard line. The Bulldog forward wall held against three running plays but on the last down Werling flipped another pass to Russell who went on over the line to add six more points to the score. Huth missed the final point, leaving the score 18-0 in favor of the Northern squad.

Intercept Aerial Pass
Bosse took to the air in a desperate effort to score, only five minutes remaining in the game. Cowan, however, intercepted on his own 40-yard line, and Werling kicked out on the Evansville six-yard line. Bosse completed one pass before the gun went off, ending the game.

The Redskins cannot be given too much credit for their fine performance against a highly rated team. The Bosse squad gave North Side's eleven a real test and the Northerners did all and more than was expected of them. North Side came through with no injuries, however. Hurst of Evansville, was injured in the third quarter.

Plays At Festival
Aleda Randal was honored by playing her accordion along with 1,499 others at Chicago's Soldier Field in the Chicagoland Music Festival.

Blue, White To Meet Two Teams On Grid

Central High School's football team will attempt a double-header this week, playing at Huntington, Indiana, Friday night and engaging Columbia City Eagles Saturday afternoon at the North Side athletic field.

The Tigers were idle last week after their hard-fought battle with Anderson and Auburn the week before. The whole squad needed a well-earned rest, and whether or not the rest did any good, will show up at Huntington next Friday night. The Bengals will probably find Huntington anything but push-overs and with the Vikings playing on their own field, Central will run into plenty of trouble. This will be the first time in many years that Central and Huntington have met on the gridiron, and the fans should see a swell contest. Huntington will put a big, fast team, that has enjoyed a fairly successful season, on the field, and this coupled with playing on their own gridiron, should enable them to give Central a tussle. However, the Vikings will have a job on their hands in trying to stop such back-field aces as Talley and Hanley.
On Saturday Central will meet Columbia City. Last year Central trimmed Columbia City by a score of 34-13. This year the Tigers should do as well since the Eagles have a small, light team. Columbia City has enjoyed a poor season, and the Tigers should take them into camp without too much trouble.

North Side Is Ahead In City Series Rating

Central Catholic was the first to close their city-series competition Saturday with their only win over South Side's Archers. This was the Archers' first series game as they have yet to meet North Side and Central. As the standings show, the undefeated North Side Redskins have got off to an early lead with two victories in as many starts.

The standings are as follows:
Team W. L. Pct.
North Side.....2 0 1.000
Central.....1 1 .500
Central Catholic..1 2 .333
South Side.....0 1 .000

Werner Duemling To Continue Classes

Health lectures, which were given last semester, will be continued. The classes will be smaller this time because classes last year were too large. Dr. Werner W. Duemling stated that no definite plans have been made.

Many Do Work In Class Rooms

Twenty-Five Pupils Act As Attendance Recorders. Librarians For Different Teachers

Many students do service work in class rooms, although this is not the type of service which makes the students eligible for membership in the Service Club. These pupils act as attendance recorders and librarians.

Students acting as librarians in Mr. Maurice Murphy's history classes are as follows: Period one, Hazel Garling; second, Bob Williams; and third, Richard Strasberg. In his civics classes, librarians are Gerald Polman and Jeanette Warren for the sixth and seventh periods, respectively.

Miss Mabel Thorne has Helen Briggs helping her the second period. John Waldschmidt takes the attendance in Miss Olive Perkins' home room.

Miss Erma Dochterman has the student that sits nearest her desk take the attendance daily. They are as follows: Home room, Junior Braden; period one, Kathryn Beckman; period two, Betty Kaiser; periods three and four, Helen Weihe; period six, Lee Brosley; and period seven, Sally Moorhead.

Miss Pearl Rehorst has girls take the attendance in her home economics classes which are as follows: First period, Audrey Hall; second period, Marilyn Loomis; third period, Mary Ellen DeWoods; fifth period, Donna Lou Foutz; sixth period, Celest Freistrotter; and seventh period, Marjorie Schelper.

The librarian for Mr. Wilburn Wilson is Mary Treen. Other students helping him in attendance taking are: Period one, Dave Slattery; Mary Straley; third period, Janice Dyer; fifth period, Charlotte Kern; and sixth period, Barbara Noble.

In Mr. Moss' General History class period 4, Joan Squires and Joe Ratliff gave interesting reports on the famous Greek philosophers, Epicurus and Zeno.

Darlene Alcott, Tom Deal, Goldie Kitchen, and Gertrude Irmischer received A's on a test given in periods 2, 6, and 7 occupation classes by Miss Van Gorder.

Miss Demaree has assigned reports in her English 8 class on some of the stories from "Canterbury Tales" which were not read in class. Among them is "Squire's Tales" by Helen Faux, and "Clark's Tales" by Max Magner.

Mrs. Welty's Freshman Latin classes had a seventy-three word vocabulary test. Those making 100 were: Patty Burns, Maryon Dosch, Lenora Moyer, Evelyn Talbot, Bernadine Bender, Harold Greubers, Romayne Rediger, and Hlene Franke.

Recently all the health classes of Miss Crowe and Mr. Yoder saw moving pictures entitled "How Teeth Grow" and "Care of the Teeth and the Skin." The pictures were shown in Mr. Wilson's room, so his classes met in room 32.

In Miss Pocock's period 3 English class, Joyce Cleaver discussed a talk given by Elissa Landi about how the plays of Shakespeare are given now, compared with the way they were given when Shakespeare lived.

Miss Van Gorder's home room 64 held a wiener bake Monday night at Foster Park in the form of a Halloween party. The home room officers were in charge of the games. Taffy apples were served for dessert.

Miss Fiedler's three Algebra 1 classes are having contests covering work in addition, subtraction, and equation. The winners from the three divisions will meet after school and have a final contest to determine the winners. These winners from the different groups will later have a contest covering all of the material.

Mr. Post gave a Commercial Law test to his fourth period class. Those who made 100 are Verlene Wiedeman, Pauline Werling, and Dolores Ulrich.

In Mr. Clyde Peirce's occupation classes, the students are working on a method of studying occupations to aid one in choosing an occupation.

Miss Pocock's English 3 classes recently had a test on the second act of "The Merchant of Venice." Those receiving A or A- were: Mildred Hanke, Betty Koehler, Gloria Staley, Harold Greubers, and Lois Gumpfer.

In Miss Pocock's English 3 classes, Lesia Kaiser made two attractive drawings of stage sets for two plays, one for "Not Quite Such a Goose" and "The Brink of Silence."

In Mr. Hull's Physics 1 and 2 classes the following students received the highest grades in a recent test. Period 1, John Schotter, Keith Spiker, and Dick Warner; period 7, Bob Williams and Walt Howard; period 3, Robert Formanack, June McAlister, Joyce McAlister, and Bill Reithmiller; period 6, Jack Parker and Annett Snake, Jim Murphy and Fred Pugh received 100.

In Miss Bean's home room, Robert Worman was elected chairman and Dick Theye, program chairman.

Mrs. Rieke's public speaking classes have selected their resolutions for argumentative speeches which will start this week. They have also been divided into groups of four to compete against one another.

Water Gives Fun In Various Forms To South Siders

Fishing, boating, swimming at lake and ocean this summer brought pleasure to many Archers.

Jack Vetter went deep sea fishing with his father.

June Van Pelt went to Lake James for ten days. She enjoyed swimming, fishing, and boat riding.

Dick Fishering and his friend, Al Schaaf, went to Bledsoe's where Johnny Silvers and lovely Eliene were featured.

Bonnie Parker went on a picnic at Foster Park this summer. She cooked her dinner on an open fireplace.

Don Meyer spent the summer catching fish and swimming in Big Star Lake in Michigan.

Olive Zahn made a trip south to Monterey, Mexico.

This summer Safford McMyler visited at Horseneck Beach, Massachusetts. He went fishing and swimming in the Atlantic. On his return home he stopped at West Point Military Academy and Niagara Falls.

Elroy Miller has worked in a drug-store all summer and has received his apprentice pharmacist license. He enjoys experimenting with different malted milks.

Tickets In Hall Friday

Meterite Club's skating party, the first one of the season, will be held at Bell's Rink on Friday, November 4. Those in charge of the skate are Helen Savage, general chairman; Lois Gumpfer, ticket chairman; Marjorie McMahon, publicity chairman; and Wilma Lagemann, who is in charge of attendance prizes.

Other South Side clubs holding skates and the dates on which they will be held are as follows:

Stamp Club, December 2; Philo, January 7; Latin, January 27; U.S.A., March 24, and Wo-Ho-Ha, April 28 or May 19.

Marjorie McMahon, publicity chairman, has taken care of a drawing in the study hall, a notice in the bulletin and an announcement over the radio system. Posters have also been put on various bulletin boards in the halls to advertise the skate. Several Meterites will sell tickets in the main hall after school on Friday.

The bus will leave South Side at 7:30 o'clock. Several attendance prizes will be given at the skate.

At the last meeting of the club final arrangements for the skate were made. Mildred Hanke was requested to inquire about getting a hayrack for the hayrack ride which is to be held soon.

About forty new members were initiated into the club by Phyllis Lauer, Reba Coppock, Gloria Staley, Ione Jean Tracht, and Marjorie Roberts.

Archer Teachers Elected To Office

Four Members Of South Side's
Faculty Are Named To Serve
In Positions For New Year

Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke, Mr. William Moss, Miss Blanche Hutto, and Miss Mabel Fortney were elected to prominent positions for the coming year during the annual Northeastern Indiana Teachers' Convention held in Fort Wayne, October 27 and 28.

Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke was named secretary of the Oral English and Speech section. Mr. William Moss was appointed chairman of the Athletic section. He also was toastmaster at the banquet. The art division elected Miss Blanche Hutto as their chairman. Miss Mabel Fortney was named vice-president of the Ball State Teachers College alumni.

Other South Side teachers who participated in the convention were Mr. Wilburn Wilson and Mr. Henry Chapell. They were on the Legislative committee and give reports. Mr. Elva Gould presided at the joint session of Home Economics, Agriculture, Industrial Arts, Social Science, and Special Education sections held Friday morning at the Central High School auditorium.

Superintendent Of City Schools Places Confidence In Students Ever Working For Tomorrow

My Mr. Merle J. Abbott

The week is being devoted to a highly intensified stimulation of educational interest and study. The young people within the walls of our schools are the object of all of our endeavors. The pressure of the times and the ambition to succeed bring similar desires to make the most of every opportunity.

There are many opportunities here to be shared, many privileges to enjoy and many benefits to accrue. We would have you strive to equip yourselves to do the thing that seems best to do in the future. You will need the best training ground possible for this placement and the institution offering this opportunity is your school and class room. The things that are most treasured are those that come from hard endeavor, sacrifice and unselfish manner.

The greatest satisfaction that can come to you when these are so acquired is in sharing your experience for the benefit of those of your home, your friends and neighbors. The greatest appreciation you may reflect for this opportunity lies in the service you lend in filling positions of trust, honor and responsibility. We have every confidence in you, our young people, and we know you will give your best efforts to the above purposes. We shall ever strive to keep these gates of opportunity open and the channels of

School Experiences Increase Knowledge For Spare Moments

When asked, "What school experiences have increased your knowledge on how to spend your leisure time?" most pupils answered, "What if I don't have any leisure time?"

Evelyn Koomler: The study of literature, for in my spare time I memorize poetry.

Paul Hensch: I'd say that all my studies have helped me, because I'm with other people a lot of the time, and my schooling has taught me how to conduct myself.

Jim Brown: Didn't increase my knowledge.

Margaret Null: Training in music at school has helped me to know what to do in my leisure time, because I listen to musical programs.

Betty Ellenwood: English, for in my extra time I read library books.

Marjorie Jackson: I think that the study of home economics has helped me to know what to do in my leisure time. I sew.

Dorothy Rohrback: I haven't much leisure time, but English has created an interest for good literature. History and civics have aroused my interest in current events.

P. T. A. Plans Four Meetings During Week

Sponsor Programs For Parents
Next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday

Class Chairmen
To Be In Charge

Program Will Be Held In Cafeteria At 2 O'clock;
To Feature Several Talks

In commemoration of American Education Week, the Parent-Teachers Association of South Side will sponsor a series of programs for parents on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of next week. Class chairmen who are in charge of the affairs are as follows: Senior, Mrs. Victor Rea; junior, Mrs. H. E. Hartman; sophomore, Mrs. S. C. Cleland; freshman, Mrs. A. L. Peterson.

The programs will be held in the cafeteria at 2 o'clock each afternoon. The freshman parents will meet on Tuesday; sophomore parents, Wednesday; junior parents, Thursday; and senior parents on Friday.

Plan For Frosh
Mrs. H. W. Cook, freshman program chairman, is responsible for the program. Music will be provided for the mothers by the school trio, composed of Ruth Bade, Ruth Dauner, and Loretta Rineason. Six minute discussions by Miss Pauline VanGorder, Mr. Earl Murch, and Miss Adelaide Fiedler will be presented on the general, commercial, and college preparatory courses. Miss Martha Pittenger will discuss South Side's extra-curricular activities, and Mr. A. Verne Flint will lead a discussion on guidance.

On Tuesday, the sophomore mothers will convene. Mrs. Robert Wylie act as program head. Mr. A. Verne Flint will discuss election of subjects; Mr. R. Nelson Snider, proper study habits; Miss Martha Pittenger, social habits in and out of school; and Mr. (Continued on page 8)

Toreador Trot Will Be Theme Of Philo Dance

Date Is November 11; Tickets Are Fifty Cents, Couple;
Thirty - Five, Stag

Toreador Trot has been selected as the theme for the annual Philo Dance to be held November 11 in the new study hall. As has been the custom since the school was built in 1922, the dance is scheduled for the evening before the South Side-Central game. The orchestra will play from 9 to 12 o'clock with a half-hour intermission. Tickets will be fifty cents a couple or thirty-five cents stag and may be purchased from any Philo member. A ticket committee has been appointed as follows: Eleanor Vesey and Lois Rea, co-chairmen, Margery Rapp, Ella Jo Reed, Bernice Etzler, Mary Lee Kixmiller, Pearl Wallen, and Helen Wiehe. A prize will be given to the girl selling the most tickets.

Dyer Is Chairman
Decorations carrying out the theme are being arranged by Miriam Jackson, Marjorie Dyer, Katherine Beckman, Lois Rea, Betty Daniels, Audrey Hall, Betty Marquardt, and Betty Neeb. This committee is directed by Janice Dyer.

Other committees for the affair are attendance prizes, Anna Lou Kowalski, chairman, and Anna Anderson; orchestra, Frances VanBuskirk, chairman, Dorothy Gore, and Virginia Fleming; publicity, Dorothy Hall, Audrey Hall, Miriam Jackson, and Annette Snook.

At the last regular meeting held Monday in the new Greeley Room, Margaret Null, president, urged all members to cooperate to the utmost in order to make the dance a success.

Conduct Formal Initiation
This meeting was featured by the initiation of new members. After the formal initiation conducted by Lois Rea, the vice-president, and Helen Banks, sergeant-at-arms, Beverly Griffith and Margery Rapp took charge of the rough initiation. Besides many individual stunts, a pantomime and a debate were presented by several of the girls. All initiates were given small bows in the club's colors, gold and white. New members are Rebecca Abbott, Ruth Hoover, Miriam Jackson, Pearl Wallen, Betty Brindle, Kathryn Beckman, Mary Lee Kixmiller, Marian Miller, Marjorie Dyer, Josephine Frosh, Anna Anderson, Vivian Bushore, Katherine Ernberger, Edith Summers, Phyllis Branning, Dorothy Foellinger, Virginia Fleming, Hertha Hoffman, Aleda Randol, Margaret Wiles, and Bernice Etzler.

Calendars for the semester, made by Janice Dyer and Ruth Kaiser, were given to all members. The meeting was adjourned after the singing of several club songs.

School Experiences Help Create Interest In Good Government

Upon inquiring from fellow students for answers to the question: "What school experiences have increased your interest in good government and political institutions?" most of my victims went into deep concentration in search of an experience.

Some of the replies to this question, were, "er-a-what, what's that again." Well, here are a few interesting answers which were finally secured.

Coleen Glentzer: A trial in citizenship.

Constance Hirshey: Reading the point book, "Forever Free."

Bettie Stein: The study of current events.

Barbara Hughs: The study of government in citizenship.

Mary Bowlby: Through the elections of both home room and class officers.

Lois Holzworth: Getting reference for writing a book on my chosen occupation.

Irene Meyer: Interesting matter I found in reference books while getting information for history reports.

Miriam Jackson: I find that the clubs I belong to help my interest in government, because of the parliamentary form they are run by.

Sales, Pictures Totem Drive To End Friday

Totem Subscription Campaign Is Expected To Bring 1,000 Tomorrow.

The climax of one of the most successful Totem campaigns has now been reached with approximately 650 subscriptions secured during the first weeks of the campaign. Only one more day remains to reach the goal of 1,000 subscriptions.

Leading among the agents is Eddie Reeves who has secured 28 subscriptions for the 1939 yearbook. Other leading agents include Kitty Clineard, 18; Helen Wiehe, 17; Dick Buchholz, 25; Phyllis Hayner, 23; and Ruth Bade with 17 subscriptions. Richard Buchholz's book leads with 93 subscriptions and Eugene Schmidt's is second with 88.

The senior picture campaign was also a big success with nearly 400 seniors having their pictures taken at the Jefferson Studio. Saturday, November 5, is the last day seniors can have these pictures taken. Proofs should be returned to the photographer as soon as possible after the pictures are taken.

Editorial writers will be chosen very soon. Some of the positions open to seniors include class editors, assistant class editors, sports editors, assistant sports editors, faculty editor, and club writers. Any seniors who are interested in Totem work should apply immediately in the Totem office.

Talks, Musical Pieces To Feature Wo-Ho-Ma

Wo-Ho-Ma Club will hold its meeting this afternoon in the Greeley Room. Helen Wyss will give a talk on "Home Life Yesterday And Today." Elaine Boerger will play some selections on her violin while Kathleen Boerger, her sister, will accompany her on the piano. Dorothy Lankenau will tap dance. Betty Cary will sing some selections. Musical chair will be played.

The following committee is in charge: Gertrude Merkel, chairman; Dorothy Allen and Helen Wyss, assistant chairmen; Rose Wyss, Marjorie Baet, Audrey Cooper, Virgild Johnston, Ruth Alldaffer, Carolyn Stalter, May Bower, and Joan Dutere.

Advertising Solicitors Are Led By Joel Salon

Joel Salon led the advertising solicitors last week with forty-eight inches of advertising. Jim Brooks obtained three inches, and Fay Gumpfer secured two inches. June Enoch collected fifteen inches of contracts to be run weekly, and John Bensob obtained a contract to run three inches every week.

Menu Of Cafeteria Is To Be Changed

Miss Lucy Mellen has recently announced that hot chocolate will be served to those who desire it for five cents a cup. Since our cafeteria does not possess the proper facilities for keeping it warm on the counter, the students must ask for it.

If the demand is large enough, plate lunches will be served for fifteen cents a plate. The foods served on this plate will vary from vegetables and bread and butter to a vegetable and an inexpensive meat or vegetables and a dessert.

Today's Show Will Feature Bob Wedertz

Of Magic At Assembly

Social Science Is Sponsoring Group

Cutting Off Woman's Head Is Most Interesting Act
To Be Presented Pupils

Bob Wedertz, '33, and his dummy, Joe Sefus, will be featured in a magician's show sponsored by Social Science Club the first period this morning. Eleanor Vesey, president, will introduce him to the student body. Tickets may be purchased in home rooms this morning for ten cents each. Students will go to their period classes after the home room period and will be excused by their teachers.

Using a complete new show, Mr. Wedertz will perform his feats of magic. The most spectacular of his tricks will be an old Hindu one, that of chopping off a woman's head.

Anna Lou Kowalski and John Magley head the ticket and poster committees. Assisting Anna Lou are Reva Foster, John Bremer, and Bruce Bradbury. Assisting John are Dick Buchholz, Betty Daniels, Ronald McVay, and Emilou Allendorph.

Social Science members, who are to act as ticket-takers, will be excused from their home rooms three minutes early in order that they may take their stations early.

Following is a list of members and their appointed places: Second floor: north doors, Anna Lou Kowalski, Betty Daniels, Janice Dyer, Maurine Bradbury, John Magley, and Bill Riethmiller; east doors, Dick Garton, Kenny Warren, Eugene Schmidt, and Aubrey Kellogg; west entrances, Beverly Griffith, Mary Lee Kixmiller, Max Wagner, and Ronald McVay; south entrances, Marjorie Clapp, Reva Foster, Jean Fortreide, Bruce Bradbury, Roger Neff, and Dick Buchholz.

On the ground floor are the following: north doors, Max Spencer, Phyllis Geller, Helen Banks, and Carl Gobel; east doors, Velma Lehman and Evelyn Kruse; west doors, Ruth Bade, Andy Bremer, Max Mitchell, and Jim Murphy; south doors, Betty Neeb, Margery Rapp, Doris Williams, and Emilou Allendorph.

Nation's Foundation Depends Upon Strength Of Schools Declares Mayor Harry Baals

By Mayor Harry W. Baals

A week has been set aside for national attention upon the importance and significance of education. This is as it should be for there is nothing of greater importance to local communities and to the nation as a whole than the education today of our boys and girls in whose hands will be the destiny of our nation tomorrow.

If our educational system becomes weak or ineffective or fails in properly fulfilling its mission, then the very foundation structure of our nation is in danger. It is the function of our educational system to turn out into the world able men and women—men and women of good character, of ample knowledge and of definite appreciation of the rights and duties of American citizenship. More than that, every boy and girl should leave school not only with proper appreciation of his privileges and obligations as a citizen, but with the courage to do his duty as he sees it.

Civics Intrigue Students
I have been more than pleased with the interest taken by Fort Wayne students in citizenship, in government and in the entire field covering civic responsibility. The fact that you have

Study May Be Work; Learning Is Way To Achieve Success

Studies may keep you up all hours and worry you a lot; but have you thought of what you gain by your studying? Do you know what a really good education can mean to a young man or woman who is starting out into the world? A stable knowledge of general things, good speech, and a large vocabulary are assets that cannot be taken away.

When lessons are neglected for outside pleasures, not worth half the price, a school is not going to mean as much to students. Education is the first stepping stone to a higher and brighter future. If the first stone is missed, it will be far and difficult to reach the following stones which lead to the desired goal.

Did you ever look back upon something that you had done, and wish you had done differently? Why don't you think of that now, instead of, in years to come, wish you had studied just a little harder and thought more about your studies than you did? It may be hard to sit down and learn things when others about you are having a good time. But, watch them fade.

In other countries, children can't attend free, public schools as we can. Here, we are taught the theory of our government, and upon what it is founded. Also, we are given a chance to express our views on how it may be improved. We have a democracy, and such a government is founded upon education of the masses, which includes you and all of us.

Why don't we appreciate our chance to receive this education? Because it is so near to us, and we think we will always have it. But, who can tell what the future may bring? Why not prepare for the future now, when the opportunity stares us in the face? One opportunity gone may ruin our future. One fact or word lacking may bring disaster to someone. So, why neglect even one little thing that we may yearn to lead us on to bright, and even brighter, lights in the far-stretching future.

New South Side Improvement Over Little Red School

We believe that not very many of the students of South Side High School would like to attend the type of school that our parents and grandparents went to. In those days the schools were poorly lighted, had almost no ventilation, and had heat in only one small part of the building, the part near the stove. The teacher sat on a high stool so that he, for there were few women teachers at that time, could observe what all of his pupils were doing.

There were no blackboards or tablets, only little slates on which things needed in the lessons could be written. These slates were also noted for having love notes and caricatures on their surfaces.

But, despite the fact that those schools lacked many of the modern conveniences, we imagine that our parents got along all right. However, we think that our school is much better, and it is. Education today is a highly specialized science to the teachers and principals. Different methods of teaching are in use all over the world but their purpose is the same; to allow students to obtain knowledge.

We appreciate the modern school systems because we do not like illiteracy, but strive for learning. This desire for knowledge is making the United States one of the most learned countries in a world where schools are too often run for a dictator.

We in America, and South Side in particular, should appreciate our chance for a complete education. Without this opportunity our country probably would not be the best in the world.

This is the American Education Week issue of The Times. It is dedicated to education and those who make learning possible.

Good luck to all you entrants in the Freshman-Sophomore Speech Contest. Somebody has to win; it may be you.

Get tickets for the Meterite Skate from any club member. The skate will be held tomorrow night.

We give the teachers a vote of thanks for giving us a vacation. We certainly needed one.

Rather than being the idle youth, let's be the ideal youth.

Losing is better than poor sportsmanship.

Education is an asset, not a liability.

JAM SESSION of the JITTERBUG

On folding night, The Times room is a veritable mad-house, with columnists frantically hurrying to complete their long overdue assignments. Totem agents running to and fro with lots of new subscriptions (rah!), and every available space covered with unfolded Times... Even in the midst of this happy throng, we still have enough privacy to bring you the latest...

Monday, as most of you undoubtedly recall, was Halloween. This scribe donned the costume of a ghost and spent the entire evening convening with all the other "hants" in order to find out who took whose girl away from whom. A tall, dark "hant", wearing glasses and a Captain Kidd outfit told us that Romeo Shimmel walked up and stole four boys' girl friends including the girl from North Side who accompanied Captain Kidd. ...But one consolation that we can offer to those bereaved ones is that Romeo also lost his girl... for a little while... and we do mean Treen.

A pretty little Pierette, a tall, slender red-head, told us that Lois Campbell is having an awful hard time making up her mind between the two Wolford brothers, Don and Paul... that it has been rumored that Elaine Helms and Bruce Klotz are going steady... that Mary Sites really burns for Rahe Treman... and that Duane Wake and Mary Cowan have finally been badly bitten.

This isn't dirt but it might be of interest to a few of our more ardent jitter-bugs. Several schools in the larger cities have begun a new style of school dances... instead of tea dances which have been outlawed by several schools, students have petitioned their principals that jam sessions would keep them out of trouble and so now those schools have regular jam sessions... attendance is very good at these meetings and the students have pledged their support.

We have just learned of a great tragedy that recently shook South Side from its more than stable feet. ...Peggy Harrod has just announced that it's all off between herself and Bob Bolyard... We think that it's about time that Bob used a little sense and tried to realize that he had something that was really worth something... P. S. Jim Brooks is hoping futilely that he can take Bob's place. ...Some chance!

Parents, Faculty Have Grand Time Open House Night

Oh, gosh!! I hope my parents can't find my English teacher, is a frequent saying by many students on Open House Night, but despite all their efforts, this is a night when parents may come in contact with the teachers if they please, and discuss John's work to their heart's content.

However, putting all joking aside, this is a grand opportunity for the faculty and parents to become acquainted with each other. Open House Night was a tremendous success, and the parents were elated over the new appearance the school has taken on since last year. Besides this joy over the school building, the parents were more pleased with the procedure by which the program was carried on. One parent stated that he liked this procedure the best as it did not make him feel embarrassed if he was late to a class, as he had in former years.

At the beginning of the affair, the teacher of each room gave an explanation of the purpose of the home room. After that Mr. Abbott gave a welcome speech over the public address system.

Then the parents had the best time of all in visiting with the teachers. We are sure almost every one was happy about the whole thing except a few of the students, and then we see positive that some day they will see the advantages of having Open House Night.

Wee Sketches Of Our Big People

By Jeanette Warren

If you see a handsome South Side senior buzzing hither and yon in a Terraplane, if you meet up with a likable, capable young gentleman who is assistant circulation manager of The Totem and president of Hi-Y, you can be reasonably assured that it is Mrs. Buchholtz's little boy, Richard Frederick.

Besides being Hi-Y president and Totem assistant, he is Inter-Congress representative of Social Science; he is a member of Math-Science Club, Wranglers', and Three E's Clubs. His favorite subject is public speaking, but chemistry runs a close second. He is partial to brunettes. He likes sweet cider, marshmallow sundaes, and people who subscribe for The Totem from him. He doesn't care for the up-in-the-air coiffures of les femmes, he definitely dislikes spinach and Oh! how he hates to get up in the morning. Funny part of it is he hates to go to bed at night, too. His hero (favorite actor) is Mickey Rooney.

Dick came to South Side from Concordia College where he spent his freshman year. To further his ambition, which is to become a "pretty good" electrical or civil engineer, he hopes to attend Purdue University.

Young Mr. Buchholz (he desires that you note the correct spelling of his name) is a News-Sentinel carrier (plug). Progress Of Study During Ages Is Shown By Today's School

Where once stood the little red school house, a mighty institution of learning now stands. Where once a man, who was barely a scholar himself, taught, hundreds and thousands of marvelously trained teachers now set forth much more than just the fundamentals of the three Rs. Where poorly heated and poorly lighted rooms once held the striving student of former years, an adequately equipped building is now the modern school. Thus, over 2,000 years of education has flourished and progressed, until today it has become an industry which employs millions and which turns out a product of intelligence and character—the American student.

Education dates back as far as the crucifixion of Christ. In that time of the early Roman Empire, education was supposed to center around oratory. Quintilian, born of Roman parents, went to Spain to practice oratory, and on returning to Rome he set up a famous school. Afterwards he retired to write a book. This old book has been preserved, and through it, we know exactly what this famous teacher thought about education. His book illustrates that teachers of those times were opposed to harshness and felt that pupils should be led to wish to learn, not forced to learn.

In 735 A. D., Christianity helped pave the hard road to education. A lad of York, named Alcuin, became a learned scholar, and he went in search of learned books. Traveling to Rome, Alcuin met Charlemagne in Italy in 781 and went with him to set up a school at Aix-la-Chapelle in connection with the court. Alcuin revived the glory of education, and he left behind him a great deal of writing, useful for teaching, but not choice enough to be literature.

At this point our attention is turned to Rotterdam, Holland, where Desiderius Erasmus, born in 1466, was the first free international European scholar to live solely for learning. For fifteen years he roamed through Europe, France, Belgium, England, Italy, Holland, and Germany, gathering knowledge, teaching, writing books, and gaining everywhere the reputation of a fine scholar. He finally settled down at Basle to edit classical books, his reputation as a scholar becoming universal.

Jean Jacques Rousseau was the inspiring figure in education during the eighteenth century. In 1762 he published a book called Emile. In this book he claimed that a child ought to be educated according to nature, which included the child's own nature as well

This brisk fall weather must have an effect on the heart strings of the students because there are so many new romances brewing I can hardly keep track of them all.

I have to tell you right off the bat how Alice Sweet and Bob Dahman are getting along. It does my heart good to see occasionally a really happy couple going steady. Maybe some of the gay romancers will let this set an example for them. I hope!

In addition to this cute couple, Gene Cassidy and Donna Colicho and Morry Archibald and Jane Abbott and Bill Bundy and Joan Schaefer have decided to quit being just friends and really get down to business. Yep! All three couples have finally broken down and are now going steady.

It is a well-known fact that Helen Fry burns for the one and only Don Burnside. Why don't you give her a break, Don?

Becky Abbott's heart jumps a beat when she looks at that handsome Romeo, Kenny Warren. Or is it vice-versa?

It seems that Norma Dush and Dick Shorter have decided to call the whole thing off. All I've got to say is, "Look twice before you leap, kids."

Ken Cummings has been making eyes at Ellen Sroufe in sixth period study these days. What's the matter, Ken, are you bashful or something?

I wonder why Helen Peck and Kate Browning don't seem to be attracted by our male interest in South Side?

THE RIGHT MAN

On November 8, many United States citizens will go "to the polls" to vote for numerous state officials, Democrats, Republicans, or those from other parties. Truly now, in a country with a government and a citizenry such as ours, it is doubtful if many will vote for persons whom they truly know are worthy of their offices.

Such has been the influence that political propaganda has extended to the public of our day. Not only this, but the base ignorance of a population to laws governing it, conditions and factors surrounding it, and environments determining it, cause gross misconceptions concerning the fundamentals of our government.

People today are still conducting the search that has begun long ago. Hidden behind a mask of showmanship, beaming faces, and a congenial personality, lies in some's estimation, the ideal puppet for our government.

Raw material, that is, good raw material, is scarce when it comes to picking good government officers—not government politicians. Vigilantes, in one way, shape, or another, rise together too often for thriving politicians. Civil service reforms have done a lot to break away from the standing vote, regardless of party affiliations. When a populace can be assured of a steady income not subject to the whims of political robber barons, true government and a true democracy can survive.

Today, many of our parents are of the opinion that we see altogether too many movies—the one activity that can be blamed for all of youth's supposed degeneracy.

We supposedly gain radical ideas. Well, perhaps some, but they do promote thought. And that's a lot more than many adults can admit they've been doing today.

Tomorrow's citizens are awakening to the fact that tomorrow's government must be controlled today, and that if our government and its institutions are protected, our inherited birthright will be endorsed with our freedom; and our political and economic life will be substantially founded.

Pro and Con

Every year about this time, the age-old question of how class elections should be conducted arises. It really is a pressing problem, as Mr. Snider is very much concerned that it be conducted in the fairest and most convenient manner possible. Heretofore, the method of class election was very complicated. Each individual home room nominated at least two persons for each office. Then they elected a person to represent them at a Congress at which a final list of candidates was selected.

This year a new system is being installed. Each person writes down the names of six persons they would like to see hold office and in no special order. These votes are tabulated and the one with the highest number is president, next highest vice-president, etc.

Now the question is whether or not this system is better than the other one.

PRO: First, let us look at the points of the new system that could be regarded as attributes. Much can be said for this new system of election. First and of utmost importance is the fact that every person is given an equal chance of being elected to an office and each individual voter has the opportunity of voting for whom he thinks would be the best suited to lead his class. In the old system, the voters, who had practically nothing to do with making out the list of candidates, were handed a ballot on which was listed the candidates from which they had to make their choice. There was no alternative but that of not voting. Of course, everyone wants his say-so as to who shall lead his class, so naturally every person voted. Perhaps they did not even know who it was they were voting for, had never seen the person around the school before; and yet each voter had to make his choice.

Then, too, this system eliminates the evil of a comparatively small group of persons choosing the candidates for a large group. For instance, in last year's sophomore election, a committee of eleven delegates chose candidates for approximately 350 sophomores. Now it is easy to see that these eleven could not possibly have known the wishes of all the voters and therefore many voters were disappointed in the final ballot. The new system eliminates all this; the voters are solely responsible for the results of the election.

CON: Now, let us take a look at the bad points of the new system. No matter how good a thing appears on the surface at first glance, a second more critical glance may bring out its faults. At first, this system seems fool-proof, but is it? Say, for example, there are ten persons voting. There are two persons that these ten want to see be president and there is another that all want to see elected to a minor office.

So, five vote for the one and five vote for the other person that they believe would make the best president. Then all ten vote for the one they would like to see get a minor office. Now since they could not designate the order in which they wished to see the persons elected, the person all ten wanted for a minor office was elected president while the two they wanted as president, got only minor offices or nothing at all. There you have the main trouble with this system.

We have presented the case as we see it but every man to his own opinion. HOW DOES YOUR MIND FUNCTION?

Safeguard of Liberty, Through Knowledge, Excels Use of Army

It has been stated that education is a better safeguard to liberty than a standing army. A good education is as valuable to a person as the first line of defense is to an army. Our education, our line of defense, is our assurance of success and happiness when we step into the business world.

To look at the business world at present we see that there are strikes, unemployed men and women, and last, many financial books of companies made out in red, a sign of loss.

To turn the story back to the beginning, we might conclude that, through more careful management of financial matters and a little more thought on the part of the workers, some of this present day business crisis might have been lightened.

When good times were here, money and jobs were plentiful. People invested their money in the stock market, others bought expensive things, and all was going strong. No one thought of saving any money. Everyone had the idea that there was plenty more where that came from. All of a sudden the money supply gave out, prices rose, the stock market crashed, and as a result there were the bread lines and closed shops.

Today when glancing at a newspaper we see where one fascist nation and one nation under the rule of a dictator are having their difficulties. What caused the inhabitants of these countries to ever be under the rule of a dictator? Was it ignorance? Perhaps if these people had given more thought to the matter when they voted for their leader, they would not be under such strict rule and would not be fearful of war. It is evident that we as students must take more of an interest in current questions which concern our country. If we should fall down on the job, and not take an interest whatsoever in the government, some day we might be under the rule of one man, a second Hitler perhaps.

The large number of present day strikes could be cut greatly if only more thought were given on the part of the strikers. If they would only see how well off they are to hold a job. If they would only see the vast number of people who would be glad to have the opportunity to work.

We often do not realize the importance of a good education. We will run the country of tomorrow and to run it right we must have a strong line of defense, a good education.

Are You A "Small Fry"?

The currently popular song "Small Fry" is descriptive of many persons in our nation. In Fort Wayne everybody attends school until at least the age of sixteen years, but in many of our larger cities the very words of the song "Small Fry" apply literally. The youth of today is being demoralized by letting such things exist in a democracy.

As the song goes, "struttin' by the pool room," so go many of the youths of today. Instead of "bein' in the school room," they are gambling and participating in other demoralizing activities rather than obtaining an education.

The modern youth of today does not realize the true benefits of a high school education. Yesterday an education was considered a privilege rather than a gift as it is today. So maybe it would be better today if for a time we made persons pay for a high school education rather than giving it as a gift. If we did this more people would appreciate the benefits of a high school education and so-called "Small Fry" would realize what the privileges they had before really meant.

Yea Green! Yea White!

Now is the time for Archers to show that famous South Side spirit. It is no trick to yell your lungs out for a winning team, but it is hard to yell just as loud for the loser. And it is the loser, not the winner, who needs support. When the members of a team are fairly playing their hearts out and yet realize that they are getting nowhere, a rousing cheer from the crowd can pep them up almost as much as scoring could. The minute the spectators lose heart and quit rooting, the team loses courage and quits fighting. After all, it is better to go down fighting than to submit meekly to the inevitable. At the present, our team has the reputation of being a bunch of plucky fighters. So come on, rooters, let's give them, not three, not fifteen, but literally millions of cheers to help them keep their chins up.

Chicago Backs "Jam Session" For Jitterbugs

Board Of Education Sponsors Dance Periods For Students To Curb Delinquency

Chicago's Board of Education has a new policy of sponsoring jitterbug "jam sessions," as a curb on juvenile delinquency.

After the first session, which was held October 22 and drew flocks of students to twelve high schools, plans were perfected for a continuance of these weekly dance periods.

It has been reported that the program may be extended to include all public high schools of that city.

Parents were barred from the first session. Instructors were provided for those inexperienced in stepping to waltz, fox trot, and swing rhythms.

If a "jam session" can be successfully carried on in Chicago, why not in Fort Wayne? It would enable many students who are not financially able to attend expensive dances to attend those sponsored by the school. It would enable them to become acquainted with new dance steps, which to the high school world is of the utmost importance. They would be likely to meet many new friends while spending an enjoyable evening under excellent supervision.

These sessions would have the desired effect in that they would tend to transfer the interest of the students from the unchaperoned "swing clubs" to the dances managed by, probably interested members of the faculty and hired dance instructors. Comments have been made about this plan by the faculty and students of the three public high schools of this city.

South Side
Wanda Bowman: Why can't we be as modern as Chicago?

Mr. Herman Makey: I think it is a good idea if we had the time and people to take care of it.

North Side
Rose Steiber: I think it is a good idea because it would take the students' minds off their work after school hours.

Mr. Rollo Mosher: I am definitely opposed to "jam sessions."

Central
Juanita Sabito: It's exciting and thrilling and it turns me into a "jitterbug."

Mr. John R. Jones: Out in the country it might be a rest for the "jam jar" but a real "jam session" affects my head.

Visual Education Films Are Shown

Department Head Is Mr. Wilburn Wilson; Films, Slides Are Shown In Various Classes.

Mr. Wilburn Wilson, head of Visual Education department in South Side, announced that quite a few teachers have had slides and films shown to their classes. Some teachers have had films ordered.

Slides and films have been shown to Miss Mary Crowe's health classes, Mr. Dorsa Yoder's health classes, Mr. Lloyd Whelan's physical geography classes, Girl Scouts organization, and the art section of the Teachers' Convention.

Those teachers who have films ordered are Mr. Albert Heine, Mr. Lloyd Whelan, Mr. Dorsa Yoder, and Mr. Wilburn Wilson.

The operators are chairman, Mark Hall, and George Finkhausen, Winfield Buchanan, Bob Ault, Wayne Hembrook, Andy Bremer, Bob Martin, Bob Ensler, Clarence Freeman, and Robert Kite.

The officers are Phyllis Geisinger, Helen Faux, and Phyllis Branning. Safety films are being shown continually at the junior high schools in the city for the Journal-Gazette by Mr. Wilson's staff.

Those rooms which are equipped with shades for showing slides or films are Mr. Wilburn Wilson's room, 108, and Mr. Lloyd Whelan's room, 14. Also the Greeley Room is going to have a picture shade installed in it.

Films have been ordered, which are to be shown during lunch periods for a slight fee to defray the cost of renting the films and the wear and tear on the picture machine.

Pigeons Are First With Joe Loos

—Courtesy of The News-Sentinel

By Sam Bacon

Pigeons are said to be the symbol of peace and to Joe Loos, one of our prominent sophomores and a star football player, pigeons are not only a sign of peace but also of contentment. Joe claims that he gets much peace and contentment out of his hobby of raising these pigeons.

Joe raises these birds at his home at 4330 Pembroke Lane. He had his own pigeon coop built over an old sand pile in his back yard. Joe stated that he first started his hobby about two years ago when he acquired four squabs, or young pigeons. Now after two years of working with this hobby he has, at the present time, about fourteen or fifteen. He is not sure of the exact number because he gets new pigeons or trades older ones very often. Joe received his first pigeons from several men living in Fort Wayne who are also interested in raising pigeons.

Obtains Enjoyment

Joe says that he doesn't go in very extensively for the breeding of pigeons, but, instead, he uses them for the fun that he gets out of keeping them. He believes that he gets most of his enjoyment from watching the birds fly.

He often takes his pigeons to Huntington, or some other town about 25 or 50 miles away. After he gets to one of these towns he lets the pigeons fly back to Fort Wayne. After getting back home the pigeons go immediately to their coop.

Joe also said that several of his pigeons have won prizes in national competition, although not while he owned them. As yet Joe has not entered any of his birds in a national contest. He doubts if he will do so for some time as entrance in such a contest requires a lot of work.

Buys Prepared Foods

Joe doesn't bother about preparing his own food for his birds, but buys the ingredients already mixed. Every morning Joe lets his pigeons out of their coop and they fly around a while.

Junior Rifle Officers Are Named For Year

Officers were elected at the Junior Rifle Club meeting, Tuesday, October 11. Dick Theye was elected president; Bob Showalter was elected secretary-treasurer. Vice-president and chief range officer in charge of the range is Bob Ault. The object of the club was discussed. The number of points each member had was reported.

Grad Honored At College

James Dern, '37, during his freshman year at Yale University was one of the students receiving honors for having a general average of from 80 to 89 per cent.

Times Is Winner Of Many Awards

School Paper Is One Of Most Outstanding Extra-Curricular Activities; Is Founded In '22.

The Times, one of the most outstanding extra-curricular activities in South Side, has won many awards since it was founded in 1922. The year it was founded this school publication began winning national and local honors.

Some of the contests in which South Side's paper has won honors are the National Scholastic Press Association contests, the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, and Indiana High School Scholastic Press Association contests. The paper has also won contests sponsored by the Quill and Scroll and Sigma Delta Chi fraternity.

The South Side Times has always won highest honors in the National Scholastic Association since 1922; it has won Medalist honors since 1925 in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, and it has won first place in the Indiana High School Scholastic Press Association from 1923 to 1931 and from 1933 to 1938. This publication won first place in the International publications rating for the last five years in contests sponsored by the Sigma Delta Chi of Indiana University, since 1928.

Archers Interested In Wide Variety Of South Side Clubs

There are many clubs in South Side that students may join; there is such a variety of clubs that the students may hardly say there isn't any club to which they would like to belong. The boys seem to prefer Wranglers while most girls seem to prefer Philo.

When asked their favorite club a number of Archers answered as follows:

Orval Paul: Rifle Club, because I like guns and it is a test of my skill.
Martha Jean Smith: I like Wranglers because I have lots of fun in it.
Earl Werner: I'm interested in radios; so I like Radio Club.

Janie Weir: I like So-Si-Y, because I'm interested in the work they're doing for the girls.

Ellen Harry: I prefer Travel Club, because it is so well planned.

Dorothy Heslip: I like Junior Math because it is so interesting.

Rosalie Hall: I like Meterite because I meet a lot of new people.

Dick Green: I am interested in Marionette Club because it teaches the skillful manipulation of marionettes.

Della Rauner: I like the girls that are in Philo.

Wilma Yost: I like S. P. C. because they give very interesting plays each meeting.

Marjorie Jackson: I like Philo because I meet a lot of new people.

Betty Brindle: I like Philo because it is educational.

Clara Makey: You have a lot of chances to do things in the Forum Club.

Library Club Members Serve South Siders In Valued Way

If one was asked just what clubs ranked highest in his opinion, on or near the top would be the Library Club.

The students of South Side couldn't possibly realize how many extra hours of work the club puts in for them. You, . . . you, and you all receive much beneficial aid from these students during a school year.

This might be a typical instance. A student, John Jones, is working on the Freshman-Sophomore Speech Contest and needs to find material on a subject. John enters our school library with only one thought; that is, the place to get the much needed information. He has no idea where to look. He tells the library worker his desire; that person will look up for him as much and probably more than it will take to prove John's contention. After asking if there is anything else that John wants and finds the answer to be no, the worker goes off without any reward. Sometimes he, or she, is not even thanked.

Gives Typical Day

Miss Shoup gives this as a typical day for the library club member:

Before school and the first period: Checking books in and out. Card and shelf books the rest of the day.

Prepare slips for roll. Filing of cards. Typing. Cut and file clippings from papers, etc. Paste pockets and date due cards in new books, and also shellac them. Take care of student wants. Do messenger work. Help with all library work.

After school in the evening: Check out the many books. Arrange and count cards to see how many books were taken out. Shelving and straightening books. Put away magazines. Also help do numerous other library jobs.

Each year the Library Club has an initiation and Wiener bake at Foster Park. They have a potluck at Christmas and a picnic in June in honor of the seniors. The club meets once a month. At the present Miss Shoup states that there are 28 members of the organization.

Derive Great Benefits

The library club workers unanimously believe that the club is a great benefit to them. They express their opinion as:

Helen Banks: The Library Club is very beneficial because it teaches one how to use a library, and it makes one appreciate the value of books more.

Margery Rapp: It is one of the most interesting of the clubs I belong to, and I like the work very much.

So for all these services we should give a vote of thanks to the Library Club of South Side.

Coach Friddle Starts Practice For Basketball

Will Make Effort To Produce Team Similar To One That Won Championship.

Squad Will Have Veteran Players

Bob Bolyard, Don Beery, Jim Glass, John Chedister Assured Berths On Team.

Practice for South Side's warriors of the basketball court has begun. Coach Burl Friddle started about twelve or thirteen men practicing in an effort to produce another team similar to the one that won the state championship last year.

Most of the boys out at this time were on the two squads last year, although a few who were not out last season are working now. The number practicing will swell considerably as soon as the football schedule is completed since several outstanding players are on the football team.

Practice Started
Basketball practice started about two weeks ago, at which time the players signed up and received their physical examinations and equipment. Attention is being placed on ball handling, shooting practice, and getting into condition. Several of the players spent the summer doing work that kept them in condition but others are running and doing other exercise to get in good condition.

Four boys, Bob Bolyard, Don Beery, Jim Glass, and John Chedister are back from last season's championship team. Each of these boys are assured of a berth on the varsity squad. These four and Carl Hall, former South Side track and basketball man who is returning to school this year after an illness, will form the nucleus for the varsity for the 38-39 season. All five will undoubtedly see a lot of action as a lot of the burden for the year's work will fall on them.

New Stars Named
Several boys from last year's second team are expected to hold an important position on the varsity. Don Hire will probably be a regular, as he is a fine guard and is an excellent shot when it comes to making baskets. Bob Hines, a sophomore, also is expected to take a regular berth on the varsity group. Bob is a tall and lithe player who is always in there with all he's got. He should be another swell player like his brother Johnny, who was graduated last spring.

Charles Feistkorn and Ralph Hamilton are another two who ought to show up this year. They may not both make the varsity at the beginning of the season, but given a little time they will develop into stars. Feistkorn is tall and would make a good center, while Ralph has many of the qualities of his brother Dale.

Keith Spiker, a candidate for the center position; Jack Hornberger, a fast boy; Dale Fuhrman, a good all-around player; and Fred Walker, a fast and tall colored boy, should all take places on the varsity or second team.

Tough Season Scheduled
The Archers have one of their toughest schedules in years to face this season, and it will take everything that Coach Friddle can find to take South Side through the year without a defeat. Because South Side won the state championship, almost every school our team meets will try to gain fame by taking our squad to town.

This year South Side meets some teams from southern Indiana, which are always hard to beat. Despite the schedule the Archers have, most of the student body are hopeful of another state championship team.

Junior Riflers Qualify For Bi-Weekly Targets

The members of the Junior Rifle Club shot their qualifying round of ten shots, for the bi-weekly targets of November 1. Those who shot above ninety are Robert Ault, Dick Theye, John Craig, Arthur Longworth and Robert Jameison. Those who qualified to shoot in the bi-weekly match are Fred Pugh, Robert Buschman, Robert Ault, Robert Jameison, William Selby, John Craig, Arthur Longworth, Everett Trulock, Robert Showalter and Gene Biehm.

The qualifications for a pro-marksman medal were discussed. Mr. Stanley Post explained to the members the sighting of the new armory rifles.

BELL'S Invite You
Matinee Special on Sundays

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to Velma Lehman's orchestra, composed of Margaret Hitzeman, Gilbert Baumgartner and Velma, for providing the music at the annual Halloween party, Friday, October 21. We admire you, Velma, for starting this orchestra, and we think you're tops. Here's wishing lots of luck and good fortune to you and your orchestra in the future.

What is that new game that Hazel Perry, Lois Jarvis, and Gwen Roberts have been practicing lately in the gym? Could it be something that they learned at the Kendallville play day last Saturday? It seems to be rather interesting. How about teaching it to all of us, girls?

To those who have never heard Betty Minniker sing, you've certainly missed something. She has what it takes for a bright future as a top-notch songstress of Fort Wayne. We predict that some day we will be losing Betty to a great orchestra. Keep up the good work, Betty.

Now that the regular hockey and speedball games are completed, the next activity in line is volleyball. Next to basketball, this sport seems to be tops. Freshman, be sure to come out, for you're certain to find it a favorite.

The shocking surprise of the party occurred when Miss Smith and Miss Dean abolished the annual custom of the presentation of the "Blue Danube," to give their interpretation of "The Polka." Tsh, Tsh, but have no worry, Miss Smith and Miss Dean, we liked it and we hope to see you do it again.

Poor Margery Price! Dressed as a negro mammy, she was in such misery during the party. Of course her face and hands were covered with black grease paint and when she found it necessary to scratch her nose, she was in a fine kettle of fish. The faces she made were really comical, and she did some funny twitching before she was satisfied.

Bouquets to Elaine and Kathryn Boerger, Orinda Brown, Wilma Pierce, Marian Seemeyer, Gloria Kramer, Janice Sprunger, Billie and Marilyn Myers, Erlene Lee, Barbara Miller and Hazel Perry for making the Halloween program a success. They have proved that South Side has a variety of talent that should be exercised more often.

Credit is due to those G. A. A.'ers who never fail to put a few notes in the box. We surely appreciate them, and we hope you continue to aid us in this manner. Any little note about your friends that you think will be of interest to all; just take a moment to write it and drop it in the box.

Refinish Gym Floor

During the Teachers' Convention the janitors have been refinishing the gym floor. The process used by the janitors is this: First the floor is thoroughly scrubbed with motor operated scrub brushes. Second the floor is carefully rinsed. Then special wax is applied in two coats.

Varsity Track Teams To Face Garret Friday

Meet To Include 2-Mile Run; Mr. George Collyer New Coach; Young Manages

For the first time in history, the South Side varsity track team will hold a fall meet, as the runners will meet Garrett in the first track meet on the schedule. The meet which is being held at 4:30 o'clock, will consist of a cross-country run of two miles. Mr. George Collyer, the new track coach, is expected to take the entire team.

The team consists of eight boys who are as follows: Richard Siebold, Ralph Siebold, Allison Arnold, Tom Thiele, Arthur Matott, Eugene Botz, Alfred Gumbert and Rudolph Wutke. The team started training three weeks ago, and since then they have shown much improvement, according to Bob Young, track manager.

Alison Arnold, one of the track veterans, has the record so far this year for the two-mile run.

Each night the team runs two miles. However, before they start their nightly run, they limber up with some calisthenic exercises.

Find Grid Solution In Six-Man Teams

Enables Smaller Schools To Join Inter-Collegiate Football Leagues As Varsity Sport.

Six-man football after having swept from coast to coast has now leaped 1800 miles of Pacific Ocean to the Hawaiian Islands. Little did Stephen Epler, inventor of the game, think that when he struck on the idea of giving the smaller school a chance to play football that his game would gain so much popularity. All over America different states are inventing leagues composed of different prep schools. Everybody likes six-man football because of the wide open playing during a game. Passes and long-end runs give the spectator a fine chance of watching the ball carrier at all times.

Six-man football this year will select an All-American Honor Roll of outstanding six-man players. The players will be selected by a nationwide machine of coaches and state officials. Six-man football now has an official handbook which contains the rules with 1938 revisions, play diagrams, and formations, coaching and training suggestions. Even a two-reel motion picture describing the game has been made. The picture has been shown in forty-six towns from Montana to New York, and it is now being shown in Hawaii. Books, pamphlets, and circulars have been printed such as, Put Punch in Your Offense, by Epler describing the twelve outstanding plays of 1937. Are You Football Material? by Dr. Gordon A. Thomas of Purdue, outlines the physical examination that all football candidates should receive.

Most of the coaches and officials of six-man football firmly believe that six-man football players of today will be making names for themselves on the college gridirons of tomorrow.

T. B. League To Begin Fall Program Soon

Starting with this announcement, the Anti-Tuberculosis League will begin their fall educational program. At South Side, lectures will be given to students and to the Parent-Teacher Association. Tuberculin testing of seniors for students is being planned. The first thing will be the explaining of the program.

Dr. Werner W. Duemling, head of school doctors, is cooperating in this work.

A special course in the study of the Christmas Seal and meaning of Christmas is being planned by the League. All teachers are expected to make some contribution to the work as a whole. Home economics teachers may be expected to take a prominent part.

Girl Athletes Enjoy Kendallville Play-Day In That City

Last Saturday, at Kendallville, representatives of all the Girls' Athletic Associations of the high schools of the Northeast District attended Kendallville's Play Day. Four girls attended from South Side. They are Frieda Schubert, Margery Price, Joan Squires, and Hazel Perry. Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Dean also attended.

The program of the morning included registration and dressing for the different games, which were followed with an hour of play. Many of the games were new to the South Side girls. After this a ten-minute rest period was given which was devoted to becoming acquainted with girls from many other high schools. Again they were called together to play box hockey and ring tennis; these were games which came from the South Side girls.

Luncheon and a program followed at the community hall. Each city had a separate table and each gave its songs and yells.

After lunch the girls that had brought roller skates were permitted to skate in the street guarded by policemen and accompanied by the high school band. Then everyone was ushered into a small gym and there, after a very interesting talk by a Mrs. Ettings, they watched motion pictures of Sonja Heine and other famous ice skaters, performing at Lake Placid.

About 3:30 p. m. all were dismissed and invited to return again some day.

Grads On Committee

Virginia Griener, '36, Aletha Hatfield, '35, and Betty Rison, '36, will act as the provisional committee for the January meeting of the Alumnae Triple Triangle Club.

At the September meeting, it was decided to have a new plan of organization. A new group is being organized for girls out of high school between the ages of 17 and 24.

Large Attendance At G. A. A. Party

Affair Is Held In Study Hall; Miss Gretchen Smith, Miss Alice Dean Chaperon Group

Approximately two hundred girls attended the annual G. A. A. Halloween party Friday evening in the new study hall. Bums, ex-convicts, clowns, pirates, and farmers were among the many represented at the party. The room was properly decorated in yellow and black, bringing out that Halloween spirit. Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Dean acted as chaperones for the affair, and the music for the dancing was provided by Velma Lehman's orchestra, composed of Margaret Hitzeman, Gilbert Baumgartner, and Velma. The guest vocalist was Betty Minniker.

Most Original Selected

A grand march started the party off, during which the judges selected those dressed with the most originality. Those girls winning prizes were Hazel Perry, Frieda Schubert, Gwen Roberts, Janet Michael, Dorothy Rarick, Velma Connet, Delain Rose, and Constance Deel. The judges were Betty Showalter, Donna Dennis, Wilma Carrier, and Billie Meyers.

After the grand march, the party was then turned over to the mistress of ceremonies, Hazel Perry. The program was as follows: Elaine Boerger, accompanied on the piano by her sister Kathryn, gave a violin and vocal selection to "An Old Straw Hat"; Orinda Braun presented a tap dance; Wilma Pierce, a vocal selection, "A Tisket, a Tasket"; Marian Seemeyer gave a monologue; Gloria Kramer presented a castanette dance, being accompanied on the piano by Janice Sprunger; and Orinda Braun entertained again by giving an acrobatic dance; Billie and Marilyn Myers gave a short comedy act; Erlene Lee presented several vocal selections, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life", and "I'm Falling In Love With Someone"; and Barbara Miller concluded the program with a tap dance.

Teachers Present Dance

The highlight of the evening occurred when Miss Dean and Miss Smith presented their dance version of "The Polka." This was quite a surprise to many, for it broke up the annual custom of the presentation of the "Blue Danube."

Following the program the party was turned over to dancing. The party was concluded with refreshments of popcorn and taffy apples.

Leroy Cook, the veteran Archer end was injured in last week's encounter with North Side. We aren't sure of the extent of the injury, but we hope to see "Curley" back in there when the Green meets Laporte.

The past weekend showed three pairs of brothers from the three public schools. In the North Side vs. South Side game, we again saw the Turner twins, Gay and Gord, playing against a comparatively new pair of Archers, A. J. and Bob Ferguson. This was Bob's first varsity football game, and he showed up fine in the closing minutes of the game. In the Central vs. Columbia City game, H. Talley and F. Talley were responsible for three of the five Central touchdowns. H. Talley plunged for the first score and then ran a kickoff back 86 yards for another. Later in the game F. Talley came in and passed to Kauffman twice to set up the deciding touchdown.

Another newcomer was brought to light in the Redskin vs. Archer game when Joe Bex, a senior, went in the game in the closing minutes and did some fine ground gaining only to be stopped by the final whistle.

The greatest single factor that seemed to defeat the Archers last Friday was the sensational returning of punts in which Ev Huth, star Redskin back, was most outstanding.

Speedball Season Is Nearing Close

G.A.A. Winners, Losers Listed; Team One, Captained By Rose Stemen, Leads With No Loss

With the speedball season just about over, team one, captained by Rose Stemen, is leading the winners with 5 wins and no defeats. During Monday's games, teams one, four, two and three participated.

The first game was won by team one by the score of 6 to 5. The scoring for the winners was done by Betty Bligh, Jean Junk and Peggy Greany. The scoring for team 4, captained by Lenora Moyer, was done by Vasilka Stephens, Clara Makey and Marianna Klotz. Referees for the game were Eva Jane Wylie and Frances Nash. The scorer for the game was Justine Coudret.

The second game was won by team two by the score of 6 to 1. The captain for this team is Margaret Kienzle. Orinda Braun captains team three. June Whalen led her team to victory by scoring four points while Martha Scheele and Janet Wetsel scored one point each. Arlida Braun scored the only point for her team. The umpire for the team was Dorothy Cooper, and the referee was Aileen Meyer. Mary Alice Dunten was the scorer.

The final set of series will be played on Monday.

Strong Laporte Squad To Be Archer Opponent Saturday

Green Hopes For Triumph Over Slicers

May Break Into Winning Column After Contest; Guests' Power Unknown.

New Faces Seen On Home Eleven

Joe Bex, Bob Ferguson Play In Backfield Against Redskins; May Be In Again.

South Side will meet a strong Laporte team on the local home ground this coming Saturday. The Archers have big intentions of making this their first win of the season.

Having lost all their games, the Green hope to change their luck and break into the winning column. Very little is known of the potential strength of the Laporte Slicers; however, they are expected to give the Archers a real battle. South Side will have everything to win and nothing to lose when they meet the Slicers Saturday.

Injuries Take Toll

Injuries again took toll on the Archer lineup when Cook had to be taken from the game during the last half of the Archer-Redskin battle last Friday night.

The Archers showed definite improvement in the North Side-South Side game, and their decisive defeat at the hands of the Northerners was not so much the result of faulty play on the part of the Archers as the result of the very superior performance of a much stronger Redskin squad.

Although the Archers were able to gain the total of 76 yards against the Northerners, there are very few teams in the state who can gain very much more. Thirty of these yards were lost by penalties.

Archer Hope Rises

The Green's ability to execute their ground plays and to complete passes for small gains against what is rated one of the toughest, if not the toughest team in the state, raises the Archer hope for the Laporte vs. South Side clash.

New faces were seen on the squad which met North Side. Joe Bex was put in the backfield during the closing minutes and showed ability as a ball carrier. Bob Ferguson made his first appearance in the backfield late in the last quarter and managed to pick up about fifteen yards off tackle the first time he carried the ball. Dick Werner played during the last half at right end.

Two Organizations Name Fall Sports

G.A.A., Boys' Intramural Sports To Play Speedball, Boxing, Handball, Wrestling, Hockey.

The G. A. A. and the boys' intramural sports have announced some of the sports to be carried on this semester.

The G. A. A., headed by Miss Gretchen Smith, has been playing hockey and speedball. They are now going to start playing volleyball and basketball. Other sports will begin later.

The G. A. A. girls are given health cards which their parents are to sign. They are now getting examined for these various sports.

Mr. Louis Briner, head of intramural sports, has announced some of the sports that will be played. Mr. Briner announced that basketball has started, and the boys are getting teams ready at the present time. Handball, boxing, and wrestling are other sports in which these boys may participate and will start in a short time.

Health cards are given to all boys and must be signed by their parents before they are allowed to participate in these sports. All entrants in intramural sports must be examined by the school physician, Dr. W. W. Duemling.

North Side Named City Grid Champs

North Side is again city champion in football as they closed their city series competition without a defeat. The Redskins played great ball in defeating the South Side Archers 46-0. Only one game is left on the schedule between Central and South Side, November 12.

Standings are as follows:	Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
North Side	3	0	1.000
Central	1	1	.500
South Side	0	2	.000

Cite Possible Gridders For All-City Squad

All Schools Have Prospective Members; North Side Has Most Possibilities.

Now that the football season for the local prep-schools is drawing to an end, naturally the thoughts of the fans, players and coaches are turning to an All-City team. Candidates for this high honor are many this year, and the All-City board will have a hard time in doing justice to the four high schools.

South Side has had rather a dismal season this year, but, nevertheless, such boys as Biedenweg, Cook, E. Ferguson and Englehart have outstanding marks for the Archer eleven. Biedenweg's fine punting has kept the enemy at bay many times, while Englehart's bullet-like passes have been the cause of much grief to his opponents. E. Ferguson has been a power house in the center of the line all year. Cook has also played a very consistent game at left end this season. Other Archer probabilities are Welborn, Roth, Moorhead and Shimer.

North Side, with its potential state champion squad, should certainly come in for a lion's share of the All-City positions. Among those worthy of consideration will be Werling, whose consistent playing all year has been one of the main reasons for North Side success. Gaylord Turner, whose role as blocking back this year has kept him from being such a scoring ace, nevertheless has been as necessary in the Redskins' juggernaut as the boys who actually scored the touchdowns. One certainly wouldn't want to leave out Cowan and Huth, North Side's halfback and fullback. On the line, Russell, Hill, Young and Gwyder, Turner have each been outstanding for the Redskins. In fact, the whole North Side varsity would be worthy of consideration for All-City honors.

Central comes in with Talley, colored halfback, whose terrific speed has baffled his opponents all season. Hanley, another hard driving Central back, has also been a thorn in his opponents' side. Dale Thompson has done a swell job all season for the Bengals at the tackle position. Duke Richardson, at end, has also done a swell job this year for the Tigers.

Central Catholic certainly has a backfield ace in George Bitler, whose accurate passing has been responsible for many of the C. C. touchdowns. Captain Colone also is a fine ball player and would be worthy of consideration for a berth on the All-City team. Stanczyk, Irish right end, has played a whale of a game for C. C. all year.

With so little difference in most of these boys' ability, it looks like the All-City board will have their work cut out for them. However, no matter which of the boys land berths on the honor squad, Fort Wayne will have an All-City eleven that could give any high team in the country a tough battle.

North Side Lad Leads In City's Scoring Race

Scoring for the four local prep schools is shown for the season in the table below. Bob Cowan, sensational North Side sophomore, leads the race with 48 points. Everett Huth, North Side fullback, closely follows with 42 points. Frank Werling, Cowan's running mate, is third with 29 points. Ralph Shimer and Tom Moorhead, both of South Side, have a touchdown a piece for the season so far.

	T.	EP.	TP.
Cowan	8	0 48
Huth	6	0 42
Werling	4	5 29
Talley	4	0 24
Hanley	3	0 18
Bitler	2	3 15
Shimer	1	0 6
Moorhead	1	0 6

Englehart, crafty sophomore ball carrier, is expected to be an important figure in the South Side backfield when the Archers meet Laporte Saturday.

Archers Unbeatable In Display Of Spirit, Declares Reporter

Although our football team has suffered six straight defeats this year, we still have a winning team in more than one respect. The fighting spirit of our team cannot be beaten by that of any other team in the city.

One of the hardest fighting men on the team is Dave Fyock. Even when the scores against us have been so high that it would have been impossible for us to win, Dave was still using everything he had to try to get the ball over the goal for a touchdown. The boys on the team have practiced many long, weary hours to make our opposing teams battle for every inch they gain against us.

Weak Tackling Defense

At the start of the season our tackling defense was very weak. Since then our tackling has improved steadily. One of our hardest fighting and most determined tacklers is little Art Miller. Many times when our opposing teams failed to gain ground, Art has been the reason. Dave Roth is our best guard. In the last few games, Dave has played as he never played before. When it comes to blocking and tackling, Dave does more than his share.

Another thing we think our students overlook is the fact that South Side plays the toughest schedule of any team in the city. Many of the teams on our schedule are teams that remain unbeaten year after year. There are no "easy mark" teams on our schedule. A win over one of the so-called tough teams brings our school more respect than two or three wins over "easy mark" teams.

In the course of our games, some of our players have been injured. These injuries have been serious enough to cause some of the players to discontinue playing for a while. However, as soon as they were able, these boys have been back on the field playing just as hard as before. Two good examples of this type of boy are Bob Biedenweg and Ralph Ahlshelm. Both of these boys have leg injuries. Both of these boys have gained a lot of ground in the games. Another boy on the team that we would find it hard to do without is LeRoy Cook. LeRoy is continually cheering the team on. A pat on the back or an encouraging word helps a lot when the going is hard.

To Use New Plays

Last week the coach introduced some new plays. These plays were to be used to fool our opposing teams. The defensive team was made up of the toughest men on the field outside of the first team. If the boys work these plays in the games the same way they do in practice, the city title may go to a team no one expects it to be won by. By this we mean the boys who wear the Kelly uniforms.

Green Eleven Is No Match For Northmen

Defeated To Tune Of 46-0; Leave Redskins Undisputed City Champions.

South Side's Archers proved no match for the powerful Redskin eleven Friday night at the North Side stadium when they went down in defeat 46-0. Fighting hard, the Archers were unable to hold their ground against the hard-driving Northmen leaving them the undisputed City-Series champions and well on the road toward the elusive State Championship. The 46-0 drubbing was the worst ever delivered to an Archer grid squad by a Northern squad.

North Side took the lead in the opening minutes of the game when the Archers punted to Royer on his own 45-yard line. Royer took the ball straight down the west side of the field for a touchdown. Werling got the team clicking again when he took a punt on his own 44-yard line and clipped off twenty-five yards to the Archer 19, where the Green succeeded in holding them for three downs. The Nulmen, however, unleashed one of the aerial heaves which played such an important part against Bosse to make the last score of the first period.

During the second period North Side showed its powerful running attack, Werling driving to the five-yard line where Huth drove over for the six points. Huth failed in the attempt for the extra point.

The Redskins turned on the power to score three times during the third quarter. The first was made on a pass from the eleven again from Werling to Russell over the goal. Huth received the Archer kick-off and, doing a beautiful piece of broken field running, traveled from his own five for the fifth touchdown of the game.

The third score of the third period came as the result of an intercepted pass which was downed on the Archer 35. The Green took the ball on their 21 and punted to Shepherd who returned the ball to the 30 where Cowan took the ball on a lateral and shot around the left side of the line to score.

The last touchdown was scored when Hieber intercepted a pass on his own 45-yard line and went 55 yards for the final score of the game. Although the Archers were badly defeated, they showed plenty of spirit and fought gamely against a vastly superior team in experience and man power.

Too much cannot be said about the fine running and blocking of the Nulmen. They looked like State Champions and deserved to win. Biedenweg, Shimer, Cook, Goshorn, Loos, Miller, Moorhead, Englehart, Roth, and the Ferguson boys all put up a game fight, and the South Side fans should be proud of them.

Intramurally Speaking

Since our short vacation is over, you are no doubt glad to get back to school and enter into your respective intramural sports. No doubt you all had plenty of fun during last week's brief vacation period. There were probably plenty of good football games between you and your friends, and of course all of you dubbers no doubt kept in trim by playing a few rounds of golf. Then to be sure there was a little bit of Halloweenin' done on the side, but I won't say much to that effect. But after all is said and done it does seem pretty good to return to our school's portals even after such a short vacation as we took part in last week.

Two weeks ago the final run-off of cross-country was performed, and the winners in the three divisions have been determined. Charles Feistkorn set a new heavyweight record of seven minute and fifty-six second mark on the mile and one-third run. The middleweight winner, Frankie DuWaldt, showed that he had plenty of endurance by finishing the run in seven minutes and fifty seconds. In the lightweight division Dallas Zuber, a freshman, showed that age did not matter in cross-country by winning first place with a time of eight minutes and twenty seconds.

Other winners in the divisions and their time runs as follows:

Heavyweight—Lawrence Bogner, second place, 8 minutes, 6 seconds; Howard Ensley, third place, 8 minutes, 8 seconds.

Middleweight—John Davenport, second place, 7 minutes, 56 seconds; Delmar Stein, third place, 8 minutes, 3 seconds.

Lightweight—Loren Sprunger, second place, 11 minutes, 22 seconds; Don Meyer and Dave Stoltz, third place, 8 minutes, 25 seconds.

It has often been said that good losing is better than poor winning. This statement is true in every activity no matter how small it may be. A sportsmanlike attitude is the greatest trait of character which anybody can hope to have. If one is a good sport, he plays according to the rules and doesn't go beyond them by cheating. If one is a good sport, when he loses or fails in some enterprise, he doesn't let that ruin his friendship with his opponents; but, instead, he takes it as a matter of course and strives again for victory and success by using fair means. A good winner knows that he has won and then keeps quiet about it instead of going around and telling everybody he meets that he can't be beat. A good winner like a good loser wins his honor by fair play.

Sophomores Lose In Hockey Game

Hazel Perry's Seniors Are Victors; Sophomore 5, Junior 1 Teams Are Other Conquerors

Friday, October 14, was the scene of four brisk hockey battles. Nearing the end of the season, the players are in top-notch form. They have had time for plenty of practice and yet have not been playing long enough to lose interest in the game.

Probably the fastest and most furious playing occurred in the game between Hazel Perry's seniors and Jeanne Smith's sophomore 3 team. Although the sophomores, led by Jeanne Smith, made a valiant attempt to hold off the seniors, the latter team had just too much experience and playing ability, and Smith's team was unable to score against the seniors. At the beginning of the game, the ball was almost immediately started in the direction of the senior's goal; and in a few minutes, Gwen Roberts managed to knock it through, scoring the first point out of the senior's three. Captain Hazel Perry finished off the first half by scoring another goal making the score 2-0. In the second half, the sophomores were determined that the seniors should not score again, and they took the ball down the field to their goal at a rapid pace. Once there, however, the ball was knocked out and the seniors again started to hear down upon their opponents. The equally determined sophomores refused to be forced back and there followed a confusing mix-up in which at one time the ball flew up several feet into the air, striking Gwen Roberts on the head. Marguerite Culkins then made a fine shot for the sophomores driving the seniors back into their own territory. Then came the surprise spurt from Pauline Oetting in which she drove the ball down the field to make the seniors' third goal. The rest of the game was spent by the sophomores in a futile attempt to break into the scoring margin.

The results of the other games are as follows: Elaine Ferguson's sophomore 11 chalked up a win of 2-1 over Geneva Martin's sophomore 1. The goals were scored by Ferguson and Dorothy Cooper of the winning and Captain Martin of the defeated team. Bernadine Pressler's sophomore 2 and Gloria Winkler's sophomore 4 teams seem to have been rather evenly matched since the final score was a tie, 0-0.

Audrey Hall knocked through a goal to bring victory to Marian Feichter's junior 1 team. They defeated Captain Morrison's junior 2 team, who failed to score.

Archers Should Cooperate In Prevention Of Accidents

Improvements Are Numerous In 1939 Autos

Change Is Made From The Streamline System To Radical Box Car Type.

New Design Is Boon To Safety

Trend In Radiator Toward Pointed, Narrow Ones; Outlet Is Shrinking.

Every year the automobile industry improves the style and type of car. This year they have really gone places. In case you haven't paid any particular attention to the 1939 automobile industries have improved their latest models. I'm sure you'll agree with me that the United States is becoming automobile conscious plus!

Although some of the various automotive industries have improved their products during the past year, there is also a definite relapse in many of America's most popular cars. One of the outstanding examples of this relapse is the change from a radical streamlining system to a still more radical so called "box-car" type of design. Probably, as many of you have noticed, there is a pronounced change from the late streamlining type in the bodies of several of our new 1939 models which gives the car more of a square body than was common a year or two ago. The windows are high and square which is a distinct change from the old style of low and curved windows. The idea of boxing the parts of the automobile is also carried out throughout the plan of the body of the 1939 car. Even though this design may not be particularly attractive, it is a boon to safety.

An interesting factor of the newer radiators is the shrinking of the outlet. This type of design was also used in several of our cars last year, but this year it is being used extensively. By the term shrinking of the radiator is meant that the radiator is being slowly done away with, for in the 1939 automobiles, as many of you have no doubt observed, the radiator outlet is located at the very bottom of the radiator, between the two front fenders. This shifting of the outlet adds to the streamlining beauty of the modern automobile.

The 1939 cars have been designed and put together with all the precision one could desire. The modern car has been tested so that the engine will hold up under practically any force. The mechanisms of the present day automobile have been sufficiently worked, and there is no doubt but that it can take it. So if you're looking for a car which has been planned for safety, endurance and beauty, by all means see the cars of tomorrow.

300 Pupils Ride Bikes To School

Seventy-five Are Girls, 225 Are Boys; School Rules, Those Of Police Department Are Listed.

During the past few years there have been an increasing number of bicycles used for riding to and from school. This adds to the serious problem of traffic safety brought about by the motor car traffic.

In South Side High School there are approximately 300 students riding bicycles to school. About seventy-five of them are girls and 225 are boys.

Several general rules to follow in riding to and from school are as follows:

1. Observe the traffic signals. Stop at all stop streets and obey the overhead traffic lights.
2. Slow down for intersections even where there is no stop sign.
3. Ride single file and keep to the right.
4. Signal for turns.
5. Watch other traffic.
6. Bicycles should be equipped with reflector and light for riding after dark.

The above rules are issued by the police department of this city.

The school rules are as follows:

1. Watch carefully for traffic when entering or leaving the parking lots. Auto traffic near the school is always heaviest when the bicycle traffic is heavy. Stop before entering the street and signal when leaving the street.

Our City's Record For Low Death Rate Due To Efforts Of Sergeant Custer Dunifon

Until Fort Wayne's safety record was smashed last week, the entire nation was watching our progress; noticing it outwardly, but not realizing that behind our record stood one man. That man is Sergeant Custer A. Dunifon. Sergeant Dunifon has lived in Fort Wayne all his life, has attended and graduated from Harmar Grade School.

Sergeant Dunifon's first connection with the police force was as an officer on the state highway patrol squad. After working on the highway force for a time, he was transferred to motorcycle duty in this city. Through the motorcycle position he came into contact with traffic control. From then on, Sergeant Dunifon has progressed until now he is the Traffic Sergeant.

Enforce Plan

The only way our record has been established is through the plan enforced. This consists of stricter enforcement of laws. Through marking dangerous places on the highways and streets many fatal accidents have been avoided. Safety is also being taught in the schools of Fort Wayne to the pupils. Through the Parent-Teacher Association, parents and other adults have learned the rules of safety.

There are fourteen men under Sergeant Dunifon who are always ready to make safety speeches or enforce the law.

Maintain Large Staff

Safety that is taught in the schools of today is much improved. The fine record set, as an example, will prove that the safety taught today is much more beneficial to the student. One phase of these safety lessons are contests which interest the pupils to the point that they will obey the rules readily.

Safety assemblies are held in the schools often. In order that they may be more interesting, programs are planned and men chartered to speak. At our last safety assembly, an interesting point was a map of Allen county upon which a record of every accident is printed.

Eliminate Dangers

Every menace to society is slowly being eliminated. "However," Sergeant Dunifon stated, "the bicycle driven by boys and girls of school age are still a decided menace." Sergeant Dunifon asks that students observe the few following rules:

1. Never ride two on a bicycle.
2. Stop at all stop signs.
3. Stay to the right.
4. Observe all rules for automobiles, even if the bicycle is only a two-wheeled vehicle.
5. Observe overhead lights.
6. Have a headlight and taillight on your bicycle so that motorists will be able to detect you.
7. Never ride two bicycles abreast. It holds up other traffic.

We should be proud of the record our city has made. We should not only be proud enough to applaud, but proud enough to help keep it that way by walking, driving, and riding a bicycle carefully.

2. The boys' parking lot is at the southeast and the girls' parking lot is at the northeast.
3. Park as orderly as possible so that the other persons will have a chance to park.
4. Keep your bicycle locked.
5. Do not park your bicycle at school except on one of the lots provided for that purpose. Parking on private property or on sidewalks is definitely out of line.
6. Your registration card is good for one year. Carry it with you when riding to school.
7. Report losses or difficulties of parking to Mr. A. V. Flint.

Archers Express Various Thoughts About Word Safety

If somebody, perhaps unknown to you, walked up and asked you what you think of when the word safety is mentioned, what would you say? Maybe you think of an auto accident, of the home room program on safety, or of some other allied subject.

Several people were interviewed as to what their instant reaction was when the word safety was mentioned. No doubt the answers given by these people will give us a brief survey of the school's opinion on the meaning of the important little six letter word, safety.

Following are some instant reactions by students at the mention of the word safety:

Philip Schwartz: I think of safety on a rifle range.
June Enoch: I think of my conscience.

Marjorie Roberts: Automobiles.
Joe Loos Jr.: I think of always being careful.

Arlene Snider: I think of being careful at all times.
Pat Sanford: Automobiles.

Jim Brooks: The safe-keeping of a persons body at all times.
Betty Neeb: A small boy on a horse, and a corpse strung up on a tree.

Kenny Warren: Of the bore some safety lessons we have every Friday.
Marjorie McNabb: I don't know. My feelings are mingled.

Ralph Herb: I couldn't say. I think of too many things.
Martha Jean Smith: I don't know!

Bob Byers: Something calm, or dangerous.

These are some typical reactions. What would you say if some one asked you what the word safety means to you? Think that question over because we may ask you sometime.

Safer Roads Are Planned By Engineers

New Ones Built For Speed, Long Distance Travel; To Skirt Edges Of Towns.

Highways throughout the United States are being made safer through a campaign by safety engineers who realize that safety can be achieved by building good roads. The recent road building campaign has also been a help in relieving national unemployment.

Modern motor cars are way ahead of their time, according to most authorities on present day transportation. These experts claim that the modern automobile is built to travel on roads the like of which were not built until a year or so ago. These new roadways are for high speed, long distance travel, and are designed to skirt the edges of towns so that a steady stream of travel will not be broken.

Several of these modern roads have been constructed near New York, Chicago, and other large cities. Few of these roads have been constructed around Fort Wayne. However, the new road 24 to continue to Huntington in the future is an example of modern highway construction.

Route 24 is designed primarily for safety at fairly high speeds. This road is four lane with a drainage culvert separating the two lanes of travel. The middle basin is to keep all water from the highway. On other roads when the snow melts or when a heavy rain comes, the water often stands in the middle of the road obstructing regular travel and becoming a dangerous driving hazard.

Through highways through the middle of the town have been built in New York, also in some cities on the western coast. The San Francisco Exposition was the starting point for several big roads in California and other western states. These new roadways are expected to last for a long time and should save many lives in the course of a few years.

However, before a sharp decline in the national death rate will be noted more of these super-highways must be constructed.

Fort Wayne Sets New Record In Nation's Safety Observance

Now that Fort Wayne has exceeded the safety record of 125 days, set by Providence, Rhode Island, without a fatal accident, it is necessary to know the cause of this feat. Fort Wayne tried to reach this goal for many years. In 1937 Fort Wayne was first in the state and sixth in the nation.

A number of things have contributed to the success of this safety campaign. Many civic organizations have formed campaigns in the past few years to stamp out accidents, especially those which result in fatalities. The Safety Forum conducted by Clifford Ward of the News-Sentinel greatly promoted the thought of safety.

In the schools much has been done to forward safety. Grade schools have had safety patrols for a number of years, and the high school students are given a better opportunity to learn about safety through a new home room course in safety. Recently the safety patrols in the grade schools received white raincoats to wear in order that the other pupils would know which boy to watch for the signals. The coats are also easily seen by passing motorists so that they may watch for school children.

Contests were inaugurated to interest the students and motorists in safety. A sportsmanlike driving contest was sponsored last winter for the motorists of Fort Wayne. The object of the contest was to find the most sportsmanlike driver for each day during a certain specified time.

Safety contests in the public schools are again being sponsored this year. Certificates were given to each school last year whose students were never involved in an accident during the school year.

Since Fort Wayne has broken the record, everything is being done to prevent any more bloodshed, and to show that it can be done.

Improvements to the police department have aided this campaign. For the past several years, the police department has been equipped with a new safety car complete with radio devices; stop signals have been erected at the dangerous corners where accidents happened most frequently.

During Safety Conventions held at Indianapolis and Chicago, Fort Wayne was complimented on the safety record it has achieved. Representatives from Fort Wayne newspapers, The Journal-Gazette and The News-Sentinel, were present at the conventions.

Three Teach Industrial Arts In Curriculum

Woodworking And Turning, Designing, Architectural Drawings Are Included

Industrial Arts at South Side is an important subject and teaches many things. There are three teachers in the department, Mr. C. A. Bex, Mr. Joseph Plasket and Mr. Henry Chappell. The Industrial Arts semesters 1, 2, 3 and 4 are taught by Mr. Bex and Mr. Plasket. Mr. Chappell is in charge of the last four.

In the 9B, woodworking is taught. The boys in these classes learn to plane pieces of wood to a given size and learn to cut mortise and tenon joints in the piece. The project of this work is a piece of furniture, such as an end table, radio stool or bedside table. After the woodworking is done on the project, a finish that is like some of the best factory finishes is put on the project by the boys that made it. Most of the work is done with hand tools, some of which are: Hand planes, hand saws, chisels and drills.

Teach Woodworking
The 9A classes are taught to do woodturning and designing. At first, the boys learn the use of the different tools by doing exercises on the lathes. Then each boy designs his own lamp and turns it down on the lathe. At present the shop has ten lathes and three new ones are ordered. The tools which are used for woodturning are skewers, gouges, centers, parting tools and calipers. When the blades on the tools become dull, an electric grinder which is in the shop is used to get a sharp edge. There are several work benches on which the boys may work.

For 10A students, metal lathe, foundry, forge and sheet metal work are taught. The boys learn to lay their work out on sheet metal, cut it to the right shape, and solder and rivet it. Annealing, hardening and tempering of metal are taught. They also learn grinding, filing, and drilling. Electricity is also taught in this class. The boys learn to wire bells and batteries in parallel and series and to connect bells and buzzers. Amps and volts are studied. Hooking up water, light, gas and power meters are another part of the work. They learn how meters work and how to read them.

Order New Lathes
Much equipment is used in this work. At the present time, the department has two metal lathes and four new ones are ordered. There are furnaces for annealing, hardening and tempering, and four gas furnaces for soldering of sheet metal. For sheet metal work, the shop has stakes and bar folders for bending and folding the metal. Foot power sheet metal shears are used to cut the metal. There are many machines in the shop and a drill press, grinder, wiper and burrer and groover are some of these. The foundry contains four molding boxes which hold sand. A number of metal vices and also a number of hand tools are used for each activity.

10As Study Millwork
The 10A work is called millwork. This is almost the same as woodworking, but is done in the millroom by electric power machines. Each boy can make a big desk for his room or for some other purpose. The department has three rooms, the main room, finishing room, and the mill room. In the millroom, the equipment is a power saw, planer, band saw, and jointer. There are two power machines which may be set-up any place, the power roger which is a shaper, and a power sander. In the main room, the hand tool work is done, and in the finishing room a finish is put on the project.

Mechanical drawing is taught in Industrial Arts 5, 6, 7 and 8. A student is eligible for mechanical drawing if he has taken Industrial Arts, 1, 2, 3 and 4. Students who have taken two semesters of Industrial Arts may enter the classes, but it is desirable that the student has taken four semesters. A regular course of study which is to be followed is posted on a bulletin board for all students to follow. In these classes, there are two requirements, a minimum and a maximum one. The minimum one gives just a passing grade, while the maximum one gives special grades.

In these classes, the boys are taught to read blue print drawings and to make tracings, ink drawings, and bide prints. They also learn to make architectural drawings. For mechanical drawing, the tools furnished by the school are drawing boards, squares, triangles and scales. The school also furnishes texts, reference books, and blue prints. The only thing the students furnish are their pencils and the paper.

Names Are Discussed At Societas Romanas

"How the Roman People Were Named", was the topic of the second meeting of the Societas Romanas, held Thursday, October 20, in room 36. The topic was discussed by Phyllis Tyndall and her committee, which consisted of June Flaig, Reba Coppock, and Doris Carman.

Phyllis Tyndall talked on "Confusion of Names"; Reba Coppock's subject was "Praenomen, Nomen, and Cognomen Names"; June Flaig discussed "The Single, Double, and Triple Names"; and Doris Carman spoke on "Additional Names".

After the discussion of these topics, a contest was conducted called "I Am a Girl. What's My Name?" A knowledge of Latin was required in order to participate in the contest. June Flaig was the winner. Refreshments, consisting of cider and doughnuts, were served.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

The students in Mr. Chappell's architectural drawing classes are making tracings of their house plans. These tracings will be used to make blue prints.

In Mr. Makey's English classes these students have all of their work so far handed in and completed: David Pierce, Harold Brudl, Coleen Glentzer, Doris Miller, Violet Reiter, Richard Smith, Jack Snyder, Louis Swager, Betty Baker, Peggy Greaney, Raymond Harter, Bernice O'Brien, Ione Jean Tracht, and Richard Trotter.

Charles Conger is a new member of Miss Hutto's home room 61.

The results of the election of officers by ballot in Miss Mellen's home room follow: Robert Porter, chairman; Roy McKee, assistant chairman; and Richard Powers, secretary.

We know many people are interested in art, but who would guess that 1,600 people passed through the doors of the art room on Monday night?

Each member in Miss Mellen's home room has been assigned a date when they will be in charge of a program. Marjorie Morrison and Lois Munich have already taken charge of safety programs, and Winifred Myers and Robert Peters have had charge of social programs.

On a final test in Miss Pocock's English 8 classes over Romeo and Juliet, the following made the highest grades: Jack Bahlinger, Phyllis Lansborough, Kenneth Simmers, and Sarah Smeltzer.

Kirk Brown and Hilda Leininger won first and second places respectively in the contests open to Algebra 1 students of Miss Fiedler. These contests concerned linear equations.

The following people made 100 on a recent test given by Mrs. Carson to her Latin 1 pupils: Virginia Gray, Dorothy Heslip, Ellen Harry, Sally Hobbs, Gloria Kramer, Richard Markowitz, Patricia Smith, Janice Sprunger, Ruth Werkman, Carolyn Snoko, Lois Bloemker, and Marilyn Loomis.

The pupils in home room 32 have made at least half of their programs for next year.

In Miss Peek's English 1, period 6 class, Gene Auer, Glen Dager, Helen Galbreath, Noel Kline, Dorothy Klingel, Marvin Reynolds, Audrey Longsworth, Bernetto Margan, Don Raines, and Adrian Ramey have finished their 15 points for home reading.

Miss DeLancey's English 7, period 2 and period 6 classes have finished the study of Silas Marner and are beginning the study of Sohrab and Rustum as an introduction to the study of the epic.

On a weekly spelling lesson of 100 words, the following students received 100: Audrey Jefferies, Evelyn Koomler, Doris Reinking, and Virginia Schilder. They are members of Mr. Furst's clerical practice class.

Safford McMyler in Miss Oppelt's Latin 4, period 6, class made a replica of the ancient "Scorpio," a military engine used during the time of Julius Caesar, for throwing missiles.

Marilyn Emerich, John Craig, and Paul Wolford, all members of Miss Emma Kiefer's English 2 classes, have written A plus business letters.

"The Standard Bearer" has proved to be the most popular book to be reported on as a collateral reading book in Mrs. Carson's Latin classes.

In Miss Smith's dancing class, Peggy Harrod, Elaine Helms, Marjorie Hoyer, Virginia Anspach, and Betty Dibble are arranging a modern dance routine to the Valse Mystique.

In a recent vocabulary test given by Mrs. Carson to her Latin 4 pupils, Alice Volmerding made 100; Violet Steinbauer and Richard Fishing, 99; Evelyn Erickson, 98; and Margaret Sheefel, 98.

Kenneth Erne, of Miss Emma Kiefer's seventh period English class, memorized the last eighteen lines of Mathew Arnold's "Sohrab and Rustum" and recited them before the class.

In Miss Pocock's home room, Basil Thompson presented the social program last Wednesday.

Carol Whittner and Olive Miller in Mr. Cook's English 2 classes turned in perfect papers in a test on verbs. Others very close were, Jim Barrett, Betsy Ann Bohn, Joan Cartwright, Lois McLennan, and Alice Minser.

The boys in Mr. Chappell's mechanical drawing 7 class are making a drawing in orthographic projections, showing how the pipes are connected by fittings and valves in a water system.

The pupils in Mr. Moss' general history classes have been making special reports on the famous military leaders and wars of ancient Rome.

Mr. James Mills' Junior Business classes have finished studying the first of a series of merchandising. On a recent test, June Whalen and Kathrine Zaegel received 90 or above.

In Mr. Flint's sixth period geometry 2 class, the students are engaged in the study of areas. As a special assignment, they have learned something about the life of Pythagoras.

Winfield Buchan was elected president of Miss Dochterman's home room 77. Other students elected are Junior Braden, vice-president; Carlton Clem, program chairman; Jean Catlett, publicity chairman; and Robert Cummings, chairman of safety programs. Donald Burns, Virginia Fleming, Irene Bidwell, and Beauford Carper will serve on the program committee. Mrs. James Fleming will serve as home room mother assisted by Mrs. M. B. Catlett.

This week in Miss Mary Crowe's home room, Lorine Dicky arranged the programs for the first three days. One day the program was Government Service as a Vocation.

Herbert Thiele, formerly of Mr. Furst's home room, has been transferred to Miss Perkins' home room 90.

Recently in Miss Pocock's home room, Margaret Wittmer gave a talk on Manchester College as an example of a small college and its opportunities.

On a recent test in Miss Perkins' French 4 class, Joe Bex, Ruth Bade, and Dorothy Hall made grades of 90 or above.

In Mr. Whelan's physical geography 1 classes, a brief study of the solar system has just been completed. The study of rocks and minerals has been started. A film on this subject was shown to the classes, and the new type of dark curtains were used. These curtains enable films to be shown on the brightest of days.

The students in Miss Perkins' French class are writing diaries. Imagining that they are the boy in "Sans Famille," the story which they are reading, they are writing his diary for a week.

In an achievement test given to Mr. Russell Furst's commercial law classes, Lavon Schnapp, Caroline Schueler, and Doris McEwen received 100. The following people made 94 or above: Patty Lambrakis, Thelma Krauskopf, Robert Simmon, Wanda Brown, Gerald Carr, Marion Freichter, Ruthmary Riely, Virginia Selby, Shirley Sidle, Phyllis Fackler, Virgil Guebard, and Dorothy Oliver.

In Mr. Clyde Peirce's American history 2 classes, the students are studying Industrial Revolution and Labor Problems of the period following the Civil War.

In Mr. Paul Sidell's home room, Dick Olcott was selected chairman and Mary Jane Kelley vice-chairman.

The dancing classes of Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Dean are working out a dance to the melody of "Isle of Manakoor.".

Audrey Longworth is librarian for Miss Peek's English 1 period 6, class. She has charge of 30 books, from the Public Library, which she checks in and out. Evelyn Strunk, also of the same class, is the librarian for the remedial text books.

In Mrs. Welty's Latin 1 classes Romayne Rediger made 100 on a Latin vocabulary test.

Miss Emma Kiefer's senior English classes that are reading Chancer, heard reports recently on Canterbury Tales other than those included in their text. Janice Cross and Marjorie Craig reported on The Nun's Priest's Tale, Donna Lou Foutz and Margaret Wittmer on The Squire's Tale, and Roger Neff and Mary Jane Kelley on The Clerk's Tale.

Mrs. Carson's Latin 7 class has been enjoying some drawings of the character of the Aeneid which were made by Eugene Craig, a former pupil of Mrs. Carson.

Education Is One Division Of Red Cross

Miss Margaret Vesey Answers Many Questions On Welfare And Education

Have you ever heard of the department of education as a subdivision of the Red Cross? It is an institution that not only works in foreign countries and the United States in general, but it works right here in South Side high school.

Miss Margaret Vesey, secretary of Fort Wayne's Red Cross organization, upon being asked questions, gave the following answers on Red Cross welfare and educational work:

Create Special Fund

Where is Red Cross work carried on in foreign countries? "There are no special Red Cross schools in foreign countries, but there is a special fund that is used to help maintain schools here and abroad." Although much of the work carried on by the Red Cross is purely welfare, there are a few phases that pertain to education.

Are scrapbooks sent to foreign countries? "Yes, it is called international correspondence. For instance, if a pupil of South Side would care to make a scrapbook to send to a foreign country, all he would have to do is make it up and send to the Junior Red Cross headquarters. From there, it would be sent to Washington, D. C. It would undergo rigid inspection with special emphasis on the contents. There would have to be included three or four essays. From Washington it would be forwarded to the capital of the designated country, and there would be translated into the native tongue. It would then be sent to the school specified by the author."

Send Many Gifts

What else is done in the way of education for the United States and foreign countries? "We have our members make gifts to send to institutions for the sick and crippled. The Red Cross also sends books to mountain regions. If five or six books of one kind can be obtained, a whole school room may be supplied with books for a certain subject.

"The money that is left over from contributions of the members is used to establish schools and homes for parentless children in Spain at this time. There is a mission composed of Red Cross adult members in Spain now."

It must be agreed that the Red Cross is carrying on a great work.

Schools In Alaska Differ From Ours In Various Ways

John Warner, a sophomore B, left South Side last year to go to Alaska. He enrolled in the school there, and was a pupil in the high school for only six weeks as the school was dismissed on April 23. The pupils there attend school six days a week instead of five.

There were one hundred twenty-five students in the school with five teachers supervising the pupils. Latin, geometry, algebra, English, biology, industrial arts and typing are some of the subjects that are taught.

In the Alaskan schools there are no clubs. The only sports they have are basketball and baseball. The schools are so far away from each other that there is no chance for competition.

After school was dismissed for the season, John worked for the Conservation Corps. He helped in the construction of roads, fought forest fires, cleaned out forests of brush, and helped drain swamps.

Excellent Science Department Is Open To Archer Students

At South Side, the Science Department has many branches. There are Physics, Chemistry, Biology, Botany and Physical Geography classes. Mr. Louie Hull, Mr. Ward Gilbert, Mr. Albert Heine, Mr. Elma Gould and Mr. Lloyd Whelan are the teachers in this department.

Botany, which is taught by Mr. Elma Gould, is a study of plant life. The students bring leaves, fruit seeds and flowers to class and study their structure. Bacteria, roots and stems are also studied by the students. The pupils in the classes study laboratory outlines and other recitation outlines. Samples of different kinds of soil are brought in and studied by the pupils.

Use Much Equipment

The Botany Department has much equipment. A lantern which shows slides and pictures is used. For studying of small life, there are twenty-six microscopes. This department has a greenhouse containing 50 different kinds of plants. A library that contains about 100 books is owned by the Botany Department. Some of the books belong to Mr. Elma Gould and some to the school. The department also has models of two types of stems; and glass and rubber tubing for use in the laboratory.

Chemistry is taught by Mr. Ward Gilbert. This is a study of the characteristics of the elements of simple substances. All kinds of chemicals are used in this department and many kinds of devices for testing with chemicals and studying substances are used:

Mr. Lloyd Whelan teaches the Physical Geography. This is study of rocks of all kinds, streams of rivers, erosion and the weather. All the conditions of the land are studied. This department has contour and many other kinds of maps, and a large globe of the world. For the study of the weather conditions, there are a barometer and a thermometer.

Biology is taught by Mr. Albert Heine. This is chiefly a study of animals and insects; but some plant life is taught. This department has specimens of small animals. Three microscopes are used in the biology room. A collection of insects is required from each student.

Hull Teaches Physics

Mr. Louis Hall teaches physics. This is a science that deals with matter and energy. Some of the things studied in physics are electricity, heat, magnetism, sound and light. Machines such as pulleys, wheels and axels are studied. There is much apparatus used for each of these forms taught, and for every-thing studied there are many different kinds of apparatus used.

Public Speaking Class Winners Are Named

Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke has announced the winners of her public speaking class contests.

For October 6 the winners are as follows: period one, Allison Arnold; period two, a tie, Bill Bundy and Max Kimble; period three, Ed Reeves; period five, Edgar Kettler; period six, a tie, Tom Gallmeyer and Dorothea Gardner.

October 11 winners were, period one, Jeanne Gumper; period two, Carl Goebel; period three, Charles Will; period five, Max Kimble; period seven, James Murphy.

On October 13 the winners were, period one, Carl Goebel; period two, Tom Gallmeyer; period three, Edgar Kettler; period five, Dorothea Gardner and George Finkhausen; period six, Doris Williams.

Night Class Begins

The night manual training class is beginning its second semester this year. Thirteen men have enrolled so far. The class meets each Monday and Friday from 7 to 9 o'clock. The course is being held for twelve weeks and the student pays three dollars for the course. It is part of the vocational night school that is held at Central High School and is being held in room 43 at South Side. The men are doing the work not to learn a trade but as a pastime.

Student Injures Hand

Etheldrea Behling, a freshman, accidentally injured her finger while playing speedball last Tuesday. She tried to catch the ball when it knocked her finger out of place. She used it afterwards and tore the ligaments. Miss Martha Pittenger put it in a temporary splint.

Peace Promotion Is Greatest Desire Of American Youth

People Happy About Coming Of War Truce

Cheerful Incidents Happen On Streets; Parades Are Led By Girls' Drum Corps

Words of peace echoed and re-echoed through the streets of this city and many others. These words were like a quiet spell after a thunder storm.

In this city on November 7, 1918, when the first word of peace had been received several ways of celebrating the good news were carried out.

Fort Wayne's celebration of the actual signing of the peace document on November 11 was but an anti-climax to the wild rejoicing and enthusiasm which greeted the false report of peace.

A few minutes after the receiving of the good news, the city was resounding to the clarion call and the roar and screaming of hundreds of shop whistles and bells. The newspaper offices were filled with eager people who wished to get more details than those printed in the paper. Masses of people filled the streets, and soon the assistance of the police force was necessary. All of the downtown stores closed their doors so that the employees could join in the great celebration. Flags were hung from all of the stores down town.

A happy sight occurred at the corner of Berry and Court streets. A group of old men embraced each other, hurried at the top of their voices, and began dancing a horn-pipe.

A parade, headed by a girls' drum corps, followed by a large band of noise makers, marched through the downtown district. This parade was composed of men, women, and children. Many men were busy at their work when the news came. They dropped what they were doing so that they might join in the celebration. A delegation of workmen marched through the town carrying a black casket bearing the name of William Hohenzollern.

This hilarity was something like the celebration of the victory of South Side when it was awarded the title of state champs.

Enthusiastic celebrators dragged through the downtown streets the cannon which had been captured by the Americans at Chateau Thierry. Fire trucks carrying brass bands glided through the streets.

These are but a few of the many ways the inhabitants of this city greeted our armistice.

World Peace Will Balance Scales Of Life

Country Needs More Men Like Those Who Never Returned; Is Great Loss.

Do we want another war? A news commentator recently presented the situation. "If we don't want to see injured men who fought in wars, if we don't want to see crying mothers, big war debts, hundreds of white crosses row on row, and millions of dollars of destroyed property we want peace, not war."

On our scales of life we find that on the lightest side are the gains of war. On the heaviest side stand the loss caused from bloody battles—losses in lives, property, and unmaterIALIZED dreams.

When the cold facts are laid before us, we find that the war expenditures of the United States alone amounted to $22,625,252,843 + 9,998,771 known dead and 2,991,800 presumed dead. Do the scales balance? Each man was valuable to his country. This country needs men like those who never returned. Who knows, perhaps some of these soldiers could have been great scientists, doctors, or inventors.

They died to make the world safe for the people of tomorrow, for the you and me of today. Was this great loss really worth the gains we received?

It is our duty to make and preserve world peace. We must make tomorrow safe for the coming generations, but we must do it by peaceful means.

If we can make world peace and preserve it, we will balance the scales of life and make up for the great loss.

Their Spirit Marches On

Unknown Soldier Nationally Known

Deeds Of Bravery, Victory Will Live On Through Ages; Memorial Monuments Erected.

Although his face is unknown, his deeds of bravery and victory will live on through the ages. Such words apply strongly to the Unknown Soldier, one of the most honored and talked about men of this nation.

Shortly after the finish of the great war, an idea of marking each grave with a small white wooden cross was conceived and carried out quite extensively. Later many elaborate monuments were erected to the memory of some famous general or statesman.

Britain, France Are First

First England and France had their Unknown Soldiers. These countries made the Unknown Soldier the symbol of national glory and of national mourning.

On Armistice Day in 1920 the body of an unknown soldier was borne through the streets of Paris and taken to the Arc de Triomphe. On the same day in England an unidentified soldier's body was taken to Westminster Abbey and there buried.

In October of 1920 General Pershing put the Congressional Medal of Honor, one of the highest military honors, on the graves of the Unknown Soldiers of England and France.

America saw the manner in which these other countries were honoring some unknown soldier and decided to have a similar memorial. An unknown soldier, found on a battle field, was taken across the ocean to the United States. His body was put in a tomb in Arlington. Later a shrine was built near the tomb. A great ceremony in which Presidents Harding, Taft, Coolidge, and Wilson gave addresses, was held.

Tribute To Democracy

This memorial is the world's tribute to democracy. Every year the grave of our Unknown Soldier is honored by many Americans and representatives from other countries.

As long as generations exist there will be an Unknown Soldier, a soldier who gave his life for his country. With due honor to him and the multitude of other soldiers who died we must prove that those who died did not die in vain.

Travel Club Members Give Talks On Siberia

At yesterday's meeting of the Travel Club, "Siberia" was the topic. The educational part of the program featured talks by various members of the club. Reva Foster gave a talk on the size and location of Siberia; Ruth Bade discussed the physical features; Irene Schultz discussed the people of Siberia.

After the educational part of the program was completed, Rosella Foutz gave a tap dance, accompanied by her sister, Donna Lou Foutz, on the accordion.

The program was concluded with the serving of refreshments, which consisted of potato chips and corn candy. The next meeting of Travel Club will be held in the Greeley Room on November 16.

The spirits of the boys of '17 are still marching on! What would they think if they could see the present state of world affairs? How would they feel to see their work, their hopes, their dreams come to this? They fought a good fight. They fought for what they thought was right. But was it worth it? Was the bloodshed, the hate, the loss of life worth the result they got? If only they could speak to us! What would they say? What could they say? Would they tell us to "keep hands off the European affair"? In all probability they would say, "Yes."

They gave their lives, man's greatest treasure, that we might have a land worth living in. Why should we throw away all they have fought for?

Their spirits are trying to tell us to appreciate what they obtained for us. The glorious, free, triumphant spirits of men of a former day are the figures marching onward. How proudly they tell us of their feats and their accomplishments in the war they fought. How sadly they tell us of the sacrifice, the crushed hopes, and the crushed bodies of their buddies. A smile and then a shadow crosses each ghostly face. "Don't attempt another war! Don't relinquish what we fought so hard to obtain!" Will we grant that request?

THE TRAMPING FEET

Tramp, tramp, tramp,
Listen to the tramp of feet
How often must they repeat?
They're going out to meet the foe.
A prayer is offered as they go.
How many will return tomorrow?
How many heads will be bowed in sorrow

There is no answer, no one knows,
As louder, louder, that tramping grows.

There Are Worthy Things Not Known About Near Holiday

Flags waving, parades booming along the streets, people cheering, and bands playing in memory of our World War buddies. On the more solemn side are the Unknown Soldier's tomb, the thousands upon thousands of crosses in Flanders' Field, people who take flowers to Arlington cemetery, and Poppy Day. Everyone of these things is familiar to us, and we know what each stands for. But here are a few things that you may not know about our Armistice Day celebration.

Do you know: That on November 11, 1928, the tenth anniversary of Armistice, Premier Mussolini sent a message to King Victor Emmanuel? Mussolini stated his profound respect for the King and sent the deepest sentiments of the fascist government.

That a great parade took place in Rome the same day in the year 1928?

That Armistice Day is a holiday by law in twenty-three states and in most of the others it is declared by the governor?

That the Armistice is proclaimed every year in Indiana by the governor.

A reporter for the Evening Star in Washington, D. C., gave the following vivid sketch of the unveiling of the Unknown Soldier's tomb: "Over 15,000 people passed the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. They passed four abreast at the rate of eighty-five per minute. A negro woman dropped her dahlias on the great wreath sent by King George of Great Britain. An Italian bootblack laid a bouquet beside a laurel wreath sent by the president

New Campaign Of Fifty Cents To Be Started

Times Conducts Usual Mid-semester Feat For Benefit Of All Late Subscribers.

Wednesday night a room agents meeting, held in room 16 at 3:30, started The Times fifty-cent campaign. This drive will continue for several weeks.

Every year at this time South Side's publication begins a campaign designed to get subscriptions from students who did not subscribe during the earlier campaign.

Need More Subscriptions

It is expected that several more agents will have one hundred percent rooms because of this fifty-cent drive. A number of agents need only a few more subscriptions to attain a one hundred percent room.

A total of $198.21 is owed on subscriptions at the present time. The time for all this money to be in is November 18, the date on which all promissory notes come due. Everyone who subscribes during the fifty cent campaign must pay cash for their subscriptions.

Trophy In Balance

The entire circulation staff is working to collect as much of this money as possible, because the winner of the cup awarded to either South Side or North Side for the highest percentage of subscriptions may lie on the number of people who pay their promissory notes.

The six books, their agents, and the total amount they owe are as follows:

Book	Assistant	Amount
1	Beverly Griffith	$23.35
2	Marjorie McNabb	44.25
3	Lucy Smith	28.20
4	Maurine Seibert	36.76
5	Rebecca Abbott	45.30
6	Emilou Allendorph	20.35

THE CROSS

A cross stands lonely on a hill,
And all around the blackbirds shrill.
What lies beneath that mound of dirt?
A man who was scorned and hurt.
A man who fought a war and lost.
No one will know that battle cost.
Not in money, not in land,
Not in praise, nor in tombstones grand.
But in spirits crushed, unmelded,
And in cries from many rended.
That lonely cross is standing there.
Up, upon the hilltop bare.
It is not beautiful—that cross.

Nation's Foundation Depends On Schools

asked me to speak to you upon various occasions, that you have asked me to write this and similar articles for your newspaper, and the fact that you have likewise called upon other public officials and toured governmental institutions, indicate that you have more than a passing interest in government and citizenship. This, too, is as it should be. I am particularly pleased at the interest you have shown in your local city government. After all, a state and nation can never rise above the average character of their local governments. Since approximately two-thirds of the population of the United States is urban, city government can well become the grade school in which the art of self-government can be successfully taught and extended to state and nation.

And good city government depends not alone upon able officials and employees and efficient management, but equally as well upon the intelligent and active interest of the citizens themselves in their government.

Religion Is Important

Next to a person's family, his church, his business, if he is working, or his school, if he is a student as you are, his local government should be his first concern. The municipal affairs are worthy of the services and interest of the best citizens in the community and especially the youth.

Another of the fine results of education is the amount of self-discipline that is necessarily acquired by anyone who really puts forth the effort necessary to acquire an education. Unfortunately, not all who go to high school or even to college become educated largely for the simple reason that they are not willing to make the sacrifices and pay the price in individual effort required. After all, I believe there is a definite connection between self-government in the nation and the government of self in the individual. It is my belief that self-government in the nation is not endangered so long as the United States is made up of citizens who know how to govern themselves; who will neither bargain with corruption nor compromise with their conscience.

System Fulfills Hopes

Our educational system is fulfilling a splendid function when those principles of self-government are instilled in the individual.

I cannot let the occasion pass without congratulating you upon the splendid school system in Fort Wayne. A recent national survey gave Fort Wayne favorable ranking for exceptionally good schools—a ranking in which we all take great pride.

Laborers Get New Schedule For Working

Wage-Hour Bill Undertakes Problems Of Employers; To Reduce Child Labor

In hundreds of mills and factories engaged in interstate commerce throughout the United States on October 24, a new schedule swung into action controlling the wages and hours of around one million people. Thousands of workers found that their weekly hours of work were shortened. Thousands found that they would receive a slight increase in their weekly pay envelopes. Again thousands of children under 16 who have been employed in certain occupations find that they will have to give up their jobs.

This law has three outstanding aims. First, it undertakes to set a minimum wage in certain industries. Second, it places a limitation on the number of hours which may be worked. Its third purpose is to reduce to a minimum the employment of children.

No one expects the law to solve all of our labor problems, but it is hoped that it will help a large number of lowest paid workers. The higher paid workers being expected to help themselves through labor unions.

The law declares that no industry covered by it will be expected to pay its workers less than 25 cents an hour nor shall it work them more than 44 hours a week. This means $11 for the lowest paid worker. During the next seven years the standards will be raised until the minimum wage will be 40 cents an hour and a 40-hour week. Thus in 1945 the lowest paid worker in the textile, lumber, brick, tile, cement, leather, construction industries and public utilities will receive $16 and work 40 hours a week.

In passing the law congress saw to it that the steps to the higher standard would be reasonable, and that in different industries the law will be applied differently. A special committee will be appointed by Elmer F. Andrews for each industry and they will decide how much it can stand.

The success or failure of the law is in the committee's and Mr. Andrews' hands to a large extent.

The law will try to stamp out child labor in the larger industries. It will permit children to work only in part-time jobs, such as news boys and messengers. The law does not apply to child actors in the movies or to children working for their parents unless they are working in the manufacturing or mining industries.

The wage-and-hour act is one of the most important pieces of legislation in recent years.

In the eyes of its supporters it is a landmark in the long struggle for better working conditions. And in the eyes of its opponents, it is a violation of the freedom of employers. To them it is government control in business.

Patent Office Gets Strange Inventions

Numerous Devices For Prevention Of Accidents In Home And On Highways Are Given.

Numerous inventions for the prevention of accidents both on the highway and in the home have been submitted to the United States Patent Office at Washington, D. C.

A great many of these ideas sent in by wistful inventors have been on the humorous side, and it is these that I shall deal with. One inventor had a sure-fire method to cure all auto accidents. The plan of this man was to build light steel rails on the top of a car, running both ways on the vehicle. In case of a collision, the cars were supposed to go one over the other via the rails. However, if this were to work, the cars would have to be traveling in exactly correct lines or the rails would not be effective. The inventor left it up to the intelligence of the drivers to hit another car in the correct place.

Another idea to lower the accident rate in the home is to have a tunnel from every room in a home. In case of fire, residents in the building were supposed to slide out of the burning house through these tubes.

Elevators to run up and down the present steps have also been suggested by inventors to keep people from falling down flights of stairs. This master mind also believed that if there were no stairs nobody could fall down them, so he advocated the abolition of stairs. It is true that if only bungalows were constructed there would be no stairs, and no one would fall down stairs.

These are only a few of the many inventions on file in Washington that deal with safety in the home. However, it can readily be seen that very few of those ideas would be at all successful in the prevention of accidents.

Yet there is a great need for safety in the home. Although it is not believed by the majority of people, the home is a very dangerous place. The only way to be safe in the home is to remember to be careful all of the time.

Today's Students Must Bear Civic Responsibilities, Burdens Of To-morrow, Says Principal

By Mr. R. Nelson Snider

The theme of this year's American Education Week, "Education for Tomorrow's America," presents no startlingly new idea, but it does serve to call attention to the fact that the purpose of the public school is to prepare citizens to participate in the activities of their tomorrows. Schools are established and maintained by the State in order to perpetuate and improve itself. Because the entire community is, or should be, interested in the educative process the American Education Week is stressed in order that more people may observe and evaluate the activities of the state agency, the schools.

Educative Phases Considered

Various phases of the educative process are considered on succeeding days of this week. On Monday our attention is called particularly to the matter of developing strong bodies and able minds. The progress of the schools in the field of physical education and health work since the World War has been amazing, but as yet we have made but a beginning. With six million men, women, and children each day unable to pursue their regular course of activities because of illness or injury, we certainly have much yet to learn. We have made great strides in curbing infant mortality, but much information is yet to be taught and learned before we can reach a condition where the serious drain on efficiency caused by illness and injury can be properly curtailed. Unquestionably able minds usually go with strong bodies, and additional training must be given boys and girls in their school rooms if we hope to improve the situation where one person of each one hundred twenty is in a hospital bed.

On Tuesday we are to consider the mastery of skills and knowledge. This has always been a fundamental purpose of the instruction in a good school but our concepts of methods and procedure have changed in the last few decades. We know that many skills and much knowledge are acquired in the home, the church, and the community outside the schools. For that reason every modern school attempts to correlate the activities of the whole life of the student and tries to cooperate with all of the agencies of the community.

Proper Appreciation Needed

No training would be complete without a proper appreciation of standards and values, and this subject is considered this week. Although hard to define in some phases of activity, there must be well recognized standards of behavior, and there must be a proper evaluation of the many details of life which confront each person. The school has to accept part of the responsibility for teaching, and putting into practice, the right standards of conduct, and for training in evaluation.

In many countries freedom is just something to read about, and not something which the individual can enjoy. In no other country, at any time or place, has the individual enjoyed as much freedom and liberty as we have in the United States. Now when concerted drives are being made upon liberty of thought, action, speech, religion, and the press in countless corners of the world we must redouble our efforts to train our young people in the ideals and benefits of the freedom which we enjoy. Probably the greatest task which the school can accomplish is this, that all young people will leave our doors convinced that freedom for the individual must be preserved.

Organized Girls' Team

Our new entry from Concordia, Robert Annewer, organized the Packard Playground Girls' Team. Bob did right well with this aggregation, too, for his charges were undefeated in 10 games.

To Arrange Programs

Mr. Paul Sidell

Mr. Paul Sidell has been appointed chairman of a committee to arrange the series of safety programs dramatized over the new loud speaker system every Friday morning during home room period.

Other members of this committee are Miss Lucy Osborne, Miss Amanda Hemmer, and Mr. Maurice Cook. These short dialogues are written by members of the English classes. The programs are designed to last from three to eight minutes.

R. Nelson Snider

Activities Develop Valuable Factors Of Good Conduct

In the school of yesterday the students weren't benefitted with the privilege of extra-curricular activities as we of today are, for they attended classes and then usually went home to work or do anything else to pass the time away. But now, instead of going home immediately, we stay and attend our various club meetings and participate in other extra-curricular activities.

Extra-curricular work is the best benefit which the modern student has, for it enables him to spend his spare time for a profitable purpose. In many schools there are still no organizations or pastimes for the student, but, instead, many of the students in this type of school pass away their time by running the streets, gambling, and other means of degeneration of the modern youth.

Contrast this type of school with South Side and you immediately see the head start which we have in the building up of the minds and characters of the youth of today. Instead of being the idle youth, we of South Side are the ideal youth.

Another way in which extra-curricular work develops the student is the part which it plays in the future life of the individual. Most boys and girls have some idea of what they intend to do in the future and many of the clubs in South Side help to further one's knowledge of his particular ambition.

Extra-curricular work gives one more responsibility and dependability than can be derived from the required curricula. In all clubs there are officers and committees on whom the club depends for their success. The officers and committees have great responsibilities which they must perform to make the club continue and progress. Another phase of extra-curricular work which works in with the officers of the clubs is that of cooperation. Cooperation is one of the many keys to success. To succeed in any business enterprise where other persons are involved, one must be able to work with others.

Mr. A. Verne Flint Is Helpful Assistant To Confused Studes

"The purpose of the school is to educate boys and girls, and my purpose in being here is to adjust the students to their surroundings and to everyday activities," stated Mr. A. Verne Flint. "There has been some misunderstanding as to the work accomplished in this office; it is not merely vocational guidance work, but work with many other problems also."

"In a course of a day 50 per cent of my time is spent dealing with educational guidance work by having discussions with people concerning educational plans for the future, 40 percent of my time is spent on social problems, and 10 per cent is spent on vocational guidance work."

When students are interviewed, they are given pamphlets informing them in greater detail about their choice of occupation. By obtaining personal data on the students, many interesting facts are learned whereby Mr. A. Verne Flint is able to instruct them as to what subjects to take or whether they should join any particular club which trains them for their desired work.

Besides this responsibility, Mr. Flint, as director, is responsible for the preparation of the home room programs, takes care of all new students who enroll in this school, and has contact with the homes. In concluding, Mr. A. Verne Flint said, that eleven girls are employed in his office, and that it was excellent training for all of them.

Army, Navy Have Few Requirements

Boys Need Not Have High School Education To Join Either; Must Be 18 Years Old.

If you're thinking of joining the Army or Navy when you graduate from high school, perhaps you would like to know something about what you are getting into. There are no special qualifications as to education, but a boy must be at least eighteen years of age and must make a high rating on the physical examination. The examination of eyes is more strict for the Navy than for the Army. There is no mental examination for either service. Naval training stations are located on the Great Lakes and in Norfolk, Virginia. At these schools, the boys, if they cannot already swim, are taught how to. They are also drilled and taught discipline.

Many Advantages

There are many advantages of joining the Navy. A home is given to boys who have no home or who have run away. Education is given to those who have not finished high school and who desire more. Boys who are not used to discipline or who will not obey orders are taught it through constant drilling. When a boy leaves the Navy he is older and more learned. The excellent training offered him by the Navy enables him to receive a good job more quickly.

If one enters as a private, there is no chance for him to go farther than a chief petty officer. The only disadvantage results from one becoming so accustomed to discipline when in training, that upon graduating, he will not possibly be sufficiently able to manage his own affairs.

Requirements Almost Same

Qualifications for the Army are not much different from those of the Navy. It is, however, necessary that the youth pass a physical examination. If he does not wish to advance farther than a Sergeant, he need not have special education. However, if advancement is preferred, the boy's schooling must have been completed and an examination taken to enter West Point. The number entering West Point Academy is limited. Through this education, the young man may become a commissioned officer.

Through entrance into the Army, a boy is furnished a home, food, clothing and pay. Though the pay is not very high, the training is good.

Such order and discipline as is offered in these services is profitable for any untrained man.

Reporter Finds Joy Exchanging Letters With Chinese Girls

Correspondence with two Chinese students has been a privilege which Carol Whittier has enjoyed since March of this year. It all started when Mr. H. S. Young, who is connected with the Y. M. C. A. of China and came to the United States as a representative of that organization, displayed his photograph album which contained a picture of his daughter, Phoebe, aged 16, who attends Shanghai Municipal Council's Secondary School for Chinese Girls, and one of his god-daughter, Irene Y. Z. Lee, aged 14, who is now attending Wenchow Middle School, Wenchow, Chekiang, China.

It is interesting to note how similar the schools and clubs of China are to our own. In Phoebe's letter she listed her subjects.

"I am studying in the Shanghai Municipal Council's Secondary School for Chinese Girls. My mother is the Headmistress of the school. I am in the Senior I Lower, and also a Girl Scout and I enjoy my work very much in this organization. We have Chinese, English, algebra, geometry, biology, Chinese history, Chinese geography, hygiene, singing and physical training. How many subjects do you take? I heard that you don't have so many as we have."

"I am in the school volleyball team. This season we play against five different teams in the Foreign Y.M.C.A. There are five foreign teams and the Chinese have only two. We won three games out of five. This Saturday we are going to play against 'Adesi Whites' for the last time." (This letter was written on April 4, 1938). "I am very fond of volleyball, baseball and basketball, but I like baseball the best of all."

"We are now having the Spring Vacation which lasts only nine days. This year we can't go anywhere for there is such fierce fighting around here."

Irene explained that due to the advancing frontier of the war between China and Japan their family was forced to move. She now attends the aforementioned school.

"Since July 7, last year, the war broke out in my country. My home left Wenchow and removed to Sung Yung, because in Wenchow, the Japanese airplanes used to send us many bombs. But I never afraid of that, even that strengthened my mind that we can win the last victory."

Irene's letter is more descriptive than Phoebe's. She describes her home, Sung Yung, which is situated in the west part of China, as "an old and simple city, very small but full of beautiful scenery."

Their letters were written in excellent English. Their handwriting is extremely legible for one foreign in this country and used to forming the Chinese characters.

Renowned Historian Is Guest Of Former History Teacher During Teachers' Convention

By Dorothy Gore

Mr. Fremont P. Wirth, author of one of our history text books entitled Development of America, was the guest of Mr. Maurice Murphy, during teachers' convention.

Mr. Wirth said that it had taken him really twenty years to collect material for the book. For twenty years he has been a teacher of methods of teaching history. He has taught high school in Illinois, Minnesota, and in Tennessee. After these years of compiling material, Mr. Wirth started the actual writing of the book. Two and one-half years were devoted to the writing of the text book.

"I met Mr. Murphy at the University of Illinois. I was taking economics and Mr. Murphy happened to be my teacher," replied Mr. Wirth when he was asked how he met Mr. Murphy.

Tells About Life

When asked to tell a little about his life, Mr. Wirth told the following. "I was born near Waterloo, Illinois, and was educated in the schools of St. Clair County. I also attended the Illinois State Normal School, University of Illinois, and the University of Chicago."

Among his other books come a History of American Progress, Discovery and Exploitation of the Minnesota Iron Lands, Teachers' Manual, and a Workbook for Citizenship. "I think South Side is a fine school. I was very much impressed with the fine arrangement of the social science rooms. The tables and chairs instead of the usual desks makes the room an ideal workroom and laboratory" was Mr. Wirth's answer when asked his opinion of the school.

Admires His Teachers

When Mr. Wirth was a school boy, he admired his teachers and decided that he too wanted to become a teacher.

Those students who are using his text books can readily see the improvements over the old text. The following information concerning the text was given by Mr. Wirth.

"The Development of America is widely used in northern states. Everywhere it has received praise for its fairness, its interesting style, and its teachableness."

Attacks Are Baseless

"The attacks made on it recently are either based on gross ignorance of American history or on wilful misrepresentation. The best answer to any and all charges against it is found in the book itself. Those who say there is no picture of Lincoln in it have not taken the trouble to look at the book. There are pictures of Lincoln."

"The Gettysburg Address is not usually included in history textbooks. Of twenty high school text books in American history examined, only two have it, one in the appendix, while the other gives it as an example of American literature. It is usually found in books on American literature. It is found in the literature books adopted by the Indiana State Board of Education."

Should Be Americans

"The Indiana boys and girls should not be educated as Northerners with hatred for the South. It is more desirable to educate them as Americans with love for the whole Union, not only part of the Union. Real American patriotism does not foster sectional hatreds. Those interested in stirring up such hatred should remember the words of U. S. Grant, who said, 'Let us have peace.'"

South Side was bestowed quite an honor because Mr. Wirth visited the building last Thursday. He gave an address at the teachers' convention at the Shrine auditorium.

Health Department Is Aid To Archers

Teaches Students Location, Use, Care, Mechanism Of Parts Of Body; Promote Healthfulness.

What is taught in health that is of benefit to the pupil? This is a question that probably has been in the minds of most of you at some time.

Since the state feels that health is important enough to study in school, teachers teach the things that are practical and useful. The course in health is designed to benefit the student. If people are to have good health and keep well, they must first know something about their bodies. They should have some knowledge of the parts of the body, as to location, mechanism, use and care. This will help them to understand just what they have to work with and the best and most proper way in which to do it. These facts will be of value at the present time as well as later years in life.

In order to take care of an automobile, one must understand its mechanism quite thoroughly. The same is true with ourselves. Health is an important factor if a person is to do his best, be happy, and be a good citizen. Therefore this is a reason that health is of benefit to the pupil.

The first aid which is taught benefits the student in an emergency. He will be able to meet the situation calmly and know the right treatment. Of course, this is only for minor accidents.

Also in some classes, students become acquainted with health projects in their community and learn to cooperate with the Board of Health. One thing, for instance, is the water supply in Fort Wayne, and another is advertisements on food articles, whether they are as good as they are advertised or not. So, all that is taught in health is practical and are facts that one should know now and all through life.

Laws To Affect Archer Pupils On Graduation

Most Important Legislation On Child Labor, Social Security, Unemployment.

First Is Effective In State Of Indiana

Congress Enacts Second In 1936; Another State Statute Is Compensation.

Of the recent legislation enacted by congress and the Indiana general assembly many new laws will affect South Side students when they graduate. Among the most important are the Social Security, Child Labor, and Unemployment Compensation laws.

The Social Security is really a system whereby employees and their employers pay into a fund that provides for unemployment insurance and old age pension. It is a federal law which was enacted January 1, 1936, by congress, and is under the direct jurisdiction of the state. It is restricted, however, to companies or organizations who employ eight or more persons.

The Child Labor law is effective as a state law in Indiana. It is a proposed amendment to the constitution; it is not a federal law except for certain restrictions regarding it which are included in the recently enacted Wage and Hour law. The most important stipulations are (1) Children under fourteen years of age shall do no work except caddyng, farm labor, or domestic service; sixteen and under, it is necessary to get a work permit, and there are certain types of work which they are prohibited from doing, and women under eighteen must not do certain types of machine work.

Unemployment Compensation is allotted to persons who have been formerly employed at the third week of their unemployment. The maximum compensation is fifteen dollars, and it is awarded by a percentage system. It is a state law, and the compensation under this law may not be received for more than fifteen consecutive weeks.

Training Is Gained In C. C. C. Camps

Supervised Recreation Is Part Of Daily Program; Camps Are Militaristically Organized

Civilian Conservation Corps were established by the government to provide employment for unemployed young men and to engage them in worthwhile work. The principal advantages to be gained are those of the physical training variety. The men are on routine schedules and get well-balanced meals. Supervised recreation is a part of the daily program. Only a small amount of schooling is given. Much of the time is given over to agricultural work, checking erosion or planting trees; also state jobs, such as building new fish hatcheries and working in state parks.

Their salary is thirty dollars per month, out of which they must send twenty dollars home. They are allowed to keep the balance for their own use. The camps are militaristic in organization, and military officers are in charge. The men live in barracks. In these camps they have a chance to develop good habits, such as cleanliness, regularity, and neatness. Thus these young men are kept off the streets, and instead of being idle, their minds and bodies are alert. There is no doubt but that this training lends itself to the development of good American citizens.

Sophomore Spends Vacation In Alaska

John Warner Lives Six Months In Anchorage, Alaska; Plans To Correspond With Friends.

John Warner, a sophomore, spent an interesting six months in a small town, Anchorage, Alaska. He left last March and returned home on September 10, by way of Seattle through Minneapolis to Fort Wayne.

While he was in Anchorage, he made many friends and is planning to correspond with them. When questioned about the clothes worn by the natives he said: "The clothes are similar to those worn in the United States, but they are much more expensive."

Also he said that the schools differed very little from those in this country, but, of course, they are much smaller there. The school John attended had 110 pupils.

During his leisure time, he went fishing and hunting. Here he stated, "I learned the art of spearing salmon, catching trout and hunting rabbits."

John also spent part of his time working in a C.C.C. camp. There he experienced many interesting types of work. He dug ditches, helped to build roads and fought forest fires.

When asked if he would like to make Alaska his permanent home, he quickly replied, "Oh no, there is nothing to do in the winter time."

Much Change Will Be Seen In Men's Style

Masculine Wearing Apparel Will Display Bright Colors In Shirts And Gloves

Suede Will Hold Full Swing This Year; Shirt Will Be Made For Style Warmth

Women's styles are changing all the time, every season brings new styles. But that doesn't mean that men's styles don't change also, for during the past year and the coming year there has been and will be as much change in men's wearing apparel as in that of the women.

Heretofore it was common for the men to stick to dark colors and let the women wear the bright shades, but no longer is this so because during the coming year men will be wearing clothes twice as gaudy as those worn by the women. Men's apparel is bright throughout now, for suits, shirts, shoes, hats, gloves, ties, and even tie pins are adopting gay shades of red, green, blue, and almost every color possible.

Sport Gay Colors

Many of our own Archers are sporting these gay colors this year in their assorted wardrobe. A popular color here at South Side of course is green and white. Several of our Archer lads in keeping with the school spirit are flashing green corduroy hats with white feathers cleverly placed in the brim of the hat band. This type of hat is not only smart but it also is practical, for it keeps the wearer's head as warm as toast on the coldest wintry day. In case you haven't seen one of these gay numbers they are broad-rimmed affairs which come in almost any color.

"Ouch, get off my foot," will be the common exclamation of our Archerettes this winter when they feel the weight of a barge or a dog house being dragged across their dainty feet. Now don't get me wrong; I don't mean a real barge or dog house, but instead I am referring to shoes, for the types of shoes are the so-called dog-houses and barges. These shoes are box-toed affairs which, of course, are equipped with crepe soles. The barge is a more radical form of the dog house for it has a much bigger and heavier shoe than the graceful dog house. The barge has a flat crepe sole extending the full length of the bottom of the shoe.

Shag Sweeps Country

While speaking of shoes, I might also mention another style of shoe which will sweep the country. This particular type of shoe is called the Shag, and is one of the most comfortable looking and most comfortable feeling shoe on the market. Not only is this shoe comfortable looking but it is also good looking. The shoe looks something like a house slipper, only that it laces at the top. This shoe fits well around the ankle, and the laces extend around the upper outside of the shoes behind the ankle and thus add to further support. A flat crepe sole extends the full length of the bottom of the shoe; thus making the walking easier. As we said before, this shoe is really going to sweep the country, so now if you're looking for a comfortable and sturdy shoe by all means see the Shag.

Suede Is Popular

Suede, which is popular every year, again holds full swing. This year in men's apparel suede will be featured in shirts, shoes, coats and etc. Several of our well-dressed Archers have been seen wearing attractive suede jackets which really add to one's dress. These jackets come in all shades and are made to keep the wearer warm. The jackets are much like the popular Bush Coat of last season only for the suede material. This year another suede product was added to the market. This product is the attractive suede shirt which does away more or less with the sweater as this shirt is made for the warmth which can be derived from it. The shirt looks much like a polo shirt except for the long sleeves.

In women's head dress it is always popular to get the largest and highest feather possible. This year is also the achievement of most men. As you have no doubt observed, the boys' feathers in their hats are beginning to look more like radio aerials every day. Men are wearing higher feathers now and lower crown hats which gives them a Robin Hood aspect. One type of popular feather is the bristle. This type looks like the end of a shaving brush which has been stuck in the hat band. Although the bristle is not as high as many hat feathers, it does look a little more masculine.

Short Sleeves Sweaters Fashionable

Short sleeves sweaters are the popular thing among smart male dressers for they are not only economical but also fashionable. Sleeveless sweaters are worn every year, but this season they're going to be more popular than ever because of their gay colors. Last season the barrel sweater was introduced. This type of sweater consists of seven contrasting stripes which encircle the sweater. This season this type of sweater is going to be even more popular because of the fish tail on the bottom which gives the sweater a better appearance and also a tighter fit.

While speaking of bright colors, I might also mention the loud colors which socks are taking on. For the past couple of years socks have been getting brighter and brighter until at last they practically burn your feet. It is smart now for boys to wear as bright socks as they can get hold of. It has even gone so far as the wearing of single toned socks which can be purchased in almost any color.

Enchanting Formal Wear For School Girls

Below: This velvet dress with the high waistline is ideal for a formal tea. The white Irish lace around the neck and arms accents the full bodice. Accessories include elbow-length gloves buttoned at the wrist and a white ermine purse. A formal doll hat made for hair which is piled high on the head sits well forward over the right eye.

Left: The tulle formal dress is correct for any school dance. Large embroidered figures decorate the frock. A grosgrain ribbon tied in a bow in front adds grace to this lovely formal. Pearls accent the low neckline.

Right: A sweetheart neckline and form-fitting bodice will make any girl the belle of the ball, especially if the dress is of soft velveteen. For contrast two large silver clips and a silver necklace is worn. If it is a semi-formal dance, a white angora purse is proper.

Soup To Nuts Descriptive Of Jewelry Mode

Wood, Gold, Beads, Silver, Glass Contribute To Decorative Effects Of Girls.

This year girls do not have to worry much about what kind of jewelry to wear. Everything and anything from soup to nuts is being worn. Some of the materials being used include wood, gold, beads, silver and glass.

To add variety to bracelets, good luck charms may be worn. The so-called swing bands, baby-carts, telephone, dice, and animals are just a few of the charms used.

Another oddity in bracelets seen this past summer, which will probably be seen down south this winter, is ankle slave bracelets. These are gold and from two to five inches wide.

Necklaces, lockets and crosses are most popular. Pearls and simple beads are also worn, especially with plain boat necked dresses or sweaters.

The latest style in pins is butterfly. These pins can be bought in different colors, sizes and shapes. Other pins sported this fall are initial, good-luck, and cameo brooches. Usually the initial pins are made of either gold or wood, although some silver is used. Black and white or gold and white cameo brooches are seen most.

For jewelry that reminds us of pictures of people way back when, we have the chockers, the beads or bands that are worn tight around the neck. There are also the large gold clips which were once so popular.

Tweeds Are Worn Any Time, Place; Accessories Gay

Girls who dress in tweeds could hardly be called the horsey type, as one can do a little bit of everything in tweeds. You can wear them in the day time and wear them for evening clothes. Never throw your old jackets and skirts away, because an occasion might arise that you would wish that you still owned the old jacket as it would look just lovely with a new skirt.

Some people think tweed clothes aren't alluring, but girls, they are admired more by your gentlemen friends. A jacket does not necessarily have to match a skirt. Wear them anyway. Initialed skirts and jackets are especially smart this fall. Tie a bright scarf around your neck and you will feel confident that you look grand.

With this outfit carry big, bright bags, wear huge bracelets, stick a cocky feather in your old felt or suede hat, put on platform shoes and go off whistling a merry tune.

However, if you purchase some new tweeds, be sure they have that new square look, squared shoulders and squared backs. As for color, don't be afraid to wear it and plenty of it as anything goes this year. Try bright red with plum, and mulberry with sage green for a becoming color combination.

Hats In Vogue This Year Are Small, Triangle

Popular Types Are Tricorn, Beret, Pill-box, Roller; Style Decrees Brilliance.

Hats will always play an important part in a woman's wardrobe. This fall the hats in vogue are smaller than usual. The hats must be suited in style to the rest of the outfit.

Whenever there's a marked feminine tendency in clothes, tricorn hats always come to light. For some reason, feminine faces under tricorn hats always seem to take on a fetching fragility. Schiaparelli's Lilliputian tricorn covers only part of your forehead and practically none of your brushed-up hair. These doll-size hats have been found very popular.

"Forward Perch" hats are hats which tip dangerously over your eyes. Sure enough, there's an inkling of height in the way the brim rolls up in the back, but the thing to photograph on your mind is the steep slant from the top of the head to the eyes.

Always Have Berets

As long as there are hats, there will be berets. The ones this year are called Berets with a Difference. The brilliant suede ones are like envelopes; they open and stand up on the back of your head.

Pill-box hats are also in style, but among the students of our high school the roller is the most popular. A roller hat has a round brim which can be rolled to suit the wearer.

The most popular colors for hats this fall will be burgundy red, teal blue, and American Beauty. Colors of hats should be chosen to match the rest of your outfit.

This autumn, fine feathers make a fine hat. Feathers are emblems of flair or challenge. You need to play up to them to wear them with a slightly arrogant manner.

The latest thing in style is embroidery. Don't wear a necklace; embroider one right on the dress. Various kinds of gold thread sewed with stones can be used around the neck of the dress or on the sleeves from the wrist to the elbow. This is a very effective way of using loose stones.

Archers Succumb To Current Fads

Surprise Teachers By Wearing Bright Plaid Shirts, Denim Overalls To Regular Classes.

A fad among a few of our Archer boys is to wear overall pants and bright plaid shirts. Although this combination does make South Side look like a rural school, it is a more economical mode of dress.

Plaid shirts will be the latest thing in men's wear this winter. They not only keep one warm and comfortable but are really the latest style according to fashion experts on Fifth Avenue. These shirts come in combination of colors of green, red, yellow and practically any other color possible. As they were recently featured in Esquire Magazine they are bound to be a big hit this coming winter.

No one knows who started the present fad of wearing overall pants to school, but it is rapidly being taken up by many boys of South Side. One must admit they are comfortable and economical, but the boys should not get disgrusted if the girls begin wearing gingham or calico house dresses to school.

Girls' Apparel For Week-End Must Be Chic

High School Lass Will Look Smart On College Campus In All-Black Outfit.

At Fraternity Dance Young Miss Will Look Best In Crinoline Gown and Hoop

As each football season rolls around the problem of clothes confronts the high school girl, especially the girl who is fortunate enough to be invited to spend a week-end at some university.

If she is one of these fortunates, she will look very smart in a traveling outfit consisting of a black Shetland skirt with a slipover boat-necked sweater of Llamora wool. Over this she will wear a man-tailored double-breasted raglan coat of herringbone tweed and a black felt Tyrolean hat. Black suede spectator pumps, gloves, and handbag will complete her traveling costume.

Looks Best At Dance

Friday evening, she will attend a fraternity dance. Since this is one of the biggest events of the year at the university, she will want to look her best. And she will look her best in a new crinoline gown of black Lyons velvet with a hoop at the knees. The square neckline, the skirt full from the waist, and the puffed sleeves all date from the time of grandmother, and have a very demure effect. Of course, when it comes to evening wraps, she will not give up her furs, if she is lucky enough to own them. If she doesn't wear a fur wrap, however, she will probably have a velvet one in a jam red with a fitted collar and sleeves with bulk at the top, slimmess below. What man could resist her in such an exquisite outfit?

Wears Sweater, Tweed Skirt
On Saturday afternoon, she can be seen at the big game in the same sweater she wore for traveling, a circular cut tweed skirt with inverted pleats, and a plaid jacket that has leather buttons and squared shoulders. She may wear a Darby and in order to be comfortable as well as extremely smart, she will wear alligator slip-on shoes with a Dutch-boy heel.

She will appear at a party in celebration of the team's victory on Saturday evening, wearing a velveteen in a wonderful new peacock-blue shade. The dress has a circular skirt and a full blouse which lies in folds, giving a very soft effect. The neck is set off with a hammered gold locket and chain (borrowed from her grandmother's jewel box). Her spectator pumps will again appear with this costume, as well as the Tyrolean hat, the gloves and handbag she used for traveling.

Find Fort Wayne Florists Favor Fall Flowers For Fem

One way a boy can gain favor in the eyes of his girl is to send her the proper flowers on occasions that demand them.

Say it with flowers! If a boy is too bashful to say it himself, he can use flowers. There are flowers for every occasion. The wise thing to do is to call up the girl and find out what color of dress she is planning to wear, then send her something that will match or contrast with her outfit. If in doubt you can always rely on the ever popular gardenias but the best policy is to call up the florist and let him take care of it.

A girl may wear her corsage on her shoulder or in her hair. The smartest place this season, however, is at the waist.

Dubonnet carnations with sweetheart roses will make a very pretty corsage; also popular is a large white chrysanthemum with red carnations in the center.

A very smart corsage will be the chrysanthemum worn with wheat. The wheat may be yellow, orange, pink, blue or many other decorative colors. Wheat will probably be very popular this winter for it will add style and contrast. It also may be worn in the hair.

For football games a cuipripedium orchid in green will look very nice on one's leopard coat. Another corsage for sports wear is large chrysanthemums in white, yellow, or bronze with oak leaves.

Boys should wear a dubonnet carnation for evening and a white carnation for their suits.

Deem Nail Polish Hand's Essential

Manicuring, Proper Care Form Background For Soft Shades To Attend Rich Accessories.

When the school days begin, girls once more become conscious of their finger nails. After a vacation of hectic living and letting their nails go, much must be done to get them in condition again. The color of finger nail polish should be selected after the nails are ready for it. One must choose the color that best fits one's finger nails and clothes, whether it be the popular choice of the minute or from last winter's assortment.

The object in manicuring the nails is to make the hands look more attractive and beautiful. Use polish foundation before you put your finger nail polish on. It helps protect the nails from splitting and greatly increases the polish wear. Follow a prescribed routine in fixing the nails and they will glow from care and color.

A knowledge of the color scheme of nail polish is practical for any girl who is interested in looking her best down to the tips of her fingers.

Gloves are hitting a new high in fashion notes of today. The present favorite is the outside stitched kid gloves. Suede may be used with leather strips sewed where the fingers come together. Doeskin is always popular material seen in gloves.

The formal glove covers the whole forearm and it is occasionally longer. Buttons or embroidery often decorate the gloves.

Fashion Flashes For Fall Are Of Many Varied Schemes

Sport Clothes Are Important In Wardrobe

Skirts, Sweaters, Jackets In Plain Colors, Plaids Lead In Schoolgirls' Outfits. Teens Clamor For Double Box Pleats Pastel, Black, White Angoras Very Smart; Dirndls In Wool, Rayon Also Chic.

Sport clothes play the most important part in the wardrobe of high school girls. Combinations of skirts, sweaters, jackets, and shirt waists are the leading school outfits this fall. These "colorinated" costumes are made of plain color, bold plaids, staccato checks, tweeds, and novelty weaves.

The 1939 variety of sport clothes are simply made and very tailored. Gored, straight, and dirndl skirts are being shown. Double box pleats are in demand by high school girls and co-eds. Lovely sweaters in interesting colors and weaves are worn a great deal. Pastel, black, and white angoras are very smart. Separate jackets come in very handy with skirts and sport dresses. Shirt waists in broadcloth, rayon, or satin are elegant for wear with separate skirts and also with suits.

One piece sport dresses are also chic. A tailored dress in sheer beige wool is a good selection for school. One similar model had a pleated skirt and a contrasting jacket in russet.

Dirndls Are Favorites

Both rayon and sheer wool dirndls are the favorite costumes of many students. These snug, sporty, dresses are becoming as well as comfortable.

The classic shirt waist dress is stunning for sport wear. The casual tailoring and smart studs make this one of the most fashionable dresses of the season.

Suede and leather are being used in a great many ways this fall. Both are used in accessories, as well as for ornamental trimming on dresses and coats. Suede vests, which are worn over sweaters and shirts, are very smart. Novelty scarfs and belts are also popular. Embroidered and printed scarfs are used around the neck, and in peasant fashion over the head. Belts range in size from one half inch to four inches. Hobnailed, hand-tooled leather, and plain, wide suede belts are at the height of fashion this fall.

A quantity of jewelry is entirely out of place with sport wear. A girls' jewelry for school should consist of no more than a class ring and perhaps a club pin. However, a single strand of pearls or a locket look very attractive with the soft, fluffy sweaters of the season.

Shoes Are Sporty

Shoes for the high school girl are usually very sporty. Saddle shoes probably rank first among the school girls. Other flat shoes especially crepe soled ones, are popular because of their comfort. For comfort, style, and flattery, the spectator sport pump is superb.

The school girl of today can bravely ignore the wintry winds and yet look like the cover on a fashion magazine. For winter, many girls have chosen a janty polo coat. These coats are soft, warm, and are appropriate for almost any occasion. Another grand coat for winter is the reversible rain coat, which is practical, as well as modish.

Because the fad for going bare headed has been dropped, this fall will see girls tripping to school in brand new bonnets. The darby hat probably leads in style, because it goes well with both sport and dress costumes. The youthful Tyrolean type hat is headed for a big success this fall. The deep crowned breton is also very practical for school wear.

Sports And Formal Wear Are Hand Knit

Angora Rates First Declares Instructor At W & D; Skirts, Sweaters Often Unmatched.

For constant and everlasting wear, a handknit dress can't be surpassed. The best part of it is they are tops in fashion. Plaids and the rough weaves are used for sport, while close weaves are for more formal occasions.

Angora, of course, is the yarn of the minute according to information received from Mrs. Brett, the knitting instructor at Wolf and Desauers. Capes, boleros and cardigans also lead the list of favorites in Angora. A soft Angora sweater goes well with a plain skirt. Other popular yarns are soft sport yarns, cotton strings, and nubby yarns. Plain or variegated wools are good too.

Skirts and sweaters are not always matched. A gray skirt with a contrasting Angora sweater is a delightful combination. Of course, stripes are always good at any time or place. Dark red, green, and the conventional black are the favorite colors. But rust and bright red are also favorites.

Plaits and plain skirts are good with ribbed or plain sweaters of contrasting or matching shades.

Sails In Races

Byron McCammon participated in the sailboat races at Lake Wawasee. The most exciting race was rather disastrous, for five boats turned over.

Velvet For Evening

Any dance would be a success if one wore this black velvet dance frock. It has a circular skirt and the neckline is cut low in the front and back.

A white lace dinner jacket is worn for contrast. Four frogs fasten this bolero low on the waist.

Who Is Wearing What Is Told About Lassies At South Side

This is your inquiring reporter bringing you the latest that your best friends have been seen wearing here, there, and everywhere.

Tailored suits rate top with the feminine portion of South Side.

Betty Marquardt chooses a navy blue pin stripe mannish suit as her favorite. Her accessories are also navy including her suede shoes, felt roller hat, and a kerchief. For contrast, Betty chooses a heavy gold chain bracelet and a gold cloth blouse. Phyllis Mueller prefers a brown wool mannish suit with rust contrasting blouse. Her accessories are a brown roller hat, spectator pumps, and brown suede cloth gloves stitched with tan thread. Marjorie Knoll's tailored suit is a dark green two-piece. It has a plain tailored skirt, and the plain jacket has three green buttons in front and a large fur collar. Her accessories are rusty brown with a white blouse. Petit Rita Murchland has been seen wearing a brown suit with fur lapels. A jade green blouse, brown spectator pumps, and a brown roller hat complete a very chic ensemble.

A new shade, teal blue, takes the lead in school dresses. Jayne Knoche's dress is teal with a gored skirt, bolero sleeves, covered buttons on the shoulders, and a contrasting brown belt with a yellow bow. "Dagger Inn" is the startling name of Virginia Nunenkamp's green dagger dress. The dress gets its name from the fact that it has a row of daggers down the front for buttons. The dress itself is green, trimmed with gold.

Brunette Betty Scott makes a veritable picture in her wine and teal princess dress. It has a high waist and with it Betty wears black accessories. A wine woolen fabric is the choice of Olive Swanson. The dress has puffed sleeves, a white and red contrasting collar, and a large pleated skirt. Betty Bolyard wears a teal blue dress with pleated circular skirt and navy accessories including a cape of rough tweed, suede sandals, gloves, and purse.

Ever popular with the students are the traditional skirts and blouse combination. Betty June Franklin wears a chic wine plaid pleated skirt with a wine stud shirt and wine accessories. Peg Gross's latest outfit is a red and gray tweed skirt worn with a red shirt with elephant buttons. Of special note is her newest choice of footwear. They are neutral doghouse wedges with crepe soles. Marjorie Hoyer's combination of tan wool sweater and navy gored skirt makes a noteworthy item. It is worn with spectators and double string pearls.

Signatures On Jackets Latest Of Style Fads

Whether an aid to the memory or just a pure decoration, the signature jacket is a clever idea. So far as we know, the first shirt at South Side was sported by Berniece Etzler. Her shirt is by this time a maze of gaily colored embroidered names. Beverly Griffith collects signatures and also favorite song titles. They are printed in ink on her shirt. Phyllis Hayner keeps a signature shirt of the same type as Etzler's.

We have an idea that this fondness for embroidery developed from last year's beer jackets, which, if you will remember, were slightly disfigured most of the time by the presence of various pencilled names. At any rate we suppose that their value many years from now will be much the greater because of the memories the signatures carry with them.

Catches Bass

Barbara Bower caught a five-pound dog fish. At first she thought it was a bass.

Jackets Lead Style Parade Of 'Teen Age

Plus A Riot Of Color, New Mode Is Tremendously Popular With Both Sexes

It's tops in Paris, New York, and London this season. The jacket is definitely the thing! A wardrobe without a jacket combination is just as incredible as South Side without R. Nelson Snider. The jackets range in type from cardigans and suede vests to finger-tip length tweeds.

The new "little boy jackets" seem to have found favor this season. They are the short, deep-pocketed, box coats with an attached hood, which is otherwise used as a collar. We saw a cunning number in navy chinchilla cloth, with big brass buttons on the double breasted plan and a brightly lined hood.

Suede vests, which are more familiar to South Side's young fashionables, add a campus look to any skirt and sweater combination. The Vogue presents a slender model in light colored, rich suede, buttoned diagonally up the side. It is worn with a dark club collar sweater and checkered skirt—a study in monocolor.

We dropped in on England to discover a new campus classic — the "Britisher." This reversible warmer, built on straight, single breasted lines, will usually be found in natural colored wool fleece and, inside, a subdued plaid.

Cardigan Is Popular

Extremely popular this year is the classic cardigan. "The Vogue" is displaying one that will make your heart beat faster because of its breathtaking, simple charm. It is a short, smooth, cashmere jersey in a warm crimson, featuring the new "below the elbow," bias sleeves. It forms a startling contrast when worn over a cool, steel blue, classic shirtwaist dress. The plaid cardigan is, of course, very good. Margaret Null has an excellent one in brilliant plaid, which brings out every new Fall shade. It is equally attractive combined with Teal blue, Muscatel wine or practically any other new color.

America asserts her influence in the fashion world by means of the popular lumber jacket. Anything with a couple of high pockets and a bloused effect at the waist is now called a lumber jacket. It's smart, it's sporty, and it's becoming. Especially do we like it over a sheer wool tailored frock, where the collar may peep out at the throat.

So much concern is given to sport clothes by the high school crowd that we seldom think about the more dressy modes. We bring to your attention the more formal version of a

Going Up! So Says Hairs As It Yields To Fashion's Urges

As everything seems to be going up; the hair is included in this. This hairdress is called the "Upward Trend." This bob is somewhat like that our mothers wore in their youth.

There are several wrong ways to wear the hair up. One might wear it with up and down waves with a few curls on top. Another way is to have bottom curls piled high on top of the head, with a few waves on the side. One might even wear their hair with all waves and no curls whatsoever. (This style would be appropriate for the office.) Another way to wear the hair up is to have backward rolls on top of the head, held up by small combs. Still another way to wear the hair up is to have one single roll about the head. There are numerous ways of wearing one's hair.

Must Be Suitable

It is not advisable to wear the "Upward Trend" unless you are suited for it. There are many things to consider before wearing the "Upward Trend." The shape of your face, your height and your personality. The face that is round could wear this hairdress nicely, because it would make the face look longer. One's height is also used in determining whether you should wear the "Upward Trend." If you are tall, it is not a good idea, because it will make you look much taller. If you are short, it would be a good idea to wear it up.

The "Upward Trend" is a beautiful evening hair style. A real flower, a jeweled clip, combs or a ribbon are worn frequently.

If one can not wear this hair style at all, you can fall back to the page-boy style, which is still quite popular with the high school and college girls. The page-boy style is a long bob, turned under, leaving the hair straight.

One can have off-the-face curls up in front or have bottom curls all around. The hair may even be turned under about the face.

long-sleeved basque jacket in black velvet, worn over a vertical striped, wool pleated skirt and with a new high hair dress, it creates the effect of grandmother's day.

We say little of capes because we see little of them. For formal evening occasions, of course, they are indispensable. We have seen a few town versions in black wool. The straight, full length, box-shouldered type is predominant.

A parting word: Do not overlook the fact that rioting through this fashion year and leading the parade are the American lumber jackets, British tweeds, Scottish plaids, and Parisian velvets. You can be smart in any of them.

Latest Designs Will Be Used In New Gowns

Originality To Be Keynote For 1938 Fashion Parade; To Be Of Various Colors

With the coming holidays, comes the need of new and unusual formals. The latest designs are being rushed from fashion centers to our department stores, from whence we shall choose a dashing new number in a courageous attempt to be the belle of the ball. Originality is the keynote of the 1939 fashion parade.

A new high light in the world of fashion is the daring formal which is cut low, with a tightly fitted bodice, set off by a full hoop skirt. This dress is practical, as well as last-minute fashion because it may be worn with or without the hoops. A great number of such frocks have matching or contrasting jackets, thus enabling them to be worn as dinner dresses or strictly formal.

All-covered-up Dress Popular

The "all-covered up" dress will probably be most popular with high school girls this fall. One model that is exceedingly popular is a red and white candy-stripe, built close around the neck, with a little girl collar and short, full sleeves.

Outstanding colors for this fall include all pastels, beige, and black. Shades of orchid and violet are exceptionally good this fall. Many gowns are made of several shades of one color. Sequins are being used to a great extent. The most prominent materials are satin, taffeta, and velvet.

Formal Capes Hitting High

Formal capes, both fur and velvet, are hitting a new high this fall. Many long, flowing, and graceful wraps are being shown. Then there are the short capes, fingertip and otherwise, that are always popular with high school girls. They are perky looking and always add a sparkling touch to your outfit. Several girls are wearing hooded capes, trimmed in fur, while others wear brilliantly colored peasant scarves.

Dazzling accessories will add the finishing touches to your evening costume. Old fashioned jewelry is the tops this fall. If you possess any old pieces that your grandmother wore, now is the time to hunt them out. Massive jewelry is very definitely the thing.

Many Pupils Dislike Swooped Hair Dress Of Modern Misses

Elevators aren't the only things that are going up. Everything from the price of eggs to hair styles is following. When yours truly first saw a gorgeous South Side lass with her hair in this precarious position we concluded that she forgot to let it down 'awftah her bawth.

Nevertheless, there are some people who like this up-to-the-minute Paris fashion. We must give credit to the girls already showing their neckline in spite of the opposition from the other inhabitants of the South Side bastille. However, following, is the honest (?) opinion of several scholars in this worthy institute:

Dorothy Beyrau: I think it's cute, only it isn't for school wear.

Bud Cadorette: The girls look like something scared them.

Marion Butler: All right for evening, but I don't like it for day.

Lela Bice: I don't like it, although some girls look nice that way.

Doris Buschman: My opinion's the same as Marion's.

Lucille Scheimann: Pretty nice, only it's not for school. More for parties.

Albert Ferguson: I think it's rotten.

Nathan Taymeyer: All right in evening, but at a football game, no. (Whereupon, Al Ferguson chimes in with "Ruff it up, boys, ruff it up.")

Rosalie Newburn: Don't like it. Looks crazy to me.

Doris Siebold: Very nice for evening, but too extreme for day unless it's definitely suited to the type of person.

Mildred Trout: Really, I think it looks horrible on many of the girls. It's too old for high school students.

Eugene Botz: I don't like it very well.

Helen Braker: Looks pretty silly to me.

Dorothy Karnap: I like it on some. If it's on a short girl, it makes her look tall. On some tall ones it looks nice because it makes them look sophisticated. But there are a lot of girls that don't look pretty with it fixed that way.

Betty Bligh: I don't like it.

Paul Dammeier: It's terrible.

Dorothy Marshand: All right for formal but it doesn't look good at school.

Allen Mueller: They look lousy.

Francis White: Makes 'em look like a skinned rat. It all depends on whether it's coming down or whether it's up right.

Eugene Ferguson: Do I like it? Definitely NO.

Marjorie Mae Funk: I just don't like it.

Drama Group To Give Play At 3:30 Friday

Student Players Will Present Comedy; To Be Directed By Margaret Null.

A farce comedy, "The Fourth Mrs. Philipps," will be presented at the regular meeting of Student Players Club tomorrow night in the new Greeley Room. This comedy is under the direction of Margaret Null.

The play has to do with an actor, Warwidge Philipps, who has married three wives and is preparing to walk down the aisle with another. All of the action in this production takes place in the dressing room of Mr. Philipps. The action in the play is further complicated by Mr. Philipps' valet and a reporter.

The play is all in one scene, and for the first time the lights in the stage in the Greeley Room will be used. These lights are very modern, and were just installed.

Characters in the production are: first Mrs. Philipps, Virginia Shidler; second Mrs. Philipps, June McAlister; third Mrs. Philipps, Helen Wiehe; fourth Mrs. Philipps, Margaret Null; Mr. Philipps' valet, Jim Brooks; the reporter, Paul Geiser; and Warwidge Philipps, Bruce Bradbury. Stage managers for the play are Jim Brooks and Paul Geiser.

Meetings have been held at the homes of every member of the cast for the production. At these meetings practice was held for the production.

A special rehearsal in the Greeley Room tonight will be held in final preparation for the meeting tomorrow. This will be the last rehearsal of the cast before the actual playing of the comedy.

At the meeting tomorrow night Miss Margery Suter will appoint committees for the December meeting. These committees must select and produce a play of some kind, using committee members as characters in the production. A play is presented at every meeting of the club. These productions are to give club members training in acting and actual production of plays.

Inquiring Reporter Finds Why Students Better Class Work

As "yours truly" was roaming through the halls of our "Alma Mater," she came upon a group of students talking gaily of the long-awaited vacation. When the subject of study was referred to, these self-same students suddenly became very gloomy. When asked the following, "What school experiences have made you want to improve your classroom work?" they gave the following answers:

Richard Gerig:—Getting low (?) grades.

Marjorie McMahon:—I don't know.

Evelyn Koomler:—The school I went to last year had no discipline whatsoever, so I am making the most of my work and study here at South Side.

Oliver Zurbrugge:—I try to do it, because the other kids do.

Jewell Goette:—I want to get higher grades.

Don Parkinson:—I failed once so I figured I had better work or I'll fail again.

Faye Gumpfer:—Receiving lower grades in my subjects than I thought I would get.

Lois Gumpfer:—Ditto.

Ellen Harry:—Getting 99 1/2 per cent on a test.

Carol Trenary:—I don't know, I'd like to do better, though.

Everett Trulock:—I like to get good grades. People who get good grades are better liked.

Bonnie Yeager:—Oh dear! I don't know.

Bob York:—There's been a lot of them. I guess pulling "boners" in English class is the worst.

Dorothy Oliver:—The teacher will help some.

So-Si-Y Holds Meeting Using Chinese Theme

So-Si-Y held its meeting on Chinese music and games Tuesday, October 25, in the Greeley Room. A talk on Chinese music was given. Ruth Bade played two Chinese pieces on the piano. The whole club sang "On a Chinese Honeymoon."

An explanation of the Chinese Theatre was given by Mildred Brett. A Chinese play, entitled "Mago Ginger Jar" was given. The members of the committee gave an illustration of Chinese games on the stage. This illustration was conducted by Lillian Meeker. Elizabeth Rose read the Chinese translation of the twenty-third Psalm as the devotion.

Rosella Koehler was chairman of the committee and those on her committee were Lillian Meeker, Caroline Scheuler, Helen Wiehe, Patty Lambrales, Alma Korte, Mildred Brett, Ruth Bade, Ruth Gebhardt, Marjorie Jackson, and Virginia Selby. Those helping the committee were Mary Emily Seibt, Wilma J. Sullivan, Elizabeth Rose, Dorothy Gerdon, and Audrey Jeffries.

Archer Cleanliness Is Result Of Work Of Efficient Janitors

"Boy, this building is nice and shiny." How many times has one heard these or similar words spoken? Yes, our building is always clean. The credit for keeping approximately 65 classrooms clean, two showers immaculate, a gym floor with a shining finish that any school would be proud of, three large study halls free of paper and dust, two locker rooms free of paper and rubbish, and numerous other rooms and halls in the school goes to one man and his force of seven.

That man is Carl Vonderau. His force consists of Henry Bredemeyer, Joseph Junk, William Mason, Charles Petgen, William Schaefer and Mrs. Linna Chronister. Due to the new addition to South Side, a new man from the maintenance department has been assigned to this force. This man is Dennis Gerlock.

Approximately 50 bushels of tightly packed paper are removed daily from the study hall, halls, locker rooms, classrooms, the gymnasium, and refuse boxes in the halls. The gymnasium floor is swept twice a day, and it is scrubbed twice a week. The locker rooms are disinfected every night, and they are flushed morning and noon every day.

One might question how much cleaner and wax they use for this process of cleaning and polishing. The annual order for soap and wax might look like this. Thirty gallons of G. L. cleaner; forty gallons of liquid soap; thirty gallons of wax.

Grad On Debate Team

Melvin Eggers, '38, has been promoted to the varsity debating team at Indiana University. While at South Side Melvin became president of both Student Players and Social Science. He belonged to Math Science, Travel, Inter-Club Congress and was on the National Honor Society, Four-Year Honor Roll and Sophomore Social Council. Mr. Eggers also had the leading role in the senior play.

Judge Townsend Will Give Speech

Social Science Club To Sponsor Armistice Day Program Over Address System, November 11

Judge Howard Townsend will be the principal speaker for the Armistice Day program, November 11, sponsored by the Social Science Club of South Side. He will give a seven-minute talk on the subject, "The Horrors of Peace." This program, given over the new radio system, will be twenty minutes long, beginning at 10:55 o'clock and concluding at 11:15.

Dick Garton will be the master of ceremonies. The program will open with the playing of "America the Beautiful." Next will follow a reading which will be given by Dick Buchholz. The usual two minutes silence at 11 o'clock with a background of the "Londondry Air" will follow. Judge Howard Townsend will then give his talk. The playing of the well-known march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," will conclude the program.

Teachers Declare New Rooms Excel Old In Many Ways

You all have your own opinions of the new rooms that were added to the building this summer, you've heard your friends' opinion on the matter, but have any of you heard the opinion of a teacher who has one of these new rooms? At last the teachers have confessed how they like their new rooms.

Mr. Stanley Post: Everything is just fine. There's plenty of light, a lot of cupboard space, plenty of bulletin boards, and the new shades are very satisfactory.

Mrs. Dorothy Benner Rieke: It is very satisfactory. There's plenty of room which satisfies me very much, because on certain occasions we invite classes in to hear speeches. There is plenty of light, too. Later on we're going to build a platform which will help, too. I consider it a privilege to be able to speak in this room.

Mr. Maurice Murphy: I like it fine, and there doesn't seem to be anything lacking.

Miss Nellie Covalt: I like it very much. It's much more quiet than my old room and there's more space to file papers.

Mr. Wilburn Wilson: I like it fine so far as light and space are concerned, but I do not like the noise from Calhoun street and the acoustics. It sounds like you're talking into a rain barrel.

Library To Obeve A. E. W.

The library will put up a few posters and some leaflets will be distributed on the tables during American Education Week. If any clubs want special literature about American Education Week, the library assistants will help them find it.

Mr. A. V. Flint Has Vocational Booklets

Vocational guidance material is available from Mr. Verne Flint. These pamphlets contain information which is of practical value to the student in thinking about his future occupation. Program making often depends upon future needs.

The pamphlets are loaned for one week at a time, and are charged to the home room. They may be obtained at any time. Mr. Flint will be glad to answer any questions which students desire to ask.

Responsibility Falls Upon Hard-Working Archers In Classes

Students do not become aware of their responsibilities to other people until they have joined some club or been called upon to perform some special duty in class. Several Archers answered as follows when asked what has made them aware of their responsibilities to other people.

Orval Paul:—My class activities.

Gladys Foellinger:—My club activities.

Ellen Harry:—My club activities have made me aware of my responsibilities to others.

Keith Coverdale:—My class activities.

Bob Guion:—I belong to Forum Club and every once in a while I am depended upon to make a speech.

This has made me aware of my responsibilities to other people.

Robert Safer:—I want to be alone.

Paul Kiel:—Being a student leader in gymnasium.

Don Meyer:—My class work.

Ed Meyer:—My class work.

Dorothy Gildea:—Being a home room reporter.

Happy Birthday

"Happy Birthday to You" is the song many friends and relatives will be singing to the following students:

November 4 — Mary Cox, Edith Ream, Phyllis Rolf.

November 5—Ethelda Kock, Loretta Rinearson, Ruth Freese, Juanita Vaght.

November 6—Dick Brandt, Jeanet Whetzel, Robert Stock.

November 7—Lois Jarvis, William Mann, Kenneth Newman, Myrtle Ernst, Richard Fisher, Donald Nolan, Wanda Rolhfig, Grace Smith.

November 8 — Miriam Jackson, Ruth Dauner.

November 9 — Jack Hodell, Marianna Klotz, Harold Martin, Robert Nance, Hazel Perry, Barbara Stalter.

Three E's Will Meet At Phyllis Branning's

Featured at the Three E's next meeting will be an etymology test and an Anglo-Saxon lesson which will show the similarity between Anglo-Saxon and German. The meeting will be held on Saturday, November 5, at the home of Phyllis Branning. Miss Kiefer hopes to acquaint the members gradually with the changing character of the language resulting from the influence of French, Latin, and Greek at the time of the Norman Conquest and the Renaissance.

During the week of November 7, Three E's will sponsor the showing of a set of picture slides which will show interesting derivatives from Anglo-Saxon words.

The last regular meeting of Three E's was held at the home of Helen Faux on Friday evening, October 21. Misuse of words was the general theme of the program. A report, given by Helen Faux, and a game of boners showed the results of confusing derivatives and homonyms. A vocabulary game of selecting synonyms also stressed the principal topic of the program. An Anglo-Saxon lesson illustrated the resourcefulness of the Anglo-Saxon vocabulary especially in forming compounds.

New members include Dick Buchholz and Phyllis Branning, who attended the meeting of October 21, and Evelyn Koomler.

South Side Custodian Gives Students Thanks

Mr. Carl Vonderau, school custodian who has returned to school after a serious illness which made his confinement in the Lutheran Hospital necessary, wishes to thank all of the South Side students who were willing to donate blood for a transfusion. Those whose blood was the right type and who did donate blood to Mr. Vonderau are Aubrey Stolte on September 26 and Ned Kelsey, October 4.

Lack Of Funds Denies Adding More Janitors

Due to the School Board's lack of funds, there will not be an addition to the janitors' staff until January. The six janitors have an additional fourteen rooms to keep in order besides the two new study halls.

Before the addition to the building they had sixty-five rooms to take care of, but now with the new rooms it will mean longer hours. The janitress has a large additional lavatory to take care of.

Parents' Teas To Mark End Of Observance

National Education Week
Celebrated By Teachers, Parents In Ceremonies.

Two Clubs Give Talks On System

Janice Dyer Will Speak For Social Science Club; Carl
Hall, Letterman, Speaks.

Observance of American Education Week by South Side High School will be completed with this Friday afternoon's Junior and Senior Parents' Teas.

This school has celebrated American Education Week with two programs during the home room period; two teas for freshman and sophomore parents; and a special issue of the school publication, The Times. Also to be included in the annual celebration are two more teas for junior and senior parents, and one more home room program.

Use Radio System

Two programs have been presented over the school loud speaker system by two different organizations of this institution so far this week, and another will be heard tomorrow morning. Carl Hall spoke for the Letterman's Club Monday on the subject of "Strong Bodies and Healthy Minds." Wednesday, Elizabeth Rose, of So-Si-Y, talked on "Standards and Values." Today, Janice Dyer of Social Science Club, will give a short talk on the topic, "New Civic Responsibilities." Social Science Club will also present an Armistice Day assembly Friday morning.

The freshman and sophomore parents' teas were held in the school cafeteria Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons at two-thirty. At both of these meetings Mr. Flint, Miss Pittenger, and other members of the faculty gave short talks on subjects relating to school life. This afternoon and tomorrow afternoon junior and senior parents will hold teas at the same time and place as those for freshman and sophomore parents. Members of the teaching staff of South Side also spoke at these teas.

P-T. A. Arranges Programs
Programs for these four teas were arranged by the Parent-Teachers' Association of South Side. Home room committees notified parents or guardians of every student in South Side and placed the teas to be held for them, and therefore a large attendance was present at each tea.

The National Education Council was the promoter of American Education Week which was celebrated all over the United States in schools, and other public places. American Education Week programs were run in conjunction with Armistice Day programs in many places.

On Station WGL During Year

Appearing in the October issue of the School Life magazine was a picture of Oscar Eggars, Joan Bonni, Dalton McAllister, Don Maggart, Kathleen Wimer, '38, Margaret Gross, senior, and Miss Gretchen Smith. These people, except for the latter named, who is director, were members of the South Side Radio Players last semester.

The South Side Radio Players is a group organized a year ago last August during summer vacation. Twenty-five people who were recommended for their speaking ability were given auditions at a rehearsal during August and September a script from the office of education, the department of interior on the subject of guidance. This series was presented as a feature of the Fort Wayne School of the Air. Several programs were presented by the players.

This year the club will present a series of five programs in which representatives of The South Side Times supposedly interview famous people in history and literature, such as: Queen Elizabeth, Shakespeare, Kathryn the Great, Napoleon and George Washington.

Preliminary tryouts were held and auditions given to the successful applicants. Those whose voices were found to be adapted to the microphone are considered members of the club and will be given an opportunity to perform.

This series will start November 17 and will appear weekly at 8:00 p. m. over WGL. Other types of programs to be presented by the radio players are news-casts, safety sketches, music and speeches.

Two Clubs Plan Skate To Be in December

At the meeting of the Girls' Rifle Club, committees were appointed and arrangements made for the skate which is to be sponsored by the French Club and Rifle Club, December 9, at Bell's Skating Rink.

The ten girls shooting the highest scores are eligible for the positions in the bi-weekly matches which are given shot at each meeting. The following girls made the highest scores at the last meeting held November 2: Jane Merchant, 95; Audrey Hall, 93; Marjorie Allen, 91; Marion Feichter, 89; Marge Price, 86; Imogene Fabian, 84; Mildred Trout, 82; Dorothy Bloemker, 82; Betty Jean Pressler, 78; and Marjorie Schannon, 52.

Are New Senior Advisers

Mr. Paul Sidell

Miss Dorothy Magley

Miss Dorothy Magley and Mr. Paul Sidell were selected as new senior class sponsors by the newly elected student officers. They will assist with plans for the senior banquet, senior dance, and other annual senior activities.

Students Voice Strong Opinion That United States Will Never Be Subject To Rule Of Dictator

(Editor's Note:—This is the second in a series of the monthly polls taken by The Times in order to obtain the viewpoints of the students and teachers. This poll concerning war was answered by the students representing each class. The home rooms which participated were rooms 62, 68, 138, and 32.)

By the Poll-Of-The-Month Editor

Of the students questioned it was found that nearly everyone does not believe that America will ever be under the rule of a dictator.

107 of the 110 questioned students believe that the merits of democracy outweigh those of dictatorship.

The viewpoint on the question of whether or not there will be another world war soon is about fifty-fifty.

There were almost as many pupils who thought that America would become involved in war as a result of the recent European situation as those who were against the question.

More students expressed the belief that the United States will not remain neutral in event of an entanglement between European countries than those who thought it would.

The result on the question of a strong rearmament program is equally divided.

There are more students who are under the belief that an arbitration of disputes is the best way of settling foreign entanglements than there are those who advocate different methods.

Question One: Did you believe that America would become involved in war as a result of the recent European situation? (This is prior to the recent settlement.) Sixty-two students voted yes on this matter while forty-eight voted the negative side.

Question Two: Do you believe that there will be another world war soon? The negative side received the most votes, being supported by fifty-nine students, while the affirmative side was supported by fifty students.

Question Three: Do you think that, since the World War was a war to end all wars, America will remain neutral if European powers get into another entanglement? More students are under the belief that America will not remain neutral. This side was supported by sixty-six Archers while forty-six students were for the affirmative side.

Question Four: Do you believe that the merits of Democracy outweigh those of Dictatorship? The outcome proves that the majority of students are strongly for a Democratic country. One hundred ten students believe in the affirmative side of the question, while eleven of the students are on the negative side.

Question Five: Do you believe that America will ever be under the rule of one leader, a second Hitler? From the result of this question it is evident that the larger majority of students feel secure in the present form of government. This question resulted in 107 students voting for the negative side and seven voting for the affirmative.

Question Six: Do you believe in a strong rearmament program? The result of this question is almost equal. Fifty-nine students voted yes, and fifty-one voted no.

Question Seven: Do you believe in settling foreign entanglements and alliances by a method of arbitration? If not, what is your ideal method? The larger majority of students seem to think that this system is successful. Ninety students voted for the system while fifteen advocated some other method. The following suggestions are among the various systems advocated: Let the countries settle their own affairs; each warring nation should send foreign ministers to meet and settle the affair; by force; arbitration is all right if too many concessions are not granted; arbitration has been proved unsuccessful; take the country that started the war, break it up, and put it under the rule of various countries.

The Times sincerely wishes a "Happy Birthday" to the following students:

November 10—Betty Wyss.
November 11—Elmer Schmoie, Bernis Laisure, Goldie Kitchen, Richard Miller.
November 12—Charlotte Allen, Wilfred Bleeker.
November 14—Richard Sebald, Phyllis Tyndall, LeAnna Tassler, Arthur Wedler, Helen Medsker.
November 15—Eugene Stair.
November 16—Kathleen Boerger.
November 17—Marjorie Williams.

Music Department To Give Assembly

Next Tuesday morning, the music department will present a monthly music assembly in the gym after the home room period. Tickets, which may be purchased in home rooms, are priced at ten cents. The first three periods will be shortened in order to present the assembly.

Seniors Select New Advisers To Aid Class

Upperclassmen Pick Mr. Paul Sidell And Miss Dorothy Magley Counselors.

Miss Dorothy Magley and Mr. Paul Sidell were chosen by the officers of the senior class as advisers for this coming year. During the last week the officers met with Mr. R. Nelson Snider and on Friday they voted on the teachers who are to succeed Miss Adelaide Feidler and Mr. Henry Chapell, who have had the position of senior class adviser for some years. The advisers' job will be to assist and advise the members of the senior class in putting on any of the activities the senior class sponsors.

The officers met last evening with the newly elected advisers to discuss the Senior Banquet which will probably be held sometime in January and will be the first senior activity of the year. Other activities that the seniors will have are the funfest, ivy planting, the Senior Dance, and minor social affairs.

The officers that met with Mr. R. Nelson Snider are as follows: Eugene Schmidt, president; Max Magner, vice-president; Max Spencer, secretary-treasurer; Janice Dyer, chairman of the social council; Nadine Mueller and Eddie Reeves, members of the social council.

High School Students Will Cycle In Parade

The high school students who ride bicycles are asked to participate in the Armistice Day parade Thursday evening. The school having the largest group to ride will receive a prize of five dollars. The person having the best decorated bicycle will receive three dollars, the second best two dollars, and the third best one dollar. Two girls and ten boys have signed to ride for South Side.

Final Auditions Staged For Radio Enthusiasts

Final auditions were held Friday, October 14, at the Westinghouse radio station for radio players who passed the preliminary tryouts.

Audition sheets have been kept for each person to show the type of voice each one has. These sheets will be used for reference throughout the year when players are needed. The types of parts include dramatic, news, and announcing work.

Those that will be chosen for parts during the year as they are needed are Becky Abbott, Sam Bacon, John Bonsib, Bruce Bradbury, Richard Dyke, Dorothy Foellinger, Tom Gallmeyer, Bill Gernand, Margaret Gross, Richard Hebermehl, Miriam Jackson, Wilma Lageman, Bud Lampton, Joyce McAllister, June McAllister, Don Meyer, Edward Meyer, Hazel Perry, Marie Quackenbush, Enalyn Remmel, Bill Riethmiller, Bob Safer, Helen Savage, Marian Seemeyer, Virginia Shidler, Jeannette Warren, Kenneth Warren, and Helen Wiehe.

Continue Addition Program

Construction of partitions which will divide the Times and Totem offices in room 16 were begun last Tuesday evening. The Totem office was formerly housed in the new film office. New red and cream-colored waste-paper baskets were also purchased for the new Greeley room on the second floor.

Meeting Of So-Si-Y Is On Chinese Education

So-Si-Y held its meeting on Chinese education in the Greeley Room November 8, at 3:30 o'clock. Margery Price gave a general discussion on the education of the Chinese people which was followed by a more detailed discussion by Miss Eleanor Smeltz. Aleda Randol and a group of girls gave a short Chinese dance. Ruth Bade gave selections on the piano which were Chinese pieces. Devotions were given by Betty Rose which was the Chinese version of the twenty-third psalm. Marian Owens was in charge of the program. Those who assisted during the meeting were Joan Gunter, Lilia Patton, Aleda Randol, Margery Price, Wilma Sullivan, Dorothy Karnap, Betty Rose, Helen Harlan, and Dorothy Gerdorn.

Janice Dyer Directs Skit For Puppeteers

The feature of the Marionette Club meeting, held last Thursday in the workshop, was a short, original skit presented by a group under the direction of Janice Dyer. The title of the puppet play was "The Disappearance of Mr. Quicklewink" or "Who Put Vanishing Cream in His Breakfast Food?—A Serial."

The characters were: Mr. Quicklewink, Max Spencer; his faithful wife, Virginia Hill; Prunella, the maid who is in love with the butler, Marcia Allen; Nibbkins, the butler, Bill Morgan. The play was presented in the form of a pantomime with the dialogue carried by Detective Snopper-in-Key Hole, Janice Dyer.

After the skit the members experimented with using leather in the joints of the marionettes' legs.

Meterites Will Stage Musical At Meeting

At the Meterite meeting which will be held November 16, a musical program, consisting of vocal and instrumental numbers will be given. A play called "A Wedding" will be presented under the direction of Betty Ann Bohn. Games will be played, and refreshments of elder and doughnuts will be served.

Meterite's skate, the first one of South Side's skating season, was attended by 220 people. The skate was held Friday, November 4, at 7:30. South Side students who received attendance prizes were Jean Petersen, Gene Auer, and Beth Ellen Chadwick.

Dayton School System Is Unbalanced Scene Of Mixed Conditions

No doubt you have read in the newspapers recently about the school crisis in Dayton, Ohio. In this town, the pupils in every school are having a vacation of unknown length.

The reason for this vacation is that there is no money in the school fund to keep the schools open for students. This is really a very serious predicament because young people in Dayton may run through the streets of that city, one of the richest in Ohio, for many a week before something is done for them.

One member of the school board of that city is actually interested in the students' plight, and this one person is actively engaged in getting the city to produce enough money to keep the schools running. We would like to thank this one man personally, but that is impossible; so we extend our congratulations to him in this manner, for we believe he is truly a friend of the young people.

Although we may claim loud and often that we don't like school, that we would like to be home playing football or basketball, that we would rather go up town and "stick around" there, we all must feel down in our hearts that we are pretty lucky when we think of conditions in other cities.

And we believe that such an attitude is the right one for any normal American boy or girl. So let's thank our lucky stars for a superintendent and a school board like ours who protect our interests.

War Clouds Threaten As We Honor Peace

Upon the issuance of the Armistice on November 11, 1918, the general cry of the soldiers was, "We have saved our democracy." Those soldiers fought to preserve democracy, and in so doing they made the world safe for tomorrow and its people—the you and me of today. Those who died, died with the thought that they had materialized their dreams. We today cannot very aptly express our gratitude. If we, as the heads of the government in the years to come, can bring about a policy of world peace, we can make up for the great loss of the World War.

Not long ago, war threatened this country as well as several others. War, that deadly thing, threatened to reduce our population and add to the already over-burdened America, holding war debts that she should not have collected.

Today the cry of the public is: "We must spend millions to strengthen our defense to keep our democracy." What a change there is in this cry and the cry of the soldiers! Are not the movements for rearmament a clear sign of preparation for war?

That great war, a war to end all wars was fought and won; democracy was saved. But even today, with our heavy rearmament program can we keep our gain? Such a situation exists, but what is to be done? Will our democracy be saved, and world peace maintained?

"As The Twig Is Bent"

Once again, as Armistice Day rolls around the American people, who remember the horrors of the last war, firmly make the resolution, "Never again." Naturally, all steps are being taken to prevent another such catastrophe. Neutrality measures and "good-neighbor policies" are common occurrences. But why isn't something being done to curtail the little everyday things, which make war seem so attractive to the young? Of course war soldiers are a tradition of childhood. Toy guns and soldier suits are loads of fun; but they also serve to instill the word "kill" in growing minds. Occasionally moving pictures are shown, which paint an entirely false picture of war. The hero of the epic wears a handsome uniform and, after killing off millions of the brutal foe, returns to his native land where he is greeted with brass bands, confetti, and the plaudits of his countrymen. With saucer-like eyes, impressionable young America sees such a farce and immediately announces his intention to "be a soldier when I get big."

This may seem to be making mountains out of mole hills; but if, when war eventually flames out in Europe, every American from the youngest to the oldest can say, "I don't want any part of such a filthy mess; I'll place my bet on Uncle Sam."

Get tickets for the Philo Dance from any club member. The dance will be held tomorrow night.

Let's celebrate Armistice Day by participating in the bicycle parade.

Juniors! Start fasting now for the Junior banquet.

Jam Session of The Jitterbug

In mother's day they called it "sparking"; in sister's day they called it "necking"; but for the swing crazed world it has a new and different name to keep up with the tempo... just plain "jooking." At least, that's what it's called in college... But our esteemed parents know that We, the Flaming YOUTH of today, indulge in nothing like that... Or maybe they're not as dumb as we think they are...

In the last week, we've all been accustomed to many, many examinations, better known to us as tests, and so that we will be in style, we've decided to give a very common type of test... True and false. The answers will be found at the end of the column...

1. Ray Bushing had a date with Ruth Ellison and came home very much impressed.

2. Andy Bremer and Charles Haugk are equally awed by Elaine Hirschy.

3. Betty Birely would like to rate again one of whom she is an ex.

4. Eileen Kiesling and Bob Jamieson have broken up...

Did you know that... If you are a boy and are walking down the street with two lovely girls, you should not be piggyback and walk in the middle but on the side next to the curb... this also applies to school corridors, although there is no curb... Perhaps the spectacle of two girls with one boy is amusing because one girl has hopes of going with another girl's beaux... We know of a few specific cases, but such things are unprintable.

The answers to our little test were, strange as it may seem, all true... It's much easier to say real things... Since that group of C's we received Tuesday has made us decide that we'd better start working, we'll go home now and catch up on our sleep.

War Produces Great Disastrous Grief Among The People

(By Betty Bolyard)

War! What a ghastly word, and its meaning is just as terrifying as it sounds.

Does war gain anything? No, it does not. It only causes a great loss of lives and jobs.

Even after the armistice had been signed, the remaining soldiers were very depressed, and grieved, and poverty-stricken, because their positions had been filled by some one else while they had been at war attempting to satisfy probably one person's greedy wish to gain a few more acres of territory. I ask you, is it worth it?

Not only did they lose out in this way, but some were reminded so often of the sound of the tramping of the soldiers, the whistle of the bombs whizzing to their destination, the menacing hum of the dirigibles and the airplanes, and the call of the bugle urging them to be up and on toward for the next eventual battle that they eventually became frantic and now have to be confined to hospitals.

Of course, we have a brotherly feeling towards other countries, but should we sacrifice our men and the welfare of our country because of this feeling? Also from another standpoint war is very destructive as it wastes so much money. Utterly millions of dollars are spent on army provisions. And for what purpose? That of killing fellowmen. If this money were kept at home, improvements could be made all over the country—such as transportation, the betterment of educational institutions, as recently made at South Side, and the establishment of hospitals and homes for the aged, poor, and orphans.

Wee Sketches Of Our Big People

By Jeanette Warren

J'ever meet any one who has no overpowering dislikes, and who manages to get along successfully with about everything and everybody? Well, meet James, better known as Jim, Murphy. His only definite dislike is spending money. This may be explained by pointing out that he is Irish in name only, being really of Scottish-English (mostly Scottish) descent.

Jim is a member of the Social Science, Wranglers, Math-Science and Extemp Clubs. He seems to have the ability to pull down laurels for himself, winning, among others, an insurance essay contest early this year, second prize in a flag essay contest sponsored by the Elks when he was a freshman, and Wranglers Junior declamation contest last year. His favorite subject is civics (only he hasn't taken it yet). He migrated hither from Harrison Hill, "best grade school in town."

He was non-committal on the subject of femininity, but said he did like Virginia—ham (disappointed?) a la Southern. He isn't a freak, though he did mention two dislikes—getting stumped without words to express himself in the middle of an Extemp speech, and having to wear a tie.

Since he aspires to be a "radio and television engineering and research worker" he hopes to attend Purdue University. His hobby is radio, and he is practically an amateur operator. That is, he will be after he learns four more words per minute.

Another hobby is gardening—specializes in raising pop-corn and water-melon; in fact, "I raise the most amazing pop-corn in this end of the township."

French Schools Have Very Few Activities In Crafts To Vary Monotony Of Studying

When the school season opens in French towns and villages, flocks of little girls and boys in black cotton smocks, swinging their packets of books gather at the école communale, or primary school. The smallest boys and girls work together in one room, but the older ones who have advanced to "reading, writing, and 'rithmetique'" work in separate classrooms.

They sit on long wooden benches with desks in front of them. School begins at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and continues until 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, with two hours off for lunch. From the beginning these children are well trained in the speaking and writing of their own language. All in chorus they recite vowel and consonant sounds, words and phrases, under the supervision of teachers, so that they will acquire the clear enunciation and special rhythm of the French language. In the same manner they learn arithmetic, the history, and geography of their country.

Lectures On Courtesy

They receive lectures on politeness, good behavior, and their future duties as citizens. Aside from drawing lessons, there is very little work in crafts to vary the monotony of study. Once in a while they have a few minutes of gymnastics or go out in the school yard to walk around and talk during recess. Even at that tender age, education is a serious matter in France. One goes to school to train the mind and acquire knowledge, rather than to have learning made easy or to take part in outdoor games and sports.

Education in France is considered of great importance, so that for boys who are poor, but ambitious and intelligent, there are opportunities to earn scholarships which will take them on to secondary schools, or lycee. The school of the primary grades is difficult and uninteresting; there is only a limited number of sports and extracurricular activities, but compared to secondary schools, however, primary grades are fair. In the secondary school, life becomes one long round of study and they are in constant dread of final examinations. At the time a small boy of France begins to go to school, his profession, if he is to have one, is chosen for him by his parents. There is no chance for him to wait until his college days to make the decision about what line of work he is to follow.

Paris Is Center
The University of Paris is still a home of learning for students from many countries. It is a place for graduate students rather than for those beginning university study. A student is entirely on his own, he must plan his work and see it through on his own initiative. There are no school papers or clubs in any schools of France. Most of the French universities have similar courses for foreign students who wish to perfect their French. In many universities, also arrangements can be made to study in the regular courses.

Paris has always been a mecca for American students, who find their courses at the Sorbonne stimulating and their life in Paris a great pleasure. The American University Union in Paris is a great help to students and is a headquarters for young Americans in Paris.

The State system of education in

I'm really going to swing right into the dirt this week, since there is plenty of it.

First of all, Phil McKay and Marjorie Wickes who have been on the verge of going steady for months, have finally clinched the matter and now Marge is wearing Phil's pin. More luck to you—you're a swell couple.

I wonder why Delores Daniels is heard lately singing "It's a Sin To Tell A Lie"? Could that certain lad from Notre Dame have any connection with it?

Bob Hines, the glamour boy of the sophomore class, has attracted Eileen Hoffman and has added her to his long list of admirers. More power to you, Bob!

Roy Demetree seemed to get all worked up over Jewel Diehm, his steady, at a recent Halloween party. It seems that Jewel had a passing fancy, but it's all patched up now.

Sam Bacon is still squiring Betty Dale around town, and seems to have eyes for no one else. At a recent affair many favorable comments were made about the couple. It should last.

Marjorie Kaede is getting along fine with George Schaaf, a handsome guy from New Haven.

Who is the object of redheaded Howard Tyndall's affections? He admires her in geometry and history classes every day. It must be a deep dark secret.

Athletic girls have always held a strange attraction for boys. A few of the interesting Eleanor Holmes Jarrett

Pro and Con

If students would be asked to vote on the question of, "Should the time between periods be extended to ten minutes," what would the answer be? While we can give no definite answer, we can venture an answer based on a recent poll. Out of eighteen students who were interviewed in the recent poll, all answered in the affirmative. Would this new system be an advantage to the school or would it be a disadvantage?

PRO:
From a safety standpoint it would be a great help to the school. It would give students five more minutes to get to their classes. The building of South Side covers two long blocks which sometimes makes it necessary for students to run in the halls to make their classes on time. The halls are congested with students and jutting lockers. The result is that there are many unnecessary accidents happening. But, if the students knew that they had ten minutes to get to their classes, they would move with the crowd instead of trying to run through it. True, other methods have been tried to keep the students from running in the halls, the most popular being the eighth period method. But students still run in the halls to make their next classes fully realizing that if they are caught they will get an eighth period.

The new plan would allow the students to return to their lockers to get books for each class instead of making it necessary to take enough books for two or three classes.

Helen Fry, sophomore, when recently asked what she thought of the plan, said, "I think it would be swell because, due to the congested halls and the bigness of the school, it would give students the added time they need in order to get to their classes."

The new plan would also be a help to the teachers, giving them more time to prepare for their next classes.

CON:
The additional five minutes would have to be taken from the regular class periods. Teachers feel that the periods now seem very short and to shorten them would cause a great disadvantage to them and to the students.

There would be too much loitering in the halls. This defect would add to the already existing problem of congested halls.

Our present system of allowing five minutes has been in effect since the beginning of South Side and has proved satisfactory in the most crowded conditions.

Students, WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Senior Synopsis By R. U. Graduating

You have finally passed the brink of being tagged an underclassman. So now, students, gather 'round, fo' you have, and justly so, been bequeathed your own special space of publicity. This is explicitly and undeniably your column, seniors, and we hope you like it.

Dizzying heights have been reached when one becomes an ardent 12B, but it is quite evident that certain members of our male section do not choose to grow up. At least it is difficult to think otherwise when John Magley, Tom Thompson, and Kenny Warren sashay through the halls taking pictures of unsuspecting victims, literally speaking—An' it seems that in back of all their photographic efforts lies blackmail. Tsk Tsk.

There's something about out-of-town new comers, especially one very extra-special bit of pulchritude in the smiling, and incidentally very lovely face of one Mary Lee Kixmiller. Hailing from Indianapolis, we find this young so-moother already tagged by that inimitable Archer, Cupid. Roger "Playboy" Neff is the lucky man. 'Nough said, fellows. Shucks!

We thought it was awfully funny when somebody told us that swooped up hair, which is so emphatically, enthusiastically and energetically downed by various people was described as "a pompadour with a slow leak." And still they live! Don't ask me why.

It's nice work if you can get it, especially if you look good in a uniform. Many Archer seniors are seen night sluttish strutting their well known stuff ushering movie-goes to their seats. Milo Chassey, Tom Clapper, Max Magner, Bill Newhard and Eddie Reeves are found slaving away in our better (?) theaters. It must be fun not to worry about getting a seat.

Were you surprised, pleasantly or otherwise, when you got your senior picture proofs. Well, regardless, don't let it worry you. Many spooky countenances have been found beaming from The Totem leaves before.

May we present a geranium to Janice Dyer (it would look nice in her hair) for all of her elaborate drawings which she so patiently transforms into posters for many of our school enterprises? "Pinky" is headed for big things. We certainly feel that she is worthy of fame.

And about the cookie duster Jack Brazy exhibits. It has become a questionable debate among all better seniors. The question is, "Shall he remove it?" It seems these unruly hairs, all six of them, are bound to get in his charming way, especially when he does his broadcasting act over the etherial waves. However, this ad libbed crop of growth does add something.

Definition of the week:—Drop-kick, a method of exit from the Archer Swing Club.

It's time to begin to commence to end all this somewhat untimely dribble, at least for now. However, fans, we'll meet you next Thursday. Is it a date?—As a great poet once said, "Until then."

Courtesy, Promptness Are Girl's Demands; So Take Heed, Boys!

Time marches on; the stock market and the moon wax and wane; young men still go a-dating, but allowances, generally speaking, aren't what they used to be. We girls just naturally don't expect our young men to take us dining-and-dancing once a week, with corsages, caviar, and the fixings. In a way, we don't expect so much of men, but in the more important matters, our expectations have not changed.

No matter what the occasion—a sedate evening of parlor games at the home of a friend, or a New Year's Eve formal—the least a girl can expect is that the gentleman who takes her, also brings her home. She may be the type who swings a mean forehead drive and can crank a Model T without ruffling a curl, but she must still expect at least the minimum of feminine privileges—like changing her mind and being looked after, in a theory at least. Her escort of the evening should not leave her to her own devices while he retires to the coat room for a hand or so of poker with the boys. As long as he takes her to the party, he must see that she is looked after, fed, and generally cherished. And the man who fails to do his duty should be crossed off the date list.

Little matters of etiquette change from generation to generation, and mama's neighbors would have dished up a nice little mess of scandal if mama had done some of the things you do. But there are other social matters that are just as important today as they ever were, and you must expect your young man to help you observe such conventionalities, however musty they may be. For example, he should not invite you to a party at someone else's house without first seeing that you receive an invitation from the hostess. And you may think that it simply reeks of antiquity to speak to your hosts or chaperons upon arriving and leaving a party—but it's still being done, and by the best of people.

Then there are those young men who phone for a date about twenty minutes beforehand. Lest they get the idea (and it seems to come to them without much difficulty) that you were simply hanging on the phone waiting for the call, you should be firm. Even at the cost of sitting at home knitting, say you are sorry but you're busy tonight, and you wish he'd called sooner. Next time he will.

And then there is the blase young man who says he'll be over at eight-thirty and arrives at nine-twenty, by which time you have worn your feet out prancing the floor, ravaging your face, and ruining your coiffure by tearing your hair as you wonder if he's really coming or whether he has a broken leg or not? When he arrives, it's bad taste to keep him waiting. You should be prompt. Not too prompt—it's nice to work up a little suspense, and it's nice to give Mother and Dad a little time to get acquainted with the beaux. And—it's a good thing to have your entrance a climax, particularly if you're going to a formal. But ten minutes is plenty of time, even for your prettiest dress. If you keep your date waiting too long—well, you know boys have been known to stop dating girls for more trifling reasons than that.

Another difficult type of boy is the sort who indulges in the dance position known as "collegiate." This clutch provokes a crick in the neck and is also likely to hoist the skirt behind, exposing indefinite lengths of the slip. In such a strangle hold one can only say, if one has the breath, that the young man had better put his hand a little lower please.

A girl can be trying at dances too—when she expects her escort to devote every minute of the evening to her. If the dance is out of town, at his school, or his fraternity naturally he will introduce her to other men. And he in return, will expect a certain amount of freedom to dance with other girls. It never pays to object to your young man's pursuit of other young ladies. For there is no better or quicker way to lose a boy than to hang on to him for dear life. As soon as he begins to feel tied down, he will take steps to break the ties.

It is often difficult for a girl to draw the line between being dignified and being prudish. The "Sir-I-am-insulted" attitude went out with the Gay Nineties.

It is nice to have a man like you enough to take you places and do things for you, but you mustn't ask too much. And it is too much to expect him to spend his entire month's salary carting you around town, transporting you in a taxi, and buying you orchestra seats, chewing gum, gardenias, all-day suckers, and imported perfume. But courtesy doesn't cost a cent! And it is up to a girl to demand it; for boys are easy-going creatures, light-hearted, and good-company. And if a girl laughs at their bad manners, ignores their social blunders and forgets their breaches of etiquette, she is encouraging their boorishness and losing all their respect. Although men do like to have their casual fun, they are push-overs for the girl who keeps herself on the pedestal. And it is a smart girl who will keep herself there—friendly but a little aloof, definitely demanding that she be treated like what she is—a lady.

Commercial Group Offers Opportunities For Job Searchers

Pupils who desire to take to the commercial life when they go out into the business world, have a good opportunity here at South Side to receive necessary training.

A student in the commercial course, after taking two years of junior business training and bookkeeping, must decide which of the four branches of the course he wishes to take. The four possible branches are stenographic, clerical, merchandising and general.

The stenographic branch affords the student shorthand and typing. Typing is found to be a priceless subject by students who have taken it. They find that it helps in homework, such as the writing of themes. Most business men are in agreement that the office of tomorrow will be fully equipped with dictaphones and that shorthand will not be used. Perhaps this is true, but shorthand is valuable to students who wish to be newspaper reporters and to people who must listen to speeches or take down any rapid dictation.

Students of the clerical branch have found that the clerical training aids them in many ways. For instance, a pupil taking this training learns how to file, has extensive spelling training, and learns general office work. The study of business economics aids the pupil who desires to be a buyer for a large department store.

The other two branches include subjects which are helpful to business life in general.

Mr. Earl Murch, head of the commercial department, announced that some new equipment to be used in the class work will arrive soon.

At present the commercial equipment consists of seventy-five typewriters, a mimeograph machine, comptometers, adding machines and dictaphones. The pupils learn to use this modern equipment properly.

Students who are in their last term of commercial work learn to use the dictaphone and the comptometer.

The department here at school offers opportunities to students interested in any phase of the commercial work. The competent teachers are to be honored for their fine turnout of commercial students who have made good in the commercial world.

Clinton Bears Name In Honor Of Mayor Of New York City

Lil' ol' New York has a habit of bobbing up when she's not expected. The people who are living on Clinton Street probably never thought of the fact that their highway was named after a former mayor of New York, who later became governor of the state.

Clinton, called DeWitt by his parents, was graduated from Columbia College. He was mayor from 1802 to 1815.

Business men in New York wanted trade and realized that they needed a waterway from the Hudson to the Great Lakes.

Clinton agreed to this idea and when he went to the legislature, he prepared a petition for the construction of the Erie canal from Albany to Buffalo.

The people who wanted this improvement remembered him, and in 1819 elected him governor. On July 4, the same year, Clinton himself broke the ground for the first foot of the canal.

Traders talked over the idea of having a canal from Toledo to Wash.

With the thoughts of a canal here was linked the name of the man who had made the canal possible in New York. His name was familiar to all the pioneers who dreamed of good roads and canals which would improve the business of the section of the country then known as the West.

A memorial to the development of the northwest was made when these sturdy city builders named one of the roads Clinton Street.

On July 11, 1925, Clinton Street was to be widened and paid for by Allen County. In 1937 Clinton Street was widened and dedicated.

News Of Armistice Breaks Formalities Of All Newspapers

Twenty years ago when the glorious news of the signing of the Armistice reached America, the cogs of newspapers sprang into action to bring the full particulars to every eager citizen. This time the report was authentic, with the result of probably the tallest headlines in newspaper history (with the exception, of course, of South Side's capturing of the state basketball championship).

Headlines were mammoth, containing but one little word, peace. The headlines occupied one fourth of the entire page. Immediately under them, stretching across the entire page in italics of large size, and in no uncertain terms were given some of the terms of the Armistice. This occupied another fourth of the page; of course, as you can see, this was very unorthodox as far as newspaper typesetting conventionalities are concerned, but at that time, no one was particularly interested in conventionalities as the Armistice was the thing of the hour.

One particular feature of the paper, which happens to be the Logansport Daily Tribune, was that there were no continued stories. As important as this event was there was no necessity of referring the reader to another page of the paper. Instead of the usual single column of type, columns were all double. The entire page held but two pictures, those of Admiral W. S. Benson and Colonel E. M. House, leading men of the United States in framing the peace terms.

Pupils In Latin Classes Find Membership In Societas Romana Extremely Beneficial

By Jeanette Warren

"This club shall be known as the Societas Romana." Thus is stated Article 1 of the Latin Club constitution. For those of us who hadn't the foresight to take up the study of Latin, the constitutional name of the club is translated as meaning The Roman Society.

It was in the fall of 1932 by request of a group of Latin enthusiasts that the club was organized by Miss Alda Jane Woodward, now Mrs. Alda Jane Carson. Mrs. Carson, Mrs. Roy Welty, Miss Gertrude Oppelt, and Mr. Earl Sterner are its present advisers. The first meeting was held December 16, 1932, in the school cafeteria. The first officers of the club were: President, John Dern; vice-president, Richard Lankeau, and secretary-treasurer, Eugene Jackson.

Not All Wet; Not All Dry

The purpose of the club, as set forth in Article II of its constitution, is "to enhance the cultural side of Latin study and enjoy social activities." Interesting programs are arranged by appointed committees to further the plan pointed out in the constitution. For those students who have come to believe that Latin and all that has to do with Latin is "dry," a description of typical meetings is offered as disproof.

Very often speeches or plays are given which compare present day customs and manners with those of the ancient Romans. For example, a play portraying a Roman wedding was presented at one of the meetings. A wedding cake in keeping with the atmosphere of the entertainment was served as refreshments. Origin of our observance of a number of holidays has been traced back to the Roman period in speeches given by the club members. Valentine's day is one of these. At a recent meeting a play depicting the life of Julius Caesar was enacted. The members found it especially interesting and clever because of an enactment of Caesar's funeral procession in which committee members actually acted as the long-dead emperor's pall-bearers. Latin games and songs translated into Latin are usually a part of the program.

Begin Bust Collection

Several worthwhile projects have been undertaken by the club. Two years ago the club started a collection of the busts of ancient Roman celebrities. At present their collection constitutes two busts, one of Cicero and one of Caesar. Each year at the Latin Club picnic there is an unveiling ceremony. They intend to continue this practice until the club may boast a large collection.

Once each year a film based on ancient Roman life is financed by Latin Club, and presented at the school for the benefit of the Latin department. Titles of several of the pictures shown in the past are "The Life of Caesar," "Conquest of Gaul," and "The Last Days of Pompeii."

Membership in the club is granted to those in sympathy with its purpose, classified as 9A or over, a member of not more than two other clubs (with exception of honor roll students) and at least a B—pupil up to the time of joining. The yearly dues are twenty-five cents. The present officers are Gwendolyn DeWees, president; Maurine Seibert, vice-president; secretary-treasurer, Jane Bowen, and Inter-Club Congress Representative, Jean Fortriede.

Members Make Comments

Several members make interesting comments about the club: William Newhard: "Various kinds of derivative games are played at most meetings. This is helpful as a review to us students who have completed our Latin study."

Betty Bolyard: "Counting off in Latin numerals in choosing sides for a game is educational, but usually humorous. Most of us have only taken two years of Latin and find this practice very complicated."

Betty Neeb: "Playing charades, as we do at different meetings, gives culture to the Latin Club members and also adds enjoyment which helps to break up any formality of the meeting."

Fur Trims Coats

Fur on lapels of swagger coats or jackets are right in vogue this fall. Sable, mink, skunk, rabbit, seal, and squirrel are the more popular types of furs used as this adornment for their coats.

Fur coats are always worn by those who can afford them and new styles come out each year for those that want a new coat. These coats are made out of many types of fur, but when a girl is buying a fur coat she should be as sure as she possibly can be that the fur is of the type the salesperson claims for it.

Attractive Youth Won Admirations; Oratory Praised

On the 23rd of September, B. C. 63, in a house called "At the Oxheads," a child was born, destined to become master of the Roman Empire for forty-four years. This child was Augustus Caesar. His father was Gaius Octavius, his mother, Atia, and his grand-uncle, the great Julius Caesar. Augustus spent his infancy in Velitrae but at the beginning of B. C. 49, he was sent away to one of his ancestral estates in the country.

At the age of sixteen he took the toga virilis, and was elected into the college of pontifices. The boy who had three years before made a great impression by his delivery of the laudatio, which was an oration of praise given at his grandmother's funeral, again attracted much attention by his good looks and modesty.

Though legally he was a man, he was still carefully guarded by his mother. He was required to sleep in the same simple chamber and to perform his religious duties before daylight to escape the languishing looks of intriguing beauties. Thus he passed through the stage of adolescence. Augustus was in high favor with his grand-uncle, Julius Caesar. The devotion between the two men was such as a father would have for his son. When Augustus heard the news of Julius' murder, he was spending the winter in Apollonia. Immediately he rushed to Rome to avenge his death. This was the last day of Augustus' youth. From that very hour he had to play a dangerous game with desperate players.

Scare Up A Scarlett Is Current Demand Among South Siders

With all this controversy over who should play the part of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind," producers may end up by putting Edna May Oliver in the part. If the producer should ask about twenty South Siders whom they preferred in the part, he would probably be more mixed up than ever. At least, yours truly is at this moment in a daze. Notwithstanding, among those that were asked the question, "Who do you think would be best as Scarlett O'Hara in a screen version of 'Gone With the Wind,' and why?" Bette Davis was the most popular. The following were questioned:

Helen Gaysinger: Bette Davis ought to be good. She was swell in Jezebel. Maxine Athouse: If Katherine Hepburn didn't have such a temper, she'd be good.

Mildred Berry: Norma Shearer. She'd fit that part.

Lois Bloemker: Bette Davis. She was good in Jezebel, and "Gone With the Wind" is something like that.

Martha Thomas: Luise Rainer. She just fits it.

Gladys Reichert: Bette Davis. Gee, they're having a lot of argument about that, aren't they?

Gwen Roberts: Katherine Hepburn. She's that type. She acts as if she wouldn't be afraid to do anything.

Doris Siebold: Edna May Oliver. She'd be good. (How about Minnie Mouse?)

Eleanor Racine: Miriam Hopkins or Bette Davis. Either one of them could do it.

Mary Jane Rison: I want to play the part.

Ruth Hoover: I don't know, but I wouldn't want Norma Shearer.

Eileen Byers: Katherine Hepburn. She's flighty, saucy, and a real spit-fire.

Ruth King: I've nothing to say. Hey, is this for The Times?

Marion Feichter: Bette Davis. She's a little toughy, that's why.

Velma Connitt: Katherine Hepburn. Absolutely. She's got vim, vigor, and vitality.

Mildred Brett: Margaret Sullivan would be good.

Rafilda Laudadio: Bette Davis. I think she's best.

O'Lilly Kensler: Katherine Hepburn would be good.

Patty Lyman: Bette Davis is better suited to that part than Katherine Hepburn.

Marion Owens: Bonita Granville, but mostly Bette Davis; 'cause Jimmie Fiddler says she'd be best, so I follow him.

Lois Hagemann: Bette Davis. 'Cause everyone else wants her.

Archer Instructors Welcome Armistice In Numerous Ways

Throwing confetti, singing, dismissing of schools, parading, whistling, and making noises were a few of the celebrating stunts the Archer teachers did to celebrate peace when it came on November 11, 1918.

The following teachers did as follows:

Miss Mabel Thorne: We sang the Star Spangled Banner on the train to Pittsburgh. When we arrived at Pittsburgh, we went to our work. But I didn't work long as a group of women organized a parade. We paraded up and down the thirteen floors of the building. Finally, the whole group of workers went parading in the streets and walked over the cobble.

Miss Emma Doeherman: I was at home when the bells rang. At the first realization I was absolutely quiet, but not for long. A neighbor got a truck and a driver. He invited all the neighbors to come and join them in the celebration. Everyone had to bring a noise maker. My instrument was a big pan with something to pound with. There were no chairs on the truck. Thinking back, I think it was a rather crude way to celebrate. I believe now my real celebration was during the first few minutes.

Miss Blanche Hutto: I was in my last year of high school. The bells rung. Every one knew the Armistice was signed, so all the pupils were dismissed. All the pupils and teachers formed a parade. Everyone was yelling and throwing confetti.

Mrs. Lillian Scott: At the time when the whistles blew, I was working in the factory in Warsaw as a stenographer. The factory I worked for made war materials. We were let out for the rest of the day. I took the street car to town. Everyone joined in the parade.

Mr. George Collyer: When the Armistice was made known, I was working in a factory in Brownsburg, Indiana. After two false celebrations the real one was not quite as thrilling. People blew whistles and honked the horns on their cars.

Civics Class Hears State Senator Talk Of Legislative Group

By Jessie Freeman

"During the last session of the General Assembly of Indiana, over 2,900 bills were introduced," said Senator M. J. "Bruft" Cleary, Allen County's contribution to the State Senate, in a brief address to Mr. Wilburn Wilson's sixth period Civics 2 class, last Tuesday, October 18. "Some members introduce bills that have no chance of becoming laws," he continued. "For many bills, public hearings are held, for which notices of the place and time of the hearings are posted."

"A constant fight over the 'Full Crew Bill' with the railroads on one side and the laborers on the other, wages nearly every session. This bill was passed in 1921, repealed in 1932, passed again in 1938, and will probably be before the Senate this winter," he added. "No one can be sure of a bill."

Senator Cleary suggested to improve the sessions that the assembly convene for fifteen days and have all bills introduced, then adjourn and go home to study the bills.

He also described the process a bill must go through to become a law. He explained, "a bill is introduced into the Senate, which is presided over by the Lieutenant-Governor. The bill is then referred to the proper committee. There are now eighteen or nineteen standing committees. It then comes out of the committee for the second reading. After the bill is engrossed, it must be printed and placed on each senator's desk, and has the third reading. Then the author must take the floor and tell why his bill must be passed. The bill is then sent to the House where it must go through the same process as in the Senate. The Governor then receives the bill for his approval."

"This summer a special session was called to appropriate money to match the Federal expenditures, which was agreed upon by everyone and easily passed."

Gym Program Affords Boys Fine Training

State Law Requires Two Years Of Physical Instruction For H. S. Students.

Year's Schedule Attracts Archers

Louis Briner, Burl Friddle Direct Classes; Carnival Is Highlight Of Roster.

Many freshmen wonder why two years of physical education are required in high school. Before the World War, it was generally believed that instruction in schools should be directed only to the mind. However, after so many men were rejected as soldiers because of weak bodies, the importance of physical fitness was observed. For that reason, Indiana's legislature now requires physical training in the high school curriculum. Physical development as well as mental development is stressed in South Side. One cannot have a good healthy mind unless it is backed up by a healthy body. The boys' gym classes at South Side are under the able direction of Mr. Louis Briner and Mr. Burl Friddle.

Year's Program Developed

A well rounded out program for the whole year has been developed for the gymnasium classes. Squad leaders, usually fourth semester students, are appointed to take charge of a certain group of boys. He shows them how to play the games and takes the role; he learns leadership in addition to sports; there are different sports to fit each season. None of the smaller boys need to have any fear of competition with the larger boys, because there are two distinct weight classes. The lightweight division includes all boys under 130 pounds; the heavyweight class includes all boys over 130 pounds.

The first sport of the year in which the boys' gym classes participate is tag football. This type of football eliminates bodily contact as much as possible; that is, tackling and body-blocking are prohibited. End-around plays and long forward passes are the chief offensive weapons of this game. The boys in the classes that are rather fast on their feet have the greatest opportunity of scoring in tag-football. Much keen rivalry and excitement mark these contests played during the gymnasium period.

In the early winter volleyball replaces tag-football on the sport program. This game also provides intense excitement for the participants. The boys who have never played volleyball before soon catch on to the game and then they really enter into the spirit of the contest.

Play Handball
Midwinter finds the boys' gym classes busily engaged in playing handball, and wrestling, tumbling, and boxing. Handball is a game in which boys go to play in a specially built room, known as the handball court. They play the game in single matches or doubles and many hot contests issue forth from this room. Wrestling also is a mid-winter sport. Mr. Briner demonstrates holds and how to break them to the gym classes. Tumbling is a sport that every boy in South Side should know something about. The main object for including this sport on the gym roster is to teach the boys how to fall and not get hurt; all football players must learn how to fall down correctly and tumbling is a splendid way to teach them. Boxing is as well-liked by Mr. Briner and Mr. Friddle as it is by the boys. Knock-outs are rare, but plenty of leather pushing is done by the contestants.

Carnival In Spring
In the spring comes the feature attraction of the whole year for the gym classes. This attraction is called the Gym Carnival and consists of such events as rope climbing, standing broad jump, running broad jump, weight throws, baseball throwing, and backward jump. Eliminations are held during the regular class periods. The finalists of these periods then compete on nights after school to decide the champion in each event. Many fine marks have been rung up by some of the boys.

After taking gym for two years in South Side, all the boys should certainly have taken a step towards maintaining and keeping fine healthy bodies. Probably one of the best beneficiaries coming from gym work is that it provides a swell foundation for future South Side varsity material and many of the stars dashing up and down the gridiron, basketball court, and on the track that we see today got their start in the gym classes.

Off Tackle Slants

The Central second team didn't do so bad against Columbia City as they staged a five touchdown victory with the help of only a couple of the regulars who were resting after their win over Huntington the night before.

The second touchdown by Central Catholic came as a result of a tough break when the Archer second team was forced to kick on their own five-yard line. The kick was blocked and covered behind the goal line when the Archer forward wall failed to hold. This was the deciding score of the game.

Goes To Culver

John Bonsib spent eight weeks as a member of the Culver Black Horse Troop.

Why were Geneva Martin and Maxine Sterling the bachelors of the G. A. A. Halloween party? They made quite a hit dressed like boys.

Bouquets to Hazel Perry's senior hockey team who has not lost a game this season!

Come one! Come all! Help initiate the newly finished gym floor. Volleyball will be the first event played on this floor. With a bright new and shiny floor to play on we should be able to have a good season.

June Flaig, a loyal G. A. A.-er, returned her ticket to the Meterite skate to Hilda Schubert just so she could stay home with her "company."

Congratulations to Rose Stevens' speedball team for winning six games to capture the crown. Running a close second was team 4, captained by Lenora Mayor.

With the captains selected for volleyball there should be much competition. Captains for the season are: Jeanne Smith, Lois Thiele, Elaine Ferguson, Francis Nash, Betty Huffman, Pauline Werling, Marjorie Morrison, and Hazel Perry.

We are going to send the police out to rescue two of our ex-G. A. A.-ers. Two of our loyal deserters are Evelyn Kruse and Marcella Posse.

Herb Kenworthy Lauds Our Team For Fighting Spirit

Herb Kenworthy, proprietor of the South Side Grill, paused from his job of dipping ice cream into what was going to be a chocolate soda, looked up and said, "So you really want to know what I think of the South Side football team? Well, I think that they are one of the scrappiest ball clubs that I have seen in a long time. You know, no one can bat their head into a brick wall Saturday after Saturday without getting hurt (pause—more ice cream dipping), and South Side is no exception."

"Our truly stood by the counter, hungrily eyeing the delicious 'goo' Herb was brewing, and suddenly whipped up another question that ran something like, 'What has been the main trouble with the Archers this year?' Herb had the answer to that one almost before I could put the question mark in the question. 'The biggest factor in South Side's poor season is inexperience. Their isn't any team, regardless of the kind of material on hand, that can go very far without experience. Good football teams don't happen along, they are built up through the process of gradually breaking in the boys and by giving freshmen and sophomores a chance to gain experience playing in games.'

Yours truly then asked Herb his opinion of Coach Bill Moss. 'I think Bill Moss is a swell fellow (pause—now comes the chocolate flavoring), and he is also a good coach. He will not allow any slackers on his squad.'

I then asked Herb what he thought of the teams chances for a successful season next year. He said, 'South Side should have a very good team next year (pause—now comes the fizz water), compared to the team this year. All the line with the exception of about two boys will return next year and that goes for the backfield too. Of course South Side's schedule will not be as tough next year as it was this year. Considering everything, the football team should be a state champion just like the basketball team is going to be again this year.'

Finally having exhausted my supply of questions except for one, I decided to turn my attention elsewhere. But first I had to ask Herb, South Side's chances in the remaining two games. Herb grinned and said, 'If the boys show a little more offensive drive and play a little better defensively, they have a swell chance when they meet Laporte and Central, (pause—more fizz water in the soda). However, they are meeting two pretty tough ball clubs, and they will have to really get in there and battle.' I was at a loss as to what more to ask him, and so after Herb finally got the soda concocted, I decided that all the chocolate soda needed now was someone enjoying it. We ended the interview, and went out to see if we couldn't dig up a dime to buy one of Herb's delicious morsels for himself.

Freshmen End Speedball Play In Tournament

Rose Stemen's Senior Squad Captures Top Place; Margaret Kienzle's Is Second

Last week ended this year's freshmen speedball tournament, with Rose Stemen's team walking off with the championship. The members of this team all displayed fine playing throughout the season and won all of the games played. Margaret Kienzle's team 2 took second place with Orinda Braun's team rating third. The members of the winning team are Rose Stemen, captain, Betty Baker, Betty Bligh, Dolores Bodenborn, Mary Browning, Audrey Calder, Patricia Ehle, Myrtle Ernst, Peggy Greany, Thompson Hall, Kathleen Neith, Jean Junk, Phyllis Orr, Norma Whitesel, Betty Wolfe, and Helen Kraus.

Although everyone did not get the honor of being on the winning team, there were a large number of girls who received 100 points for their perfect attendance at all practices and games. Those girls were: Betty Baker, Peggy Berning, Betty Bligh, Joan Blum, Dolores Bodenborn, Elaine Boerge, Marjorie Boese, Orinda Braun, Lois Bremer, Kate Bultemeier, Bertha Coudret, Catherine Dinkel, Thelma Draper, Patricia Ehle, Myrtle Ernst, Peggy Greany, Thompson Hall, Phyllis Hess, Jean Junk, Betty Kammer, Margaret Kienzle, Betty Kargan, Marcianna Klotz, Marjorie Kruse, Betty Littlefield, Marilyn Loomis, Melrose Lyons, Clara Makey, Kay Marshall, Mary Menze, Lois Miller, Lenora Moyer, Kathleen Neith, Dolly Ormiston, Delane Rose, Martha Scheele, Sylvia Shalty, Beverly Smith, Dorothy Snarely, Rosemary Spore, Rose Stemen, Martha Stenler, Evelyn Strong, Carolyn Stalter, Vasilka Stephens, June VanPelt, Janet Wetzel, June Whalen, Norma Whitesel, Alice Witte, Betty Wolfe, and Katherine Zaegal. Those girls who received 75 points are Constance Bender, Joan Druhot, Audrey Evans, Edna Grossman, Marjorie Kaade, Helen Kraus, Eleanor Lambert, Audrey Longworth and Phyllis Orr. The list for those with 50 points is Kay Brownning, Annabelle Masterson, and Phyllis Mear. Phyllis Fensler and Marjorie Guy-singer received 25 points.

Senior Team Is Tourney Winner

Hazel Perry Is Captain Of Victorious Hockey Squad; Junior Teams Win Next Two Places

Hazel Perry's senior team won the G. A. A. hockey tourney by winning every game they played, four games. They won all of their games with good scores against their opponents. Those on the team were Dorothy Bloemker, Wilma Carrier, Velma Connert, Donna Dennis, Mildred Franz, Phyllis Kaiser, Marjorie Price, Mary J. Rison, Gwen Roberts, Frieda Schubert, Betty Showalter, Olive Zahn, Marjorie Shelp, Bonnie Taylor, Marjorie Stratton, Margaret Wittmer, Mildred Berry, Patty Lyman, Harriet Mann, and Virginia Sprunger.

Marian Feichter's junior 1's came in second place with 3 wins. Those on her team were: Wana Mae Bacon, Helen Becky, Dorothy Beyrau, Frances, Dickmeyer, Audrey Hill, Maxine Hunsicker, V. B. Goeglein, Betty Marquardt, Delores Menefee, Audrey Mutschlechner, Elsie Pederson, Marjorie Remeke, Caroline Schueler, Lucille Scheiman, Ruth Gebhart, Ruth Doehla, Rebecca LeFevre, Marion Feichter, and Mary Emily Seibt.

Marjorie Morrison's Junior 2's came in third place with 2 wins and one tie. Those on the team were Dorothy Amstutz, Mary J. Derck, Mary Griffith, Elfrida Hanke, Hertha Hoffman, Lois Jarvis, Helen Kesplhi, June Neith, Dolores Ulrich, Eileen Schelper, Eleanor Wittwer, Pauline Zaegel, Olive Zurburg, Pauline Werling, Ruth Hoover, Annie Hopkins, and Ethel Kurtz.

Winners Are Named In Speedball Tourney

At the end of the speedball tournament in the freshmen gym classes, laurels go to teams one, two, and five, led by June Hoopingarner, Martha Krauskopf, and Berna Pressler in the first period class. June Hahn led her team two to victory in the second period class. Team 5, led by Marian Seemeyer, Marilyn Sonders, and Lillian Sherbondy captured the winning honors in the third period class. Team one came out on top in the fourth period, captained by Thompson Hall. Placing first in the sixth period was team two, headed by Justine Coudret. Team two also won out in the seventh period class, being led by Marcella Batdorf and Betty Fremion.

Intramural Individualities

One of South Side's outstanding athletes is Charles Fiestkorn. Chuck is not only out for varsity basketball and will no doubt participate in track but is an outstanding intramural participant. Going out for fall golf and cross country, Hank, as he is called by his closer friends, made excellent records in each for varsity golf in one and setting a new record in heavyweight intramural cross country at South Side. His time for the mile and a third was seven minutes and fifty-six seconds. Last year because of a sickness in the summer Chuck was unable to participate in varsity basketball. Making the best of his opportunities he played intramural basketball and was literally the spark plug of one of the best teams in the tournament. We will put our star Charles Fiestkorn in our memories as one of South Side's outstanding intramural athletes.

Frank DuWaldt, another of our intramural individualists, is another outstanding cross country man. He won first place in the middleweight division for the mile and a third with a time of seven minutes and fifty seconds. Frank also plays varsity golf.

Donald and Edward Meyer, two famous intramural brothers, participate in nearly all intramural activities. The athletic brothers being too light for varsity playing had five teams in tag-football and basketball. Don and Ed are slated for their intramural letters before long.

Intramurally Speaking

Since cross-country, tennis and golf are all over with and the results and winners tabulated, we are ready to swing into the winter intramural activities, wrestling, boxing, foul throwing, and basketball. The most popular of all the winter sports is, of course, basketball. Last year the intramural heavyweight champions were the Thugs; however, this year the Thugs will have plenty of competition. They also have to contend with the loss of many of their stars who graduated last year. So this leaves a space open for a new 1938 winner. If you and your friends would like to get up a basketball team, get your squad together and sign up in the boys' gym office.

A great sport which lacks cooperation from the student body is wrestling. Probably most of us would like to participate in wrestling but deep down in our hearts we're scared of it. We're scared that we might get hurt in such a rough sport. But if you know how to wrestle right, wrestling is just as tame a sport as playing checkers. Now if any of you fellows are scared of wrestling but would like to participate in such a sport by all means sign up for this sport on your intramural program. It will do you good.

Although some of us no doubt put boxing in the same class with wrestling, it is entirely different. In boxing many of us think that in order to win you've got to show your opponent how tough you are, but to really be a good boxer you've got to have brains. You could be the toughest guy in South Side, but if you didn't know how to use your head you couldn't be a boxer. Intramural boxing is a favorite sport in South Side. So if you think you're another John L. Sullivan, sign up today.

Intramural foul throwing has always been one of South Side's most popular intramural activities. Foul throwing not only tests your accuracy and skill, but it's a good competitive sport. If you can make more "buckets" than so-and-so, you feel pretty good. Unless you carry this sort of competition too far, it's just what you need. It doesn't take any superior strength to be a good foul thrower, all it takes is accuracy and skill. So, for all around intramural activity which provides plenty of competition for large or small, by all means sign up for intramural foul throwing.

Intramural Group Lists Seven Victors Of Golf Contest; Hamilton Is First

Winners in the annual fall intramural golf tournament are Ralph Hamilton, Bud Tieman, Bob Robinson, Frank DuWaldt, Charles Fiestkorn, Thomas Hall, and Harry Feaser.

These seven are the only ones out of an original field of nearly thirty to compete in the finals of the tourney. Nine boys were to play in the final meet of the golf tournament; however, two boys, Wayne Stair and Dick Zeig, were not able to compete in the tourney.

The finals were held October 27 at the Municipal golf course in Foster Park. Eighteen holes constituted the finishing round, which was played on a cool and dreary day.

Ralph Hamilton took first place in the tourney which was conducted without referring to weight divisions due to the small number in the finals this year. Hamilton's score was 87, which will undoubtedly earn him a place on the varsity golf team next spring. The other four places went to Bud Teiman with a 92, Bob Robinson with a 95, and Frank DuWaldt who scored a 90. It is probable that these first four scores will receive consideration when the varsity squad is selected by Burl Friddle next spring.

Charles Fiestkorn with a 101, Thomas Hall with a 109, and Harry Feaser with a 113 came in next in the tourney. These scores will allow these players a chance to challenge varsity golf squad members if they are not regulars on the team.

Ed Reeves and several other seniors who have been out for the varsity golf team before will make it tough for the boys who won in the intramural to get places on the varsity squad, but by next spring several of these boys will be slugging the pill with enough gusto to win them a berth and a chance for a letter.

Miss Lucy Mellen, Student Staff, Direct Archers' Cafeteria

Many students have taken advantage of the fine foods prepared in our school cafeteria, but few of us have ever realized the interesting facts connected with this necessary part of our high school. A lot of credit goes to Miss Lucy Mellen, our capable cafeteria director and dietician, the three women who work with her, and the efficient student staff composed of twenty-two students.

A large variety of foods are offered on the counter each day, such as a soup, a meat or meat substitute, two or more hot vegetables, choice of three or four salads, two pastries, cake or cookies, eight kinds of ice cream, tea or coffee, orange juice, chocolate or plain milk, sandwiches, and forty-five kinds of candies. Of all these foods, tea and coffee are the only ones offered to the faculty that are not given to the students. Hamburgers and chocolate milk head the list of favorite foods, but baked beans, mashed potatoes, combination vegetable salad, and fruit pies are also popular.

When Miss Lucy Mellen attended the convention of the National High School Cafeteria Association recently, she found the prices charged for food sold in our cafeteria ran equivalently and under what other schools charge. She also discovered that the operating expenses ran two percent under that given in other reports and that the prices paid to the working staff the same. She also found less of our student body patronizing our cafeteria. The reason for this might be that some were compelled to patronize their own school cafeteria; with others it was a matter of choice.

Some of the things Miss Mellen feels are unnecessary while eating in the cafeteria are combing hair, and saving chairs by turning chairs back on two legs. There is more room under chairs for books and it is also safer than putting them on the tables. Please count change before leaving the cash register, she urges. The exchange on Canadian quarters is twenty-four cents. Banks will not take mutilated coins so the cafeteria will not accept them.

Archers To Conclude Grid Season With Tigers Saturday

Northern Field Will Be Scene Of Final Clash

Game Will Be Traditional Sort; Neither Green, Blue Have Exceptional Teams.

Central Favored Over Kelly Men

Central Is Victor Of Eight Annual Contests; South Side Triumph In Seven.

South Side's Archer football squad will wind up their 1938 football grid season against the Bengal Tigers of Central High School at the northern athletic field next Saturday. The game will have little bearing on the results of the race for the city championship as North Side has already topped top honors in city competition. The game will, however, be of traditional importance to both the Archers and the Tigers as they play the sixteenth game as friendly grid rivals. The Archers will be out there fighting to even the score of total games won in the past with Central. To date Central has won eight of the annual Archer-Tiger classics, while the Green and White have come out on top in only seven games.

Tigers Have Five Wins
Neither the Green or the Blue have set the world on fire as far as gridiron success is concerned this season, but this has little bearing on a South Side-Central conflict. Both teams usually rise to their peak of power in this all-important game. South Side has not seen the victory flag all season, having dropped their first nine contests. Central's record is a somewhat more impressive record with five wins against three losses and one tie.

In their game with the LaPorte Slicers last week-end, the Archers were again on the unfortunate end of a number of bad breaks; and, as a result, came in on the short end of a 20-0 score. The one bright spot of the game for the Archers was the fine plunging of Joe Bex, third string fullback, who spent the game in the line back, who spent the game in the line back, who spent the game in the line back.

The Tigers will enter the game as favorites to hand the Archers their tenth straight defeat. The Central line back, who spent the game in the line back, who spent the game in the line back, who spent the game in the line back.

North Side Wins, Central Is In Tie

Redskins Turn In Win Of Week; Tiger Squad Hits Deadlock In Game With Southport Team.

North Side's powerful grid squad continued its march to the mythical state football championship. This time they turned the steam roller on a game but outclassed Decatur eleven to win by a score of 25-13.

Meanwhile the Central Tigers were battling a strong Southport team to a 12-12 tie.

Central fought through a muddy field to cross the Southport goal twice. Central has been able to win or tie most of its games this season, more than one rallying to overcome a lopsided score.

Southport scored the first touchdown on the rain-soaked field during the first quarter after a 40-yard drive. Central retaliated in the second period with a counter drive to tie the score 6 to 6. Neither team converted the extra point.

The score remained 6-6 until Scheinberg of Southport broke away on his own twelve and with a spectacular run carried the ball 88 yards to put his team in the lead 12-6.

Again the Tigers took the ball on their own 40-yard line and drove to the Southport 3-yard line where the Cardinal line held for three downs, until Hanley drove over to contribute his second score of the battle.

The Peru-North Side clash was postponed because of rain. Peru is still a dangerous obstacle in the path of the Redskins.

The Redskins' second team proved their worth against Decatur by defeating them 25-13. North Side held the Decatur team scoreless until the last quarter when Decatur was able to score twice against the fourth and fifth string teams.

The Peru-North Side game was scheduled for Monday night, three days before the Redskins meet Cathedral of Indianapolis.

Junior Mathematicians Hold Halloween Party

The next meeting of the Junior Math Club will be held November 8. Betty Harvey, Neva Kirk, and Duane Shidler are on the program committee. Betty Harvey will be in charge of Mathematical Wrinkles. Duane Shidler and Neva Kirk will direct other games.

At the last meeting of the club, a Halloween party was held. Halloween games were directed by Tom Deel and Pauline Sheynhor. Jack Miller presented the arithmetic games.

Laporte Defeats Archer Squad In Ninth Game

Slicers Make Three Touchdowns In Second, Third Quarters To Win 20-0.

A smart band of Laporte Slicers handed the South Side football eleven their ninth straight grid defeat of their 1938 suicide schedule. When the smoke of battle had cleared, the Slicers were on the long end of a 20-0 score. Taking advantage of the breaks, the Laporte eleven pushed over three touchdowns in the second and third quarters to put the game on ice.

Playing Is Even
The first quarter was evenly played with neither team threatening to score. However, the Slicers got the first break of the game when they recovered Bob Ferguson's fumble on the one-yard line as the period ended. On the first play of the second period, Lambert went over for the touchdown. Mannerling's attempted place-kick was wide.

An intercepted pass led to Laporte's first of two third quarter touchdowns. Banks, speedy Laporte back, grabbed the pass in midfield and raced to the Archer 27-yard line before being forced out of bounds. The Slicers drove to the Archer 6-yard line from where Banks went over to score. Buchner converted by placement to make the score Laporte 13, Archers 0. A short time later, Smith blocked Biedenweg's punt deep in Archer territory. The Slicers recovered on the Green and White 28-yard stripe. From this point the Slicers drove for their third touchdown with Bachman scoring. The pass for the extra point was called complete because of Archer interference.

Archers' Show Power
The Archers' one shot of offensive power came in the final period when, led by Bex, third string fullback, the Green drove from their own 20 to the Slicer 30-yard line before losing the ball on downs. The drive was brought about by Bex's fine line plunging, cleverly mixed with aerials tossed by Englehart. The Slicers also made serious scoring threats in this period. They drove to the Archer 20-yard line and again to the Archer 18, but on both occasions the Green and White defense tightened to prevent any further scoring.

Joan Squires Finds Athletics Enjoyable As G. A. A. Member

The mention of potato salad or chocolate cake makes the eyes of one of the sophomores in G. A. A. light up with anticipation. She is known to many people as "Jo" and came to South Side from James H. Smart School. Yes, Joan Squires is one of G. A. A.'s most active sophomores. She has received her numerals and is well on the way to receive her letter. She has participated in every sport offered by the G. A. A. with the exception of swimming. Badminton is the sport that she finds is most enjoyable to her. When asked how she likes G. A. A., she replied, "I think it is swell." Joan recently attended the Kendallville Play Day with some other girls from South Side and said that she had a grand time.

Joan is taking the college course, hoping to go to college upon graduation from high school. She hopes to some day be a model secretary and an accomplished musician. Her hobbies are collecting stamps and playing the clarinet and piano. In considering her subjects in school, Joan finds that her favorite is geometry.

One Man's Family and the Lux Theatre are Joan's favorite radio programs, and Sonia Henie and Richard Green are her movie idols. As everybody else, Joan has a pet peeve. It seems that lead pencils and Joan just can't get along. She says that they cause her too much trouble. She said her most embarrassing moment occurred at a party playing wink. (We would like to know what happened, Joan.) If you haven't as yet met this G. A. A.'er, we say meet an all-around good sport!

South Side's Archer football eleven will bring their 1938 season to a close next Saturday when they take on Central in their annual city series clash. Pictured above are from left to right—Cook, left end; Loos, left tackle; McCammon, left guard; E. Ferguson, center; Roth, right guard; Close, right tackle; Goshorn, right end; backfield, Welborn, Biedenweg, Moorhead, Ahlsmeyer.

SPORTLIGHTS

Three of the football season's biggest and most important upsets came at once last Saturday as the Big Ten leadership was juggled around until Wisconsin moved into a tie with Minnesota for first and Northwestern and Ohio State were dropped from the lead. The red-jerseyed boys from the badger state came from the midst of a mediocre season to halt the Northwestern Wildcat march toward Big Ten honors by a 20-13 triumph. Purdue's Boilermakers, led by Lew Brock, smashed to their first win over an Ohio State team with a 12-0 victory. These points were also the first Purdue has ever scored against Ohio State. The Boilermakers outplayed the Bucks most of the game and out-gained them five first downs to ten. The other and probably the most outstanding major upset was Carnegie Tech's win over the nation's leading football team from Pittsburgh 20-10. This was Pitt's first loss since 1936.

Notre Dame continued its winning streak with a 15-0 decision over Navy. The midshipmen had outplayed the Irish until midway into the second period but with several sweeping end runs the Irish were able to break the stubborn Navy defense for the first time this year.

Up until their game with Boston, the Indiana team, without a victory, had outgained, outkicked, and recorded more first downs than any of its opponents except Nebraska, with whom it played a scoreless tie. This is just an example of the uncertainties of football. The Indiana team with a little backbone could have won all five of its games.

Many people have often wondered just how much actual playing time there is in a football game. Four Marquette U. students with stop watches recently analyzed a major game of their school's team. They discovered that out of this 60-minute game only 11 minutes, 45 seconds were taken up from the time the ball left the center's hands until the runner was tackled. Of the remaining time, 19 minutes, 29 seconds were used up in unscrapping after plays and getting ready for the next signal. The huddles for one team took up 12 minutes, 22 seconds to call 43 plays, while the other team played without a huddle and called 97 plays in 9 minutes, 34 seconds. Going into formations and shifting took up 6 minutes, 5 seconds, and 45 seconds were required to move the ball into 15 yards from the side-lines.

Down at Texas Christian they have another great passer in Davey O'Brien, who also kicks, runs, and calls the plays. He was the understudy of Slingin' Sammy Baugh, and weighs only 150 pounds.

Bill Moss To Count On Roy Demetre As Kelly's White Hope

Roy Louis Demetre, the fellow that runs with the ball like a combination Goldberg, Brock, and Sheridan was born in Valparaiso, Indiana, on the day and year of April 30, 1922. Roy started to school at Oxford grade school and came to South Side in 1936.

Roy plays right halfback on the team for Coach Bill Moss and the boys. He is only a junior and next year, only a locomotive will be able to stop him. Roy is one of the hardest running junior backs that South Side has this year on their ball club. He isn't very tall, and he probably weighs only about 155 pounds, but Roy is certainly one of the Archer hopes for the 1939 season. When he was asked why South Side didn't show up so well against North Side last Friday, Roy replied, "North Side just had too much drive and speed for us." Demetre also said that if South Side would show a little offensive drive and also play good defensively the Archers would have a good chance in beating Laporte and Central.

Roy's favorite subject in high school is English and Roy would rather have Mr. Maurice Cook waggle his finger at him than any other teacher. Roy likes Fred Allen's radio program, and he also likes anything to eat. Big mouth Joe E. Brown is Demetre's favorite movie actor.

Roy is also quite a basketball player. He has played on the reserves for the past two years. Of course, his real love is for football. He had a little bit of hard luck before the North Side game, having injured his nose during practice. Because of this fact, Roy was forced to wear a weird looking nose protector attached to his helmet. With his white helmet shining in the night, Demetre was a very odd looking creature on the North Side field last Friday.

South Side has not had a very successful season this year due to inexperience. But next year with most of South Side's forward wall returning and nearly all of their starting backfield returning, South Side should have a powerhouse of a football team next year. This year's team has learned the hard way by taking it on the chin so many times, but this kind of football is bound to pay off sometimes and with Roy Demetre as the spearhead of the Archer attack, all good Archer fans await the 1939 football season.

American Legion Asks For Riders In Parade

Tonight the American Legion is sponsoring a parade for Armistice Day. All high school students who have bicycles and can get their parents consent are eligible to participate in the parade. The high school having the most students in the bicycle division of the parade will be awarded five dollars.

Students are expected to decorate their bicycles in original ways. The person having the best decorated one will receive three dollars; two dollars will be given the next best; and winner of third place will receive one dollar.

G. A. A. Season For Volleyball Is Under Way

Four Well-Played Games Initiate Annual Tourney; Teams, Captains Named.

The G. A. A. upperclass volleyball season was started off in top form last Friday with four well-played games. At 3:30 o'clock on the south court, Captain Werling's junior 2 team defeated Captain Ferguson's sophomore 3's by a score of 38-16. Hudson, Neith, and Beyrau contributed most of the points for the winning team and Pressler for the defeated combination. Scorer for this game was Justine Coudret; umpire, Bernadine Pressler.

On the north court at 3:30 o'clock, the junior 1 team was taking a beating from the unconquerable seniors. Roberts, Showalter, Perry, and Schubert were prominent in piling up 38 points for the seniors; and Feichter and Allen did their best toward 11 points for the juniors. Nash acted as scorer and umpire.

The south court at 4 o'clock was the scene of a rather one-sided game between Smith's sophomore 1's and Nash's sophomore 4's. Coudret and Squires aided Captain Smith to score 40 points; and Bender, Nash, and Axt contributed toward the 18 points their team managed to score.

The real battle of the evening was at 4 o'clock on the north court. Sophomore team 2 pushed ahead of junior team 3 to win the game by one point, the final score being 26-25. This seemed to be a rather evenly matched contest with Menefee and Amstutz playing hard for Captain Morrison's defeated team; and Cooper and Wolf battled for Captain Thiele and victory.

The final selections of teams and captains for upperclass volleyball have been made, and the results are given below.

The first sophomore team is captained by Smith. Her team consists of Brower, Coudret, Dunten, Hirschy, Hoopingarner, Kensler, Labrman, Mailey, Mann, Martin, Michel, and Squires. Thiele, as captain of sophomore 2, has Cooper, Lyman, Myer, Hart, Michelfelder, Mischo, Markel, Nichols, Porter, Schoenherr, Staley, Sterling, Stough, Harrod, and Wolf on her team. Sophomore 3 is captained by Ferguson, who chose Boese, Grower, Campbell, Ellenwood, Fuhrman, Hahn, Hess, Murchland, Pressler, Sondles, Jackson, Van Curen, Jackson, Hankee, and Medsker. Nash is captain of sophomore 4. Axt, Baumgardner, Bender, Deel, F. Gumpner, L. Gumpner, Holzworth, Markel, Schubert, Snyder, Stein, Sappington, and Sheets compose her team.

Huffman is captain of junior 1. Dickmeyer, Feichter, Goegelein, Hall, Marquardt, Mutschleener, Schelpner, Seibt, and Allen make up her players. On junior 2, Werling captains Beyrau, Doehla, Herrman, Hudson, Jarvis, Neith, Scheuchman, Sprunger, and Neith. Morrison was chosen as head of the third junior team. It consists of Amstutz, Derck, Hoover, Junghans, Menefee, Ulrich, Witter, and Zaegel.

Seniors who are out for volleyball this season are Carrier, Chadwick, Connett, Dennis, Franz, Kaiser, Lyman, Perry, Price, Roberts, Schelpner, Schubert, Showalter, Bloemker, Wittmer, Bender, and Sprunger.

North Will Clash With Plucky Irish

Redskins To Engage Cathedral Of Indianapolis Next Friday In Home Game; Red Favored.

North Side High School's football team will engage Cathedral of Indianapolis next Friday afternoon. The Redskins will be favored to come out on top when they meet the Fighting Irish. Cathedral has enjoyed a very successful season this year.

One of the main reasons the Red-skin machine has clicked this year is because of the splendid playing of Everet Huth and Captain Frank Werling. These two boys have done some of the finest ball carrying that has been seen in Fort Wayne in many years.

The probable starting lineup for North Side is as follows: Beams, left end; Hill, left tackle; Scheibenberg, left guard; Gordon Turner, center; Young, right guard; Bordner, right tackle; Russel, right end; Gay Turner, quarterback; Werling, right half; Cowan, left half; and Huth, fullback.

Byron McCammon, Guard On Gridiron, Is Plenty Tough Guy

"Don't give me any of that clinging vine type for a girl friend," Byron McCammon emphatically stated when he was being questioned. "I like them straight forward and sort of plump." At this point, we thought the interview was becoming a little personal, so yours truly decided to switch toward other channels.

Byron McCammon was born in Sylvan, Indiana, on August 25, 1922. At the age of five, he started to school at Harrison Hill. In the year 1936 Mac entered South Side. His favorite subject in high school is history and Miss Mabel Thorne heads the list as By's favorite teacher. By didn't go out for football until he was a sophomore, and he really didn't become a star until this year. His consistent good playing at the right guard position has been one of the bright spots in the Archer line this season. By weighs about 161 pounds and he is five feet, nine inches tall. Opposing backs have found his position plenty tough to run a play through during a football game.

Byron spent all last summer working for the school and in his spare moments he managed to sail in some of the boat races at Wawasee. His favorite food is fried chicken and "Buck" Benny is his favorite program on the air. By hasn't any favorite movie star but he does enjoy a touching love scene in the shows now and then.

When asked his opinion of Bill Moss, By said, "He makes every man on the squad work plenty hard, and if you are loafing around in the ball game you surely won't stay in very long. I also think that he has given us what we most needed this year, and that was a fighting spirit."

Right around this time we thought it would be a good idea to put By on the spot, so we shot him this question, "Why hasn't South Side made a little better showing in the ball games they have played this year?" Mac took a deep breath and told us in no uncertain fashion that the chief fault with South Side was inexperience. However, he did add a cheerful note by saying, "The team is getting a lot tougher, and has shown a lot of improvement in our last game; some one is going to be in for a big surprise before the season is over."

Byron intends to matriculate at Purdue University when the graduates from high school. While at college he intends to study engineering.

Reporter Interviews Pigskin Pedestrian, Or Football To You

Ah, the life of a football! What a romantic inspiration is that. Yet a football does have a life of its own (or does it, I don't know) and a lot of iron-bound duty to unveil the private and public existence of our friendly pigskin pedestrian (with a floy-fly).

Often have we viewed that little piece of pigskin during a football game, or perhaps while you watched the players practice; but did you ever think of what happened to the little thing after hours? Well we did, and so we interviewed Pigskin Percy.

In this exclusive interview with Percy, we found that a football has feelings and all that stuff. On the question of the wage and hours bill, for instance, Percy raised a great fuss. He claimed that footballs were totally excluded from the lines of that document. Percy also said, "We footballs are certain ya persecuted lot. Every-one kicks us and throws us through the air and blows us full of air and rubs grease all over us and—well isn't that enough?"

Percy also told your inquiring reporter that a football may start his day's work at 8:15 o'clock if he is property of the physical education department, and continue on throughout the day, until school is over when he is taken out to the stadium and then is really worked on until about 6 o'clock. And in between times Percy claims that people stick a tube in his mouth and fill him with air, as if he couldn't breathe like a normal human.

At various times during his life people also rub a lot of goose stuff on a football. Percy says that they call it grease or something but it sure is a nuisance to him.

Percy also said that he wished he didn't have to work so much. He would like to be placed in a trophy case. "But what the heck, I'm only a football!" exclaims Pigskin Percy.

Gets Gold Pin

Betty Neeb, senior B, received her gold pin for getting 5,000 points as a reporter, proof reader, assistant copy editor, and an editorial writer on the Times staff.

Local Boys Star In Collegiate Ball

Ex-Fort Wayne Players Hold Positions On Big Grid Squads; Six Archers Gain High Berths

South Side and other Fort Wayne high schools for the year 1938 are certainly well represented in inter-collegiate football. Each of Indiana's big three, Purdue, Indiana, and Notre Dame have on their varsity former high school stars of Fort Wayne; other schools, both within and outside of the state, are also using our local material on their gridirons.

Jim Ellenwood, '37, former Archer star, is playing end for Indiana. Jim played against Wisconsin last week and made a fine showing. He got his big chance when he played as a substitute against Kansas State. Ellenwood in the Kansas game looked plenty tough defensively and he also caught several passes when they were thrown his way.

Dern Plays At Yale

Jim Dern, another ex-Archer star, is doing all right for himself at Yale. Jim played in the Michigan game and was really in there fighting. He broke through the Michigan line several times and threw the ball carrier for a loss. Although Dern is only a sophomore, he certainly looks like a starter for the next two years. While at South Side Jim was probably the greatest Archer guard in the Southern school's gridiron history. He captained the Archer '37 grid squad, which won the city championship; he was named honorary captain of the All-City squad of the same year. Jim also captured a berth on the All-State squad.

Ex-Archers Art Boerger, '36, and Dick Frazell, '38, are playing great ball for Franklin College this fall. Boerger, a 220-pound tackle, was moved to fullback in the Wabash game and distinguished himself by a 50-yard run and by also plunging a yard for a touchdown. Frazell, although only a freshman, shows great promise of becoming a fine gridder; in a recent contest he scored the coveted six points for his Alma Mater.

Bex Plays At Chicago

John Bex, ex-Archer tackle who graduated in '37, is also doing fine at Chicago; he plays the tackle position on the squad.

Bob Miller, who was a team-mate of Bex's while in prep school, plays center for the Purdue Boilermakers. Bob is only a sophomore and seems to have the center position sewed up for next year.

Steve Sitko, former Central star, is playing quarterback for Notre Dame. Sitko while at Central was an All-State man in football and basketball. Steve's only trouble in high school was his lack of speed; however he seems to have picked some up somewhere to judge from his percentage in punt-run backs.

Jim Morrison, former Central Catholic flash, has also been doing some fine work for the Alabama squad this year.

Archers Are Active While They Spend Two-Day Vacation

During the two-day vacation held for Teachers Convention, yours truly had a long siesta or a catch-up-on-his-sleep. When asked, "What did you do during vacation?" the majority of pupils answered that they didn't do much of anything.

Bill Whotzel replied: I attended a Boy Scout Rally. (Incidentally, he is the only Life Scout in his troop.)

Marjorie Williams: I went to the movies and a Halloween party.

Kenneth Simmers: I was on a farm near Monroeville.

Eleanor Tracoff: I was at a wiener roast.

June Whalen: I went to some Halloween parties.

Wayne Ludwig: I played basketball. Alison Arnold: I made airplanes and loafed.

Betty Medsker: I played tennis, went roller skating, and Halloween-ing.

Margaret Brower: I went to several parties.

When Olive Miller was asked what she did during vacation, the reply was, "I didn't do anything special, and I don't think anyone else did."

Visits In Cincinnati

Levon Schnepp went to Cincinnati and while there visited Station WLW, Coney Island, and the ball park.

885 Students Are Enrolled At Extension

2 Indiana University Non-Credit Courses Offered; Pupils High Scholastically

There are 885 different students enrolled in the Fort Wayne Extension Center of Indiana University this year. There is an eleven percent increase over last year in enrollments among credit students. The Extension Center offers some courses of a non-credit nature. Last year four such courses were offered; this year only two such courses are offered. Consequently the total enrollment in non-credit courses this fall is slightly less than in non-credit courses last year.

Many high school graduates from the three local high schools as well as out-of-town high schools are enrolled. There are 76 from Central; 49 from North Side; 119 from South Side; and 40 from out of town.

Students of high scholastic attainment have been attracted to Extension work. In a psychological examination recently given. Extension students rated higher than those on the average college campus.

Man yteachers, stenographers, industrial employees, and representatives from seventy-five other vocations are enrolled. Some students carry a full college load; others who are working, carry only a half load, while still others are enrolled for only one or two courses.

Many students plan to complete two years here before going to some college campus. Some are enrolled in pre-medical courses, others in teacher training, while others are in dentistry, Purdue engineering, nurses training, physical education, or social work.

Since inaugurating daytime classes last year, the freshman enrollment has increased over fifty percent. Many freshman students now may arrange to take most of their classes during the day.

South Side Rifle Team Is Victor Over Arcola

Victory crowned the first interschool rifle match for the South Side Boys' Rifle Varsity. Last Monday evening South Side met Arcola at the Archers' range. This was the first interschool match of the semester and was eyed with anticipation by all members of the team.

The teams' scores are as follows:

South Side Varsity
R. Hageman	99
H. Enslay	98
M. Kimble	98
C. Goebel	96
R. Theye	95
Total	486
R. Long, R. Hornberger, and C. Haugk also fired.
Arcola Team
Kuchner	99
Poinsett	96

Total	478
Prybinkowski, F. Butts, Foor, and Stanley also fired.

First School Program To Be On Air Tonight

The Fort Wayne School of the Air will begin the second inaugural broadcast tonight over station WOWO at 8:00 o'clock.

On this program will be a talk by Mr. Merle J. Abbott, superintendent, on "Education Week." There will also be a talk given by speech students of North Side High School. Letters of congratulation from John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, Governor Townsend and others, will be read.

Music will be presented by the A Cappella Choir.

This program will tell about all the broadcasts to be given throughout the school year. Last year 600 pupils presented 50 programs. This year more will be done in the field of educational radio. All students are advised to tune in on the programs. The Fort Wayne School of the Air to hear their friends speak and to learn what is going on in their own school as well as other institutions.

Musical Numbers Are Feature Of Wo-Ho-Ma

Wo-Ho-Ma Club held its meeting last Thursday, November 3, in the Greeley Room, at 3:30. "Mother Mine" was played by Elaine Koerber on her violin, and her sister Kathleen Koerber accompanied her on the piano. After this, the two sisters sang the same song. Betty Cary sang "Rose Marie". Dorothy Lankenau tapped to "Have You Got Any Castles That You Wanta Have Built Baby". Helen Wyss gave an interesting talk on "The Lighting System Yesterday and Today". Musical chair was played. After this, there was community singing. Sixty members were present.

The committee was as follows: Gertrude Merkel, chairman; Dorothy Allen and Helen Wyss, assistant chairmen; Rose Wyss, Marjorie Baet, Audrey Cooper, Virgild Johnson, Ruth Alldorfer, Carolyn Stalter, May Bower, and Joan Duttrere.

Torch Club Inspects Journal-Gazette Plant

The Torch Club took a trip through the Journal-Gazette building Thursday. There were six boys and Mr. Plasket who is faculty adviser of the club. They went into a room in which the teletypes were bringing in news. They were taken to the room in which the linotypes were, the guide explained how they were worked. The guide showed them the presses on which the funnies and daily paper are printed, and the mailing room. Last of all they saw the paper supply and then the library in which all back issues are kept, some of which are as much as one hundred years old.

Tours Middle West

Doris Stamets took a trip through Southern Indiana, Ohio, and Kentucky. She stopped at Bloomington to see the campus of Indiana University.

Bob Hageman enjoyed himself pushing an ice cream cart around town.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

Mrs. Welty's senior home room has about finished making out programs for next semester.

On an English test in Miss Pocock's English 3 classes, Martin Gernand made A+. Those making A were: Gloria Staley, Jean Weil, Sam Bacon, Edmund Bauer, Arthur Weidler, Mildred Hanke, and Lois Gumpfer. Others making A- were: Harriet Greer, Marjorie Roberts, Pauline Schoenherr, Patricia Siebel, Bob York, Dick Gallmeyer, Harold Grubers, Virginia Hill, Eva Jean Wyllie, Bob Wyllie, John Warner, and Maxine Case.

In Mr. McClure's home room, a Wiener Bake has been planned for November 11. The chairman of this committee appointed by Mr. McClure is Elaine Hirschy. On her committee are Dick Hamilton, Jane Swanson, and Nancy Hess.

Miss Emma Kiefer's senior English classes are memorizing passages from Chaucer. Some memorized translations; others, the original.

On a test given by Mr. Paul Sidell in his physics 1 class, the highest grades were: Roger Haffley, 96, and Donald Hensch and Eileen Briggs, 95.

Miss Covatt stated that the following students in her typing 3 class scored above 50 words per minute: Eileen Byer, 51 words per minute with four errors; Joan Kay, 54 words per minute with two errors; Sophia Kelak, 57 words per minute with five errors; and Betty Shedd, 52 words per minute with three errors.

In Miss Kelly's freshman English class, the following people made above 95 on a test over the possessive case: Betty Chandler, Betty Hayden, Helen Schotemeyer, and Thelma Draper.

Members of Miss Emma Kiefer's seventh period English class were asked to select for memorizing one of several suggested passages from Tennyson's "Idylls of the King." The majority chose the passage containing the vows of King Arthur's Knights.

The following people in Mr. Clyde Pierce's U. S. history 2 classes are making history book reports: Eugene Tigges, Age of Big Business; Tom Roy, Railroad Builders; Taurice Everson, Age of Invention; Doris Williams and Dick Warner, Rise of the House of Morgan; Dick Summers, The New South; Bob Klingner, The Armies of Labor; and Arlie Ayers, The Oregon Trail.

Miss Mellen's home management class has been studying social etiquette in how to order and price foods when eating out. They have just completed preparing breakfast, lunch, dinner, and while doing this work, each girl has taken her turn to act as hostess, cook, daughter, and host.

In Miss Oppelt's Latin 1, period 1 class, Sam Stark brought in an old copy of the New Testament, part of which is written in Greek and part in Latin. The book, dated 1821, belonged to Sam's great grandfather.

In Miss Dochtermann's home room on the social program day, Lillian Schweizer sang two popular songs. On Thursday, Virginia Fleming played two selections of classical music on the piano.

Mrs. Dorothy Riecke's public speaking classes are finishing their argumentative speeches, and are reading and having discussions on the debate books.

Miss Mellen's home nursing class has been practicing at home how to apply bandages in case of home accidents. In a recent test in that class, Rosemary Jones made a grade above 90 per cent.

The following students in Miss Covatt's typing 2 class have received ribbons for typing above 40 words per minute with at least 90 per cent accuracy: Loretta Rinearson, with 10 words per minute and 90 per cent accuracy; Barbara Arney, 44.5 words per minute with 93 per cent accuracy; Jane Brown, 42 words per minute with 93 per cent accuracy; Jean Fortriede, 41 words with 95 per cent accuracy; and Dick Theye with 44 words and 100 per cent accuracy.

In Mr. Louis Briner's home room, Helen Savage was elected president and Fred Schwier, vice-president.

Mr. Moss' general history classes have been making special reports on the military leaders of ancient Rome, namely: Julius Caesar, Gaius Marius, Sulla, and Pompey.

In Miss Pocock's English 3 classes, Constance Deel, Ann Johnston, and Charles Jordan made 100 on a spelling lesson.

In Miss Dean's home room last week, Martha Thomas entertained the class with three piano selections, "Perpetual Motion," "The Butterfly," and "Waltz" by Brahms.

In Miss Kelly's senior English class the following people made 90 per cent or above on a test over a prologue to the Canterbury Tales: Gwen DeWees, Dixie Lee Hanna, Ruth Kaiser, Sophia Kelak, Rosella Koehler, Velda Oppenlander, Margery Rapp, Margaret Null, and Della Rauner.

In Mr. McClure's home room, Elaine Hirschy was elected program chairman for this semester. On her committee are: Betty Koehler, Mildred Hanke, Bob Hines, and Bob York.

In a vocabulary test in Miss Oppelt's Latin 1 class, Dorothy Perry and Doris Radcliffe made 100. Others who made 90 or above: Ruth Gumpfer, Betty Medsker, Arlene Perry, Don Rietdorf, and Lee Smith.

Mr. Makey's freshman English classes have finished their study of "Ivanhoe" and have started "The Piper." His sophomores have finished "As You Like It."

Mary Ellen DeWood received A+ on a test on sentence unity in Miss Pocock's English 3 classes.

Miss Edith Crowe's health classes had a test over unit three. Those making 100 were June McAlister and Joyce McAlister; those making 99 were Jeanne Gumpfer, Joyce Harwood, Virginia Menze, and Ilene Briggs.

Versal Springer, a student in Mr. Cook's English 6, period 3 class, wrote a poem titled "The Merchants of Venice" which we should be thankful after the class studied a similar poem named, "In Praise of Common Things."

On a recent test in Miss Perkins' French 1 class, Virginia Fleming made 100. The next highest grade, 98½, was made by Clara Makey. Others who made above 90 were: Dorothy Feolinger, Carolyn Keel, Fritz Lohman, Joyce McAlister, June McAlister, Shirley Rubin, Vivian Semler, and Dick Warner.

The students in Miss McCloskey's English 3 classes, periods 2 and 6, have finished "The Merchants of Venice" and will study next the Three Narrative Poems.

Max Stobaugh, a student in Miss Smeltz's general history 1, period 7 class, brought to class a snout of a saw fish which is 150 years old and had been handed down four generations in his family. The fish was found in the Gulf of Mexico and is 40 inches long.

South Siders Know How To Find Rest From School's Toil

How to find relaxation from the strain of school work was demonstrated by the way numerous South Siders spent their vacation. Here is what some of them did:

Kenneth Newman saw Johnny Vander Meer pitch a two-hit game against the New York Giants.

Bob Peters spent his time at Clear Lake.

Fishing and hunting were the sports which Dick Powers enjoyed in Michigan.

Jack Potts took candid shots in his spare time.

George Moses spent much time fishing and hiking while at Wauwasee.

Bob Gunzenhauser was greatly impressed by the view from Buck Mountain in Pokagon State Park.

Annabelle Harrod enjoyed a trip to the Spring Mill State Park. The park is "made up chiefly of a colonial village, which contains many things of interest."

Warren Wyneken saw the National Air Races at Cleveland.

Mary Jean Michel heard "Knights of Song" at the Saint Louis Open Air Opera.

Homer Clemensen went to Boy Scout Camp at Sylvan Lake. He stated that several of the scout masters went to a formal dance at Rome City and nearly caused a riot, because "they were in their short pants."

While at the Darke County Fair at Greenville, Ohio, Lois Miller saw the radio celebrities, Aunt Ivy and Little Clifford.

Max Mitchell spent most of his time at the lake. Once in a while he went to Chicago to see "the Cubs get their ears pinned back."

Howard Miller, another baseball fan, went to Chicago and Cleveland to see the games.

Beverly Martin enjoyed many sports, such as swimming, diving, golfing, bicycle riding, and tennis.

Jennie Hacker learned to swim. She went to Oliver Lake and the Municipal Beach.

Jeanne Hench bettered herself in tennis and swimming.

Evelyn Hegerfeld saw some beautiful scenery while she was at the lake. William Whetsel attended scout camp and received the Order of the Arrow.

The Order of the Arrow is a national fraternity for scouts who are voted in by members of the different troops.

Dan Cummings states that he saw a most interesting experience when he saw an airplane crash at Lake James.

Nobody was hurt, although the plane was pretty badly smashed.

Leon Lahman played football.

Bill Mann went fishing with his brother.

Kent Lentz attended Boy Scout Camp at Rome City.

At Winona Lake, Shirley Seibert had an exciting experience. There happens to be a lion there which has been trained to ride a surf board.

While she was on the raft, in the water, in front of the cottage, she heard loud screams. She looked up and saw this very same lion running in the direction of the stores. Only after he had done much damage was he captured and put back into his cage.

Lois Briggs learned how to milk a cow and chickens and hunt eggs.

Annabelle Heckber saw the Rocky Mountains.

Clara Makey observed the growth of her brother's pigeons. The most exciting day was when the eggs were picked on the end. The next day a featherless squab appeared. She especially enjoyed watching the babies being fed.

Charles Machame visited the Dells of Wisconsin. This place was of interest, as the temperature changes greatly, as one enters Witch's Gulch, a ravine.

Juanita Litkons viewed the Garden of Eden, one of the scenic wonders of the world, and other natural statues.

Norman Jackemeyer worked on an automobile.

Kenneth Erbe had a rather bad experience, that of dropping four jars of pickles, but it turned out to be a happy one as he caught them all.

Joan Hess had the pleasure of being entertained in the broadcasting studios of the Merchandise Mart Building in Chicago.

Norbert Holloway had an exciting experience at Lake James. He was able to rescue a person from an overturned boat.

Bob Englehart and four of his boy friends started on a bicycle tour. They spent five days camping and traveling to different places. They traveled eighty miles in all.

Patricia Smith went to a corn roast by Muldoon Bridge. Patricia had a nice time, but her legs were covered with poison ivy.

Maurine Leas visited at a lake. Between boating and splashing, she learned the rudiments of the great American game of badminton.

Arnold Flaeg turned spy on us. Little Spylock's chief amusement was watching Bob "Casanova" Ferguson pitch the woo to Mary Armstrong.

Watching the South Side Whirlwinds attempt to play softball also kept him

From Here To There Archers Meandered During Idle Days

Pauline Werling got lost more than once in the great big city of Detroit. Iola Horn spent a few weeks in Chicago, Illinois.

Harold Altvater enjoyed watching the men in Spencerville, Indiana, build a new dam.

Bernadine Bender spent most of her time at the Municipal Beach.

Albert Speckman started a model airplane club.

Duane Wake took a ten day trip to Arkansas.

George Horner stayed at Wainwright's camp on Oliver Lake for a week. He says he had a swell time swimming, boating, and horseback riding.

June Holzworth went to Lake James for a week with nine other South Siders.

Doris Hübsh enjoyed horseback riding, swimming, and show-going.

Mary Lee Kixmiller recently moved to Fort Wayne, and she says she finds the people very friendly.

A house party was attended by Velma Lehman at the Tri-Lakes.

Clarence Marhenke went to Chicago and to Lake Michigan to see his brother who was in the navy and is training at the Great Lakes. Clarence thinks that Lake Michigan is the most beautiful sight he has ever seen.

Betty Littlefield played tennis.

Oliver Zurgrug visited in Fremont, Indiana. One day she, her cousin, and a friend hiked five miles to Clear Lake. They had fun seeing who could find the most dead turtles, white horses, and cemeteries.

The most colorful and interesting sport event in John Archer's opinion is the All-Star football game, which he attended.

Dick Brower went to Lake Tippecanoe with some friends on a camping trip. For one week they hiked, swam, fished, and took life easy in general.

Kirk Brown with some friends caught 25 fish from about four o'clock in the afternoon until 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Romayne Rediger visited Starved Rock.

Tom Shea played golf while his mother and sister were in California.

Elsie Rederson went fishing. Elsie caught only two fish.

Don Nolan spent a month at the C. M. T. C. camp.

Lois Hoff enjoyed life at Silver Lake, Michigan. She and her friends visited a haunted house, but they did not stay very long because of the weird noises.

Gerald Igney followed up a hobby of getting foreign stations on his radio.

Doris Feichter thought the unknown soldier memorial at Indianapolis her most interesting sight.

Katherine Stimmer enjoyed playing tennis.

Horace Curley went to Gull Lake.

Bertha Coudert enjoys her hobby of collecting samples very much.

Hilda Luninger redecorated her bedroom.

Martha Silver went swimming and berry picking at the lake.

Don Hire's hobby is picture taking.

Jack Parker spent two weeks at Camp Potawatomi.

Billy Morgan and three other boys hiked up to Big Long Lake. The boys stayed for three days.

Ellin Hahnhaus motored to Michigan City.

Robert Porter flew over Lake James and the surrounding lake country.

Caroline Schueler took a camping trip to Rome City.

Jo Anne Sabie motored to Pokagon State Park.

Don Walford thinks Niagara Falls the prettiest sight he will ever see.

No Rest For Evil? Then South Siders Indeed Not Wicked

If the old saying "There's no rest for the wicked" is true, then Archer pupils are good, very, very good, for plenty of them found rest in many ways during vacation.

Edward Turner spent most of the time playing baseball. The team to which he belonged played five games a week. Some of the teams they played were the American Legion Post 47 team and the East Side Y. M. C. A.

Dwight Davis, with four other boys, decided to take a trip to some lake. They took equipment such as tents, cooking kit, blankets, etc. They intended to catch fish for their meals, but it turned out that they ate beans for breakfast, dinner and supper.

Keith Coverdale spent some time on a farm. While he was there he saw a creek, pure white, whirling cloud in the sky, that had a tail which seemed to touch the earth in the east. He said he thought it was a tornado, but was not sure.

Pauline Childers spent several days in Ohio.

Dorothy Marschland spent two weeks at Crooked Lake.

Driving a tractor proved to be an interesting experience for Dorothy McLennan.

Keith McPherson had a thrilling experience while working on a farm. He was driving a load of wheat in a wagon which weighed about 900 pounds. The back wheels of the wagon ran over another boy's legs who was in the way. Everyone thought that the boy's legs surely would be crushed, but he escaped with only a few scratches.

Keeping tropical fish was C. Richard Diddle's hobby.

Mary Crick spent much of her time roller skating at Riverview Skating Rink.

Paul Dammeier had his greatest thrill when he won the Junior Boys' Tennis Championship.

Eugene Hofstetter worked on his grandmother's farm near Berne, Indiana.

Evelyn Kruse spent most of her time taking pictures and keeping up her photo album.

Hilda Lehman spent two enjoyable hours viewing Niagara Falls on the Canadian side.

Teresa Mary Kumberger visited River View Park in Chicago. Loretta enjoyed riding on the roller coasters.

Betty Fremion's hobby is raising different kinds of flowers and collecting various kinds of cactus.

Maxine Crago worked on her hobby, collecting pictures of movie stars.

pretty busy.

Bob Ensley slaved away at a root beer stand.

Irene Schultz enjoyed a journey through Southern Indiana.

Eugene (Jeep) Roberson went to Hemlock and Carpenter lakes in Michigan.

Jeanie Linn is another South Sider who learned to drive.

Jack C. Bush took a trip to the Shades.

Betty Burns took a trip through the South.

Irene Butcher took her first driving lesson and found herself in a ditch.

Harriet Root visited Lake Wauwasee.

Rosa Lee Hall spent six weeks at Lake James.

Melvin O'Brien enjoyed hunting in Northern Wisconsin and working on a farm near the Mississippi.

Dorothy Allen spent ten days at Lake James.

The success of the contest was due to the able and untiring supervision of Mrs. Herbert Rieke, its originator and organizer.

Social Scientists Give Fete Of Armistice Day

Dick Garton acted as master of ceremonies for the annual Armistice Day program which was given over the loud speaker system on Friday morning at 10:45 o'clock. This program was sponsored by the Social Science Club.

A record of "Stars and Stripes Forever" by Sousa was played to open the program. Richard Buchholz gave a short speech on "The Meaning of Armistice Day". At 11 o'clock all students were asked to rise for a one minute period of silence commemorating the signing of the Armistice, during which the band played "The World Is Waiting For The Sunrise". Judge Howard Townsend, former judge of the Supreme Appellate Court of Indiana, gave an interesting address to the student body.

At the close of the program everyone rose at attention while the band played our National Anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner".

Students Will Receive Book Marks For Use

Each student that withdraws a book from the library during Book Week will be given a book mark for his personal use. The book marks are white with blue printing. They are made of stiff cardboard. A picture dedicated to Book Week is on the front of the book marks. It is a picture of a book lying open and on the book marks are instructions on how a book should be opened. There is also a poem written by Hilaree Belloc titled, "Dedication on the Gift of a Book to a Child" on the book marks.

Of Annette Snoke

Anglo-Saxon Origin Of English Words To Be Studied Next Saturday; Slides Presented.

Members of Three E's will be entertained at the home of Annette Snoke on Saturday at 2 o'clock. The nucleus of the program will be a continued study of Anglo-Saxon origins of English words.

The last meeting was held on Friday, November 9, at the home of Phyllis Branning. The program opened with a reading entitled "Beautiful Words," by Annette Snoke. Exercises in synonyms and etymology were worked. The central part of the program was a study of parallels between Anglo-Saxon and German, showing Teutonic elements in English. It was decided that the club will have a group picture published in the Totem.

On Wednesday, November 9, Three E's, with the cooperation of the Visual Education department, sponsored the showing of a set of slides illustrating the origins of English words. The pictures were shown during the second, third, sixth, and seventh periods in room 108. The slides were displayed to twelve classes, including English, Latin, and French.

Hi-Y To Start Selling Pencils Next Monday

Articles To Be Pearl White With Green Lettering; To Have Basketball Schedule

Beginning next week the South Side Hi-Y Club will sponsor a school-wide pencil campaign. The pencils will be pearl white with green lettering. They will have the year's basketball schedule on them, and will sell for five cents. They can be had from any Hi-Y club member, and they also will be sold in Room 2 after school when the opening day is announced.

The committee in charge of the sale of these pencils is Andy Bremer, chairman, Chuck Haug, and John Magley.

A publicity committee was also named to take charge of publicity of activities sponsored by the Hi-Y. Aubrey Kellogg heads this committee and is assisted by Dick Olcott.

At the last meeting, it was decided to draw up a new constitution. This action was referred to a committee which consists of Morton Nahrwald, chairman, Dick Buchholz, Roger Neff, Maurice Lehman, and Jack Bostick.

Plans for a skating party were discussed and it was decided to hold this party some time in January. The committee in charge is Max Magnier, chairman, and Fred Peters.

All members are urged to be present at the meeting which will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. The new constitution will be discussed and approved. All dues must be paid at this meeting.

Junior and senior boys who wish to become members of the Hi-Y Club next semester are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Soloist Is Feature At Music Session

Miss Betty Arney Is Guest At Assembly; Orchestra, Band, Glee Club Offer Selections

Miss Betty Arney, guest soloist, sang the "Indian Love Call" at the music assembly held on Tuesday in the gymnasium. She also sang "Lamour Toujour." The band accompanied her in these solos.

The orchestra played "Rosamunde" by Franz Schubert, "Kunihild" by Cyrill Kistler, and "Petite Bijouterie" by C. Bohn.

The Glee Club sang "O, Lovely Clouds" by Mozart-Wick and "Piping Tom of Galway" by Fredrick Wick. The chorus sang "Oh, Columbia, We Hail Thee" by Wick and "In the Storm" by Durrner.

South Side's band played the following selections: "La Dame Blanche" and "Don Quixote." They also accompanied Robert Allen, a French horn player, and Albert Verweire, a flute player, in a selection called "Serenade." While the teachers, pupils, and visitors were making an exit, the band played a famous song, "Under the Double Eagle."

Philatelic Club Selects Theme Of Skate Event

Stamp Group Announces Committees For Affair; Full Charge Given Prexy

"Sugar Bowl Swing" was announced at a meeting of Stamp Club last night as the theme for the club's annual skate to be held December 2 at Bell's rink. Carlton Clem, club president, is in full charge as general chairman. Club members will be divided into two teams of Jitterbugs and King Kats in order to launch the campaign to be held during the next two weeks. Dave Slattery and Carlton Clem, acting as Jitter Bug and King Kat, will captain the two squads.

Other committees announced at the meeting last night were as follows: prizes, Maxine Hudson and Jeanne Snyder; tickets, Wilmer Bengs; chap- erones, Mary Virginia Russ and Rose- mary Spore; sales, Don Parkinson, Ralph Herb, Max Stobaugh, and David Slattery; publicity, Bruce Brad- bury.

Last year, Stamp Club was the first organization in South Side to inaugurate a plan whereby entertainment was provided skaters at the rink as part of the regular program. Since this step was received favorably last year, Thelma Pifer, Gerald Wullman, and David Slattery were appointed as a committee to further the plan this semester.

Use Radio System Next Monday morning over the new radio system, the King Kat and Jitter Bug will be introduced to the student body during the home room period. At that time, further details of the cam- paign will be announced.

Programs for the entire semester were given out at the last meeting of the organization. Covers of green card- board painted in gold were constructed by Wilmer Bengs and Max Stobaugh. In charge of the stamp ex- change which was held yesterday was Gerald Wullman. Assisting him were William Wolf and Ralph George. Don Hensch will act as chairman of the stamp exchange to be held November 30. Assisting him will be David Slat- tery and Bruce Bradbury.

Clubs Will Offer Support For Event

Various Organizations To Offer Twenty-Five Cents For Seasonal Decorations Of School.

At the called meeting of Inter-Club Congress, November 9, each representa- tive reported the decision of his club in regard to paying twenty-five cents a semester for seasonal decorations. In almost every case, the clubs have decided to pay this sum to beautify South Side during the holiday and festi- vity seasons. These contributions are to be collected by the representatives before the convening of the next regu- lar session of Congress.

The committee for the collecting and purchasing of perishables for Thanks- giving baskets was disbanded and is to help Joe Box assign baskets. Speaker of the House, Carl Hall, announced that baskets are to be made up com- pletely by the home rooms.

Inter-Club Congress is again enlist- ing the aid of every South Side stu- dent to make this year's Thanksgiving Basket Campaign a huge success. It asks that you give your full coopera- tion and support in filling your indi- vidual home room basket.

Meterites Will Hold Skating Party Soon

The Meterite Club would have a theater party some Friday night in the near future, it was decided at the Meterite meeting, November 15. The chairman of the party is Mary Bowby. On her committee are Mar- tha Scheele and Phyllis Fager.

Helen Savage, accompanied by Mildred Hanke, sang "O, Promise Me" and "Indian Love Call." A play, "A Wedding," was presented by Betty Bohn. The characters were Lois Bloemker, Gene Lou Harges, Gladys Foellinger, Colleen Glentzer, Bernice O'Brien, Ruth Hageman, Sally Hobbs, and Carol Trenary. Refreshments, consisting of cider and doughnuts, were served at the close of the meet- ing.

Central's Seniors Plan For Annual Class Play

Central High School's senior play, "The Charm School," will be held in the Central auditorium, November 18 and 19. The play is to begin at 8:30 o'clock and is to last two and one-half hours. Seats will be reserved for thirty-five cents, but seats that are not reserved may be purchased for twenty-five cents. No matinee is to be given. Tickets may be obtained from Miss Marjorie Suter, city high school drama instructor and S. P. C. adviser.

Songs To Be Learned At Next German Meet

Members will begin to learn German songs at the next meeting of the German Club which will be held on Monday, November 21 in the Voor- hees Room, to be sung at the club's annual Christmas party. All students taking German are invited to the next few meetings to participate in the learning of these songs.

Teacher Is Absent

During the absence of Miss Elizabeth Kelley which was due to illness, Miss Marjorie Michaelis acted as substi- tute. Miss Michaelis, a graduate of I. U., has never substituted at South Side and is much impressed by the good behavior of our students. She had just finished a two weeks' substitution at Central High School.

Make-Up Studied At Philo Meeting

Demonstration Given By Helen Wiehe, Dorothy Gerdom; Lois Rea Served In Prexy's Place.

Philo went on with its study of the drama in a program planned by Ella Jo Reed, program chairman, at the meeting held Monday in the Greeley Room. Carolyn Keel explained the Origin of Drama, and Dorothy Gore talked on the Elizabethan Age. A tap dance to the "Lambeth Walk" was given by Miriam Jackson accompanied by Virginia Fleming.

A demonstration in the application of stage make-up was given by Helen Wiehe, who is taking a course in this technique at the Old Fort Players. Dorothy Gerdom was used as a model and was made up to look like a cross, old woman. The first step in this process was the application of cleans- ing cream. Then a base of cold cream was massaged into the face to pro- tect the face from the grease paint.

Grease paint of a sallow hue was next applied, after which, by means of a small dark pencil, wrinkles were made. The eyes were darkened and made to look hollow, the nose was narrowed, and the lips were thinned. Refreshments consisting of candy bars were served, and the meeting was adjourned. Lois Rea, vice-presi- dent, presided in the absence of Mar- garet Null, president.

Education Of Romans To Be Topic Of Club

Today the main theme of the Latin Club will be How the Roman Children Were Educated. A class, composed of four girls who are to represent Roman girls, will be led by Mildred Hanke. These girls will answer ques- tions concerning the Roman school as to how it was conducted, what sub- jects were taught, and other like topics.

Several important business matters will be discussed. A committee will be appointed to plan a skate for January 27 at Bell's rink. Maurine Seibert, program chairman for the banquet to be held on December 1, and Rosella Koehler, chairman of the menu committee, will make reports. Also there will be a discussion of the Totem picture. After the business meeting, there will be a Latin vocabu- lary contest.

Wo-Ho-Ma To Give Play This Afternoon

"My Dear, Dear Children," is the title of a play to be given by the Wo- Ho-Ma Club at its meeting this after- noon in the Greeley room at 3:30 o'clock. It will be directed by Joan Earl and Patty Lyman.

The committee in charge is Joan Earl, chairman; Patty Lyman, assist- ant chairman; Margaret Geroff, Jeanne Snyder, Mary Demetre, Dor- othy Snively, Echedrea Behling, Janet Whetsel, Elaine Boerger, Wan- da Eller, Tompic Hall, Peggy Grean- erty, Marilyn Chaney, and Katherine Perry.

Last Tuesday morning over the ra- dio system, Jim Murphy and Miss Martha Pittenger addressed all junior classes concerning plans and what clothes to wear for the banquet. This morning, Jeanne Gumper, social coun- cil member, will address all juniors in relation to ticket sales. Friday morn- ing, Mr. Snider will address the stu- dents.

All juniors who would like to assist in making decorations for the cafe- teria are requested to see Miss Miller or Mr. Whelan in rooms 12 or 14.

Panels Of Seniors Will Be Mounted

Totem Photographs To Be Sent To Engravers Soon; Proofs Must Be Returned By Nov. 19

By November 19 senior proofs must be turned into the Jefferson Studio. If retakes are necessary, they must be posed for as soon as possible, as the senior panel will be made up by Thanksgiving. Even though a senior does not want to get pictures printed now, he must return the proofs and choose the picture he wants to appear in the Totem, and then he may order the photos later. All of the pictures paid for have been taken and to date there have been given each night, names of four students who have not as yet sub- scribed. The agents contact these stu- dents and obtain their subscription or learn the approximate date on which they will subscribe so that the circula- tion manager may follow up these prospects.

School Today Is Comparable To Government

Class Heads Compared To National Officers, Club Leaders To State Officials.

Have you ever compared our school to a government, our class officers to the government officers, and our club officers to the state officers? If you read this article, you will notice that they are similar in more ways than one.

Let us now compare our national president's duties to our class officers. The president's duties are to see that the welfare of the country is not endangered and to correct any difficulties that arise. The very same duties prevail for class officers. These officers are senior president, Eugene Schmidt; junior president, James Murphy; and sophomore president, Bob Hines.

Next we will take the vice-president. The vice-presidents of the classes are as follows: senior, Max Wagner; junior, Tom Gallmeyer; sophomore, Rebecca Abbott. The duties of these are to take over in case the president is absent and be right-hand man to the president. Our national vice-president has the same duties and one more. He is speaker for the Senate. But, since we have no Senate, this can be omitted.

The secretary of the treasury oversees all management of money and the national banking system. However, as we have no banks in South Side, our class secretary-treasurers must look after the money taken in or paid out. The class secretary-treasurers are senior, Max Spencer; junior, Ella Jo Reed; sophomore, Sam Bacon.

Now let us come to the club officers. These officers cannot be connected so closely to our national officers as our class officers can. One might compare them to our government, whose duty it is to look after the welfare of the state. This would apply to our own school club also. A few club presidents are: Wo-Ho-Ma, Lois Gumpfer; Junior Rifle, Dick Heide; Forum, Sara Jane Makey; and Wranglers, Dick Garton.

If one will just meditate a moment upon this subject, he will find that the South Side High School is really government on a small scale. And in it are the opportunities of a real government.

Many Archer Alumni In Collegiate Activities

Many South Side students have been admitted to sororities. Many are at Franklin College, Franklin, Ind. In Claire Chappell has pledged Pi Beta Phi. Delta Delta Delta has received Eleanor Monesmith, Myrtle Dulin and Phyllis Firestone; Ida May Frazell has pledged Zeta Tau Alpha. Of the young men at Franklin, Dale Hamilton, Robert Jones and Frank Belot have been pledged by Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

At Lake Forest, Ill., Hart Klopferstein, James W. Geiger and Gordon Victor Parmelle are members of Phi Pi Epsilon. Betty Lee Wilson, who is attending Hillsdale College in Michigan, has pledged to Pi Phi. Mervyn Bohne in Wittenberg College at Springfield, Ohio, pledged Phi Beta.

Ex-Archers Receive Honors At University

Manuel Rothberg, '38, recently was initiated into the Indiana University chapter of Blue Key, national honorary service fraternity. Rothberg also is a member of the Board of Aeon's, highest student tribunal; Phi Eta Sigma, scholastic fraternity, and the orientation committee; is junior basketball manager and associate business manager of the Arbutus, university yearbook.

Ruth Berning, '37, and Emily Gardner, '36, have been initiated into Der Deutsche Verein, honorary club for students of German birth.

Detrick Knight, '34, has been selected to sing second bass in the University's Men's Glee Club.

Scottish Rite To Hold Dance November 19

On Saturday at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, the second of the series of dances sponsored jointly by the Scottish Rite, the Order of DeMolay, and the Job's Daughters will be given. The dances are for the members of these organizations, their sons and daughters, and their families. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock.

The music will be furnished by Hal Denman's ten-piece band from Indianapolis, with Henry Sprang as vocalist. Mr. Walter Roemer is the general chairman. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the above organizations.

Teacher Asks Permit To Reprint Material

Permission to reprint certain material from The South Side Times has been requested by Mr. Dwight E. Mitchell, journalist teacher at Boise High School, Boise, Idaho. He has written a text book entitled Journalism and Life for high school and junior college journalism which a publishing company of national reputation wishes to publish. Mr. Mitchell has selected the following material from our paper for illustration of a type of journalism work: an article, "The Ideal Teacher," and facsimiles of pages one and three of the May 9, 1935, issue.

Seniors Make Plans For Coming Banquet

Plans for the senior banquet to be held January 17 were started at a meeting of the class officers last night in room 140. Any senior who has ideas for a feature for the banquet is asked to confer with any of the officers who are Eugene Schmidt, Max Wagner, Max Spencer, Janice Dyer, Nardine Mueller, and Eddie Reeves.

Ex-Archer Wins Award

At the national convocation of Northwestern University Bryce Minier, valedictorian of '36, won a non-competitive scholarship. The honor was bestowed upon Bryce for being in the first five per cent of his class on the basis of his scholastic average.

Once Again Trails Of Wandering Band Of Archers Shown

Just as we approach another vacation, we publish the final installment on what the Archers did during their last vacation.

Winifred Myers got lost in the mountains around Green Castle, Pa. Margaret Niblick vacationed at Lake Webster in Epworth Forest.

Phyllis Shirley made a trip to St. Joseph, Michigan. She visited Silver Beach. On the way home she stopped at Michigan City and Bourbon, Indiana.

Raymond Bower's hobby is building airplanes. He started this work in 1935 and now has forty-five planes.

Dorothy Lebrecht visited in Southern Indiana and Kentucky.

Mr. Flint recently gave a test covering areas to the pupils in his sixth period geometry 2 class.

Elizabeth Heed took a trip to Texas. Phil Hayner put in her time at Lake Wawasee learning diving and sailing. Dorothy Hall splashed around Adams Lake.

Carl Goebel traveled over the country and did a lot of loafing.

Robert Hawkins, besides building model airplanes, attended two National model airplane contests.

Richard Gents viewed the international and national sailboat races. Louis Miller stayed home this summer and improved the yard. He made a small pool, sowed grass seed, and also made a rock garden.

Delores Ulrich had an exciting afternoon while hiking to Waynedale in the rain. One of the girls with whom she was hiking almost mistook some poison for a weed.

Morton Nahrwald visited the zoo, saw ball games, yacht races, and speed boat races.

Building model airplanes isn't James Bunkle's only hobby, but he considers it his most exciting hobby. Mary Brinker was rescued from a sink hole at the Municipal Beach when she went down the third time.

Isabel Maze considered it a very rare pleasure when she helped a young blind girl across a busy street.

Jim Hume and his boy friend were on their way to the old Meane airport when they ran into a huge traffic jam and learned later that the Killian's fireworks firm had blown up.

Paul Kutsch went to the lake this summer. He and his friend spent most of their time hiking.

Earl Sweeney visited at his uncle's cottage at Lake James. The household of Earl Sweeney saw 160 acres of gladioli.

Jean Meads spent the summer at the lake with her cousins. They spent most of their time swimming.

Bob Adaniz had the experience of going sailing when the wind was strong and the waves high.

Alex Azar saw two persons killed in the Cleveland Air Races.

Ruth Brown spent her vacation in Indianapolis, where she climbed the steps to the top of the Soldiers Monument and could see for miles around.

Mary Bower visited the Carter Caves in Kentucky and saw the beautiful rock formation.

Dorothy Barick was taken to Celina, Ohio, to see the large reservoir by a visitor from California.

Willard Gater spent the summer helping his father overhaul cars.

Dorothy Barnes visited her grandmother in Michigan.

Arden Altman worked all summer at the Hillman China Company.

Dorothy Kline saw a train wreck at Huntington. A truck stalled on the railroad track where a passenger train was coming. The owner of the car was scared and could hardly jump from the car and run. The engineer tried to stop but it was impossible, as the train was going about 50 miles an hour. The train hit the car and was derailed. The fireman and engineer were killed instantly. Nobody else was hurt.

Mary Jane Fry considers her trip to Coney Island at Cincinnati, Ohio, the most interesting sight.

Audrey Mutschler spent two weeks in Michigan. Her family's cottage was situated on top of Chalk Cliffs.

Here's The Symbol Of Vacation

Since the Pilgrims took time off from their grim labors of self preservation to thank God for his goodness to them and to feast on wild fowl and game, South Side will take time off next Thursday and Friday to do its share of Thanksgiving and feast on turkey—we hope.

Gay Collegiate Atmosphere To Feature Junior Banquet

'Mid flying pennants and gay colors, all juniors are promised a taste of collegiate life at the "Campus Craze". From the raw materials, twenty-five or more hard working juniors gave many hours; and, as a finished product, we have the junior banquet which is expected to be a big success.

The clever and colorful decorations are the turnout of a capable committee under the leadership of Bill Blass. Bill says, "We think that everyone will have a grand time. We urge you to wear strictly collegiate clothes to carry out and further our theme."

The different tables will represent different colleges. Mural decorations will consist of a large variety of things pertaining to college life in general, such as charm bracelets, saddle ox-fords, bookends and jalopies. Such decorations will bring out the true color and activities which go together to make up collegiate life.

James Murphy, president of the junior class, in promising all who attend a good time, stated, "Considering how much work so many of the juniors have put on this banquet, it certainly can't help being a success. I think anyone who attends this banquet will spend an entertaining and interesting evening."

The enthusiasm with which all of those juniors who worked hard to make this banquet a success shows definitely that the highest of entertainment, decorations, and foods will prevail.

Ella Jo Reed, class secretary, stated, "We know it will be the best junior banquet ever. Everyone worked hard and I know it will be a success. I would like to urge everyone to come and have a good time."

Who should know better than these class officers? Plans for the banquet have been in process for about three weeks and actual work began last week.

Miss Hazel Miller and Mr. Lloyd Whelan, class advisers, class officers, and all of those co-operating juniors are to be greatly lauded for their many hours of hard work and we can be sure that these people have concluded that their hours of work were not in vain. We can prove this by attending the banquet and really seeing the finished product.

Construct New Platform
Construction of the new public speaking system was begun early this week in room 190. The platform is several feet long, and will aid greatly in public speaking classes.

Phyllis Geller visited Margaret Gross at Pretty Lake and then went to a house party at Lake James. She also spent three weeks at Ludington, Michigan.

Miss Elizabeth Kelley Talks On Recent Trip

Miss Elizabeth Kelley told the U.S.A. Club about her trip to South America last Thursday. She named the places that she had gone and described what they are like. She showed the girls her certificate which she received when crossing the equator. She described how the Panama Canal looked both by day and by night. Miss Kelley also showed the girls the remembrances which she brought back with her.

A poem, November, was given by Marjorie VanCuren. The committee in charge was Maxine Craig, chairman, and Marjorie VanCuren.

Attends Show

Marjorie Morrison attended Rudy Vallee's show at Chicago and also visited Field's Museum.

Potluck Is Staged By Archer Staff's

Members Of The Times, Totem Groups Hold Affair In Cafeteria; Skit, Singing Featured

Ninety-two Times and Totem staff members turned out for the potluck which was held November 14, starting at 6 o'clock in the school cafeteria. Guest representatives of the Northern- and Spotlight who attended were, of North Side, Rose Steiber, Omar Kenyon, Dick Till, Alice McGahay, Bill Gerhard, Dick Roberts; Central, Theodora Collias and Leona Zweig.

The after dinner speakers were Miss Harvey, Eleanor Vesey, Rose Steiber, and Bruce Bradbury.

Following the speaking, a program was held in the Greeley Room. Beverly Griffith read a "dirt column" in which all characters were supposedly fictitious. Under the direction of Janice Dyer a musical conception of Little Red Riding Hood was rendered by Margery Rapp, Anna Lou Kowalski, Betty Neeb, and Helen Banks.

The third part of the program consisted of a skit, the title of which was "Vesey, The Times Staff At Work". The characters in order of their appearance were Doris Williams as Betty Daniels, Dorothy Gore as Margery Rapp, Bruce Bradbury as Betty Neeb, John Magley as Bruce Bradbury, Bob Robinson, as the lone reporter, Dick Aronhalt as Lora Lee Montgomery, Jeannette Warren as Eleanor Vesey, Bob Gunzenhauser as "Ozzie" Eggers, and Beverly Griffith as Miss Harvey.

The community sing part of the program was under the collective leadership of John Magley, Max Spencer, Dick Buckholz, and Kenneth Warren.

G. A. A. Volleyball In Full Progress

Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors, All Taking Part; 738 Regulations Are Listed.

G. A. A. members are off to a good start in volleyball this season. Freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors are taking part in this sport. Since some of the upper classmen have probably forgotten the rules and the freshmen will want to know them, the rules for 1938 volleyball are as follows:

1. The order in which the teams are to serve shall be called the "serving order."
2. The shifting of the players shall be called "rotation."
3. A "service" is the putting of the ball in play by the player in the "right back" position, by batting it over the net into the opponents' court in any direction with one or both hands (open or closed) and while in position with both feet behind the serving line.
4. A "net service" is one in which the ball after striking the top of the net, drops into the opponent's court. "Side out" shall be called if on second serve.
5. "Point" shall be called when the team receiving fails to return the ball legally to the opponent's court.
6. "Side out" shall be called when the team serving fails to win its point or plays the ball illegally.
7. If the ball was in the air at the time the whistle blew, a point, if made, shall be counted.
8. The ball is out of bounds when it touches any surface or object or the ground outside of the court, except a player in the act of playing the ball. A ball touching the boundary line is good.
9. When the ball momentarily comes to rest in the hands of a player she shall be considered as catching or holding the ball. The ball must be clearly batted. Scooping, lifting, or shoving the ball shall be considered as holding.
10. The server may serve the ball a second time, if, at the beginning of her term of service, the service strikes the court or goes outside the court. If she fails on the second attempt, "side out" is called.
11. Each server shall continue to serve until the referee calls "side out."
12. A ball, except a service, striking the net or dropping over, is still in play.
13. A ball, other than a service, may be recovered from the net, provided that the player avoids touching the net.

Mr. Ora Davis, athletic manager, is in direct charge of season ticket selling for the basketball season. Students must secure identification cards from home room advisers before tickets may be sold them.

Intramurally Speaking

During the past week, the foul throwing tournament came to a grand climax with Don Strobel, Robert Hageman, and Tom Brower capturing top honors in their respective divisions. The heavyweight holder, Don Strobel, captured that title only after defeating the runner-up, Wilbur Squires. Strobel accomplished this feat by making 57 out of 80 buckets, while Squires was runner up with the score of 53 out of 80.

The middleweight foul throwing champ, Robert Hageman, scored 57 out of 80 buckets with Kenny Wollman close behind with a percentage of 54 out of 80 attempts.

In the lightweight division, Tom Brower hit 55 out of 80 attempts at the basket. There was a tie for second place between Dave Stietel and Dallas Zuber, both making 50 baskets out of 80 attempts.

Since foul throwing has closed for this year, the way is clear for wrestling and intramural basketball. The intramural basketball event is going to prove a tough contest this year with many tough teams competing. So good luck to you all, no matter what team you may be on.

All Students Should Indulge In Athletic Activities In School

Perhaps you are one of the few students in South Side who do not like to take gym. If you are, this is meant for you; and if you enjoy taking gym, this is meant for you, also. You see, I know that there are many people in this institution who would rather sit around in the gym than take physical education. However, that is the wrong attitude to take, because the course in physical education was designed primarily to meet your needs and to improve the health of South Side's students.

Physical education gives you almost the only opportunity during the school day to open up and get a bit of exercise. You can stretch in any class, but only in gym can you run about and really have some fun. And not only is this exercise fun but it is good for you, too. The different games and the calisthenics are all designed to keep you in top shape, alert at all times in class and out.

You cannot be on your toes if you feel groggy and peppy. Yet many of you "knock" the only way you have of getting rid of these two evils. You can wear out a feeling of that sort in the gym class; so look around, fellows, and get wise to yourselves.

Rose Stemen's Team, Betty Hargan's Win

Rose Stemen's team and Betty Hargan's team were the victorious ones in the frosh volleyball games Monday evening. By winning these games, they are ahead in the tournament with each team having won all of the games played so far. Hargan's team defeated Peggy Berning's team with a score of 58-20. Both teams played persistently, but the winning team came out on top. This was due partly to the playing displayed by Lenore Moyer and Jeanette Whetzel.

In the north court Rose Stemen led her team to victory by piling up 35 points to Scheele's losing team's 29.

Intramural Teams To Start Playing

Basketball Squads Begin Season; 25 Signed At Present; Is Not Too Late To Enter.

Nearly twenty-five teams have signed up for intramural basketball. These teams will play either in the sixth period league, or they will play from 5 to 8 o'clock in the evenings.

Several teams are entered in the sixth period league, these squads to play any day during the week the last period. Because of the fact that less time is available to play during the lunch period, fewer teams are planning to play at this time.

Most of the teams entered in the annual tournament will play in the evenings from 5 to 8 o'clock. This league will probably have many more entrants, because more boys can play after school.

Each league has three divisions, namely, lightweight, middleweight, and heavyweight. Winners will be decided within the next few weeks in every division. Members of the winning teams will receive intramural points.

Schedules for the games to be played this next Tuesday and Thursday have not been completed, but games will be played both days.

Mr. Louis Briner said last Monday that it is not too late to enter teams in the intramural basketball tourney. He also said that he expected many more squads to be entered. Some years a total of more than fifty teams played in the tourney. This year he expects about thirty teams.

Gridder Dave Roth Is Valuable Support For Archer Teams

Dave Roth is really making a name for himself in athletics in South Side so far this year. He is the brother of the great Jim Roth, who was graduated from South Side last year. While in prep school, Jim was a football player and a member of the state champion basketball team. However, if Jim doesn't look to his laurels, he will have to take a back seat in place of his kid brother.

Dave is really carrying on the Roth standard for the Roth clan in great style. He plays right guard for the Archer football squad, and he not only carries out his own assignments well, but he even helps the rest of this side of the line make tackles. Dave has played a whole of a game at the right guard position ever since he first broke into the varsity lineup earlier in the season.

Grand Archer Guard

Dave has just turned sixteen, and he is only about five feet nine inches in height. He weighs only 155 pounds, but he certainly proves over and over the old adage, "That the best things come in small packages." Opponents have found to their dismay that the right guard position is one of the toughest in South Side's line to crack through for any gains.

Dave is fairly fast on his feet, a hard blocker and tackler, and possesses a remarkable fighting spirit as well as the ability to absorb plenty of punishment. Coach Bill Moss will have little to worry about when he considers the candidates for the right guard position next fall. It will be capably taken care of by Dave Roth.

Stars In Track

Besides being a stellar football player, Dave is also quite a track star. He ran the 440-yard dash for the Archers last spring. This year Dave will probably run the 440 under the new track coach, George Collyer. But Dave's accomplishments don't stop at football and track; no sir, as if this wasn't enough, Dave also plays on the reserve basketball team. Last year he got to dress for many of the games. He should also be one of the reserve main-stops this year. Under the able tutelage of his brother, Dave should develop into quite a basketball star.

Although Dave is only a junior in school, he has already demonstrated a great future for himself in South Side athletics. Next year Dave should be one of the city's outstanding athletes, when he has grown in height and added a little weight.

Many G. A. A.ers are forgetting the constitutional rules that showers are required after every game or athletic activity. Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Dean ask that every G. A. A.er read the notice posted on the outside bulletin board.

Hazel Perry really seemed quite popular the other day. The reason? It was her birthday and everyone wanted to give her the customary "gift." They laid her on the table in the gym office, and I can safely say that Hazel really felt like a small child again. (Maybe quite worse considering the strength of some of our G. A. A. members).

"Give me my heel, or give me my head!" So said Marge Price last week. She was demonstrating how she would lead yells if she were a cheer leader when her heel came off. The rest of the day she bobbed along the halls. She didn't mind, for after all, she had brought out her idea of a yell leader.

The Lettergirls are getting plans started for the annual play day. The South Side girls are the hostesses this year to the Central and North Side lettergirls. The play day will be held on December 9 from 3:30 to 7:30 o'clock. Save this date, lettergirls, and plan for a grand time.

There has been quite a rumor lately that the dancing classes will receive three distinguished "students" as new members. You couldn't possibly guess who they are, so I'll tell you—Bill Moss, Burl Friddle, and Louis Briner! Can you imagine? Bill Moss has been talking very favorably about joining the dancing class, especially since he has learned that they are starting work on the ballet. We hope to see you dance at some pep session or music assembly, Mr. Moss, and what fun the seniors will have with you in the funfest next spring.

The seniors were not only hockey champions, but are starting the volleyball season looking like another championship team. They have won both of their two games so far this season, and really seem to know how to play that game.

Hurrah for Schubert!
Hurrah for Schubert!
Someone in the gutter yelled,
"Hurrah for Schubert!"

Some of the seniors seemed to yell this (they called it singing) every time Frieda hit the ball last Friday night. Maybe you win your games because your noises make the opponents nervous.

Volleyball Teams 4, 1, 3 Win In Second Set Of Tournament; One Senior Team Victorious.

In the second set of games of the volleyball tournament, the following teams won: Sophomore 1 and 4, junior 3, and the senior team. Four more games will be played tomorrow night between senior and junior 4; junior 1 and junior 2; sophomore 1 and sophomore 3; and sophomore 2 and 4.

In the first game Frances Nash's sophomore 4 team defeated Hertha Hoffman's junior 1 team by the score of 27-15. Helping with the scoring for the winners were Bernice Bender, Frances Nash, and Lois and Faye Gumpfer. The scoring for the losers was done by Audrey Hall, Mary Emily Seibt, Betty Marquardt, and Marcia Allen.

The second game was won by Jeanne Smith's sophomore 1 team from Betty Thiele's sophomore 2 team by the score of 35 to 15. Most of the scoring for team 1 was done by Justine Coudret, Sarah Makey, and Jeanne Smith. Scoring the majority of the 15 points for the losers were Betty Mischo, Helen Fry, and Betty Wolfe. The scorer was Geneva Martin, and the umpire was Betty Medsker.

Seniors Defeat Juniors
The third game was won by the seniors from the junior 2 team by the score of 27-24. Margery Price led in the scoring for the seniors. She was assisted by Betty Showalter, Hazel Perry, Gwen Roberts, and Frieda Schubert. Lois Jarvis led in the scoring for the losers. She was also assisted by Ruth Doehla, Lucille Scheumann, and Maxine Hudson. The scorer for this game was Mary Ellen Dunten, and the umpire was Bernice Bender.

The final game was won by the junior 3 team by the score of 35-24. The leading scorers for this final game were Ruth Fuhrman, Mildred Hanke, Elaine Ferguson, Lois Campbell, Dolores Menefee, Miriam Rarick, and Betty Griffith.

Dance Classes Give Review Of Studies

The combined classes of Miss Gretchen Smith and Miss Alice Dean met in room 26 Friday for a dance recital. Each class presented the dances that they had learned so far this year. The dances presented were all modern studies. The arm and leg swings were presented first, followed by a Hawaiian number. Then a primitive number with the drum was featured. Last, the classes combined for a modern study called Valse Mystique.

Thompie Hall, 9B, Is Active G.A.A.'er, Charming Person

Aside from being an active G. A. A.er, Thompsie Hall is a very remarkable girl. She doesn't mind in the least following in the footsteps of her big, little sister, Audrey. Her favorite appetizers, of all things, are liver and cauliflower! The most peculiar thing about her is that she actually likes school, and her favorite subject is Latin.

However, taken with or without these oddities, Thompsie is undoubtedly a charming, likeable personality. There is only one thing you can do to arouse her temper. That is to either spell or pronounce her name as Top-sie, the little character in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

She says she likes brunette boys rather well, although the color of hair really isn't a very important factor. She demonstrates this preference in choosing Richard Greene as her favorite cinema actor. She also chooses Sonia Heine as the fairest of her class.

Thompie has been at South Side only one semester; but when asked her opinion of the Alma Mater, she puts all of her feeling into one emphatic word—"good!" Thompsie honored James H. Smart school with her presence before coming to South Side last January. She is taking a college course to prepare her for a career as a nurse. She is domestic in other ways too. Hobbies and pastimes all take the form of knitting for Thompsie. She has just finished a lovely, fluffy angora sweater in her favorite color of blue, which, unfortunately, sister Audrey also admires.

Friends of Thompsie call her Tommy. But, as is hinted above, Tommy is not as boyish as her name would indicate. Tommy is enthusiastic about tennis, ice-skating, and swimming. She attends all the football and basketball games and admires big Jim Glass.

This brown-haired, blue-eyed youngster is smart as well as cute. She is active in Meterites and Wo-Ho-Ma, is freshman representative in G. A. A. executive meetings, and a secretary of the Girl Scouts. Writing from the standpoint of an old and experienced senior, we predict an interesting future for an interesting girl.

Next Year's Archer Grid Squad To Face Tough Schedule

New Program Is To Include Bluffton Team

Woodburn Of Toledo, North Side, Central, Irish Are Also On Football List. Comeback Slated In Ensuing Season. Coach Moss Has Been Looking Ahead In Bringing New Material In Shape.

Next year's Archer football squad will again be confronted with a tough season's schedule. Although the 1939 football schedule is only half completed, there appears to be no let up on the Archer gridgers.

To date there has been only one new foe placed upon the Archer schedule. This team is Bluffton, which has not appeared on a Green and White schedule since 1934. Woodward of Toledo, which has beaten the Archers twice in their two clashes, has also been placed on next season's schedule. South Side first played Woodward in 1937 and were beaten 7-0. This year the Toledo squad defeated the Archers by a 20-7 score. Other teams which have been scheduled for 1939 are North Side, Central, and Central Catholic. Each of these city schools defeated the Archers in their 1938 season.

Comeback Is Slated

Next year the Archers, under the able direction of Coach Moss, are slated for a gridiron comeback. Throughout this year's season, Moss has concentrated on building for 1939. He has personally developed many underclassmen prospects who should be plenty tough next season. The Archers will put an experienced line on the field which will be backed up by a capable backfield. LeRoy Cook, this year's captain and Kenworthy trophy winner, heads the list of those returning. He will play end for the Archers. Blackie Braden looms as the best bet to fill the other end position. At tackle Coach Moss has Chuck Close, Joe Loos, and Bill Steup, each of whom saw action this season. McCammon, Shultz, Roth, and Steury are the most promising candidates for guard positions, with McCammon and Roth having the most experience. Byron Ginzler is the one returning center prospect.

Backfield Men Named

The backfield will again be piloted by Stu Welborn, who will be playing his third season on the Archer varsity. Other backfield men returning are Ralph Saalfeld, Ralph Shimer, Roy DeMetre, Bob Englehart, Bob Ferguson, and Jim Fatheree. A fine backfield should be the result of the combined efforts of the boys mentioned above. Archer prospects for 1939 are definitely on the upgrade. Experience is the reason.

The incomplete schedule for the 1939 grid season is as follows:

September 16—Open
September 22—Bluffton—There.
September 30—Woodward—Here.
October 7—Open.
October 14—Open.
October 21—Central Catholic—Here.
October 28—North Side—Here.
November 4—Open.
November 11—Central—Here.

Redskins Defeated By Cathedral, 18-6

North Side's Hope To Be State Champions Crushed; Passing Plays Major Part In Defeat.

Passing played a major part in the defeat of the Redskins, 18-6, by Cathedral of Indianapolis last Friday and the crushing of their hopes for the state championship. A pass was responsible for the only touchdown made by the Redskins. Not only were the three touchdowns recorded by Cathedral the result of passes, but interceptions kept the Northerners from completing long drives with which the Redskins have been so successful this year.

Fate seemed to have decided against North Side; and although the Redskins fought hard, they were unable to click.

Having been through a drubbing battle with Peru on three days before, the Northerners were probably not in top performing condition.

Indianapolis was the first to chalk up six points. Moxey caught the Red defense flat-footed on a thirty-yard pass to O'Brien who ran over from the five.

Redskins Retaliate

The Redskins gamely retaliated. The ball was downed by North Side after the kick-off on their own 30-yard line. Cowan broke loose with a pass from Werling to go fifty eight yards for six points for Fort Wayne.

Still in the second quarter Moxley again slipped a pass over the goal line to O'Brien, who made a beautiful catch despite the fact he was covered by two North Siders. The extra point was again missed and the half ended with the score Cathedral 12, North Side 6.

The Indianapolis eleven quickly cinched the game early in the third quarter. Calderon, brilliant Cathedral quarterback, galloped forty-eight yards through the Redskin defense, returning a Red kick-off. Werling finally tackled him on the Redskin 42. This time Cathedral shook Bauer loose with a lateral from Moxley. Bauer lugged the ball the remaining yards for the third Cathedral score and the final score of the game.

Burly Burl Boasts Another Brigade

Mr. Burl Friddle

Coach Burl Friddle started practice early this month on this season's basketball brigade in preparation for the Archers' opening clash with Kendallville December 2. The Kelly's prestige will be at stake, since this will be the first net clash since South Side's championship team annexed the state tournament crown at Butler Fieldhouse early last spring.

SPORTLIGHTS

Notre Dame seems bent on making this season more successful than last year's. Trampling over a stiff Minnesota team to the tune of 19-0, the South Bend squad sent their stock soaring.

It is very difficult to predict Rose Bowl contestants these days since the mix-ups of last year caused even the experts many headaches. However, if things go right, we expect to see Notre Dame in the New Year's classic.

Franklin College, upon the opening of their net season, will perhaps find some of the former South Side netters on their squad. Don Reichert, Dick Frazell, Dale Hamilton, and Frank Belot are those trying to crash the gates of the Franklin five.

The Northwestern eleven tied a strong Michigan squad to come out of a tough battle 0-0 to remain undefeated so far this season. Next week they meet an acid test in the form of an also undefeated Notre Dame team. This game is expected to be one for the book since Northwestern's eleven will match speed and power against the mighty man power of Notre Dame.

North Side's supposedly unbeatable football eleven has finally been knocked unquestionably and unceremoniously from the throne of the mythical state football championship. The role of giant killer was played by a hard-fighting band of Irish from Cathedral of Indianapolis, who passed their way to an 18-6 victory over the highly-touted Redskins. The defeat must have been quite a shock to the illustrious Philip Olofson, the Redskin's number one builder-upper, who seems quite determined that the North Side varsity should make up the All-City squad. Don't take it so hard, Phil; you can't win 'em all (don't we know it!).

Despite the fact that South Side has not won a game this season, there is the general feeling throughout the school and among Archer fans that this year's team has accomplished something which many of the others have failed to do. The Archer gridgers developed a fighting spirit which they never lost, even in defeat. From the opening whistle to the final gun, every one of the South Side players gave all he had. What more can anyone ask? After all, this is the real objective of any high school athletic event.

Injuries once again stalked the Archers' trail in their game with Central. Joe Bex, who had developed into a fine runner, was bothered by a recurrence of a shoulder injury which he received in the Laporte game. Bex, who had been playing good ball against the Tigers, was forced to the sidelines early in the third quarter. Dick Goshorn was the other victim of

Archers Close Gridiron Year With No Wins

Blue Team Trounce Kelly Klads By 47-0 Score In Final Contest Of Season.

A band of hard fighting Bengal Tigers handed the South Side Archers their tenth consecutive gridiron defeat last Saturday at the North Side athletic field. When the smoke of battle had cleared, the Archers were on the short end of a 47-0 score. The victory was Central's ninth of the sixteen annual contests between the two city rivals.

It was also the most overpowering of the sixteen game series. The Archers had previously held this distinction, for way back in 1934 a Green and White aggregation mopped up the downtown school 45-0, which up until Saturday was the most decisive victory on register.

Central lost no time in getting into the lead. Early in the first quarter, using their deceptive spread formation, the Tigers marched 65 yards to score. The drive was led by Bill Hanley, who ultimately scored on a 17-yard end run from the spread formation. Kulesza accounted for the extra point from placement. Again in the second period the Blue got a sustained drive underway from deep in their own territory. With Hanley and Kulesza carrying, they marched to the South Side 3-yard stripe where Hanley went over for the second Tiger touchdown. Kulesza again placed-kicked the extra point. In this quarter the Archers showed streaks of offensive power pushing through several first downs. However, the fact remains that they don't pay off for first downs, and so the half ended with Central holding a 14-0 lead.

The Bengals continued their rampage in the second half when Hanley made a 30-yard return of an Archer punt and a moment later Hanley went over to score from the 9-yard line. Once again Kulesza place-kicked the extra point.

Redskins Win First In City Series Race

North Side won first place in the city series football race, and Central came in second. All the schools have now completed their city schedules. Complete results and the percentages are shown in the table below:

Central	2	1	.666
Central Catholic	1	2	.333

Annual Event Is Held By Lettermen Group

South Side's Lettermen's Club held its annual fall potluck last night. The time was 5:30 o'clock; the place was the cafeteria. An invitation was extended to all lettermen and also to those fellows who had earned one hundred points toward their varsity letter.

Serving as general committee in charge of arrangements were the officers. They are Carl Hall, president; LeRoy Cook, vice-president; and Don Beery, secretary-treasurer.

Charles L. Close Is Not Only Grid Man But Singer Deluxe

Charles L. Close, home room 56, grade 10B, was born on April 17, 1923. Chuck received his early education at the Harrison Hill grade school. While in grade school, Chuck was quite a star in basketball and at putting the shot.

Upon entering South Side, Chuck went out for basketball, and he immediately landed a berth on the reserves. But Chuck did not just stop at this sport, he went out for football this fall. Because Chuck looks as if he has eaten up all the spinach, he soon found himself playing varsity tackle.

His aggressiveness and ability to absorb punishment has kept him in the Archer lineup for almost the entire length of every game. An outstanding example of Chuck's ability to take it is the North Side game. In this game he played almost the whole last half, while literally out on his feet. Opposing backs have found his position a tough one to crack through for any large gains. Being only a sophomore, Chuck naturally has a lot to learn about the game; but by the time he is a senior, Chuck should really be tough.

This year he should play a lot of basketball on the reserves for South Side. Chuck is about six feet one in height, and he can use it quite effectively on the court.

But football and basketball aren't Chuck's only interests. You have never really heard singing until you have heard Chuck Close let loose with a few trills. He can sing about anything and everything, but his particular favorite is "Old Man River." When Chuck winds up and gives the audience "Old Man River," they just naturally settle back in their seats and do a good job of relaxing.

Next year when the football season opens, Chuck will be in there at left tackle for the Archer football team, and he will really be one of their mainstays in the line.

Off Tackle Slants

Another football season has ended with the annual Tiger-Archer clash. The game was won by the Tigers with the biggest margin of victory, 47-0, ever run up between the two schools in sixteen years. The Archers formerly held this honor as the result of their game in 1924 when they won 45-0.

The Tigers were led by hard-running Bill Hanley, who scored four touchdowns and led the entire Central attack mostly from the bewildering spread formation. Junior Halfback Henry Kulesza was also very effective in the Tiger offense.

Senior Fullback Joe "Steamroller" Bex had to be taken out of the Central game because of a renewal of a shoulder injury. Dick Goshorn also was taken out with an injured nose.

Pep Session Is Held

Friday a pep session was held in preparation for the Central football game. Several yells were given and Melva O'Shaughnessey, of Central, gave a short talk on the game.

Archer Trackmen To Face Redskins

To Be Held Saturday; Meet Will Include Two-Mile Run; Use Low Point Scoring System.

South Side's track team, under the capable direction of its new coach, George Collyer, will run in its second meet of the current season. This meet will be held at North Side this coming Saturday.

This meet will include a two-mile run, with the low point scoring system being used. This meet may be the last one to be held this fall, as cold weather may necessitate the cancellation or postponement of other meets.

The Archer squad lost its meet with Garrett at the Railroaders' home track, 23-32, low scorer winning. Six men were taken to this meet, in which a two-mile run was featured. The team showed great prospects during this meet, and the Archer squad may do something Saturday. North Side has one of the best long distance squads in the state, so South Side may not take first place.

The six men going to North Side Saturday will probably be taken from Allison Arnold, Alfred Gumbert, Ralph Sebold, Richard Sebold, Frank DuWaldt, Tom Thiele, Arthur Maltott, Eugene Botz, and Rudolph Wuttke.

This is the first season that South Side has entered fall track meets, and if this policy is successful, more meets will be scheduled.

$132.50 Owed By Subscribers November 15

Money To Be In Tomorrow; Only Four Agents Have Cleared Record Of Debts

A total of $132.50 was owed by Times subscribers Tuesday, November 15. Only four home rooms have all their money paid, although several have less than a dollar out.

All money on Times subscriptions must be in by Friday, November 18. This is the date on the promissory notes signed by subscribers when they purchased The Times for this semester. A large number of subscribers bought their papers with promissory notes.

The only agents who have their rooms paid up are Ruth Mary Riedy, room 60; Eleanor Muntzinger, room 68; Gladys Foellinger, room 110; and Philip Schwartz, room 108.

A drive to get all money turned in by tomorrow has been made for the last several weeks. The fifty-cent campaign also ended last week. This campaign enabled students of South Side who have not subscribed for The Times earlier in the year an opportunity to get the paper.

Virginia Goeglein, circulation manager, stated that almost all of the money owed by students must be in by the end of this week. However, any students who forget their money this week will have a few days next week to bring the money.

Becky Abbett's book, number five, owes the least money, with only a total of $13.90 unpaid in that book. The book, agents and the money they owe is:

Book	Agent	Money
5	Becky Abbett	$13.90
3	Lucy Smith	16.30
6	Emilou Allendorph	16.55
1	Beverly Ann Griffith	17.20
4	Maurine Seibert	19.15
2	Marjorie McNabb	31.10

Many Archers Ride In Armistice Parade

Many boys and girls from South Side rode bicycles in the Armistice parade last November 10. Horace Curley won a prize for having the best decorated bicycle.

Those Archers who participated are Barbara Hughes, Tom Walsh, Marian Reynolds, Lum McDowell, William Weber, Pauline Gregory, El Adams, Paul Murphy, Jack Gooss, Edmund Bower, Horace Curley, Clifford Ostermeyer, Gene Brehm, Warren Wyneken, Harold Hollenberg, Raymond Schultz, Edward Wade, Robert Blue, and Lee Pierce.

Eleanor Vesey, Sam Bacon Talk On Radio

Tuesday afternoon, as part of the Fort Wayne School of the Air, Sam Bacon and Eleanor Vesey, both South Side Radio Players, participated in a newscast which was broadcast over WGL at 5 o'clock. The newscasts will be presented each week over the station as part of this fall's weekly high school radio series.

Eleanor was questioned by Sam in regard to her attending the Indiana High School Press Association convention held at Indianapolis last week.

Deliver Red Feathers To South Side Faculty

Red feathers sent to South Side by the Fort Wayne Community Chest were distributed to faculty members early this week. The feathers aid in carrying out this year's theme in the annual Chest drive which is, "Wear A Feather In Your Cap."

Guest speakers will be heard over the new radio system for the remainder of the week during home room periods. Tuesday morning's speaker was Rev. Charles Houser of Plymouth Congregational Church.

Grad To Give Oration

Eleanor Monesmith, '38, now a student at Franklin College, has been requested by Pi Kappa Delta, public speaking fraternity, to present an oration at the chapel services to be held this morning to demonstrate the type of work in which its members engage.

Whenever we think of birthdays, a little verse always comes to our mind. Quote:

"Birthdays always seem to say
A bright new year is on its way
With bright new joys—new dreams
Come true."

And new delights in store for you."
Those whose birthdays are within the following week are as follows:

November 18: William Wolf, Virginia Anspach, Arthur Bear, Jack Rogers, Eileen Schelper, Kathryn Stumpf.
November 19: Caroline Lichtenberg, Geraldine Allen, Robert Allen.
November 20: William Selby, Ruth Morris.
November 21: Kathryn Lahrman, Harry Mayer, Marvin Rutz, Jim Winter.
November 22: Ruth Bennett, Doris Eercot, Roberta Maze, Lily Schneiders, Emily Stem.
November 27: Carol Whittier.
November 24: Leonard Weinraub.

South Side Has It's Face Lifted!

Scene of Newly Constructed North Entrance

Shown above is the reconstructed North Entrance, which underwent a complete face-lifting this summer as a part of the Archers' remodeling program. The roof shown in the picture was reset after it was found by contractors that it had been leaning slightly forward. Also shown are parts of the new second story, which greatly increased the Kelly's capacity for housing students.

Group Sponsors Four Parent Teas

Parent-Teacher Group Observes American Education Week By Staging Events; Clubs Aid

Parent-Teachers' Association of South Side observed American Education Week by sponsoring four teas for the parents of the students in the four classes during last week.

These teas were held in the cafeteria and were accompanied by talks by several members of the faculty. Four teas were given, from Tuesday to Friday of last week, with the parents of freshmen meeting on Tuesday, parents of sophomores on Wednesday, parents of juniors on Thursday, and parents of seniors on Friday.

The talks given at each of these meetings were by various members of South Side's faculty and were in relation to the class of the students whose parents were at the teas. The Parent-Teachers' Association observance of American Education Week was in conjunction with programs presented every day by clubs of South Side. Refreshments, which were prepared by the regular cafeteria staff, were served at these functions.

Varied Occupations Keep South Siders Busy Here, There

Richard Dykes worked in a drug store.

Betty Jean Birely spent most of her time at Houghton Lake, Michigan. On the last day of her visit there, Betty and two others decided on a sailing cruise. An enjoyable time was had by all even though the waves were about three feet high.

Eileen Lee found enjoyment at the Limberlost Camp.

An unusual hobby is enjoyed by Betty Baumgartner. She collects soap from all over the world. Betty has some soap from Australia and many other places. She has collected over one hundred bars of soap.

Robert Fenimore spent a week at Lake Webster.

Phyllis Kurtz' hobby was collecting movie star pictures.

Gloria Kramer and five girl friends visited the Wisconsin State Fair.

Eleanor Schelper spent an interesting week at Clear Lake.

Leonard Shepler took in an air show.

Richard Seerist took care of his uncle's horses.

Margaret Schneider visited Toledo, Ohio.

"The only thing exciting that happened to me," says Dorothy Borse, "was riding home on the same train with eighteen criminals and four deputies. They were being taken from Mansfield, Ohio, to Leavenworth, Kansas."

Mary Ellen Anderson continued to add to one of her scrap-books. She now possesses three completed ones. They are divided into two sections: historical and scenery and flowers.

Marie Lebanoff spent her vacation in Indianapolis.

Janice Ebert learned to swim via the "sink or swim" method.

Audrey Jefferies learned to swim at Rome City.

Dale Landis' most interesting experience was driving a motorboat and racing other boats on Crooked Lake.

Marshall Koehler visited on a farm.

Naomi Koopman took a trip to Texas.

Marjory Kruse's hobby was collecting snap shots.

Betty Pressler attended the Indianapolis State Fair. She and her family managed to lose themselves three times on a one-way street of the fair.

She says, "I saw a two-year old pig weighing 807 pounds, and got sick on my stomach."

Audrey Longworth's hobby this summer was tap dancing. She enjoys making up steps and dances. She also likes to dance for programs.

Philo's Toreador Trot Is Duly Celebrated By Three Hundred

Philo's annual dance was held in Room 170 Friday, November 11, the night before the Central-South Side football game. It is a notable feature that Philo has held a dance on the eve of this all-important game since 1922 when the school was built. The theme of the sixteenth consecutive dance was Toreador Trot, and it was just too, too bulky (pardon the pun).

Select Jam Band

The affair marked the first school dance of the season and was duly celebrated by approximately three hundred Archer enthusiasts, who "swung" to Gene Sheridan's orchestra. Thanks to Frances VanBuskirk, Dorothy Gore and Virginia Fleming, the services of these music makers were obtained.

Intermission was livened by a floor show in charge of Donna Lou Foutz. The chief feature of the show was an unusual jumping-rope dance. More-over, several lucky jitterbugs nonchalantly walked off with prizes. Roger Neff took an attendance prize. Others chosen were Bill Riethmiller and Pearl Wallen, the best dancers; Audrey Hall and Jack Lindsey, the best matched couple; Maurine Leas, the best looking brunette, and Ruth Lauer, the best looking blonde. Mrs. Merle J. Abbett, Mrs. R. Nelson Snider, and Miss Pauline VanGorder acted as judges. The prizes were selected by Anna Lou Kowalski and Anna Anderson.

Decorations In Bright Colors

Of course, no dance can be a success without clever decorations, and the Toreador Trot was no exception. The room was decked out in red, black, and white. At one end, a background of bulls, bearing marked resemblances to Ferdinand, gazed longingly down a long expanse of room to the spot where lovely señoritas and handsome seniors tangoed over the blackboard. The whole atmosphere was one of fiesta.

If Walter Winchell had been present, he would have thrown a dozen orchids at energetic, little Janice "Pinky" Dyer. Pinky, who was chairman of decorations, certainly turned in some first class work and should be given plenty of credit. (Walter might also have made notes on Who's going with who, but I'll leave those to the dirt dishers.) Janice was assisted by Miriam Jackson, Marjorie Dyer, Katherine Beckman, Lois Rea, Betty Daniels, Audrey Hall, Betty Marquardt, and Betty Neeb. If you don't believe they did a noteworthy job, you should try perching on the top of a wobbly ladder with gravity waiting to set in should you slip.

Publicity Is Important

Another essential of a successful dance is publicity. Dorothy Hall, Audrey Hall, Annette Snoke, and Miriam Jackson, the publicity committee, fairly kept things buzzing. Blackboards and bulletin boards were plastered with glaring notices about the dance. A pep talk was even given over the public address system by a club member.

Especially commendable was the work of the ticket committee composed of Eleanor Vesey, Lois Rea, Margery Rapp, Ella Jo Reed, Bernice Etzler, Mary Lee Kixmiller, Pearl Wallen, Helen Wiehe, Rebecca Abbett, Frances VanBuskirk, Phyllis Branning, and Maurine Seibert.

Last, but far from least, credit should be given to Miss Elizabeth Demaree, club adviser, and Margaret Null, club president and general chairman of the dance.

Lecture Over School's Public Address System; Mr. Earle A. Rowell And Student Speak

Betty Daniels gave a talk Monday morning in the first period on "New Books—New Worlds." Many books were mentioned that are on display in the show case in the front hall this week.

During the sixth period another talk was given by Mr. Earle Albert Rowell. He chose "Evils of Narcotics" as the subject of his talk. Mr. Rowell told many stories about dope fi

Christmas Seal Sale To Begin November 24

Anti-Tuberculosis League to Mail One or Two Sheets of Stamps to People at Home

Church Will Help In '38 Campaign

Money Raised To Stay In Allen County To Battle Disease In Many Ways

On Thanksgiving Day, November 24, the Anti-Tuberculosis League of America will launch their campaign against tuberculosis by placing on sale the 1938 Christmas Seals. The Anti-Tuberculosis office in Fort Wayne, like the others, will inaugurate the campaign by the annual mailing of one or more sheets of the seals to persons at their homes.

The second part of the program will be carried out on Health Sunday, November 27, in the churches when announcements will be made concerning the crusade against tuberculosis carried on through the use of the funds made up of the proceeds from the Christmas Seal sales. Bulletins and stickers will be given to everyone attending church, accompanied by the request that everyone cooperate by putting the stickers on their windows to show that the fight against tuberculosis has definitely begun and to make all those who see it anti-tuberculosis conscious. Recognition is given those students of the commercial department of North Side High School who made posters and programs for this purpose.

Funds Stay In County
The money accumulated through the sale of the seals in Allen County does not leave the county, but is used right here to prevent and cure cases of tuberculosis. This includes co-operation with county medical and dental associations, the distribution of anti-tuberculosis literature to public and parochial schools, and operation of free chest clinics, free tuberculin testing, health education in homes and organizations, and health camps for under-nourished children, besides countless other ways of benefiting the people in this county.

The only possible way of getting money is through donations and the sale of Christmas Seals. Some people are under the impression that the league is affiliated with the Community Chest. They think that if they have contributed to one they have contributed to both. This, however, is not true, and the reason why no person should contribute not only to the Community Chest, but also to the Anti-Tuberculosis League.

Citizens To Buy Seals
The league is desirous of notifying parents and teachers that the seals sent to them at their homes or schools are to be bought by themselves and are not to be sold by children. At a later date, probably the week of December 12, they will be given the opportunity to contribute by buying Christmas Seal pencils, beautifully designed and marked for that purpose. This is an improvement over plans of former years when house to house canvasses made by the grade school pupils to sell seals annoyed those who were already patrons, and who yet did not wish to turn the children away.

To make the schools conscious of the importance of their participation in the winning battle of the people versus tuberculosis, health teaching units, in the form of small booklets, entitled "Christmas in the Home," will be distributed to the teachers in all the schools of the county. Every year these health teaching units, which are well-prepared, and helpful to the teachers by being correlated with interesting data, and help in the teaching of the schools. Mr. Merle J. Abnett, superintendent of Fort Wayne public schools, has endorsed the work that the league has been doing and will be doing in the schools along this line.

Nurses Attend "Boxes"
Serve-yourself boxes, at which seals may be purchased will be placed in the stores downtown. The boxes in Wolf & Dessauer will be attended by nurses, who are donating their time in view of the worth of the cause.

The idea of using a holiday stamp to provoke the interest of the people in anti-tuberculosis drives originated with Einar Holboell, a Danish postal clerk. He suggested that since government stamps brought so much recognition to the government that special holiday stamps could do the same for the Anti-Tuberculosis Leagues. The marked success of such a plan beginning in 1904 in Denmark caused Miss Emily P. Bissell three years later to sponsor a similar campaign in the United States in her home town of Wilmington, Delaware. Shortly

Miss Beulah Rinehart Entertains So-Si-Yers

The social meeting of the Triangle Group, of So-Si-Y, met on Thursday, November 16, at Miss Beulah Rinehart's home. This was the last meeting of the Triangle Group which was organized to teach the new girls the girl-reserve way of living.

There were twenty-two girls present at this meeting. They are as follows: Virginia Menze, Dorothy Ringenburg, Virginia Goegelein, Caroline Schuler, Lillian Meeker, Betty Rose, Phyllis Fackler, Mary Emily Seibt, Doris Douglass, Mary Ellen Heddon, Billie Lou Stover, Delores Menefee, Thelma Branning, Helen Luepke, Jeanne Kruskopf, Mildred Rinehart, Elsie Weir, Norma Jean Sprunger, Elsie Pederson, Olive Zahn, Margaret Wittmer and Mildred Thayer.

Help Prevent Tuberculosis

Courtesy Anti-Tuberculosis League
"No Home Is Safe Until Every Home Is Safe" is the theme of the 1938 Christmas seal campaign. The seal, designed by Lloyd Coo of New York is synonymous with the theme. It hints of the tranquility, comfort, and security of home, which would be broken in the advent of a case of tuberculosis.

Ancient Rome To Live Again At Latin Feast

Banquet To Be Sponsored by Latin Club December 1;
Committees Are Named

Plans for a Roman banquet to be held December 1 in the cafeteria are being made by Latin Club. This will be an important date in the history of the club, since it is the first time it has held an affair of this kind. The meal, composed of three courses, will be served by slaves and will be eaten with the fingers. Foods known to the Romans will be used. The food chairman is Rosella Koehler. She will be assisted by Dorothy Gidea, Gene Lou Harges, Gloria Spanley, Ione Jean Tracht, Marjorie Wright, Joan Cartwright, Joan Cox, Reba Coppock, June Flaig and Faye Gumpfer.

A play about Augustus Caesar, entitled "In Caesar's Garden," and a Roman Water Carriers' Dance will be given. Speeches of explanation after each course will be given by Maurine Seibert, chairman of the entertainment committee. Her committee consists of Betty Daniels and Bruce Bradbury.

The price of the affair is twenty-five cents, and all members intending to come are urged to sign up in room 36 as soon as possible. At the last meeting of the club, the two chairmen, Maurine Seibert and Rosella Koehler, gave pep talks concerning the banquet, and the committee for the annual skate, to be held January 27, was announced. The committee consists of Velda Oppenlander, chairman; Dorothy Gore, Jean Bowen, Ivan Truman, Charles Beall, Roger McVay and Jane Nathan. The club also decided to have a full page Totem picture this year. The committee in charge of this meeting was composed of Mildred Hanke, chairman; Phyllis Lauer, Carolyn Cartwright, Jean Forstede, and Joan Bradley. These girls answered questions regarding school life in the days of the Romans. A vocabulary drill was also held. Girls standing up the longest were Ruth Wanner, June Flaig, Dorothy Gidea, Charlene McAtee, Violet Steinbauer and Joan Cartwright. The final winner was Ruth Dauner.

Bruce Klotz, Bill Riethmiller Are Juniors Biggest Fumble

Approximately one hundred fifty juniors attended the "Campus Craze", the Junior Banquet of all Junior Banquets. Every part of the banquet lived up to the predictions of a great time and fine food.

Between courses, Doris Dickmeyer led the community singing: School Days, with special words suited for the occasion, We're Working Our Way Through College, Sweet Varsity Sue, You Gotta Be A Football Hero, and the college songs of Purdue and Indiana were sung. Richard Gerig was the piano accompanist.

Introduce Speakers
After dinner the toastmaster, Jim Murphy, introduced the speakers. Jim gave a talk concerning The Kickoff; Tom Gallmeyer further carried out the collegiate theme by speaking on The First Down. Superintendent Merle J. Abnett told of The Goal of our future life. Miss Pittenger told of the two kinds of headlines, stating that we may be in the headlines of life in future years.

Jane Knoche on the marimba played The Musical Run, a number of popular songs. Tackling the football was the piano solo of Virginia Fleming.

The Fumble, a playlet written and presented by Bill Riethmiller and Bruce Klotz, turned out to be very amusing. The play, entitled The Fatal Quest or Who Panhandled The Pigskin, was cleverly given with gestures, by the playwrights. The changing of characters was done by putting on different hats to represent the characters. The ending was a sad one because all of the characters died. The playwrights also sang their own arrangement of "Blue Ridge Mountains of Kentucky."

The coach of the affair, our own R. Nelson Snider, gave some advice for future college students. "Hollywood has her Fred Astaire, New York, her Bill Robinson, but only South Side has her Fred Walker." So went the words of the toastmaster when he introduced the famous tap dancer of the Archers. The Huddle and an encore of Small Fry composed Fred Rapp's dancing.

Stamp Society To Hold Skate In December

To Be Held At Bell's, Theme Is "Sugar Bowl Swing";
Price, Twenty-five Cents

Members Divided Into Two Groups

Teams Are Jitterbugs, King
Kats; Skaters' Bus Will Leave South Side At 7:30

Friday night, December 2, will mark the Philatelic Society's annual skate, "Sugar Bowl Swing," to be held this year at Bell's Rink. In order to carry out the theme, club members have been divided into two distinct teams, the Jitterbugs and the King Kats, led by Dave Slattery and Carlton Clem.

Tickets, priced at twenty-five cents each, may be purchased from any club member, who can be identified by Jitterbug or King Kat insignia on their clothing. A skater's bus will be provided for the students and will leave South Side at 7:30 the night of the skate. A fee of ten cents is charged in order to provide for transportation.

To Hold Exchange
A stamp exchange will be held in room 26 next Wednesday after school, at which time further details of the campaign will be announced. At the last meeting of the organization on Wednesday, Carlton Clem, president, distributed tickets to all members of the club. Bruce Bradbury, publicity chairman, told of details of the campaign, and appointed captains and members of each team.

Assisting Bruce on the publicity committee are Max Stobaugh, Ed Turner, Ralph Herb, Maxine Case and Melvin Schwartz. Tuesday morning over the loud speaker system, the King Kat and the Jitterbug were introduced to the student body.

Programs for the entire semester were given out to club members at the meeting. In charge of the stamp exchange was Gerald Wulliman. Assisting Gerald was William Wolf, Ralph George and Don Hensch.

Additional committees for the skate which were appointed by the president are as follows: Prizes, Maxine Hudson and Jeanne Snyder; tickets, Wilmer Bengs; chaperones, Mary Virginia Russ and Rosemary Spore; sales, Don Parkinson, Ralph Herb, Max Stobaugh and Dave Slattery.

This year, entertainment at the rink will be provided. Last year, when the Philatelic Society became the first South Side group to promote entertainment at the rink, the plan was adopted by other clubs in South Side.

System Of Scoring Featured At Meet

Airplane Club Members Discuss Method Used For Obtaining Letter; Group Brings Planes

Fifteen members attended the second meeting of the Airplane Club which was held last Wednesday. Eight members brought their planes. Previous to the flying of planes, the point score system was discussed, obtaining the letter S, a total of 200 points being necessary. These points can be obtained in two ways, first, the construction of the model, for which 1 to 25 points are given; second, from the flight of the model. The number of points for a letter is based on the number of seconds or minutes the plane stays in the air.

Bruce Klotz, Bill Riethmiller Are Juniors Biggest Fumble

dancer of the Archers. The Huddle and an encore of Small Fry composed Fred Rapp's dancing.

Last on the program was Ella Jo Reed, who gave in poetic verse the class prophecy.

A collegiate air prevailed in decorations. Bill Blass and his committee were very clever in carrying out the theme in every detail. Each table had two runners, representing colleges. At each table there were pennants of various colleges. The favors were wooden pennant pins with the year of graduation on them. The clever programs were various colors adding to the gaiety of the affair.

Novel Decorations
Mural decorations consisted of collegiate wearing apparel such as bush-cats, saddle oxfords, freshman caps, charm bracelets, and articles pertaining to college life in general such as old jalopies, sodas, cheer leaders, and college songs.

The class officers, Miss Hazel Miller, Mr. Lloyd Whelan, and the committees are to be congratulated for their fine work in turning out such a delightful banquet.

Names Are Omitted In List Of Winners

Ed Kettler and Elaine Hirschy, who placed in the sophomore contest held last week, were omitted from the list of winners in last week's Times. Ed tied for first in the fifth period contest on Wednesday and Elaine tied for third in the first period contest on Thursday.

New Advisers Okay Says Senior Group Asked By Reporter

When a few of the seniors were asked the following questions, "What do you think of your class advisers?" they answered:

Helen Ross:—I think they are okay and I know the senior class is satisfied with them.

Joan Hess:—I like them.

Mildred Brett:—I think they are grand advisers, because they are so much fun.

Rosemary Jones:—I think they are grand people.

Jean Ann Varich:—I think they are swell, and I am glad they are our senior advisers.

Kenneth Fairfield:—They suit me.

Bill Siples:—I think they are top notch.

Bud Hershey:—They are ace high. Marjorie Quackenbush:—I like them both.

Bud Schmoer:—They are very nice. Maxine Pelz:—I think they are grand.

Purdue Debate Will Be Held December 2, 3

Interested Speech Students
Invited; To Leave Friday Morning; Home Saturday

December 2 and 3 have been the dates announced for the Purdue Debate Conference this year. Each year interested speech students of the various high schools throughout the state are invited to attend the conference. This year the debaters will be from Ohio State and Purdue; the debate topic will be "United States Alliance with Great Britain."

Last year a total of 506 people representing seventy-three high schools, attended. Fully as many are expected again this year. From Fort Wayne last year there were representatives from Central, North Side, South Side, Elmhurst, and Concordia.

Leave School Friday
Students will leave South Side in cars at 8:00 o'clock Friday morning, and return around 5:00 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The debate will be at 2:15 o'clock on Friday, and will be followed by a banquet at 5:30 o'clock. At 8:00 o'clock the same evening those persons who have paid their registration fee will be admitted free of charge to a special performance of the play, "Draquila," a three-act mystery thriller, produced by the Purdue Playshop. The next morning there will be a campus tour following which there will be at 10:00 o'clock an address by nationally recognized authorities on debate topics.

List Delegates

First Quill, Scroll Contest Is Staged

Competition Is In Editorial, Feature Stories; Winners To Be Announced At Later Date

South Side's first Quill and Scroll contest since school started was held last week end. South Side has always had high honors in this contest.

The contest is divided into two parts. The best editorial and best feature story are sent to Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. The people who wrote for the editorial contest are Gwen DeWees, Jeannette Warren, Jessie Freeman, Betty Neeb, Bob Gunzenhauser and Bruce Bradbury. Those who wrote a feature story are as follows: Bruce Bradbury, Jeannette Warren, Jessie Freeman and Bob Gunzenhauser.

The United States is divided in ten sections and the winners are selected from each part. Sectional winners and those who receive honorable mention will not be awarded prizes, but their standing will be published in an announcement of contest winners. Ten national winners in each contest will receive a bronze Quill and Scroll creative writing award. If the winners are seniors they are eligible to compete for Quill and Scroll's president's scholarship of two years' tuition at an approved School of Journalism for an amount not to exceed five hundred dollars.

There are many subjects for the contestant to write on. The contestant chooses what subject he wishes to write on. Each contestant is given forty-five minutes to write the story and eight hours to get the material. Winners will be announced next week.

Songs To Be Learned At Next German Meet

At the next meeting of the German Club which will be held Wednesday, December 7, in the Voorhees room, the members will practice learning German songs. They will give these songs at the Christmas party given by the club. An invitation is extended to the students taking German to attend the meeting and learn some of the songs.

America's Last Frontier: Utopia

Tomorrow, on Thanksgiving Day, Americans over the world may pause a moment and reflect upon our last frontier: Utopia. The Pilgrims in 1820 also had a frontier, one of trials, bloodshed, and a determined effort to secure a foothold on this North American continent. Today, we have conquered their frontier and have absorbed all the material products of their civilization. It is this last frontier, a stronghold on peace and security that we must bequeath our posterity, for it is to us that all nations look upon as a Utopia, and it is with us that their future lies.

Frosh-Soph Contest Speakers Commend Courteous Classes

We are turning the tables and asking the speakers that were in the Freshman-Sophomore Speech Contest what they thought of the audience instead of asking what the audience thought of the speakers.

Helen Savage told your inquiring reporter: "I don't know, but I think it was one of the best I've ever spoken to."

Joan Squires said: "My audience was pretty good, and easy to speak to."

When Bob Robinson was asked what he thought of the audience he replied, "The audience was satisfactory."

Jean Weil and Marjorie McNabb agreed with each other, for they both were so frightened that they didn't even notice an audience.

John Craig said: "It was all right, and one of the best I've ever spoken to."

Ellen Harry answered: "I thought my audience was understanding and I could tell what they thought by the looks on their faces."

Bud Lampton stated: "The audience was courteous and inspiring."

Scouts Will Give Annual Tea Today

Senior Group To Sponsor Mother-Daughter Event; Chairmen Of Committees Are Named.

This afternoon the Senior Scouts will give their annual Mother-Daughter Tea which this year will be in the form of a Style-Tea. The girls have planned a very interesting program under the head of Peggy Greaney, who is chairman of the tea, and Beverly Griffith, style-chairman. Helping Peggy Greaney are Joan Cox, Joan Cartwright and Jean Peterson, while Beverly Griffith is a committee of one.

The style show will be divided into two sections: sleeping, school and lounging; sport clothes as worn to a game and formal wear for the evening dances.

Acting as hostesses are Betty Marquardt, Elaine Hirschy and Peggy Greaney. Carol Treanery and Rosemary Lantz will pour. Mrs. Purcell and Mrs. Roberts, advisers for the club, are also assisting hostesses.

At the last meeting, the topic was "What's What in Clothes," this was followed by an interesting discussion headed by Mrs. Purcell. Joan Suelzer, cookie chairman, gave a report on the cookie sale held at Frank's. Mrs. Roberts gave a talk on photography, the subject in which the club has taken interest.

Archers Will Have Two-Day Vacation

Students will not have to come to school tomorrow and Friday because of the Thanksgiving vacation. This vacation is given to students each year and a let-up from studies this year will be welcomed by both teachers and students.

Students Give Skit Over Air Waves

"William Shakespeare" Is Title
Of First In Play Series To Be Given By South Side Players

The first in a series of the "Interviews with the Past," entitled "William Shakespeare" was presented by the South Side Radio Players last Thursday night. This program is presented over the Fort Wayne School of the Air. The "William Shakespeare" skit is an episode from the life of the great playwright William Shakespeare. The most difficult part was taken by Robert Safer, who had to acquire a definite English accent to play the part of Shakespeare. The part of Ted was taken by Kenneth Warren. The fun loving Jack was played by Tom Gallmeyer. Margaret Gross took the part of Betty, a sophisticated lady, and Emalyn Remmel the part of Doris. Sound effects man was Bob Martain; announcer, Bill Gernand; pianist, Velma Lehman.

In the second of the series "Interviews with the Past," entitled "Queen Elizabeth" the same characters will participate except that of William Shakespeare. In addition Helen Wiehe will portray the notable character of Queen Elizabeth.

In a coming skit the following people will participate and will take the part of the character named, Becky Abnett will announce and take one of the group parts. Bruce Bradbury as Napoleon; Margaret Gross as Catherine the Great; Bill Gernand as George Washington will take part.

The series "Interviews with the Past" will continue every Thursday night until Christmas. Any of those people who have participated in any Radio Players' broadcast are eligible to join the Radio Player Club at South Side with Miss Gretchen Smith as advisor.

Play To Be Presented By Thespians Monday

The Philo Thespians will present a play, entitled "Too Many Marys" at the next meeting of Philo, Monday, November 28. The play, under the direction of Virginia Shidler, has the following cast of characters: Viola, an artist, Phyllis Branning; Sally Woolstock, Dorothy Gerdorn; June, Frances VanBuskirk; Beatrice, Betty Marquardt; Mrs. Sarah Woolstock, Eleanor Vesey; Noah, the Irish maid, Helen Wiehe. This is the first Thespian play to be presented this year.

The Philo quartet will also make its first appearance at this meeting. They will sing several of the so-called modern classics, such as "Star Dust." The quartet is composed of Katherine Beckman, Miriam Jackson, Frances VanBuskirk, Margaret Null and Eleanor Vesey and is accompanied by Virginia Fleming.

Clarence Jackson III

Clarence Jackson, sophomore, will be absent from school for the rest of the semester and probably longer because of a serious illness. He has colitis and a kidney infection. Clarence worked on The Times before he became ill.

Gift Baskets Will Go Out After School

Thanksgiving Contributions Will Be Distributed By Interclub Congress Today

Various Committee Aides Are Chosen

Many Home Rooms Help Fill Baskets; Approximately Fifty Will Be Given Out.

Starting at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Inter-Club Congress will deliver the fruits and vegetables and meats of its extensive campaign for Thanksgiving baskets. Approximately fifty baskets, complete with all the food that makes Thanksgiving a successful day, will be distributed.

Miss Emma Kiefer, Mr. A. Verne Flint, and Mr. C. A. Bex, sponsors of Inter-Club Congress, have been working with the various committees to make this annual campaign a successful one. Those committees are: writing of the bulletins, chairman, Doris Williams, Dick Buchholz, and Betty Daniels; collecting food, chairman, Max Wagner, Carl Goebel, Dick Weaver, Dick Hebermehl, and Don Hensch; packing the baskets, chairman, Bill Riethmiller, Roger McVay, Clayton Jensen, and Evelyn Kruse; and committee for delivery, chairman, Carl Goebel, Gloria Staley, Velda Oppenlander, Kenneth Warren, and Morton Nahrwold.

Tell Of Bulletins

The first bulletin, which was sent out November 15, was an explanatory one, giving suggestions for food and explaining about the campaign.

A follow-up bulletin for the purpose of emphasizing the baskets and for refreshing forgetful memories was issued, with the result of the following home rooms deciding to fill baskets: Mr. Gilbert, for a family of ten; Miss Smeltzley, five; Mr. Cook, five; Miss Hemmer, six; Mr. Sterner, four or five; Mr. Plasket, five or six; Miss E. Crowe, five; Mrs. Welty, five; Mrs. Carson, eight; Mr. Bex, seven; Miss Thorne, seven; Miss Oppelt, six; Miss Kiefer, six.

Miss Hutto and Miss Dochterman, seven; Miss Kelley, four; Miss Rinehart, six; Miss Demaree, six; Mr. McClure, eight; Mr. Makey, five; Miss McCloskey, six; Miss Mott, five; Mr. Gould, seven; Miss Bean, six; Miss Hodgson, five; Mr. Pierce, four; Miss Perkins, three; Mr. Heine, three; Miss Delancy, six; Mr. Davis, and Mr. Hull, six; Miss Dean, five; Mr. Welborn, six; Miss Magley, seven; Miss M. Crowe, six; Miss Schmidt, seven.

List Others

Miss Fortney, five; Mr. Wilson, six; Mr. Post, six; Miss Mellen, four or five; Miss Pocock, six; Miss Rerost, one large family; Mr. Sidel, one large family; Miss Peck, a small family; and Mr. Mills, an average family. Mr. Y. M. C. A. of Indiana, Mr. Brimer, Miss Fiedler, and Mr. Flint are undecided as to the number they are going to provide for.

Miss Pittenger and the Community Chest are furnishing names and addresses of families to whom the baskets are to be sent.

Three Hi-Y Boys Will Attend Meet

Dick Buchholz, Maurice Lehman,
Andy Bremer To Go To Older
Boys' Conference Next Week

Richard Buchholz, president; Maurice Lehman, vice-president, and Andy Bremer will be the three representatives of Hi-Y Club of South Side to attend the older boys' conference at Danville, Ind., next Friday and Saturday, November 25 and 26. They will leave Fort Wayne at 6:00 o'clock Friday morning and come home Saturday night at 5:00 o'clock.

The conference will be attended by Hi-Y groups, church organizations, 4-H Clubs and other similar groups. This conference is sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. of Indiana. The purpose of the conference will be to help boys through fellowship, prayers, devotion, challenging addresses and practical discussions.

At the last meeting the new constitution was made to enable the South Side Hi-Y to join the national, state and world Hi-Y organizations. All the members who wish to join must pay twenty-five cents and in return they will receive special privileges in every Y.M.C.A. in the country.

The skating party to be sponsored by the Hi-Y was definitely decided to be held January 7, which is one week after the end of the Christmas vacation. The committee in charge of this party is Max Wagner, chairman, and Fred Peters.

December 9 Is Date For Rifle-French Skate

Reports on the skating party were given at the last meeting of the Rifle Club held at the range. The Rifle-French Club skating party will be held at Bell's Rink on December 9. Favors, of which Delores Ulrich is in charge, will be given to all early comers.

At each meeting the scores of the five girls shooting the highest targets are added to get the bi-weekly score. This score at the last meeting was 429. The girls that shot and their scores were as follows: Jane Merch-ant, 88; Imogene Fabian, 87; Mildred Trout, 85; Marcia Allen, 85; Marge Price, 83; Marian Feichter, 84; Audrey Hall, 75; Dorothy Bloemker, 71; Betty Jean Pressler, 69; and Marjorie Schannon, 47.

"Give Till It Hurts," Is New Suggestion In Giving Donations

This year we should all sit down to our Thanksgiving dinners with a real feeling of thanksgiving, as the contributions for the poor should be more generous than ever before. The Inter-Club Congress is again undertaking the delivery of Thanksgiving baskets, and with the co-operation of the students in each home room, the plan should work out very well. Quite some time ago, we heard rumors from certain home rooms that they had begun their collections already, and we want to congratulate them on their willingness to co-operate. After all, it isn't for the school's benefit; it is your responsibility as well as anyone's to look after your fellowmen who are less fortunate than yourself.

South Siders, just pause for a moment and think of the conditions in Europe today. Do you think they will have much to be thankful for? We believe they will be very sad, and why not? Aren't their homes, their friends, and their freedom gone, most likely gone forever? Even Germany, the victor or the winner in all their demands, should feel guilty and unhappy at making other countries suffer, because of their rash and unfair alternatives.

With this thought in mind, we ask you, do we not have a great deal to be thankful for? Now, fellow classmates, let's make this the best contribution ever made, so "Come on,

Get in the mood,
Help the cause, and
Bring some food."

Archers Have Much To Be Thankful For

With the permeating fragrance of mince and pumpkin pie once more heralding the approach of Thanksgiving, each and every Archer should prepare to count his blessings and welcome the holiday season with the proper spirit.

In the first place, we should be thankful for a four-day respite from the familiar, old routine. But we should be much, much more thankful that we have a school to which we may return after vacation. Indiana schools are indeed fortunate not to have shared the financial difficulties of the schools of our neighboring state, Ohio.

All Archers should also be thankful, because, on memorable October 26, the faculty declared almost to a man that they were absolutely against home-work during vacations. This is "Somepin" in any language (especially Latin). We should be thankful for the nice solid cement seats in our stadium. They may be a trifle hard, but at least the innocent spectators cannot fall through them or snag their stockings on them, and most important of all the wind cannot blow up through them.

Finally in order to be truly thankful, we should repeat this little rhyme to ourselves before sitting down to our respective sumptuous Thanksgiving repasts (big meal to you).

Of turkey and goodies its swell to partake,
But it's hard to be thankful with a tummy ache.

A word to the wise is sufficient. We hope.

Smiling Faces Are Preferable To Scowls

We would like to congratulate the many students of this great institution who are always able to present a smiling countenance. In direct contrast to these people are the ones who are almost never seen without a heavy scowl.

It certainly takes more than normal effort to place a smile always upon your face, yet the effect is spontaneous. When we see a person with a grin, we immediately form a worthwhile opinion of this person, and it takes quite a lot to disturb this first impression. No doubt you have often heard of the old proverb, "Make your first impression the best."

If you are an old grouch, always with a scowl, and look like the one supposedly owned by a sick cow, you are almost certain to be disliked.

If you can't wear a smile at all times, at least try, and if even that is much too strenuous, don't wear a scowl. Wear a mask! Remember, "Make your first impression the best, and wear a smile."

The Holiday Season will begin with Thanksgiving. Every one should contribute to the various baskets being made for worthy families.

A shortage of mistletoe has been reported by the authorities. Can it be the casanovas of South Side are at it already.

The Inter-Club Congress deserves a vote of thanks for their noteworthy work in delivering holiday baskets.

Senior Synopsis

By R. U. Graduating

Yo' attention, gentle people! It seems that although the holiday season is reekin' the air, we still have time to gather a little first class info' about struggling uppah-class folk. They continue to beat it out even while they think about turkey roasting and all the trimmin's.

Did somebody say that pugilism was confined to the more male members of our student body? Well, we heard that Nadine Mueller is quite a blow dealer, ably fit to fling fist-cuffs when so called for by the situation. Nickie the Bouncer, laughingly called (?), is more than ready, willing, and able to toss aside meandering bodies belonging to Totem office intruders.

Who is this guy Longfellow?

We gripe to the teachers who aren't to blame
We flunk in our studies until it's a shame
Threats prove no avail; we still poke our fun
We haven't succeeded, so they'll try, try a gun.

Upon slinging orchids to worthy recipients, we seemed to have overlooked one very exceedingly gracious person, Margaret Null. In anyone's language Margie is one bit of nicety that deserves mention here and now. Hard work and intense study are both synonymous with this senior. I guess we rang the Bell on that one.

Brickbats and old shoes to that Public Meante No. 1, the lad who goes to school four years without ever subscribing to anything, without ever joining any clubs, and who finally graduates wondering just what a high school does offer... Shame, shame.

Who ever thought that when Eugene the Jeep came to these h'yeah portals four short years ago that he would become head-prexy, leader supreme of his class. Yea and behold it happened. Schmitt is quite a mild-tempered fellow, yet it is an undeniable fact that he sees "Red" often—'an' thassa fact.

Academy Award Bey Griffith, without any bush-beatin', is the actress of the see-zin. South Side's gift to the stage is undoubtedly in this young Bernhardt... And Hollywood thinks Garbo is good. (Incidentally, so do we).

Hour Hit Parade

1. You're Lovely To Look At — Jeanne Porter.

2. There's Something About An Old Love — Eleanor Vesey.

3. Stop Beatin' 'Round The Mulberry Bush — Bob Bolyard.

4. Summer Souvenirs — Peg Bacon.

5. Who Blew Out The Flame — Aubrey Kellogg.

6. Wake Up and Live — Mary Jean Michel.

7. Pardon My Southern Accent — Bill Newhard.

Ho Hum, the hands of the clock have made one more round of their perpetual turning. So happy holiday with heaps of eating, Bon sewer and pip pip. G'nite and g'wan to bed.

Pro and Con

With the installation of the new radio system, the ordinary pace of life at South Side has been disrupted in many instances. I. e. We no longer have the bulletins read by our home room teacher or president as the case may be. Students of South Side seem to have decidedly conflicting ideas as to whether it is a good plan to have the bulletins read from the office over the broadcasting system or whether they should continue to be read by the home room teacher. Well, before coming to a final decision, let us weigh both sides of the proposition.

PRO:

When one makes a definite change from one plan to another, one expects to gain some advantage by this switch of affairs, otherwise it would be senseless to make it. When the decision was made to read the bulletins over the air, there was an objective behind it, not a deep underlying objective, but a self-evident one... that of saving time. Do you realize all the time it took to put out the bulletins? First a stencil had to be made, and then approximately 60 bulletins reeled off by hand. Perhaps this does not seem so much at first, but when you consider five days per week, four weeks per month, and eight months per year, you really run up in the bulletins... nine hundred sixty if you want to be technical. Coming from the office, it can reasonably be surmised that no mistakes in the actual reading will be made; whereas typographical errors can and are easily made in a written bulletin. These errors frequently misconstrue the true meaning intended. Then another point to be considered is that of regularity. To date, Mr. Snider has been as regular in reading them promptly at 8:05 o'clock as teachers have been in giving mid-semester tests. Enough on that subject (tests I mean) and let's look at the other side.

CON:

"Time waits for no man" and neither is the reading of the bulletins held up for anyone. Perhaps you say, "Well I have heard everyone of them."

Well, maybe you are not one of the poor unfortunates ravaged by colds and forced to stand in line for absent blanks, thereby losing out. Or perhaps you have never had to miss home room to take care of other pressing matters. It used to be that if by some chance you happened to miss out, the home room teacher had a copy. Now you lose out completely unless some one person has an excellent memory and can relay the contents of the bulletin to you. One solution would be to put loud speakers in the hall to accommodate Home Room hall walkers. This might prove a bit impractical from the financial standpoint however, so it might be better to make a compulsory home room attendance until after the reading of the bulletin. Then again, bulletins could be printed in addition to the reading.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Something To Be Thankful For

Archer Opinions Are Almost Unanimous That Stage Shows Are Inferior To Orchestras

Come on and hear, all you students! Who has the best band in the land?

Since Fort Wayne has been favored by the presence of prominent and well-known orchestras and their stage shows, we thought it well to know who rates the highest among South Siders. That orchestra seems to be Ozzie Nelson's. Many think that the stage shows aren't quite up to par. Here are some of the individual opinions of the students. What do you think?

Phyllis Bundy: I like the orchestras, but the stage shows aren't so hot. I prefer Jan Garber.

June McAlister: I liked the informality of Ozzie Nelson.

Gene Trout: Not worth the money I paid to see them.

Dorothy Hall: Some are all right; some are not so good.

Melvin O'Brien: Lousy, I don't like them.

Jane Knoche: I liked them all.

Newell Beatty: I didn't see any.

Betty Franklin: The stage shows aren't as good as they are publicized.

Ozzie Nelson was good.

Anita Catlett: The orchestras of Jan Garber and Frankie Master are my favorites. All are good, but the stage shows are lousy.

Ned Kelsey: Lousy.

Joyce McAlister: I enjoyed Jack Denny and the Stroud twins.

Barbara Noble: Some stage shows aren't of the best type.

George Keller: The best were Frankie Master and Glenn Gray.

Marjorie Clapp: Ozzie Nelson is my favorite, 'cause I love Ozzie.

Mary E. Larimore: They were all super, especially Frankie Master's left-handed drummer.

Harold Kitzmiller: Ozzie Nelson was good.

Charlotte Kern: I liked them all.

Bob Smimel, Jr.: I think the stage shows were low grade, but the orchestras were swell.

Bob Hawkins: All of them were swell. I preferred Jack Denny and the Stroud twins.

Roy Ellingwood: I enjoyed Ozzie Nelson. The stage shows are lousy.

Carl Goebel: I think they would be better with more jokes.

As the old saying goes, "All the world loves a lover." I'd more than love, in fact I'd worship, anybody that still believes in Cupid's ability to make the right matches. Romances have gone so stale they crumble when you touch them. It must be due to the mid-season lull. Anyhow I'll have to hang up a sign, "Come out of business" if somebody doesn't wake up.

Thank goodness there is still one or two boys left that still go on or still go a wooing, no matter how tough the sledding may be.

One of these selective few is Dick Fishing. He has his eyes on all the pretty lassies our Alma Mater has produced. So far he hasn't attached himself to any one gal's apron strings. But you know, girls, there is always a first time. At least you hope so, eh?

Another patented Romeo is Bob York. He also woos, and sometimes wins the heart of many a gorgeous gal. Bob blooms after school when he is perplexed over something very difficult? Homework. Bob also is the proud possessor of a special date list. A few of the very lucky girls on this road map are Jean Weil, Alice Jean Sweet, Bernice Etzler, and Delores Daniels. He might as well name this the no date list though, because so far he has not succeeded in rating tenth with any one of them. Oh well, keep trying, Bob.

Why do Duane Wake and a certain blonde stand by the Times mail box. Could it be that they want publicity?

Jane Knoche, the human spotlight, is waiting for Newell Beatty to ask her to go steady. The only thing is, this is the first Newell has heard of it.

While some of the girls around our halls shamefully admit that they are alleged wallflowers, Marjorie McMahon manages to capture by hook or crook the hearts of three lads. They are none other than Joe Leaming, Don Parkinson, and Jim Glass. It will be a neck and neck finish between these rivals or I miss my guess.

John Lamont, the absolute glamour boy, has publicly announced his intentions to rush Bertha Coudret. He started with a bang (?) by boldly holding blushing Bertha's hand in Latin class the other day. John, if you keep up this breathless speed you'll be going steady by 1950, and, boy, isn't that something to look forward to? (or is it?)

We hear that Rose Steiber of North Side has forgotten all about Izzie Weinraub. There seems to be a mutual something-or-other springing up between her and Kenneth Warren.

From the latest reports it looks as if the romance between Gloria Spanley and David Rea is gaining fast. At least Gloria is pushing ahead but I think that the sweet memory of Pat Sanford still lingers in David's heart. Pat Sanford decided to free lance for awhile; but, if a certain ardent admirer has his say in the matter, she won't be footloose and fancy free very long. But Pat has been wondering if her break with Dave was really so wise after all. Oh me, it's all too mixed up for a dense person like me to try to piece together.

I think that will be enough dirt to keep the tongues a'waggin for a week at least. So long.

News - Vues

In commemoration of an event, citizens over the world compare its prominence with that of other events which have taken place during their own particular era or years. They reckon time, places and customs according to their own standards of living, but never to those of the past or of the future.

Seeing such radical changes that have occurred during this century, we may feel all too prone to believe and realize the circumstances of other days and ages. Edison may shine brilliantly in modern times as the greatest inventor that the world has ever known, but in future years, he may seem but just a speck in the outlines of history and the development of civilization. Our depressions, through which most of us have spent the greater periods of our lives, may seem of primary import to us. But to our posterity, it may seem as slight as the Chicago fire, or for that matter, as the downfall of the Roman Empire seems to us.

Realizing that we too, as individuals or as a nation, will probably be forgotten in the multitudinous stream of human occurrences, we must somewhat know that we cannot hope to make an indelible mark on the face of the human race.

What then does this do to the theories of the great? Will we survive as the heralded beacon and shining light of all ages? Does it dim our powers somewhat to know that we cannot hope to remain foremost in our posterity's minds? Perhaps it does, but what of it?

Or is it an abundance of crass egotism that makes us seem what we hope to be? Jackstraws of civilization, we cannot hope to grasp ever longingly and drift along shunning everyday realities!

What solution is there? We cannot according to our creed, admire the man or nation that simply lies down and is resigned to its own peculiar fate. Britain and France are two nations, who, during the recent Czechoslovakian crisis, received all the brunt that our bodies could afford. The two situations are comparable.

We cannot and will not lie down and let everything happen to us. We cannot hope to prevent wars and disaster within the twinkling of an eye or the shake of a foot, but we can at least start the ball rolling toward a higher type of civilization.

In our schools, there is always an ever present quality in our works that demands accuracy and constant attention. There is always the group which willingly volunteers to assist with a project, and always attempts to carry through what they have willingly propelled. And it pleases us greatly to see our school represented by champions in every field. Even when champions are not concerned, we always stop and admire an excellent poster, marvelous piece of composition, or an ably presented recitation. But it grieves us sorely to see crude pencil marks chalked upon the best posters that South Side has to offer, inattention at music assemblies, or undying snickers during a speech that some person has striven so earnestly to compose and deliver.

It must be brought to our attention that if we are to stand up and fight the stemless tide of civilization, and make a name for our fellow men in this world, that the time to begin is now. There can be no better place to start than in the school, where neatness and courtesy should be so abundant, or in the home where a profound loyalty should be discerned between members of our families.

If we have any kind of a destiny to reckon with civilization, it might be advisable that we start reckoning now!

Wee Sketches Of Our Big People

By Jeannette Warren

Friendly, facetious, and forceful (in that in an amiable manner he manages to accomplish much)—also competent (wasn't a suitable word beginning with f in the dic?) are adjectives that certainly appropriately describe a prominent senior. His zealous co-operation in the various activities about school is sufficient proof of that.

And oh, yes, he is very handsome, possessing wavy hair (watch your shirt buttons, Max)—oops! Well, you have probably guessed by now anyway—it's Max Spencer ("Spence").

Spence is Totem editor, president of 1500 Club, secretary-treasurer of the senior class, and a member of the Math - Science, Social - Science, and Marionette Clubs. He "goes for" brunettes, but spoiled it all by mentioning Judy Garland. He despises (emphasis on despise) liver and onions, but relishes chop suey and mince pie (not combined, of course). He is one of a few people to appreciate classical musical and assimilate swing. He is really capable of beating it out on the ivory himself, though he won't admit it. He is an ardent basketball fan, but for himself, he'd rather bowl.

His favorite pastime is sleeping—he so rarely gets the opportunity to do it. And he is proud of his membership in The Young Republican Club. If you see him staring off into space at any time, don't wonder if he's wacky (you know it); he's either studying to perfect a plan of his conception of perpetual motion or mentally refuting the idea that an angle cannot be trisected. He migrated thither from James H. Smart, and is desirous of attending Purdue and becoming a chemical engineer.

And then one day the doctors delved down—and hokus—pokus (jus' like that!) Mr. Spencer din' have any appendix any more.

Well, folks, that's Spence. Pleased to meet him?

P. S. Max gives autographs only on Thursday evenings if it rains.

Social Poise Is An Absolute Essential To The Perfect Lady

Poise, the Social Salad

When you meet a girl who has social poise, she may seem as cool-calm-and-collected as a cucumber. But social poise is really a whole salad. The ingredients are thoughtfulness for others (thoughtfulness is to poise as lettuce is to salad), self-control, graciousness, adaptability, and, for dressing, intuition. This may seem like a difficult recipe to concoct, but it isn't so very. You just keep at it until it becomes easy and natural.

Of course, you want to have social poise. It's one of the essentials of popularity. You can see how it would be with a man; when he's looking around for someone to take dining and dancing at the Ritz, he isn't going to pick out Mayme, who is very jolly and pleasant but parks her gum under the table while she eats. Neither is he going to take Jeannie who talks with her mouth full and eats dinner with both elbows. Nor will he take Martha, who is too loud and rude and cranes her neck around to see who is there. And if you don't watch out, neither is he going to take you, because when you act excited your voice goes up several octaves and everyone within a radius of three tables can hear every word.

You will find your man with Cynthia, the perfect lady, the one with social poise.

If you want to be the one who accompanies him when he goes to the best places, then you'll have to polish up your own social poise. Like the old charity gag, you can still begin at home. The best people to start on are cranky Uncle John and Junior. Someone has said, "The secret of being a successful hostess is to treat your friends like the family." Just try it and see how it works!

And another thing—to have social poise means to be able to cope with any situation, whether it's a rumble-seat in the rain, your Aunt Minnie from the country, sixteen people for tea, or the town bore. To know people, you must talk with them—anybody, everybody, your mother's friends, your brother's pals, your old Aunt Minnie, your teachers. Soon you'll find you are talking easily with anyone, and conversation will become simultaneously, an art and a pleasure.

Half the secret is to forget yourself. There's something interesting about everybody, and it's up to you to Sherlock it out. And the more people talk about themselves and their hobbies, the nicer they think you are. Try it on your next date and watch your stock go up.

Another thing you can do is to watch people who do have social poise. Figure out how they manage to have that effect. Notice their voices, their gestures and little courtesies that give them an air. Consult Emily Post. Read all you can. Keep up with the headlines of the world, and don't neglect arts nor the sports. Learn to play contract, backgammon, golf, monopoly, tennis and poker. (Remember how boring the explanation of these games is?) Be able to drive a car, dance "well," cook a mean steak, swim, sing alto, scramble eggs. The more varied your accomplishments, the more interesting you will be and the more fun you will have.

And finally, remember that social poise isn't a thing you can get all of a sudden, like the measles. But as soon as you really start trying there'll be a big improvement. So sit down gracefully and hold your head up; lower your voice and cut your lettuce with a fork; rise when Aunt Minnie enters the room, and don't make faces behind her back.

After a while, you will find that your nice behavior is quite unpremeditated. Then you can sigh with relief and sit down (with your legs gracefully arranged) and bask in the satisfaction of knowing that people consider you a lady; and moreover, they are quite right.

Etiquette On Sidewalk

Etiquette in the modern sense is not so complicated as it was in days gone by. Our modern youths want to get along with people in the most informal way possible.

Nevertheless, there are certain rules we must follow. This column will attempt to give some of these. This week the matter of walking on the sidewalk will be taken up.

Some boys still have the old-fashioned idea that they must walk on the outside when with two girls. This is not so. The boy may walk between the girls, thus dividing his attention between them.

Some high-school students are very inconsiderate when they walk down the street. They walk three or four abreast. This makes it practically impossible for other people to get around them. We all know how annoying it is to try to get past people who "hog" the whole sidewalk. "Think of others" should be your motto.

Loud talking in public is also to be frowned upon. It is the mark of bad breeding. It is a poor way to advertise your school. From a few students, people get a lasting impression of the school you attend. Are you giving them a good one or a bad one?

In brief, your conduct should be above reproach... always.

State Champs Get In Trim As Basketball Comes In

Archer Squad Will Confront Good Schedule

South Side Will Have Six New Basketball Opponents Who Are Rated As Tough.

First Home Game Is December 17

Vincennes Is First Foe To Encounter Green's Team In Southern Gymnasium.

Ole man football is dead; King basketball reigns again. This startling situation finds South Side's 1938-39 squad defending the Indiana High School Basketball Championship which they won last season.

In defense of their state crown, the Archers will take on one of the best looking schedules in Archer history. Six brand new opponents have been put on South Side's 1938-39 schedule, and every one will be plenty tough to beat. However, the most pleasing part of it is that all six teams will meet the Archers in the Archer gym.

Vincennes is the first new foe for the Archers to conquer, and they will be seen here on December 17.

On January 14 Archer fans will get a look at a plenty good Franklin five. This game should be interesting as Franklin is the team with which the Archer mentor, Burl Friddle, played when they took State for three consecutive seasons. New Albany is a small town located in extreme southern Indiana, and is noted for its basketball teams.

The next new team is in the minds of many, the toughest on the entire Archer schedule. Martinsville has had some of the finest basketball teams ever to be seen in Indiana. Led by their veteran coach, Glenn Curtis, who incidentally is one of the best in the business, Martinsville barely missed entering the state finals last spring when the Bedford Stonecutters came from behind to hand them a one-point defeat.

Horace Mann of Gary will be the Archers next victim on February 24. This game will be followed by a contest everyone has been waiting and hoping for. On February 26, the State Champion Archers will meet the Hammond Wildcats, the team they defeated to win the final game of last season's state tourney. Each team has members of the team, which started in the state tourney, returning this year. Zimba, huge Wildcat center, and blonde Hasse, 6 feet 4 inch forward, will get their second look at our own Jim Glass, 6 feet 8 inch Archer center, and Bob Bolyard, flashy forward. The game should be played with plenty of action and will be a good test of strength before the teams enter tournament play.

In addition to these six stellar attractions, the Archers will as usual take on the three city net squads and by all indications will meet with plenty of opposition. As to the city games—here's the set up. The Green and White are favored to win the city crown which they were forced to share with North Side last season.

South Side is also given the inside track to win the N. E. I. C. title, which North Side won last year by virtue of a technicality.

Probably the most outstanding out-of-town game to be played by the Green and White is Connersville, another southern Indiana outfit, which has a standing basketball reputation. Other out of city games will be played against Kendallville, where the Archers open their season on December 2, Auburn, Elwood, Huntington, and Bluffton.

Foremost in the Archer lineup are Jim Glass, Bob Bolyard, Don Beery, and John Chidester, all of whom were members of last year's championship team. Carl Hall, outstanding player of two seasons ago, who was kept out of play throughout the 1937-38 season, provides another bright spot in Archer chances for the coming season. Others who have had valuable experience and should be plenty tough are Ralph Hamilton, Don Hire, Leroy Cook, and Ralph Saalfrank.

The complete schedule for the 1938-39 season is as follows:

- December 2—Kendallville, there.
- December 9—Bluffton, there.
- December 10—Connersville, there.
- December 16—Auburn, there.
- December 17—Vincennes—here.
- December 27—Central Catholic, here.
- January 6—North Side, there.
- January 14—Franklin, here.
- January 18—Central, here.
- January 21—Goshen, here.
- January 27—Huntington, there.
- January 28—Elwood, here.
- February 3—North Side, here.
- February 10—New Albany, here.
- February 11—Central, there.
- February 18—Martinsville, here.
- February 24—Horace Mann of Gary, here.
- February 25—Hammond, here.

BELL'S Invite You

Matinee Special on Sundays

Lettergirls, attention! Sign up immediately for the playday to be held on Friday, December 9. It's a lot of fun, and it's something you shouldn't miss!

Several girls made some super plays last Friday night in the upperclassmen volleyball games. Frances Gross, playing in the back line, sent one across the net that went like a bullet. Delores Meneff seemed to be wherever the ball was and certainly worked hard for her team.

We noticed Coach Bill Moss was intently watching the Friday games. Maybe he has decided to enter the volleyball games as well as the dancing class. What about it, Mr. Moss?

Marge Price would like to know how Gwen Roberts likes rabbit. It seems that Velma Connott brought Marge a piece of rabbit, as Marge had never tasted it. But Gwen seemed to get nearly all of it and left the bone to Marge. And now Marge Price likes rabbit. So what!

Special mention should be given to Audrey Hall, Florence Dickmeyer, and Audrey Mutschlechner. These three girls constituted the junior 1 team in the volleyball games, Friday night. They opposed the junior 2's, who defeated them, 33 to 20. What's the matter with the rest of the junior 1 team? Come and give these girls some help!

Dorothy Bloemker missed the first volleyball games just in order to be able to go to Chicago. Can you imagine anyone giving up a swell game of volleyball for a trip? (Just give me a chance to go to Chicago. I'd miss most anything!)

G. A. A.'ers Play Off Volleyball Games

Junior 2, 3, Sophomore 4, 1, Teams Are Winners In Games Held On Friday, November 18.

An interesting volleyball game was played Friday, November 18, on the south court at 3:30 between Huffman's junior 1's and Werling's junior 2's. The result of the game was a victory for Werling's team 33-20. Hudson and Beyrau played hard for the conquerors and Dickmeyer and Hall for the defeated team.

At 8:30, the north court was the scene of a close tournament between the seniors and Morrison's junior 3 team. The final score, 25-21, would seem to indicate that the senior team is slipping. However, the junior 3 combination is a tough opponent. Carrier and Chadwick did much toward piling up the senior score, and Griffith and Ulrich contributed to the junior points.

In describing the game between Nash's sophomore 4's and Thiele's sophomore 2's, it can only be said that the 4's figuratively "mowed them down." The final score was 38-16. Sheets, Gumpfer, Thiele, and Allen were outstanding in the game. Roberts acted as umpire and Calkin as scorer. This game was played at 4 o'clock on the south court.

Sophomore 1 and sophomore 3 teams figured in a surprise game at 4 on the north court. Five points were deducted from the sophomore 3 team's score, due to a penalty inflicted on one of the players, making the final score 28-25. Smith captained the winning team; Ferguson, the defeated. Bowman and Murchland played well for Ferguson, and Elaine Hirschy and Kensler did the same for Smith. The umpire for this game was Hazel Perry; scorer was Wylie.

Friddle Has Convinced Fans He's "There" As Net Coach

South Side should indeed be proud of its king of basketball coaches, Burl Friddle. Arriving here in 1936, he succeeded in taking the '37-'38 squad through the finals at Indianapolis. Fresh from the south, he knows all of the tricks practiced by the cagy southern coaches.

South Side has unanimously come to the conclusion that he certainly knows his basketball.

Performing before the veteran basketball coaches of the country last summer, he convinced them of the fact so thoroughly that he was immediately invited to conduct a coaching school in Alabama.

Coach Friddle has mastered other arts as well as the art of getting the ball through the basket. Those who heard him sing, accompanied by Carl Hall in one of the pep sessions, will verify the fact that he is an accomplished artist.

Whether he has caused the players to like him because of his singing or in spite of it, is not known; however, the fact remains that he is as much of a pal to them as a coach.

Since he has taken several Washington teams to state, South Side has every reason to hope that he will lead the Archers on to Indianapolis again this season.

Blue Has Hopes Of Net Successes

Talley, Hanley, Kulesza, Rice, Richardson Are Mainstays On Central's 1938-39 Squad.

Central has reached the finals of the State Basketball contest twice in the last four years but has been unsuccessful in their attempt to bring the trophy to Fort Wayne. Since they have twice had victory almost within their grasp, they will never give up until the trophy rests in the Central trophy case.

They have hopes that this season might be the red letter season in the history of Central sports.

Building their hopes of victory around a nucleus of seasoned veterans, the Tigers have a fine chance of turning in an undefeated season. Talley, Hanley, Kulesza, Rice, and Richardson are the veterans who will appear for the Blue during their net battles.

Opening the season against Anderson and Muncie, the Tigers will have bitten off about all they can chew. However, if they manage to swallow these first two opponents, they still have many hurdles to clear toward an undefeated season.

They will meet a fighting North Side five on December 2 that will undoubtedly give them a fight to the finish. Central Catholic will meet them on the 16. Hardly taking time to regain their breath, the Blue will take on a notably tough Kokomo team on the next evening.

On January 18 the Centralites must account for the South Side Archers. Ten days later the Central five will again meet North Side. Vincennes, Elkhart, and Marion compose the remaining threats to the Tigers. The complete schedule is as follows:

- Nov. 22—Anderson.
- Nov. 30—Muncie.
- Dec. 2—North Side.
- Dec. 9—Columbia City.
- Dec. 10—Kendallville.
- Dec. 16—Central Catholic.
- Dec. 17—Kokomo.
- Dec. 30—Auburn.
- Jan. 6—Hartford City.
- Jan. 13—Bluffton.
- Jan. 14—Decatur.
- Jan. 18—South Side.
- Jan. 24—Huntington.
- Jan. 28—North Side.
- Feb. 4—Vincennes.
- Feb. 7—Elkhart.
- Feb. 11—South Side.
- Feb. 17—Morton of Richmond.
- Feb. 24—Marion.

Coaches Choose Honorary Squads

All-City Football Team Is Named By Board; Ferguson, Cook Land Second Group Berths.

The lineup for the 1938, all-city scholastic football team, was selected last week by the all-city board comprised of Coaches Bob Nulf, John Leveck, Murray Mendenhall, Bill Moss, and Ben Tenny. For the first time in many years South Side failed to gain a single position on the honor first team. However, the Archers did have players who bid prominently for positions on the first string.

Albert Ferguson and Leroy Cook represent the Archers on the second team. Ferguson, who is a senior, and weighs 151 pounds, was selected for one of the guard berths. A. J. has played a truly marvelous brand of ball for the Archers this year. He's been one of the hardest hitting linemen on the Archer squad and his playing was one of the bright spots of a rather drab football year for South Side.

Leroy Cook is a junior and weighs 146 pounds. He secured an end position, also, on the second team. Cook was captain of the team this year and has been probably the most consistent player on the Robin Hood squad. He played practically every minute of every game. His ability to absorb terrific punishment and his fine defensive playing, easily secured him a position on the second team. Being only a junior, he will be back next year to play football for South Side.

Although being on the honorable mention list doesn't mean quite as much as it does on one of the teams, it is after all quite an honor and does show that their work was outstanding for the season. Those boys who received honorable mention for the season of 1938 are: Maurice Lehman, Dick Goshorn, Chuck Close, Dave Roth, Bill Schultz, Joe Loos, Bob Biedenweg, Stu Welborn, Ralph Ahlmeier, Tom Moonhee, Ralph Shimer, Roy Englehart, Bill Steup, and Dave Miller.

Besides Leroy Cook returning for the 1939 football campaign, eight of the boys on the honorable mention list will return. With such fellows as these, South Side is bound to have a potential all-city championship team and by the end of next fall, there will no doubt be more than one Archer on the all-city team.

Intramurally Speaking

Well! Well! Boys and others who happen to glance over this column, the intramural stars are on the court daily swishing the nets "with the greatest of ease."

At the present time, the Hoosier Pot Shots look pretty good in the mid-dleweight division. High-point Powers, Club-foot Parry, Slim Reichert, Man-Mountain Trulock, and Flash Geyer make up the nucleus of this powerful dynamo.

In the heavyweight division, the Devils look pretty tough; however, the Dubs will put up quite a threat. Billy Knoll leads the Devils in their contests, while Robert Stock and Kirk Brown stand out for the Dubs. Well, anyhow, there's going to be some ha-cha basketball.

All we can say is that we're sorry we can't see more of you flashes panting up and down the court. Well, don't say we didn't tell you.

The gym classes have recently been choosing teams and will play during the periods. Each class has about sixteen teams which compete with other teams in their respective weight classes. As Mr. Earl Friddle watches the teams constantly, the games are played to some value.

Junior Gets Pin

Caroline Schuler, a junior, has received her bronze pin for her work on The South Side Times. She has earned her points by being a room agent, classroom news reporter, and reporter.

Ad Points Compiled

Last week there was a total of 41 points received for ad submitting. Fay Gumpfer and John Bonsib each received 20 points. John Davenport received 1 point.

Is NEEDLESS Eyestrain
Sapping YOUR Energy?

Eyestrain can cause headaches, tired, aching eyes and drowsiness. Those are the symptoms. But more than that it causes inefficiency and costly mistakes because it drains your energy and fogs your brain. Certainly money you put into the care of anything as indispensable as your eyes is the soundest investment you can make.

Froebel Takes Unofficial State Cross Country Championship; Favored Redskins Are Third.

The fall portion of the track season was closed last Saturday with the unofficial running of the state cross country meet at the special North Highlands course. First place went to Froebel of Gary, whose five runners placed third, sixth, thirteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth. South Side placed ninth. The North Side squad was off par and finished third, 19 points behind Froebel. The new low scoring system was used.

This is the first time South Side has participated in fall track under their new coach, George Collier. If the idea of fall track is satisfactory, it will be an annual event at South Side.

Eighty athletes were entered from ten schools with the first five of each team to finish figuring in the scoring. Bill Heintberger, of Mishawaka, edged out Bob Ross, of Garrett, to win one of the best races of the entire season. Heintberger's time was nine minutes, 58.1 seconds. This is considered fast time for the North Highlands course which is quite hilly.

After setting the pace early in the race, Ross Leakey, of North Side, placed seventh despite an injured leg. Among the others in the first ten were Charles Gregory, of Froebel, third; Ralph Monroe, of Technical (of Indianapolis), fourth; Dick Gan, of Elkhart, fifth; Gene Capelari, of Froebel, sixth; Jay Kauffman, of Elkhart, and Don Kemp, of North Side.

The team scores were Froebel of Gary, 55; Tech of Indianapolis, 65; North Side, 74; Mishawaka, 86; Elkhart, 89; Horace Mann of Gary, 139; Garrett, 238; Lew Wallace of Gary, 248; South Side, 252, and Central, 303.

Agents Collect Money Owed School Paper

"Little More Than Hundred Dollars Left On Books", States Circulation Head.

Although more than a hundred dollars is owed by subscribers to The South Side Times, no drastic action will be taken immediately, it was announced by Virginia Goggin, circulation manager of the school paper today.

At the time this article was written, a total of $111.50 was still to be collected by home room agents. This total is expected to be decreased to a very small amount within the next week.

Eight Paid In Full
Only eight home rooms have all of their money in, although fifteen agents have less than a dollar to collect. Most of these agents will have all of their money in this week. The agents and the room which have all their money in are: Lois Rea, 4; Caroline Schuler, 58; Ruth Mary Riedy, 60; Eleanor Muntzinger, 68; Phillip Schwartz, 108; Gladys Foellinger, 110; Marjorie Semeyer, 28; Jo Ann Smith, 146; and Bob Robinson, 35.

Mistakes which have been made in the records of the circulation department are being corrected at the present time.

To Award Trophy
Every year to the school, North Side or South Side, a trophy is given. Within the next two months this year's award will be granted. The cup would have been awarded earlier in the school year except for the fact that the papers of both schools had the same subscription percentage. There was less than one per cent difference between the two papers so the final outcome will depend on which school collects the most money because only paid subscriptions are counted.

The standings of the books are as follows:

Book	Agent	Amt.
5.....	Becky Abbott	$11.45
1.....	Beverly Griffith	11.65
6.....	Emilou Allendorph	13.50
4.....	Maurine Siebert	13.65
3.....	Lucy Smith	19.35
2.....	Marjorie McNabb	20.35

Bi-weekly Target Shot At Junior Rifle Meet

The National Rifle Association bi-weekly targets were shot at the Junior Rifle Club meeting held Tuesday, November 20, at the range. The Junior Rifle Club members will participate in many matches with other Junior Rifle Clubs.

At this meeting a match with the girls' Rifle Team was discussed. The Junior Rifle team is looking forward to this match with an eye of revenge. Also discussed at this meeting, were the qualifications for the various awards, medals and certificates offered by the National Rifle Association. The club will hold a father-son meeting some time in the future.

The membership in the club at this time is the largest in the club's long history.

Marionettes Present Pantomime At Meeting

"Snow White and Rose Red" was given in the form of a pantomime at the meeting of the Marionette Club held last Thursday in the workshop. Marjorie Dyer was in charge of the group that presented the skit. Characters in the play were: Snow White, Mary Ellen Barrett; Rose Red, Jeanne French; the bear and the handsome prince, Dick Green; dwarf, Ralph Ramsey; and mother, Miss Dorothy Magley.

The members completed several pairs of legs and hands. Work on the carving of two heads was furthered. Lillian Sherbondy and her group made plans for the skit which they will present at the next meeting.

Math Members Plan For Christmas Party

Plans were made at the regular meeting of the Junior Math Club for the Christmas Party to be held December 20. Gwendolyn Kitzmiller, Etheldra Behling and Roger McVay were appointed to make plans for the party.

After the regular business meeting Betty Harvey presented some arithmetic problems called Mathematical Wrinklers. Duane Shidler and Neva Kirk had charge of other games. Refreshments were served.

For those whose birthdays occur this coming week, The Times has a sincere wish.

"Happy birthday to you
Happy birthday to you
May your blessings be many
And your troubles be few."

The people whose birthdays are during this week are as follows:
November 28: Billie Lou Beaver.
November 27: Robert Keister, Helen Bolinger, Thelma Krausekopf.
November 28: Jane Karyl Belt, Lum McDowell, Agnes Reich, and Mary Schener.
November 30: Elaine Jackson, Lisea Kaiser, William Peters, Robert Peters, Peggy Prouse, Jean Snyder, Warren Payneken, Max Atkins, Kathryn Bultmeier.

Party Held For Teacher
In Mr. Henry Chappell's period 6 (phonetic) drawing class, Tuesday, November 8, a party was held. The members of the class brought the various refreshments. They consisted of apples, pears, cake, cup-cakes, ice-cream cups, potatoe chips and sandwiches. The party was held as a surprise for Mr. Chappell.

Dick Gallmeyer in Miss Pocock's third period English class brought to class a book with an article about "Was Shakespeare King of England?"

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

Mr. Makey's English 2 students are learning how our language grows. Changes in verb forms, plurals and spelling are being studied.

In Miss Miller's home room Ronald McVay was elected chairman. Hilda Knake is his assistant.

Mr. Gould's Botany 1 classes are studying the germination of seeds. They are at the present watching the progress of germination in beans, peas and corn.

In Mr. Hull's physics 2 class, the students are studying about the telephone. They will study the ex-ray and radio next week.

In a recent vocabulary test in Miss Schmidt's German 3 class the following made 100 per cent: Richard Bussing, Gertrude Merkel, Hazel Perry, Betty Porter, Helen Savage, Ralph Sebold and Richard Sebold.

Genevieve Dygert is a new pupil in Miss Mary Crowe's home room. She entered South Side last week from Elmhurst. She is taking the commercial course.

Miss Fortney's home room had election of officers recently. The chairman is Byron Singer and the secretary is Janice Sprunger.

Sophia Kelak won a gold ribbon in Typing 3 for writing 61.8 words per minute with 98 per cent accuracy.

Miss Emma Kiefer's English literature classes selected an interesting variety of well-known sonnets as their favorites. The most popular choices were the following: "The Soldier," by Rupert Brooke; "London, 1802," by William Wordsworth; "On His Blindness," by John Milton; "How Do I Love Thee?," by E. B. Browning; "An Ideal Love," by Shakespeare; "When I Have Fears," by John Keats, and "The World Is too Much with Us," by William Wordsworth.

At mid-term, the students leading their respective classes in Miss Fiedler's three Algebra 1 classes were: Period 1, Margaret Heine, Mary Ann Florence and Bud Haberstroh; period 3, Phyllis Stein, Clifford Springer and Hilda Leininger; period 7, Elinor Muntzinger and Lois Bloemker.

Friday morning Phyllis Hayner and Jim Melchi spoke over the public address system to Miss Van Gorder's room 64, the first period. Betty Bolyard and Betty Franklin spoke the third period. They summarized a week's current events.

In Mr. Mill's Introduction to Business class, the students are studying transportation by mail. They bring to class a package wrapped and addressed correctly, and are expected to know the price for mailing.

In a recent test given by Mr. Gould to his advanced Botany classes, the following made above 90 per cent: Mary Ellen Larimore, Kitty Clinard, Dorothy Amstutz, Evelyn Beck, Mary Derck, Jane Engelking, Jean Fortriede, Betty Geake, Virginia Scherer and Maurine Siebert.

Herbert Jasch has completed a poem done in illuminated Old English lettering. The title of the poem is, "The Ways," written by Oxenham. Miss Dochterman is sending it to Kenny Scott, who is at Parson's Art School in New York.

One of Miss Perkins' French 3 classes studied one of La Fontaine's fables, and then played a phonograph record in which this fable was told.

The following students in Miss Mary Crowe's History 1 classes gave very excellent reports from the "Critical Period of American History," by Fisher. First period, Virginia Fleming, Joyce McAllister, June McAllister and Richard Dyke; second period, Safford McMyer and Carlton Clem; fifth period, Richard Gerig and Virgil Guehart; sixth period, Luanna Rindchen, Paul Gieser and Bob Forminak.

Audrey Smith in Miss Oppelt's Latin 4 class, sixth period drew an interesting ink-sketch of Homer, an ancient Greek poet.

Miss Emma Kiefer has two sets of twins in her freshman classes. She could tell neither pair apart, she confesses, except by where they sit. If they should ever change seats, well, they hadn't better. The twins are Carolyn and Marilyn Emrick and Bill and Dick Dreyer.

Wo-Ho-Ma Club Gives Play At Last Meeting

The Wo-Ho-Ma Club presented a play, "The Dear, Dear Children," at the meeting held last Thursday. The plot was a tea party attended by married women who told about the difficulties of their children. The characters were as follows: Mrs. Willard, Audrey Jeffries; Esther Willard, Wanda Eller; Mrs. Titus, Kathryn Boerger; Mrs. DeLacey, Eileen Kiessling; Mrs. Rollins, Louisa Haug; Mrs. Lake, Margaret Geroff; Mrs. Bates, Peggy Graney; Mrs. Coveeli, Mary Demetre. The play was directed by Patty Lyman.

A game was played and cookies were served as refreshments.

In Mrs. Welty's Latin 3, period 7 class, Claude Davenport has reported on five outside Latin books. The books are: "On Land and Sea with Caesar," "Conquered," "Ancient Rome," "Lives of Great Men," "With Caesar's Legions," and "Lucius, Adventures of a Roman Boy."

Home room 32 is getting ready to have its Thanksgiving basket prepared for Wednesday morning. They plan to have a basket for a family of five or six. Delilah Shaffer is in charge of the basket. Her assistants are: Paul Stocks, Virginia Shidler, and Murray Squires.

On a recent test given by Mrs. Carson to her period 2 class over chapters 10 to 15, inclusive of Book 1 of Julius Caesar, Violet Steinbauer made 99; Paul Keil and Margaret Sheefe 98; Alice Volmerding and Alice Sutter 94; and Dick Fisher 92.

In Miss Peck's English 1, period 1 class, Bernetta Morgan made the greatest improvement since school began, on the first three units of remedial English work. Betty Jane Littlefield and Donald Raines made the second and third greatest improvements respectively. On a remedial English test over the third unit of work, the students who made the greatest improvement over the grade on the second unit are Tom Walsh and Donald Raines, first, and Audrey Longworth and Connie Abbott, second and third.

While studying Christianity in Mr. Moss' general history, period 4 class, a bright student asked, "Is this A.D. or B.C.?"

Miss Smith's and Miss Dean's dancing classes are starting their ballet dancing and bar work.

On a short test over sentence coherence in Miss Pocock's English 8 class, Sarah Smeltzer made A+, Mary Ellen DeWood, A; and Burnis Laisure, A-.

Miss Smith's and Miss Dean's gym classes are in the midst of the volleyball season which will end the first of next month.

Phyllis Lansborough and Robert Fenimore made the highest grades on themes about their vocations in Miss Pocock's English class. Phyllis wrote about dress modeling as a vocation, and Robert Fenimore on mechanical engineering.

In Miss Oppelt's Latin 4 class, sixth period, the following students made 90 or above on a 40-word vocabulary test: Marcelle Driftmeyer, Betty Elbersson, Ed Meyer, Safford McMyer, Margaret Kutsch, Audrey Smith, and Martha Thomas.

On Monday of last week during Mrs. Carson's absence, the following students took care of four of her Latin classes: Home room, Louise Bussing; period 1, Gwendolyn DeWees; period 2, Katherine Kuntz; period 5, Gwendolyn DeWees; and period 6, Mary Treen.

South Siders Favor New Speech Stage As Additional Help

A quivering of the knees, a parched dryness in the throat and a clamminess of the hands are all frequent feelings of a beginning public speaker, especially if one is too near the audience. Well, fellow speech makers, as you all know we had the privilege of occupying the new Greeley Room for a spell, but now we are ousted.

However, our new home in 190 has been honored by having a new and very pretty platform constructed in it. Now students, cast your fright to the winds and stand upon that platform and give an oration that will make you a huge success among your friends.

The following are a few opinions taken from public speaking students: Betty Neeb:—When it is ready for use, it will be a great improvement as it will enable the students to speak from a platform with ease. Kitty Clinard:—It's not as nice as the Greeley room, but it is better than nothing.

Helen Wiehe:—I'm happy about the whole thing.
Bob Robinson:—It's okay.
June Enoch:—It's wonderful.
Mary Lampton:—It's swell.
Jeanette Warren:—It's a decided advantage which we didn't have before.

Betty Bolyard:—It's swell, but I hope we don't fall from that extreme height and seriously hurt ourselves.

895 Subscribe For '39 Totem To End Drive

Seventy-five Cents Is Due On Yearbook By December 2 If Using Payment Plan.

To date 895 students have subscribed for The Totem. By Friday, November 11, fifty cents was to have been paid; but, as the campaign got a late start, there will be no fines for that dead-line. The next dead-line, however, is December 2, when seventy-five cents is due on The Totem.

After the Thanksgiving vacation the staff will begin making up the senior panels of Totem pictures. If any seniors have not returned their proofs, they are urged to do so immediately. So far 404 seniors have paid for and had their pictures taken. This includes practically all seniors.

Picture agents that have done especially well are as follows: John Magley, 38; Hazel Perry, 35; Bob Byers, 34; Joann Bradley, 33; Phyllis Hayner, 30; Richard Garton, 28; Betty Daniels, 25; Anna Lou Kowalski, 25; Lora Jane Reed and Marge Quackenbush, 24; Eugene Schmidt, 24; Helen Wiehe, 23; Janice Dyer, 20; Marjorie Wallace, 19; Elizabeth Most, 16.

Christmas Seal Sale To Begin

thereafter the idea was adopted by other communities, and the National Tuberculosis Association was formed. The theme of the Christmas Seal sale this year is "No Home Is Safe from Tuberculosis Until All Homes Are Safe." Last year it was "Every Case Comes from Another." The design of the seal is usually synonymous with the theme. This year the 1938 seal hints to the tranquility, comfort and security of home which would be broken in the advent of a case of tuberculosis.

Four Portraits On Seal
The portraits of four men closely associated with the fight against tuberculosis will figure in the complete sheets of 1938 Christmas Seals. Their portraits will appear as cornerstones on the four corners of the sheets. In the upper left will be the portrait of Dr. Rene Laennec, who in 1819 invented the stethoscope, which today is extremely valuable in detecting cases of tuberculosis. In the upper right hand corner will appear a portrait of Robert Koch, who discovered in 1882 the germ which causes tuberculosis. At the lower left will be the portrait of Dr. Edward L. Trudeau, builder of the first permanent sanatorium in 1885 for the care of those afflicted with tuberculosis, and at the lower right Elmar Holboell, who started the first sale of Christmas Seals in 1904. The seal was designed by Lloyd Coo of New York.

Reporter Earns Pin
Martha Jane Krauskopf has just received her 1500 Club bronze Times pin. She earned her points by being a reporter, ad solicitor and home room agent.

Basketball Souvenir Sale To Be Monday After Thanksgiving

Hurry, hurry, hurry—who'll buy my last pin—only ten cents, one thin dime? Thank you, sir, and here's your pin. Step right up. Now who'll buy my second to the last pin? Get your basketball pin here and now. They're going, going.

Follow the long line that leads into the Times room every day and you will find that super saleslady Eleanor Vesey shouting for a nice lil' customer to buy her pins.

These pins, as you will find, are super-ordinary basketball souvenirs. You will want to get yours now to wear at the basketball games.

Are you not sorry that you did not get your pin when you first heard about them? The pins have all gone to the early birds. However, there will be more pins waiting for you to buy them after your Thanksgiving vacation. Don't forget to bring a dime early Monday morning into the Times room.

Your pin will jingle when you wear it, and don't forget to show it to your friends and make them want one also. We want to show our boys that we are behind them and we are looking forward to another successful year of basketball.

Senior Caps, Gowns
Will Rent For $2.00

Senior caps and gowns for commencement exercises in June can be rented from the school for $2. This amount can be paid all at once or in installments. Miss Dorothy Alderdice will take the payments in the general office as soon as students want to bring in their money.

Measurements for the caps and gowns were recorded by the seniors in their home rooms Thursday, November 17. The measurements asked for were head, chest and height. Orders will be sent for the caps and gowns as soon as all orders are in; so seniors are urged to get their measurements in as soon as possible. The invitations will also be ordered although the price has not, as yet, been decided upon.

Ticket Contest To Be Staged By Stamp Club

Will Be Conducted Today And Tomorrow Preceding Skate To Be Held Friday.

Committee Selects Three Chaperons

Miss Mary Pocock, Miss Helen Bean, Mr. Earl Sterner Chosen By Group.

Sponsored by Stamp Club in preparation for its annual skate, this year termed the "Sugar Bowl Swing," to be held Friday evening at Bell's Rink, a hidden ticket contest will be conducted for South Side students today and Friday. At a stamp exchange held in room 26 last night, chaperons for the event, plans for the contest, and results of the battle between the Jitterbugs and the King Kats were disclosed.

In the hidden ticket contest today and tomorrow, vari-colored blanks will be scattered throughout the school. The real ticket will be signed by Carlton Clem, club president, and Miss Pauline Van Gorder, adviser, to certify its identity. The finder should bring it to room 64 as soon as the ticket is found.

Provide Skaters' Bus

Tickets, priced at 25 cents each, may be purchased at the school's front entrance tomorrow night. A skater's bus will be provided to carry students to and from the rink. Ten cents will be charged as a transportation fee.

Miss Mary Pocock, Miss Helen Bean, and Mr. Earl Sterner, will act as skate chaperons tomorrow night. Heading the committee who made chaperone selections is Mary Virginia Russ who is assisted by Rosemary Spore.

Special entertainment at the rink will be provided this year as last year," announced David Slattery and Thelma Pifer who are in charge of securing suitable talent. Stamp Club was the first high school organization in Fort Wayne to promote entertainment at the rink, and other clubs since then have continued the practice. Attendance prizes, selected by Jeanne Snyder and Maxine Hudson, also will be awarded skaters. Tickets were procured by Gerald Wulliman, sales chairman, as leading the King Kats. Team captains, Dave Slattery and Carlton Clem, gave pep talks to their teams at the meeting last night.

Give Favors At Rink

"Because of the demand by Archers for the skate insignias, green Jitterbugs and red King Kats, will be given to all skaters at the rink," it was announced by Bruce Bradbury, public relations chairman. Assistants who labored over Thanksgiving vacation in making posters and blackboard sketches are Ralph Herb and Bill Cartwright. Other committee members are Edward Turner, Melvin Schwartz, Jack Hodell, Maxine Case, and Max Stobaugh.

"Mexico and Central America" will serve as the topic for Stamp Club's annual Christmas party to be held December 14 in the Voorhees Room. Robert Wylie, chairman, Gerald Wulliman, Jack Feller, Jeanne Snyder, Helen Karnap, Franklin Thompson, Warren Wyneken, Richard Trotter, and William Wolf are in charge.

Student Players Club To Give Play Friday

A play, "The Dear Departed," will be presented at the regular meeting of Student Players Club tomorrow after school. This play is under the direction of Margaret Gross.

The action centers about an old grandfather who is thought by relatives to have died in his room. However, this grandfather rises "from the dead" and finds his relatives dividing his fortune. Because of this situation he decides to marry a widow. The old man is nearly seventy years old when he enters into matrimony. The play is a very good comedy. It is presented by the following cast: Mrs. Slater, Frieda Schubert; Mr. Slater, William Newhard; Mrs. Jordan, Lois Rea; Mr. Jordan, Robert Brooks; and grandpa, Bill Grenand.

Marionette Dancers To Give Skit Tonight

Lillian Sherbondy will direct her group in a skit at the Marionette Club this evening at 3:30 in the workshop. The members in her group are Wana Carrier, Donna Dennis, Mildred Berry, and Betty Showalter.

Junior Mathematicians To Meet On Tuesday

Gwendolyn Kitzmiller, Etheldrea Behling, and Roger McVay are members of the program committee for the next meeting of the Junior Math Club next Tuesday. Mathematical Wrinkles will be presented by Betty Harvey. Further plans for the Christmas party to be held December 20 will be discussed.

Grant Kruse Numeral

William Kruse, '37, now a freshman in the college of Business Administration at Butler University received a freshman numeral at the annual football banquet recently.

In Charge Of Skate

Miss Pauline VanGorder

Miss Pauline VanGorder, adviser of Philatelic Club, is in charge of the "Sugar Bowl Swing" skating party to be held at Bell's Rink tomorrow night.

Roman Dinner Will Be Given By Latin Club

Feast To Be Served In Four Courses; Program To Be Drama, Dance, Singing.

A Roman banquet, sponsored by Latin Club, will be held December 1 at 5:00 in the Greely Room. The banquet, the first in the club's history, will be opened with an invocation to the Gods by Gwen DeWees. The meal is to be composed of four courses: the Gustus or appetizer, the Prima Mensa or first course, the Secunda Mensa or second course or dessert, and the Comissatio or wine supper. The menu will consist of everything ab ovo ad mala, which translated means, from the egg to the apple. Since the meal will be eaten with the fingers, slaves will not only serve the food, but also will pass water and towels between each course. The price of the banquet will be twenty-five cents.

The food committee is composed of Rosella Kochler, chairman, Dorothy Gilda, Gene Lou Harges, Phyllis Lauer, Ione Jean Tracht, Marjorie Wright, Joan Cartwright, Joan Cox, Reba Coppock, June Flaig, and Faye Gumpfer.

A play entitled "In Caesar's Garden" will be presented. The cast of characters is as follows: Augustus Caesar, William Newhard; Livia, his wife, Betty Daniels; Horace, Bruce Bradbury; and a servant, Roger McVay. The play shows the conditions of Rome at the time of Caesar.

A typical Roman dance, directed by Joyce Cleaver, will be given by Joyce Cleaver, Eileen Eider, Avel Bridges, and Jane Engleking. Ruth Dauner will accompany the group at the piano.

Other items on the program will be a fute solo by Albert Verweire and group singing, led by Mr. Sterner. An old Roman song, "Gaudemus Igitur" or "Therefore Let Us Rejoice," and several popular songs, which have been translated into Latin, will be sung. Maurine Seibert, chairman of the entertainment committee, will give speeches of explanation after each course. Her committee consists of Bruce Bradbury and Betty Daniels.

Campaign Of Christmas Seals Helps Tuberculosis Leagues

Do most of us, I wonder, appreciate the great world-wide fight against tuberculosis, a disease that has killed millions of men, women, and children so far back in history that we hardly know when it began to do its deadly work? It is a battle that has been waged between "The White Plague," as Oliver Wendell Holmes once called it, and willing workers organized against it for nearly two score of years now in the United States. And it has been the Christmas seal sale idea that has been largely responsible for the success of these anti-tuberculosis associations.

While the first genuine tuberculosis Christmas seal was sold in 1904, there is record of an attractive stamp being sold to finance the construction of a sanitarium in New South Wales, a state of Australia, as far back as 1897. By means of selling stamps, money has been raised for various charitable organizations as far back as the Civil War in 1861. Here and there after the sixties the charity stamp idea was adopted by other countries but not continued as a vogue.

The plan of selling Christmas seals must be attributed to the foresight of a postal clerk in the Danish Postal Service. One day during the busy Christmas season of 1903, he brought himself of the remuneration brought to the government by government stamps, and observed that spe-

Archer Clubs Will Promote Social Dances

After-Game Activities To Be Held In Room 170; Tickets To Be Sold At Door Only.

No Refreshments Will Be Served

Corridor By Rooms 138-146 To Be Used As Checkroom To Prevent Inconvenience.

After-game dances are to be sponsored by clubs of South Side to provide a wholesome social activity for the young people to be kept at the new room given over to social activities of the school. As clubs will sponsor these dances they must take care of plans such as chaperons, ticket sellers, publicity, enlisting aid of parents, and providing for custodial service. Chaperons must be at least four teachers, two of whom must be men, also some parents. The idea is to have as many parents as possible present, but in any case there should be some representatives from the parent group. All chaperons must understand that they are to stay until the dance is over.

Tickets will be sold at the door only, instead of having members of the club sell them beforehand.

The orchestras for these dances must enter the school by the main Calhoun door, arriving at South Side before nine o'clock. Special passes will be provided for them and should be given to them prior to the day of the dance. Arrangements must be made to ask for the orchestra beforehand, as a special blank must be secured in the office, and this must be filled and returned at least four days before the date of the dance.

No elaborate decorations will be allowed; just those in keeping with the season during which the dance is held. Expenditures for the dance must be a minimum. Balances over $15 for one dance shall be placed in a reserve fund to take care of deficits on other similar dances. Any balance at the end of the year is to be used to buy furnishings for the club room and for other similar purposes.

For these after-game dances, no refreshments will be served or sold and there will be no passouts granted to those students in attendance.

An important notice for clubs sponsoring the dances is to see that this activity ends at 11:30. The janitor and fireman are to be paid for their services at these dances.

Other arrangements that must be taken care of by the club in charge of the dance are following: In order to make it unnecessary to inconvenience a teacher by using a class room for a check room, the corridor by rooms 138-146 may be used. Clothes racks will be placed in that hallway.

Doors at the upper south end of the gymnasium are to be fastened as soon after the game as possible. The gates across the south end of the building will be closed. Gates will also be placed across the halls leading to the north end of the building.

In regard to the lights, they are to be on in room 170, the corridor north of 170, the corridor by rooms 138-146, two east rest rooms, middle incline and front entrance.

Campaign Of Christmas Seals Helps Tuberculosis Leagues

Do most of us, I wonder, appreciate the great world-wide fight against tuberculosis, a disease that has killed millions of men, women, and children so far back in history that we hardly know when it began to do its deadly work? It is a battle that has been cial holiday stamps could do the same thing for the groups which had organized against tuberculosis. He suggested such a plan to the postal authorities, pointing out that if the holiday missives could each carry a penny Christmas seal the money derived from this source might help to build tuberculosis hospitals for children. After the postal authorities had given their approval, the royal family sanctioned the idea. Thus in 1904, realizing Elinor Holbell's idea for the prevention of tuberculosis in his native country of Denmark, was issued the first Christmas seal in the world.

The neighboring country of Sweden was next to adopt such a plan. And then in America in 1907. It was Miss Emily P. Bissel of Wilmington, Delaware, who first saw the plan put into effect in the United States. Her interest in a small tuberculosis hospital, badly in need of funds, realized a total of $3.00 from the first year's sale. And from that beginning of Miss Bissel's in 1907 the selling of Christmas seals in the United States has spread to every state and territory including Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines, and Puerto Rico.

Elinor Holbell's idea spread through other countries until it literally circled the globe, until forty-five nations became instrumental in preventing tuberculosis by selling Christmas seals. In these forty-five countries there are one hundred forty different organizations which have participated in the fight against tuberculosis by the sale of Christmas seals. In a roll call taken in the years of 1935 and 1936 there were, excepting the United States, twenty-four countries in which Christmas seal sales were conducted. They are: Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, France, Great Britain, Iceland, Italy, Japan, Korea, Yugoslavia, Latvia, Netherlands, Norway, Panama, Poland, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, Trinidad, Tobago, and South Africa.

The first attempt at the organization of a local Fort Wayne league was made in 1926.

Fifty Archers Plan To Attend Purdue Debate

To Be Held Tomorrow, Saturday; Students To Leave Friday Morning At Eight

With tomorrow, December 2, and Saturday, December 3 set aside, fifty South Side speech students have planned to attend the Purdue Debate Conference, which is held annually at about this time of year. As usual the conference has invited students from high schools all over the state. Last year a total of 805 persons representing seventy-three high schools attended. From Fort Wayne last year there were representatives from Central, North Side, Elmhurst, and Concordia, besides South Side.

This year the debaters will be from Ohio State and Purdue; their debate topic will be "United States Alliance With Great Britain."

It has been arranged for students to leave the school at eight o'clock Friday morning and return about five o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The debate, to be held at two-fifteen o'clock on Friday, will be followed by a banquet at five-thirty. At eight o'clock the series of addresses by the debaters will be held. The students who have been admitted free of charge to a special performance of "Dracula," three-act mystery thriller, produced by the Purdue Playshop. The next morning there will be a campus tour following which at ten o'clock there is to be a series of addresses by nationally recognized authorities on debate topics.

Meterites Choose Groups For Party

Literary Group Forms Plans For Graduation Party; Marilyn Loomis Appointed Chairman

Marilyn Loomis, chairman, Gloria Orr and Lois Hoff comprise the committee for the program of the graduation party, it was announced at the November 29 Meterite meeting. The nominating committee was also appointed. The girls who were selected are: Emalyn Rimmel, chairman, Dorothy Gilda, Carol Whittner, Gladys Foellinger and Evelyn Talbot.

Margery Roberts and Emalyn Rimmel, accompanied by Mildred Hanke, sang three songs, "Sympathy," "Moon and Roses" and "Smilin' Through." Two pantomimes were given under the direction of Bettilou Stein. The cast of the first, "Bravo, Ladies!" included Ione Jean Tracht, Dorothy Jagers, Virginia Gray, Lois Gumpfer, Carolyn Snook, Olive Miller, Tompkins Hall and June Flaig.

A violin trio, consisting of Faye Gumpfer, Elaine Hirschy, and Janice Sprunger, accompanied by Phyllis Sprunger at the piano, played two selections.

The cast of the second pantomime, "The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter," included Lois Gumpfer, Carolyn Snook, Ione Jean Tracht, Olive Miller and Dorothy Jagers.

To conclude the meeting, Emalyn Rimmel read three poems.

Pupils Contribute To Fund

Last week each student in South Side was asked to contribute at least one penny to the P.T.A. council relief fund. By doing that they helped to build up a welfare fund which is distributed to the various schools to help buy food, clothing, and school supplies for those who are unfortunate.

Radiators Installed

Radiators were installed in Mr. Hull's home room, 96, over Thanksgiving vacation.

Athletic Group Will Sponsor Hop Saturday

South Side Lettermen's Organization To Hold Dance To Celebrate Basketball

Tickets Will Cost Seventy-Five Cents

Freddy Lenz Plays For Annual Shindig; No Admits Will Be Issued For Stags

South Side's Lettermen's Club will have their annual dance this Saturday in celebration of the opening of this school's basketball season.

The dance will be held in room 170 Saturday night from 8 to 11:30 o'clock, with music being provided by a former letterman of South Side, Freddy Lenz.

Tickets for the dance are seventy-five cents a couple. No stag tickets will be sold for this dance. This is one of the few organizations to try this idea of allowing couples only. Attendance prizes will be presented near the close of the dance.

The chaperones for this dance are being selected by a committee and will be composed mostly of members of the faculty and parents.

Committees to undertake the various duties connected with the dance are as follows: ticket committee, Bob Bolyard, LeRoy Cook, and Ned Kelsey; cleanup committee, Bob Biedenweig, A. J. Ferguson, and Eugene Ferguson; check room committee, Bill Steup, Paul Dammeier, and Roy DeMetree; advertising committee, Alison Arnold, Bob Biedenweig, and Don Beery; decoration committee, Jim Glass, Don Beery, Lawrence Selzer, Dick Glass, Jackie Braden, Dick Goshorn, and Paul Dammeier; chaperon committee, Carl Hall, Alison Arnold, and Stu Welborn; orchestra committee, Tom Moorhead, Doyle Springer, and Harold Kitzmiller; prize committee, Bob Bolyard, Tom Moorhead, and Dave Roth.

Tickets for the dance are secured from any member of the club and also at the door Saturday, for seventy-five cents.

Clubs Will Hold Skate December 9

French, Rifle Groups To Stage Affair At Bell's Rink; Committees Are Named By Clubs.

French Club and Girls' Rifle will hold their skate at 8:00 p. m. on December 9, at Bell's Rink. Favors will be given to all students that are at the rink soon after 8:00 o'clock. Tickets, which will be 25c each, can be purchased from any member of the Girls' Rifle Club or French Club. They are also on sale in rooms 90 and 92. This is an annual affair which is always sponsored by both the Girls' Rifle Club and French Club.

Committees for this skate were chosen several weeks ago and have been working on plans for it. The committee in charge of general arrangements is Delores Ulrich, chairman; Dick Hoover and Betty Thiele. Marion Feichter, chairman of the committee in charge of tickets, has Marcia Allen and Jane Merchant assisting her. The attendance prize committee is Betty Marquardt, chairman, and Audrey Hall and Imogene Fabian.

At the range after school yesterday, members of Girls' Rifle Club shot targets that will count for the bi-weekly contest. They are as follows: Jane Merchant, Imogene Fabian, Mildred Trout, Marcia Allen, Marion Feichter, Marge Price, Delores Ulrich, Audrey Hall, Dorothy Bloemker, and Betty Jean Pressler.

Wo-Ho-Ma Members To Meet In Room 26

The Wo-Ho-Ma Club will hold its meeting this afternoon in room 26 instead of in the Greeley Room. The main part of the program will be the "Amateur Hour." There will also be some other entertainment.

The committee in charge is as follows: chairman, Betty Wimmer; assistant chairman, Betty Lapp; Mary Lu, Marilyn Sappington, Martha Hart, Audrey Evans, Carol Westfield, Patricia Smith, Jean Junk, June Wholen, Maxine Goers, and Gladys Reeves.

Elected To Board

Mr. Merle J. Abbett, superintendent, was elected as a member of the executive board of the Youth Council at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday night.

Social Scientists Again To Sponsor Magazine Drive

Heads Sales

Mr. Wilburn Wilson

Mr. Wilburn Wilson will supervise the Social Science Magazine campaign which will be launched this morning by a program over the public address system during which Mr. R. Nelson Snider and Mr. E. G. Payne will speak.

Speakers To Hold Declamation Meet

Wranglers Will Stage Contest At Club Meeting; Entrants With Subjects Are Announced

Wrangler's Dramatic Declamation contest will be featured at the next meeting to be held on Monday, December 5. Entrants and titles of their declamations are: Margaret Gross, "The Lord's Prayer"; Bob Safer, "Beyond The Last Mile"; Sally Moorhead, "Mary Stuart"; Bruce Bradbury, "The Bishop's Candlesticks"; Bill Reithmiller, "The Informer"; Carolyn Lichtenberg, "Jean Marie"; Dorothy Foellinger, "Camille"; and Kolman Gross, "Quite So".

By the means of these contests which Wranglers are featuring, they are indirectly preparing for speakers that will represent South Side in a speech meet to be held here next term.

Wranglers' Thanksgiving meeting on November 21 was cleverly arranged by a group of freshmen and sophomores who have become Wrangler members since the freshman-sophomore speech contest. After the president, Dick Garton, had welcomed the new members, Byron Singer, master of ceremonies, took charge of the program. Harold Martin gave the response to the president's speech, in which he told what would be expected of the veterans by the new members. He promised that they would attempt to carry on after the reigning members had graduated in the traditional Wranglers style.

John Welles gave a cleverly written humorous speech about existing conditions in the world today. A skit entitled "Thanksgiving Gossip—1920" was presented by Carol Whittner, Maxine Case, and Kathryn Guild. Betty Stump and Mary Barrett debated on the humorous subject of "Whether or Not Thanksgiving Should Be Spent At Grandmothers'." In Walter Winchell style Richard Markowitz presented 1938 gossip. "What A Wrangler Has To Be Grateful For" was discussed by Paul Johnson. Bob Guion, with a cornet solo, and John Welles, with a trombone solo, contributed to the musical interest of the program.

$39.50 Is Total Owed On Sales For Times

There is still $39.50 to be paid on Times subscriptions. This should be paid as soon as possible. There are twenty-three paid home rooms and thirty-six not paid. Virginia Goegelein, circulation manager for the Times, announced that during the next two weeks notices will be sent to all people who have not paid their full seventy-five cents. The standings of the books are as follows:

Math Science Speaker To Be Mr. Don Post

Mr. Don Post will be the guest speaker at the Math-Science Club meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Greeley Room. His topic will be "Practical Application of Mathematics and Meteorology to Aviation." Mr. Post was recently associated with the New York Air Port as meteorologist. He is now assistant meteorologist at the United States Weather Bureau in Fort Wayne.

Eugene Tigges will give a report on John Muir whose one hundredth birthday anniversary occurred last April. Other features of the program will be community singing, games, and refreshments.

Members are urged to bring visitors.

Lead Solicitors

Shirley Rubin and Faye Gumpfer headed the advertising solicitors last week with ten inches each. Erma Jackson, Jessie Freeman, and Wayne Hambrook had two inches apiece. Betty Haney had one.

Mr. Wilburn Wilson, Eleanor Vesey In General Charge Of Campaign.

Group Is Divided Into Two Teams

Floogies, Floy Floy To Be Headed By Two Generals; Room Captains Named.

This morning marks the beginning of an intensive school-wide Social Science magazine campaign which is to last until December 9. Eleanor Vesey, in collaboration with Mr. Wilburn Wilson, has worked out the campaign in military fashion. At the top is Mr. Snider; under him, Mr. Wilson; then president, Eleanor Vesey. Next come the two generals of the competing teams, Doris Williams and Eugene Schmidt, generals of the Floogies and the Floy Floy teams respectively. Every member of Social Science is a major responsible to the general of the team he is assigned to.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider and Mr. E. G. Payne will give addresses this morning explaining in more complete detail about this campaign. To stimulate interest in the campaign, the Curtis Publishing Company is offering three dollars to the major leading with the most number of subscriptions at the end of the campaign; two dollars to the leading captain; and one dollar to the leading student of the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes. In addition to these prizes, there are numerous ones listed in the Curtis prize booklet, which will be given to each student in South Side.

Majors Named

The Social Science majors who are to help in this campaign are: Margery Rapp, room 4; Lois Rea, 8; Reva Foster, 10; Betty Neeb, 12; Beverly Griffith, 14; Ruth Bade, 24, 26; Janice Dyer, 28, 29; Maurine Kellogg, 30; Max Spencer, 32; Reva Foster, gym; Carl Goebel, study; Max Mitchell, 34, 36; Eugene Schmidt, 38; Max Magner, 44; Ronald McVay, 46; Velma Lehman, 52; Aubrey Kellogg, 54; Jean Fortriede, 56; Mary Kixmiller, 58; Anna Lou Kowalski, 60; Doris Williams, 64, 66; Helen Banks, 68; Phyllis Geller, 70; Jean Fortriede, 72; Andy Bremer, 74; Phyllis Geller, 76; Emilou Allendorph, 76; Velma Lehman, 77; Max Spencer, 78; Bruce Bradbury, 80, 82; Jeannette Warren, library; Kenny Warren, 90, 91; Bill Riethmiller, 92; Jeannette Warren, 94; Betty Daniels, 96, 98; Betty Neeb, 102; Richard P. Support Urged Social Science wants to make this campaign a really major feature of the benefit of the Division of Visual Education which the club sponsors. It asks that every student co-operate in selling all the subscriptions possible.

Service To Hold Potluck Tuesday

Students Must Sign Up In Study Hall By Tomorrow; Event To Be First Activity Of Term

Tuesday, December 6, will mark the date of the first Service Club potluck of the semester. All students eligible to come were given invitations yesterday or will get them today or tomorrow. These students are urged to sign up in the study hall for what they intend to bring by Friday, December 2. The potluck will be held in the cafeteria.

The program for this potluck which will feature among other entertainment, a tap dance, community sing, piano duet by Velma Lehman and Ruth Bade, and an all girl orchestra led by Mr. Emrich, is to be taken care of by the program committee. This committee consists of Kathryn Boergers, Vera Berning, Ruth Bade, Andy Bremer, Phyllis Frisinger, William Newhard, Janice Dyer, Velma Lehman, Betty Rose, Peggy Zirkel, and Phyllis Branning.

Girls that assisted in writing the invitations are as follows: Vera Berning, Marjorie Jackson, Eileen Hoffman, Edna Voltz, Alma Korte, and Dixie Lee Hanna.

The menu committee has been chosen as follows: Dorothy Hall, Ruth Kaiser, Marjorie Jackson, Dixie Lee Hanna, Emilou Allendorph, Eileen Hoffman, Kathleen Ramer, Velda Oppenlander, Evelyn Kruse, and Dorothy Bloemker.

Songs To Be Feature At German Club Meet

At the next meeting of the German Club, which will be held in the Voorhees Room on December 7, the members will again practice German songs that are being sung at the Christmas party. A business meeting will also be held.

Father Dies

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Jewell Diehm upon the recent death of her father.

Potential State Champs Make Debut Tomorrow Night At Kendallville

Tomorrow night marks the opening of the 1938-39 basketball season for South Side. At present we who have not seen the team in action do not know whether we are to have another season like last year or not; but our hopes are with the team when it travels to Kendallville tomorrow.

Our school is now known all over the state of Indiana for its skill in basketball. The students of South Side are of course hopeful for another undefeated season and another state championship, but if our team is not quite able to do this, and we think that a very good year is probable, we as South Siders of the highest degree should cheer our team along just the same.

Win or lose, support Archers in all their grid clashes, and if the opponent does something worthy of applause give the other players a hand. Good sportsmanship shows the true attitude of a school, and as one of the best schools in the entire world it is up to the students of South Side to prevent booing and other unworthy acts from occurring in our gymnasium, or any other in which our team is playing.

We want our team to win another state championship, although it is much too early in the year to be talking of that, and we propose to support our team to our utmost. However, we do not intend to do anything that might possibly give this institution a bad name.

So, let's follow the Archers through the full season our squad has, and show what South Side is made of, by being Good Sportsmen. Remember that when the referee calls a play differently from the way you would like. It takes a lot to be good sports, but SOUTH SIDE HAS WHAT IT TAKES.

King Winter Arrives; Beware Of His Tricks

Clothed in his traditional white robes, King Winter has at last made his formal entrance. He is attended by many courtiers of Winter Sports, each one carrying the badge of his office. First comes Ice Skating, then Skiing, followed by Coasting and Sleighing. Unfortunately more unpleasant characters also skulk in the King's train. Danger and death are present in the forms of Ice, Sleet and Snow.

We sincerely hope that this year South Siders will come in contact with only the good times that may be derived from winter. At this season more than at any other, carelessness should be avoided. What with ice-covered roads and frosted windshields tragedy may lurk at every cross-road. Remember that sane and sensible driving will result in a healthy winter.

Another hazard of winter is created by many of our "younger" Archers. Snowballing is good exercise and wholesome fun if indulged in at the proper time and place. But snowballs thrown at the innocent passersby (or is it passerbys), may become annoying and dangerous weapons. Even if women's hats this year do make good targets, self-control should be practised. The next time you feel like throwing a snowball at some unsuspecting back, toss a handful of snow down your own coat-collar and see how it feels. Uh!

Warning! Guard Your Health

In a recent health editorial appearing in the Chicago Tribune, it was stated that the coming generation will be much weaker in health and in body than the present or preceding generations. The youth of today can take it either as a warning or an insult. The wise students who value their health will take it as a warning. The average student of today is always on the run which causes them to neglect their health. A candy bar and a hamburger make up the meal of the average student. It is habits like this that are causing the slow but certain breakdown of the students' health. The students then ask: "What should we do; eat a meal from soup to nuts?" No, hardly, but a student's meal should be comprised of something more than just candy and sandwiches. With a sandwich, the student should have something hot, for an example, soup. If today's students take care of their health by having the proper meals, the above warnings will be unnecessary. Remember, students, South Side can be a school of champions only as long as it's student body is strong and sound.

Remember the holiday spirit. Give for the sake of giving, and don't think that this warning is rather early. It is never to early to be kind.

What is your opinion? Do you believe that we will be able to walk in snow through the Christmas holidays? Anyhow, here's hoping.

Senior Synopsis

By R. U. Graduating

By this time most of you suave stylists of the dance have probably recuperated from all of your festivalish celebrations...and now you are qualified to once more settle your qualiselves back in the ranks of hard study and good work. An' you are also probably ready to once more properly adjust yourselves into the dignified position befitting an upperclass student.

We of the senior group feel that seven pink ribbons, one old shoe, and three broken lamp shades should be given to none other than Mrs. Buchholz's beautiful son, Richard, the boy heart throb and Hi-Y genius (Wanna buy a pencil?) His aspirations do not stop here, however, as he is a lady kee-iller, deluxe. (Specially, when you're the only man present at a club meet, huh Dick).

Once upon a time some four hundred odd, in one sense of the word, youngish youth literally tripped into the Southern portals. What they encountered and what they have accomplished is much too lengthy to transcribe here. However, they did weather three fun-packed years, and now they are enjoying to the fullest degree the life of a fully fledged senior.

To a certain 12B woman, we present the laurels of the week, for behind the beaming countenance of one Eleanor Vesey lies a young lady well worth knowing and a pleasure to meet. Energeticness, ardent ability, and high ideals are all characteristic of this amiable personage. We might add that she is one steady girl who is really steady.

May we offer what we believe would be the perfect senior specimen—a choice bit of femininity with:

- The hair of Phyll Geller;
- The personality of Janice Dyer;
- The eyes of Marge Craig;
- The figure of Lois Rea;
- The smile and teeth of Freida Schubert;
- The nose of Peg Gross;
- The hands of Betty Jaekber.

Adding added afterthoughts, we wonder who the fellow was that said applejack is dance money? We also wonder if Jack Brazy was once frightened in the long ago by a fur muff, or if his little brush is to keep him warm this winter.

And now, chillun, somebody told us to pack up and move on. After all, we don't sleep here, and there are other things to be done. (Some uncouth cur wants to type out a French translation). Well, anyhow, it's time all good head-waves got back to their home-work.

Jam Session of The Jitterbug

Flash...We welcome back to our portals one who has long been absent...Our one-time prima donna, Doris Hays. She visited school last week before Thanksgiving vacation and was received with open arms by all of her former associates...And Al Hertel was tickled, too. She says that she likes the Kokomo High School, but that South Side has spoiled her. It is very interesting that, although the Kokomo school is attended by as many students as our own, their school paper is much smaller, at least in the eyes of Doris...Come back again soon, Doris.

It seems that in a certain one of Mr. Murphy's history classes, several students find time to do more than their history...Junior Roberson doesn't exactly neglect his studies, but then he finds plenty of time to sit and gaze upon Maxine Pelz, the girl of his dreams, and the unknown object of his affections...It seems that also in this class, the librarian, Bob Williams, is always trying to catch the attention of Betty Lou Genke...We've always heard that one finds one's heart's desire while in high school.

Funny things go on around this school; namely, break-ups and make-ups...Pauline Otting and Bob Hageman got mad at each other just for the fun of making up...They've had three fights in the past week, but seemed to enjoy being together at the Job's Daughter's dance Saturday...Ask Bob Hawkins sometime about the corpse at Doris' house. Yes, I mean a corpse.

Turn back the clock...Do you remember when...Harold Kitzmiller sort of liked Mary Straley...Bob Bolard went with Lorraine Iba...We won, first of all the sectional tournament, then the regional, then the super-regional, and finally when that gun went off that we thought would never sound, we won state! Them was the good old days and we're counting on doing it all over again this year.

Just about the cutest couple that we've seen around yet is Barbara Roth and Blackie Daeger...They can be seen together every fifth period in the gym...An inquiring little lady would like to know what has happened to Marjorie Wright and Franklin Keck since a certain Butcher's daughter has stepped in. (I like that, don't you, Marge?) Would Carl Shidler like to take K. Beckman to a dance and why?...And what dance? It might be arranged... (That was too good to resist, Mindy.) Little (we do admit that he isn't very little though) Whitey (Billy) Knoll wants his name in the Jitterbug column again, so here it is...We know the reason that Susan Beck and Joe Loos want to go double with Ella Jo Reed and Pat Russ but we can't tell...We'll just let you guess.

It costs much more to allow a man to die from tuberculosis than to keep him well and alive—contribute to an organization that fights tuberculosis by buying Christmas Seals.

Grandmas, Turkey And Dancing Are Popular Holiday Events

"And how did you spend your Thanksgiving vacation?" asked yours truly. "I went to grandma's," replied the student.

Never is grandma so popular until the 'young 'uns' want a good feed. After interviewing several students, I discovered that those who weren't going to grandma's were going to stuff (eat) anyway. Several holiday dances were on the program for the fair and the fairer. Also, there are still some to whom vacation means extra time in which to study.

Now, take a listen and see who did what.

Marian Owens: I studied like mad.

Betty Franklin: I went to my grandmother's.

Betty Ellen Chadwick: I was busy skating, sewing, and eating.

Mary Jane Kelley: I ate a lot and also went hunting.

Ruth Ann Archer: I went to the lake.

Joan Korte: I ate.

Phyllis Lansborough: I had five "cute" dates.

Nadine Mueller: I went to a "dear friend's" for dinner.

Mary Ellen Larimore: I did my Christmas shopping.

Jean Ann Rarick: I shoveled snow.

Barbara Stalter: I went hunting in the deep woods.

Roy Ellingwood: I went hunting and stuffed.

Adelheide Scheele: I was with Bundy.

Phyllis Bundy: I twiddled my thumbs.

Dolores Bodenhorn: I went to grandma's at Hartford City.

Colleen Gletcher: I went to grandma's and had a nice time.

Bernice O'Brien: The Beauty's (relation) came to eat.

Betty Clark: I went to a friend's for dinner.

Jean Catlett: I danced and caught up on my sleep.

Dorothy Hall: I went to grandma's for dinner.

Elaine Ferguson: I ate plenty of turkey.

Stu Welborn: I stuffed.

Ruth Bade: I studied hard.

Max Spencer: I went to the country to breathe fresh air (for a change).

Phyllis Geller: I went to the dances.

Kenny Warren: I tried to catch up on my sleep.

Beverly Griffith: I went to the dances and ate turkey.

Marge McNabb: I visited my grandmother.

Jessie Freeman: I went ad soliciting.

Chuck Bolman: I visited my sister at college.

Wavy brunette hair, brown eyes and a pleasant smile describe a certain girl here at South Side very well. Her favorite saying is "Poppycock." Her greatest dislike is caring for her Pekingese which is very mischievous.

Her greatest enjoyment is traveling which has led her to many places, among which are Montana, Florida, and Mexico. Her secret ambition is to become a skilled archer, and already she is quite good at this sport. Her favorite foods are chicken and noodles. Her great heart-throb is a former South Side student called "Jonesy" by all of his friends.

The clubs of which she is a member are The Times staff, Archery, Totem, Service and Social Science. Students, if you ever need a skilled marksman I am sure Irene Kirk, a well-known senior, will qualify very well for the position.

Kelly Koed Kut Ups

In case some of you kiddies aren't up on the latest there are some potential glamour lads and lasses around our halls with personality plus. In fact in my mind they remind me of some very famous movie stars. I'll probably find a couple of rotten tomatoes in the mailbox for printing the following list, but as the old saying goes, Everyone to his own opinion.

Hedy Lamarr—Barbara Roth. Loretta Young—Dolores Daniels. John Boles—Dick Garton. Olivia DeHaviland—Nadine Mueller.

Barbara Stanwyck—Bernice Etzler.

Joan Bennett—Alice Jean Sweet.

Richard Green—Dick Green (none other than his twin).

Misha Auer—Bob Safer.

Mickey Mouse—Dick Didier.

Minnie Mouse—Jean Weil.

Carole Lombard—Susie Beck.

Nat Pendleton—Tom Moorhead.

Anita Louise—Eileen Eidner.

Martha Raye—Martha Jean Smith.

Robert Young—Roger Neff.

Joan Davis—Betty Neeb.

Lay 'em in the isles P. B. McKay is struttin' his stuff with Virginia Sites lately, and if rumors hither and thither are correct it's really gonna last.

Marjorie Rohrer was all a'twitter during the Thanksgiving vacation because her honey, Jim Jackson, returned home and dated her up between courses of his Thanksgiving feed.

Another gal whose one and only came back during vacation to catch up on lost time is Ellen McKay. Although she casts admiring glances towards football hero Dick Warner, she still was mighty thrilled when Bob arrived and took possession of her.

Evelyn Strunk, an "easy on the eye" f'rosh, is still het up over the strong and silent Everett Arnett. Can't say as I blame her but I hear she doesn't stand alone in her choice.

Bob Gregg stopped beating around the mulberry bush and came out and said he loved Violet Reiter. Once he made up his mind he certainly didn't lose any time. Well that's the way to handle things, Bob. Just take the good old bull by the horns.

Betty Jane Littlefield had a wonderful time visiting her aunt and uncle (?) for a week-end in Michigan. Of course her old flame didn't have anything to do with it. At least she says so but I don't believe her.

Bob Martin...take heed! Some curious and admiring boys would like to know who that redhead is that you've been seen squiring around lately. You'd better try and protect your interests or you won't have any to protect.

Although Betty Wolfe firmly denies it, I have heard from reliable sources that she still yearns for Jack Hoffman. Why don't you do something about it, Jack?

The opinion of many is that Mary Buett and John Wells make a swell couple. And who am I to stand in the way of public opinion?

There's something about an old romance that gets you, or at least it gets Alex Azar. He claims that he'll be a hermit until Helen Wertman breaks down and goes with him again. They were a really happy couple while it lasted. The only trouble, according to Alex, is that it didn't last long enough.

Should Not Social Dancing Be In High School Curriculum?

When I thought of the idea for a social dance class, I found that passing on the idea isn't quite like discussing other school activities, for everyone knows that there are very few of these classes in high school curriculums.

Following, you will find a few reasons for establishing such a class as held at the University of Kansas.

1. Social dancing is given less time and attention than any form of physical exercise. In the teaching of every sport it is essential that proper timing and footwork is acquired. Yet the one physical and social activity which boys and girls practice more than any other is entirely neglected. In many schools there are classes for dancing which include tap, ballet, and folk, but social dancing is entirely omitted. Where it is included, it is limited to one hour a week and at that is after school with no credit in the school books. If we omit social dancing from our curriculum of dancing it is as bad as omitting the English language from our curriculum of languages.

2. There is a tendency to pass over the subject of social dancing as if it didn't exist. Every day communities see education more and more interested in preparing school youngsters for life as they will live it in a well adjusted society. In many cases there is an appreciative response from parents.

Now in contrast to these facts we see that—

1. Practically no boy or girl can go through high school without attending parties where dancing is the main activity of the evening. The person who cannot dance is either left out, or stands around feeling ill at ease.

2. Dancing is a form of recreation that can be continued practically all through life. He will continue to attend social activities where dancing is the main event, so therefore the boy or girl who cannot dance is socially handicapped.

Some modern dancing is often cheap and ugly as a result of neglect. Many foreigners have the idea that American dancing consists of "Milling" tag lines, groups of uncomfortable wallflowers, some couples shuffling along in a sort of haze, bodies hunched into atrocious positions, and a general atmosphere of rowdiness and bad manners. People that have this idea of social dancing in America are badly mistaken, but the idea must have begun someplace. Some of the dancing is graceful but some people insist on making a mess of it. Jitterbugs can certainly dance gracefully if instructed along the right lines.

Here is a challenge to the school then to provide opportunities for the boys and girls to learn the principles of good dancing and to respect an etiquette of good taste for the ballroom floor as much as they do the manners of a lady or gentleman in other social ways.

A teacher that is a good dancer and ready to help could easily be found. The teacher must realize, however, that the students would want the most popular music to practice by. In conclusion, let me say South Side could easily support a social dance class. As a matter of fact I think some of the students could really use several lessons.

Old Man Webster Is A Reliable Source For Confused Pupils

Most of us like to have a dictionary about "just in case". While we use it to check up on the deficiencies in our spelling, few of us consider it a source of news. Most likely in a corner of a library sits a majestic object like a king on his throne. At practically any time a corner of its lavishly colored gown may be seen jutting out from behind a partition. If anyone is being consumed by pangs of curiosity, he may be saved by learning that his honored object is nothing else than a New International Dictionary. But—this is not so commonplace as it sounds. The dictionary has made its appearance in various other schools, but as yet South Side has not obtained one. Are we slipping, South Siders? The old Webster which has been familiar for a long time to many students was found inadequate. To keep up with the growth of the last quarter of the century, a whole new dictionary was necessary. This new dictionary is said to be beyond comparison with any one ever published. When this dictionary has been obtained, no student will be able to give an excuse that he was not able to find a certain word; for in the newly acquired dictionary there are 600,000 words, which is 122,000 more than are contained in any other dictionary. Besides this overwhelming number of words, there are 12,000 terms pictorially illustrated which include many color plates, such as different classes of cut, flowers, etc.

If all the other biographies in the library should fall out of the window and be ruined, or by some other mischance; it is comforting to know that there are 13,000 more biographical entries in Webster's book. With the aforesaid addition to the school library and the classrooms, it no longer will be necessary to tear our hair out in fury upon finding a hopelessly involved definition for an unknown word. Definitions are clear and simple. Neither will one be able to blame the dictionary for a false statement. Definitions are guaranteed to be accurate.

This superior dictionary was compiled at the cost of $1,300,000, while the library will procure its copies for...well it doesn't matter; we, the students will be here to serve us, the students of South Side High School. Clothed in its leather cover, it will sit proudly on its stand—a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Mind Your Best Manners If You Want Your First Date To Be A Success

He came, you saw, and apparently you conquered, for the most gorgeous man that has ever happened has actually phoned and asked for a date. So you try not to be too thrilled to keep yourself organized—for if you want a second date, the first must be a decided success.

He was noncommittal over the phone about where you were going. "A show or something..." That means it will probably be for you to decide—and if you're a wise girl, you won't be too hard on his pocketbook. If a date with you means an inroad of five or six dollars on his allowance, he won't take you out often. Unless he excludes money from every pore. The smart thing to do would be to show him you're not the kind of girl who needs a corsage and a taxi to feel that she's having fun. You want him to know that you can have a hilarious good time with only a show, a soda, and him, for accessories.

Not knowing his particular prejudices about women's clothing you have dressed with an eye out for masculine whims in general. Your hat is not too wild, your dress is simple but becoming, blue perhaps to bring out the color of your eyes. Men appreciate lovely eyes and a happy smile when they don't even notice that you have on the latest Hollywood garb. Catering to masculine taste again, you wear only mild colored nail polish, and your shoes have high heels to flatter your legs and ankles. You have on a little perfume to make yourself feminine and alluring. (Not too much so that your date will keep longing for a breath of fresh air.)

Are you ready when he comes? Do you introduce him to the family? It's no fun for him to come into a room filled with entire strangers and sit there twirling his hat in embarrassment while you take your time in priming. Time enough to keep him waiting on later dates. Five or ten minutes, as I have said before, may work up suspense, but twenty or thirty minutes only works up exasperation. It may even make you lose your man if you keep him waiting too long.

But let us assume that so far everything has gone off well—he was on time, you were ready and looked lovelier than he remembered, so you're off on your first date. You are pleasant and flattering; of course, you don't keep saying in so many words, "My, Bill, but your wonderful," or "My, but you're strong," but you manage to give the impression. You do not fail to mention your appreciation for his excellent choice of shows, his handsome car, his skillful driving, and his well-fitted overcoat. But besides all this, you must trot out a little savoir faire. Men like to go around with girls who are self-assured, smooth. When you get into the movies, for instance, don't grope around in the dark theatre, talking loudly, and falling all over people's feet. When you get into the theatre, wait a minute and see if the usher is coming. If you are horribly near-sighted and can't see a thing more than half way back, tell your escort before you are already seated in the balcony. When the usher is taking you to your seats, you follow him and your escort follows you. If there is no usher, let your escort select the seats. When you have to get past other people in the row, wait for them to rise and let you pass; otherwise you might end up in their laps. Your date didn't bring you to the movies for a nice long chat—there's no need of saying anything after you are seated. If you're feeling witty, save your remarks for later.

Perhaps your first date is for dinner. When you go to the restaurant, the headwaitress will show you to a table and your escort follows you. Seat and arrange yourself with as little ado as possible, and keep your handbag and gloves in your lap or on the chair beside you. The table is for food, not to hold you up nor to exhibit your personal belongings. It's all right to rest one wrist on the table, or, when you are through eating, to rest an elbow or both elbows on it while you gaze charmingly over folded hands, but to eat with a whole arm resting on the table looks inexcusably sloppy.

You give your order to your escort, even if the waitress is standing at your side and taking it down as fast as you dictate. It's a nice gesture. And...when the dinner is over, if you have eaten all of your lipstick and feel in need of general repairs, don't haul out your make-up at the table, the contortions incidental to getting lipstick on right aren't particularly becoming anyway; excuse yourself and do it in the dressing room.

But whether your date is for dining, dancing, roller-coasting, or the movies, the main thing is to have a good time, and let your date know that you are having fun. When the time comes to tell him good-night, tell him it's been grand, give him the impression that a hot-dog with him is more fun than champagne with a dozen other men. That will make him feel so good that he will go off with your telephone number deeply engraved on his heart.

Thanksgiving is over. Have you ordered a new supply of bicarbonate of soda for Christmas and New Years?

Here's good luck to our basketball team when they start the present season at Kendallville tomorrow night.

NBC To Give Radio Series, "Great Plays"

To Be Broadcast Sundays; Will Be Aid To English Students And Teachers.

A winter series of broadcasts, "Great Plays," to be featured weekly by the National Broadcasting Company, have been found to be of sufficient interest and merit by Mr. Benjamin Null, head of the English department of South Side, to warrant being taken up for study by this department. The broadcasts will fall on Sundays from twelve to one in the afternoon. Because of the value of these plays, they should be beneficial as supplements to classroom teaching.

A study manual of these plays giving plot, setting, sketch of author's life, facts about the premises of the dramas covering the first twelve plays of the series have been offered by N. B. C. for ten cents each. In regard to this Mr. Null has said: "The department is securing ten copies of these manual guides on the first twelve broadcasts. The English teachers may make use of these copies in preparing their pupils for a more intelligent appreciation of the plays. If the use of this study manual proves helpful, we shall get manuals on the remaining plays of the list after January 1.

A list of the plays follows:

November 6—Doctor Faustus, Marlowe.

November 13—Midsummer Night's Dream, Shakespeare.

November 20—Julius Caesar, Shakespeare.

November 27—Othello, Shakespeare.

December 4—The Cid, Corneille.

December 11—Life Is a Dream, Calderon.

December 18—Bourgeois Gentilhomme, Moliere.

January 8—She Stoops to Conquer, Goldsmith.

January 15—School for Scandal.

January 22—Mary Stuart, Schiller.

January 29—Hernani, Hugo.

February 5—Richelieu, Lytton.

February 12—The Octoroon, Boucicault.

February 19—Redemption, Tolstoi.

February 26—The Doll's House, Ibsen.

March 6—Patience, Gilbert and Sullivan.

March 12—Camille, Dumas Fils.

March 19—Cyrano de Bergerac, Rostand.

March 26—Peter Pan, Barrie.

April 2—The Blue Bird, Maeterlinck.

April 9—Justice, Galsworthy.

April 16—Back to Methuselah, Shaw.

April 23—Oliver Cromwell, Drinkwater.

April 30—White Headed Boy, Robinson.

May 7—Elizabeth the Queen, Anderson.

Robert Hageman Is Perfect Scorer

Rifle Organization Sees Highest Score Ever Shot In Bi-Weekly Matches Held By Marksmen.

Robert Hageman shot the highest possible score Monday night that the South Side team has ever shot on a N.R.A. bi-weekly match. Mr. M. J. Cook, the coach of the team, donated a candy bar as a reward. The score was the highest the team has shot this semester.

The scores are as follows:

Robert G. Hageman	100
W. Riethmiller	99
R. Hornberger	99
Max Kimble	98
J. Ridings	97

Total 493

The following students also shot in the match: Howard Long, Richard Theye, Russell Long, Carl Goebel, and Charles Haugk.

On November 21, the varsity team shot against the Arcola team at Arcola, and lost by two points. The respective scores were 485 and 487. Carl Goebel led the South Side team, and Dick Kuehnert led the Arcola team. After the match Mr. M. J. Cook gave a rabbit dinner at his home.

Mr. R. Nelson Snider attended with the understanding that he wouldn't have to make a speech.

Thanks to the attention and planning of Mrs. Cook, the dinner was a complete success.

Campaign Of Christmas Seals

came about in 1909. It was due to the continued but unsuccessful efforts of Doctor Eric Crul, Fort Wayne Health Commissioner at that time, who was interested in tuberculosis work. He did manage to arouse a number of understanding persons who took up the problem, and finally organized what we now call the Fort Wayne Anti-Tuberculosis League.

Its first president was Samuel M. Foster; the present one is M. R. Lohman, M. D., president of the Indiana Tuberculosis Association, and member of the Board of Directors of the Irene Byron Sanatorium. The League's first executive secretary was Miss Irene Byron; the second, now Superintendent of Nurses at Irene Byron, Miss Gertrude Barber; third, Mrs. Margaret Cramer, now executive of the Irene Byron Sanatorium, and the fourth and present executive secretary, Miss Maxine E. Biebersheimer. Miss Biebersheimer and Mrs. Cramer have the distinction of being the only two sisters in the United States who have taken an active part in tuberculosis work, and who have followed each other consecutively as executive secretaries in a tuberculosis association. The Christmas Seal Chairman in Fort Wayne this year is Mr. Fred Wehrenberg. He has charge of the sales army that contacts larger business houses. Mr. Wehrenberg is now selecting those men who will help him to make calls on these places of business.

The offices of the Fort Wayne association are located on the third floor of the Central Building.

Janice Samples All Forms Of Art

By Jeanette Warren

If someone were to ask you, "What South Side Archer, in your opinion, does the most in the way of art for the school in general?" you would undoubtedly reply "Pinky" or Janice Dyer. And you would undoubtedly be correct. When any of the clubs, or committees for class functions find themselves stumped for ideas for decorations for one thing or another, they inevitably make a call on Janice, and inevitably return triumphantly to their abodes with a "ready, willing, and able" assistant.

It (her art interest) all started, so she says, in grade school when her art teachers gave her A's which she insists she didn't deserve (imagine that!) The generosity of these teachers inspired her to deserve such grades. And thus started the art career of Miss Janice Dyer. It certainly is an interest for which we of South Side should give our belated thanks, for who, at some time or another, has not availed himself of her services? Janice is chairman of the Social Council of the senior class, which means that when there is a dance, a fun fest, or a banquet that she will have to literally "take over." A member of Philo, she was an active chairman of the decorations committee at the Toreador Trot, given recently by that club. In Marionette Club, she makes the backdrops for the stage on which the puppeteers present their plays, she paints faces on the puppets, and makes clothing for them. Being chairman of the Booster Club decorations committee means seeing that decorations are made for all the games, the National Honor-Banquet, and the Lettermen's Banquet.

And we must not forget that Miss Dyer is the Times cartoonist—one or two cartoons a week!

As if that weren't enough, she is art editor of the Totem. You have probably seen evidence of that fact in her "Pee Wee" posters, advertising the Totem, which are strewn here and there about the building. Pee Wee Periwinkle is an original cartoon character of Pinky's which she uses to represent the Totem. She even has a Pee Wee Jacket which has Pee Wee in various poses "plastered" all over it. (You haven't seen it of late, because she is afraid to have it washed.)

Recently she sent a letter to "Pap" Paprocki of New York, sports cartoonist, questioning him about his technique in illustrating. His answer was friendly and appreciative of her interest. He explained to her the type of pencil, paper, and board he used. All of which shows to what lengths our cartoonist will go to educate herself in order that she may give us the best she's got in the way of cartoons.

When questioned about her ambition Miss Dyer said that it was "to stay off the WPA. Seriously though," she answered "I would like to have more training in some phases of art which I have neglected before I decide."

These phases are oil paintings, lettering, and the finer arts. Much of her time has been spent in the drawing of figures and in cartooning. She attributes most of her progress in high school art to the able supervision of Miss Mary Helen Ley, former art teacher at South Side.

As for Janice, herself, she is a general, fun loving person who has a dash, it seems, on a certain Richard Greene, and who likes, in an artistic way, of course, green beans and pop corn.

Provide Amusement

Ping pong tables and nets have been provided in room 170 for student and teacher use the fifth periods and after school. However, each student is required to bring his own equipment.

Three South Siders Attend Conference At Danville, Ind.

Wiping the sleep out of their eyes, three boys left this cold city of Fort Wayne early last Friday morning and headed south to the warm and sunny climate of Danville, Indiana. Tucked snugly in the front seat of their car, these boys, Maurice Lehman, Andy Bremer and Dick Buchholz, traveled 141 miles in the remarkable time of four hours. They were headed for the Older Boys' Conference, held in connection with the Hi-Y's of Indiana and under the auspices of the State Young Men's Christian Association.

The theme of the conference was "The Set of the Sail." This was explained to these boys by Merle E. Carver, state boys' work secretary of the Y.M.C.A. of Indianapolis.

Because of their motto, "a broken camera every day," Maurice, Andy and Dick consented to have their picture taken. This was in a large group picture in front of the Christian Church in Danville.

During the two days that they were there, they bravely met the challenges of Dr. Gilkey, "What Do You Carry for Ballast?", "Is Your Compass True?" and "Where Are You Bound?" Dr. Gilkey is the dean of Chicago University chapel.

George W. Campbell, who led a community sing here several years ago, was the song and devotional leader at the conference. There were also many discussion groups which were attended by the three. Andy Bremer and Dick Buchholz wanted to know more about "Propaganda in America," and Maurice Lehman wanted to learn "How to Get and Keep a Job."

Mrs. J. C. Logan was mother problem during their visit. (Her waffles are swell.)

One thing which they would like to pass on to the whole student body is the pledge to the Christian Flag. It reads as follows:

"I pledge allegiance to the Christian Flag and to the Savior for whose kingdom it stands, one brotherhood uniting all mankind in service and love."

Gets M. A. Degree

Miss Emma Kiefer

Last summer Miss Emma Kiefer completed work at Indiana University for her master of arts degree in English, which was granted recently at the fall meeting of the board of trustees of the university.

Mrs. Herbert Rieke

Mrs. Herbert Rieke will leave South Side Friday morning at 8 o'clock for Purdue University with fifty Archer students. They are to attend the Purdue Debate Conference where representatives from high schools all over the state are meeting.

South Side Archer Offers New Version For Day Of Thanks

Themes may come and go, perhaps at the rate of a thousand a year for oh, so many English teachers today, but it is only once in a great while that a student turns in a truly worthwhile theme, serious OR humorous. Don Knorr of Miss Amanda Hemmer's English 1, third period class, turned one in recently, much to the amusement of its understanding readers. The theme is as follows:

"Thanksgiving Day! Ah! How I sigh for thee! To wake up on a snowy morning (I hope it will be snowy) and hear my modern mother scurrying about opening cans and crashing those massive, black iron kettles and frying pans. Ah! To smell the savory aroma of canned turkey and canned cranberries is heaven to me!

"It is often such a tedious morning that my modern mother throws herself, much exhausted from opening canned foods and heating them, into a chair and awaits the forthcoming feast.

"At about 2 o'clock, Thanksgiving Day, I sit down to a pleasant repast furnished by Kroger's Canning Department through the courtesy of my father's pocketbook and my modern mother's can opener. Ah! Thanksgiving!"

Issuance Of Grades To Be December 13

With the third grade period ending December 9, U and S cards will be issued Tuesday, December 13.

Safford McMyler, a pupil in Miss Oppelt's Latin 4, period 6 class, recently made a miniature catapult, which was an ancient Roman war machine used in hurling stones.

Seniors Will Conduct Discussion At P-T. A.

Monday night at the P-T. A. meeting a group of seniors will conduct a panel discussion of their reactions to life problems. The group will discuss the change of social conventions that affect their lives and will try to determine the best methods of cooperation between pupils, parents, and teachers.

Such subjects as choosing friends, personal conduct, habits, manners, and choice of life work will be included.

To the many students whose birthdays come during the following week The Times staff wishes to say:

May your Birthday bring you gifts worthwhile
May kindly fortune on you smile,
May health and wealth and friendship true
Make all your fondest hopes come true!

December 2: Aubrey Kellogg, Lois King, Robert Hackmeyer, Martha Thomas, and Phil Pressler.

December 3: Norma Whitsett, Roy Cockran, Marjorie McNabb, and Homer Merz.

December 4: Kathryn Perry, Paul Ream, Howard Schremer, Bob Dahman, Caroline Keel, Rosa Lee Hall, Helen Kraus, and Richard Teal.

December 5: John Cleland, and Lois Hoff.

December 6: Orville Laughlin, Ray Swinehart, and Florence Dickmeyer.

December 7: William Furhman, and Betty Nelson.

December 8: Irving Dickerson, Sam Van Horn, June Van Pelt, Margaret Witmer, Pauline Nordyke, and Jim Warman.

Youth Forum Will Sponsor Artist Contest

Miss Erma Dochterman To Indorse Students Wishing To Enter Art Competition

Miss Erma Dochterman is again advising those students who wish to enter the American Youth Forum Contest. This contest is sponsored by the American Magazine. The purpose of it is to encourage high school and preparatory school students to think constructively about their future in relation to that of the United States.

Every undergraduate under twenty-one years of age who is regularly enrolled in a junior or senior high school or in a private secondary school in the United States or the Panama Canal Zone is eligible.

Name Cash Awards

The awards are $1,000 for the best painting, $500 for the second best, $100 for the third best, $10 each for the fifty next best, $5 each for the hundred next best, and 500 certificates of honorable mention. In addition to this $100 will be given to the principal or teacher sponsoring the winner of first and second awards and $25 will be given to the sponsor of the third award winner. Fourteen sets of the Harvard Classics will be awarded to the schools having the highest percentage of students submitting entries to the forum.

A week's trip to New York and the New York World's Fair of 1939 will be given the first award winner and his or her principal or sponsor at the expense of the American Youth Forum and the American Magazine, the time to be designated later.

Must O. K. Entries

The subject of the picture is to be either "This Is My America" or "New Frontiers for American Youth."

A principal or teacher becomes the sponsor of a student by signing the student's entry and thus indicating that, to the best of his knowledge the work is original with the student. Sponsors are permitted to advise as to the background material. All sponsors are asked to encourage their participating students to avoid duplicating the designs of others, since the forum is interested only in youth's original ideas. The competition will not close until midnight March 31, 1939.

There are no fees or student blanks and all posters, broadsides, pamphlets, etc., are furnished at the expense of the American Magazine. It is not necessary to buy the American Magazine to participate, although news of the competition and valuable hints for the participants will be included each month.

Specifications Listed

The specifications of the drawings, paintings and photographs are that they must not exceed three feet by four feet in dimensions and they must be postmarked not later than midnight March 31, 1939.

Several students from South Side are entering the contest this year. Herman Spillner and Leonard Koch of South Side won honorable mention in the contest last year. Considering that there were over two hundred thousand entrants last year, this was a very high honor.

Senior Scouts Present Annual Mothers' Tea

The Senior Scouts' Mother-Daughter Tea for their mothers and friends last Wednesday was in the form of a Style-Tea, under the direction of Beverly Griffith and Peggy Greaney. Assisting Peggy Greaney were Joan Cox, Joan Cartwright and Jean Peterson.

Sarah Makey, Clara Makey, Dorothy Bloemker, Jane Merchant, Audrey Hall, Martha Jane Krauskopf, Carolyn Cartwright, Joan Cartwright, Wariyn Dodge and Betty Marquardt modeled formal and sport clothes. After this program, tea was served while a string ensemble under the direction of Elaine Hirsche played "Alita" by F. H. Losey, Venite Adoremus and the Famous Waltz by Johanna Brahms. Members of this ensemble are violin, Janice Sprunger, Betty Elbersen; cello, Phyllis Sprunger, and piano, Elaine Hirsche.

The tea table was decked with the season's flowers, and antique silverware composed the tea sets. Carol Treanery and Laverne Micefelder poured at the table. Hostesses for the affair were Betty Marquardt, Elaine Hirsche, Peggy Greaney and Joan Cox. Mrs. Purcell and Mrs. Roberts, club advisors, were also assisting hostesses.

Philaethians Feature Singing Quartet, Play

Philo Thespians and the Philo quartet provided the program at the Philo meeting held Monday at 3:45 o'clock in the Greeley Room. A play, entitled "Too Many Marys," was presented under the direction of Virginia Shidder. The play dealt with the difficulties experienced by Sally Woolstock when her dragon of an aunt unexpectedly visited her at prep school. The characters were as follows: Sally Woolstock, Dorothy Gerdon; Viola, an artist, Phyllis Branning; June, beautiful but dumb, Frances Van Buskirk; Beatrice, Betty Marquardt; Norah, an Irish maid, Helen Wiehe; and Miss Sarah Woolstock, Eleanor Vesey.

"Star Dust" and "My Reverie" were sung by the sextette, which included Margaret Null, Jane Engelking, Eleanor Vesey, Katharine Beckman, Miriam Jackson and Frances Van Buskirk.

It was decided at this meeting that instead of giving their usual Christmas basket, the club would give toys.

Four Teams Win Intramural Games

Rug-Cutters, Loopers, Fobs, Cats Are Winners Of This Week's Basketball Contests.

The second week of intramural play featured four interesting games. In the first game in the heavyweight division the Rug-Cutters swamped the B.B.D.'s 15-2. Milo Chasey led the victors with eleven points while Laughlin scored the only points for the losers.

In the lightweight division two games were played. The Loopers won a close game from the Apples, 10-8. Tom Young led the Loopers with four points. The Fobs trounced the Tigers 16-8. Tom Brower scored six points for the winners, and Gumpner scored four points for the losers.

In the middleweight division the Cats beat the Boys 12-7. Reynolds with six and Taylor with four points led the winners and losers respectively.

Frances Nash Finds G.A.A. Organization Excellent Training

One fine autumn day in October, 1923, a phenomenal event occurred among the cliff dwellers of Cincinnati, Ohio. The heroine of this narrative was born. Frances Nash was notable, even as a child, for an athlete's grace of form and strength.

She evidently pergerinated during this period of her life, because when she entered South Side, Frances came directly from the McClure School in Chicago, Ill. She almost immediately assumed an active position in athletics; and since that time, has made a name for herself in G.A.A.

She now studies a college course in the guise of an unassuming sophomore. Frances devotes all of her leisure time to G.A.A. and has participated in every sport with the exception of tumbling, track, and swimming. It is typical of this lively young lady that she should choose basketball as her favorite sport because it demands a lot of action. Frances has her numerals, thinks G.A.A. is "swell," and is well on her way to obtaining a letter.

Frances is not mediocre about anything. Physical education is her favorite subject; Miss Smith, her ideal teacher; and to be a physical education instructor, her aim and ambition. Naturally, Frances Nash also likes and indulges in other types of popular amusement, such as radio and movies. She is known as a stamp collector. In the cinema world exist two celebrities who attract the admiration of Miss Nash. They are James Stewart and Myrna Loy.

Some people call her "Butch." She cites as her most embarrassing moment the time she went to sleep at a lecture. Draw your own conclusions. "Sauerkraut and pretzels," says Miss Nash, "are perfectly delicious." "Conceited people are loathsome." These various opinions all originated in the mind of a certain Frances Nash. To continue this interesting philosophy, "Jim Glass is a remarkable player, blue and maroon are cute colors, and South Side will go to state and win again this year." We hope you're right, Frances.

Intramurally Speaking

After our vacation of four days, I'm sure that you are all rested up and ready to get back to work again. I hope that when you had that big Thanksgiving dinner you had plenty of bicarbonate of soda along with it to help it digest right. But just in case you didn't, I hope that you will recover from your over indulging as soon as possible, so you can play in the first game of your intramural basketball team.

Possibly many of you were intending to play a little basketball or football during our brief vacation, but after what happened Tuesday night and Wednesday, I'm sure that you had to make a "slight" change of plans.

Although very few of the intramural basketball squads have played so far this season, those that have played have shown that this tournament is going to be a plenty tough contest and that there's going to be some mighty tough competition; but, even though the competition is strong, here's wishing you all the best of luck.

It seems as if Betty Hargan's freshman team 2 are really going to town this year in the volleyball tournament. They have won all the games that they have played. One of their scores was 50, and in another game, they scored 58 points. Congratulations, and may you keep it up!

Sophomore 1, captained by Jeanne Smith, and the senior team, captained by Hazel Perry, are tied for first place in the upperclassmen tourney. They have each scored three victories. They meet tomorrow night at 3:30 o'clock for the right to lead the race. Who do you think will win?

Did you hear a scream in the gym office the other night after school? Donna Dennis and Eileen Hoffman were giving their ideas of a wrestler (or something). They were both on the floor and the screams were coming from Donna. Does this mean that "Hefty Hoffman" was gaining the upperhand? They're seniors, at that. Can you imagine that?

The annual swimming meet is to be held on Saturday, December 10. All G. A. A.'ers are urged to sign up for this activity. A paper is placed on the inside bulletin board for your use.

Games! Potlucks! Stunts! Yes, all these will be featured at the annual Play Day on December 9. Come on all you lettergirls, and sign up immediately for this exciting event. It will be lots of fun meeting the girls from Central and North Side.

A new radio is in use in our office. We think that it is pretty cute. Don't you?

Won't some more of the girls help contribute to this column? Nearly every week we have a few articles from some of the girls, but we would appreciate it if more would help. Write anything funny or particularly interesting about the members of the G. A. A. and drop it into the green box. We thank every girl who has faithfully contributed to this column, and hope that the box is full next week.

Athletic Enthusiast With Music Talent Is Typical Of Senior

A girl who has the talent and the ability to have her own orchestra, that plays for many school functions and for various dances around town, who has the skill to direct the South Side Accordion Band, and who has the efficiency to be piano accompanist for the South Side Radio Players, hardly needs an introduction to the students of South Side—you've guessed her name—of course it's Velma Lehman.

This prominent senior was born in Defiance, Ohio, August 25, 1921. South Side was fortunate in having her name appear on its enrollment list after she left James H. Smart in 1935. Velma has received her numerals as well as her letter, chiefly as the result of piano-accompanying gymnastics.

Her idea of the G. A. A. is expressed in these words: "It has been a very interesting club to work for, and I have enjoyed every minute of my three years in it."

Besides G. A. A. and the time her orchestra and other activities require, Velma finds time to be active in Travel, Service, Social Science, Dance, and Math-Science clubs.

"Vem" is busily engaged in the college preparatory course as far as her school work is concerned, and her favorite subject is government. As her favorite teacher Velma chooses Miss Gretchen Smith—strange to say.

Velma's ambition and her hobbies go hand in hand inasmuch as she has selected for her life work an interesting position as a radio station accompanist and the writing of good music. Playing the piano, accordion, composing music, and collecting music by her favorite composers are, in turn, her hobbies.

Considering not only her aspiration, but her pastimes as well, it is not queer that "Vem" has preference to one Nelson Eddy of movie fame. It is not difficult to classify her choice as to an actress. The mere fact that it is Myrna Loy justifies any motive Velma might have.

Being asked to run an errand while reading an especially interesting book is a pet peeve of our outstanding G. A. A.'er. How any girl can be so thin, and yet like everything to eat, is something we can't quite understand. It might be explained, however, by the fact that Velma can hardly take time off from her music to eat.

Miss Lehman is an ardent basketball fan, attending all games and showing real school spirit when she declares vigorously that South Side will most certainly win state this year. Her favorite player is none other than Carl Hall. Early explaining Velma's enthusiasm for South Side is the fact that her favorite color is green.

Extra Christmas Seals Issued For Collectors

Twenty-five panels of Christmas seals, mounted five seals on a panel, especially for collectors, have been allotted to the Fort Wayne Anti-Tuberculosis League. Each panel is about the size of a post card and bears, besides the five 1938 seals (four seals, each one picturing a health hero who definitely aided in the fight against tuberculosis, and the regular seal), information about each individual seal. Those who want a panel should get it as soon as possible at the local association for twenty-five cents.

Tuberculosis doesn't just happen. It is not inherited. It is passed from person to person. Help prevent the spread of "the captain of the death men" by purchasing Christmas Seals.

Girl Athletes Play Off More Tourney Games

Playing their fourth game in the G. A. A. freshman volleyball tournament, the freshman B team under Betty Hargan defeated Martha Scheele's freshman B team by a score of 61-31. Lenora Moyer played a good game for the winning team with Barbara Blue, showing splendid serving ability for the losing team. Playing on the south field, team 2 under Peggy Berning lost to Rose Stemen's freshman A team by a score of 68-21.

After winning their game Monday evening, Betty Hargan's team advanced to first place with four straight wins and no losses. Rose Stemen's team is in second place with three wins and one loss. Frances Nash, Eva Jean Wyllie, and Justine Coudret served as scorers.

G. A. A.'ers To Play Off Next Volleyball Round

The next round of volleyball will be played Friday, December 2, with the senior and the sophomore 1 squads playing the first game at 3:30 on the north court. This promises to be a super-tilt, as both teams have a high rating by virtue of their three consecutive victories. Up to this time the opponents have been tied in the matter of victories. This will be the decisive game.

The south court at 3:30 will be the scene of combat between Junior 1 and Junior 4. Junior 2 and sophomore 4 will also play a deciding game Friday at 4 on the north court. Each of these teams have two games to their credit. Sophomore 2 and sophomore 3 will meet on the south court at 4.

South Side Will Open Net Schedule With Comets Friday

Opening Game Will Be Staged In Kendallville

Kellymen To Put Up Defense Of State Crown Obtained From 1938 Championship.

Green Favored To Be Winner

Hall Back In Archer Lineup; Other Men Are Bolyard, Glass, Beery, Chedester.

South Side's state championship Archer net squad will inaugurate its defense of the state crown next Friday night when they travel to Kendallville to meet a highly rated band of Comets. The Archers are favored to come out on top, but in all probability will have their hands full before that final gun puts an end to their season's opener. Kendallville will put on the floor practically the same squad which last season traveled to Muncie before their tournament dreams were ended by the Bearcats. This, along with the fact that the Comets have been long awaiting their shot at this year's South Side team, makes it evident that quite a battle shall take place before the winner is named.

The game with Kendallville will provide the answer in many minds as to the strength of the 1938-39 edition of the Archer state champs. Much has been said and written involving the Archers' chances of repeating by again taking the state honors. Just how much of this has been expectation or idle dreams will to a great extent be known when the final gun shall determine the victor of the Archer-Comet clash. For this reason a capacity crowd is expected to be on the scene of battle with both schools well represented.

Much Practice Steadies Archers
The Archers will enter the game with more than a month of steady practice behind them. All of the Archers with the exception of Chedester are at the peak of physical condition. These two facts have much to do with the Green and White being favored to win. However, the Comets have drilled long and hard for this game and are determined to avenge last year's 39-32 defeat at the hands of the Archers.

The Archer offensive attack should be in top form by Friday, and it is their defense which will receive the real test against the high scoring Comets. With Bolyard, fast and flashy forward; Jim Glass, 6 foot, 3 inch center; and Chedester, 5 foot, 8 inch center, the Archer offense will be very well taken care of. Hall was the high city scorer two years ago and has not since lost his uncanny eye for the hoop.

High Scorer On Team
Last season Bolyard walked off with city scoring honors which means that South Side will have two mighty tough forwards this season. The defensive strength of the state champs was hit hard by the loss of three fine guards, Hines, Roth, and Kitzmiller. Don Beery should do a fine job in filling one of the guard positions this year. Beery is smart, fast, and a good ball handler whose specialty is defense.

The logical choice for the other guard post is Chedester. John is also a very capable ball handler, but it is questionable whether he will be able to play Friday because of a leg injury received in practice.

Don Hire and LeRoy Cook have also looked plenty good in practice, and either could very well hold down a guard post. Other fellows who have looked good in practice and should see action are Ralph Hamilton, Bob Hines, Ralph Saalfrank, and Keith Spiker.

Friddle has predicted that the Green and White would probably not be as successful this year as last, but that is a question which only time can answer.

Twenty To Go

Twenty fellows will be taken to Kendallville to put down the challenge of the Comets. They are Glass, Bolyard, Hall, Beery, Hire, Hines, Fuhrman, Heinzelman, Saalfrank, Chedester, Cook, Shimer, Walker, Close, Roth, Spiker, Hamilton, Braden, and the above named, Bolyard, Hall, Glass, Beery, and Hire will comprise the starting five.

Redskins Win Over Masons By Ten Points

Final Score Of 29-19 Gives Indians Victory In First Cage Game Of Season.

The North Side Redskins successfully opened their 1938-39 basketball schedule with a game on the right side of the ledger by beating Masonic Home 29-19. Using a fast break the Redskins upset pre-game odds by outplaying their opponents.

The game was well under way before either side could score a point of any kind. Finally, Ervin came through with a foul throw to get things started. Masonic Home retaliated with a field goal and foul throw to force into a 3-1 lead. Ervin again made a field goal, and Huth again hit a felder to put North Side out in front as the quarter ended, 4-3.

During the second quarter both teams pepped it up a little by finding the range from out on the floor. Masonic Home seemed to have little trouble in penetrating North Side's zone defense. The gun sounded ending the first half, with Cowan's field goal and a free throw putting the Redskins out in front by a score of 14-13.

Masonic Home in the third quarter had trouble in finding the basket, and the North Siders never gave them a chance to get set. Everett Huth was the big gun for North Side in the third quarter, and it was he alone that was responsible for the North Side lead at the end of the third quarter 26-15.

Masonic Home got four of these points back in the final period, but the Redskins kept going and finally chalked up their initial win of the season by a score of 27-19.

Both teams played an extremely poor type of ball and after the first half was over the game ceased to be interesting. North Side showed beyond a doubt that they need to work a great deal more before they become a polished ball club.

The preliminary also went to the Redskins, a game that was far more interesting to watch than the varsity game. The North Side B team defeated Concordia High's varsity by a score of 30-29.

Irish Are Victors In Basketball Tilts

Central Catholic Opens Net Season With Wins Over Ossian 31-30, And Huntington 39-23.

Central Catholic opened its basketball season with a thrilling 31-30 victory over a stubborn Ossian five last Friday night. The following night they defeated a badly outplayed Huntington Catholic quintet at the Central gymnasium by the lopsided score of 39-23.

A third period spurt of seven points by the Irish enabled the Rams to nose out Ossian last Friday night. The Bears threatened the whole period to snatch the lead away from C. C. but were not quite capable. The win was rather a lucky one for the Irish, because the Bears had five opportunities to tie the score in the last minute on foul shots and were unable to hit on any of them.

Ossian Ahead On First Quarter
Ossian led at the end of the first quarter by 11 to 5, but the Irish got going and led at half-time 16-15. They kept right on out in front until the end of the game, but the Bears were a threat all the way and the Irish had their hands full.

Stanczak was high for Central Catholic with 13 points while Bell led the Bears with 11.

The next night Central Catholic engaged Huntington Catholic at the Central gym and after a rather heated first quarter, the Irish turned what looked like a good contest into a rout by stopping Huntington Catholic 39-23.

The first quarter was very rough with both teams fouling unnecessarily. The Irish, however, showed signs of developing into a dangerous ball club a little later on. C. C. led at the end of the first period by a score of 6-5.

Introduce Different Team
A whole different team played for Central Catholic the second quarter. Before the period was very old the score was 18-3 for the Irish, Maxwell paced the attack with four field goals. Huntington was completely outplayed this quarter and at the half the Irish led 22-12.

The Irish starting five started the second half, and these boys continued the pace set by the other five. The Purple and Gold tallied 12 points to Huntington's 3 to lead at the end of the third quarter 34-15.

The Huntington boys rallied in the final quarter getting six points and holding the Irish scoreless for a while. However, Bitler and Wehrle hit on field goals to ice the game for Central Catholic 39-23. Eighteen fouls were called on Huntington and fifteen on Fort Wayne. C.C. converted 9 out of 23 for losses and Huntington 9 out of 18. The Central Catholic second team beat the Huntington seconds by a score of 33-22.

Sportlights

At the close of another football season, there were eight major football teams that came out with unblemished records. All four of the undefeated, untied teams that saw action last Saturday came through with victories to leave the total of eight unchanged. Unbeaten, untied, and unscathed, Duke defeated Pitt, 7-0; Texas Tech's Red Raiders took Marquette's Golden Avalanche by a score of 21-2; Oklahoma beat the Oklahoma Aggies, 19-0; and Texas Christian whipped Southern Methodist, 20-7. This year's major unbeaten, untied elevens and the number of games they played are Duke, 9; Georgetown, 9; Notre Dame, 8; Oklahoma, 9; Tennessee, 9; Texas Christian, 10; Texas Tech, 10; and Western Reserve, 8.

Among the players from Fort Wayne and nearby towns who are on the Indiana University basketball team are Tom Motter, Herman Schaefer, and Paul Armstrong from Central; Bob Dro. Berner, and Bob Templin of Bluffton.

The time has come for the picking of the teams to play in the post-season bowl games. This year's Rose Bowl contenders have not been definitely picked, although Southern California is virtually sure of being picked to represent the West while Notre Dame, Duke, and Texas Christian are the principal possibilities of the East. The University of New Mexico has been invited to play in the Sun Bowl with either Western Reserve or Georgetown, two undefeated teams. Texas Christian has already received an invitation to play in the Cotton Bowl but will probably not decide until the Rose Bowl contestants have been chosen. If Texas Christian University does not accept the Cotton Bowl bid, it will probably be offered to Oklahoma. The Sugar Bowl has the pick of the teams as they may have Tennessee, Oklahoma, and Texas Tech, all undefeated in this year's competition. That's the limit of our information on the most uncertain bowl situation in years. You probably noticed that we didn't mention any choices for the Orange Bowl except we heard some place that one of the teams will be Carnegie Tech.

Central will enter the tilt as the favorite, as North Side will again play short-handed as a result of the injuries sustained in the football game they played against Cathedral of Indianapolis. Fortune seems to be trying to even up the count since the Redskins succeeded in defeating the Centralites twice during last year's competition. However, it will never do for Central followers to become too confident of the outcome of the game, for an upset is nothing unusual in a game between two city fives.

If North Side comes through with a victory over Central Friday, they have another game Saturday before they can come off as undefeated so far this season.

The Crimson will travel to Nappanee. Little is known of the prospective strength of the Nappanee squad, however the Northerners will find that they have bitten off as much as they can chew.

Central Catholic opened their season with a bang, defeating two teams to no losses so far, putting them in the lead in city series competition. They will be out for revenge when they meet the Tigers of Peru who nosed them out last year by the narrow margin of 35-32.

This season's group of boys seem determined to put Central Catholic on the map, and they will be forced to play a real game of ball in order to defeat the Peru five.

Redskins To Play In Two Net Tilts

North Side's Five Will Take On Central Tigers Friday, Nappanee On Saturday Night.

North Side's five will play host to Central Friday night, matching baskets to determine the winner of the first city series clash of the net season.

Central, after having played a strenuous game against the Muncie Bearcats, has certainly had its share of work this week. Although North Side edged out a surprise 29-19 victory over the Masons, their game looked rather ragged. However, this is to be expected in the first game of the season, and the Redskins are expected to show much improvement against Central. If they intend to win, they will probably have to improve as Central has shown itself to be no push over for any basketball squad.

Central will enter the tilt as the favorite, as North Side will again play short-handed as a result of the injuries sustained in the football game they played against Cathedral of Indianapolis. Fortune seems to be trying to even up the count since the Redskins succeeded in defeating the Centralites twice during last year's competition. Many Boys Train For Ball Season

Turnout Due To First Call Of Coach Burl Friddle Is Good; Reserve Players Are Listed.

Many boys answered Coach Burl Friddle's first call for a position on the reserve squad. These boys, although they lack speed and experience, should win a good percentage of their games.

The boys who are outstanding and will probably see much action are listed below.

Chuck Close, a product from Harrison Hill, will be playing his second year on the reserves. With a little improvement Chuck might see some varsity action.

Dave Roth, brother of Jim Roth, who was a member of our state champs, should be just as successful on the basketball court as he was on the gridiron. This is Dave's second year on the reserves. With a little experience he will be one of our mainstays at guard.

Keith Spiker, who is the understudy of Jim Glass, will undoubtedly see much action on the reserves and probably a little on the varsity. Keith, who is 6 feet 3 inches tall, hails from Harrison Hill where he played on their city championship squad of three years ago.

Tieman May Be Forward
Rahe Tieman, a junior, is one of our leading candidates at forward. Rahe played in a few games last year which should help him to develop into a good consistent player.

Ralph Saalfrank, whom Coach Friddle expected great things from this year, is not doing as well as he was expected to do. This may be due to a knee injury which Ralph received in our last football campaign. Saalfrank, who is a senior, may break into the varsity lineup when the season gets in full swing.

Chick Shimer, our sensational freshman football star, is doing better than was expected of him in his first year. Shimer is being given a chance on the varsity because of his size, speed, and natural ability. Chick was one of the outstanding athletes in grade school; he excelled in basketball, indoor, and track, while at James H. Smart.

Decatur Boy Is Good
Dale Fuhrman, who is from Decatur, is improving rapidly and will undoubtedly see some action this year. Dale is a sophomore. While attending Decatur High School, he played on their first five reserve squad.

Roy Demetre and Stu Welborn, members of our varsity football team, have not been out long enough to demonstrate their ability. Judging from their performances of last year, these boys should get into a few games. Both of them hail from Harrison Hill where they were both active in sports.

Wayne Heinzelman and Louis Davis are both seniors who saw much action last year. Wayne and Louis practiced all summer, thus having an advantage over some of the boys. Both of them show much promise and might break into the varsity lineup.

Other candidates who show much promise are Jack Hornberger, Walter Vetter, Fred Walker, Frederick Bills, Charles Feistkorn, Roy Englehart, Byron Giesher, Bob Gingle, Bob Adams, and Jack Dunifon.

Close, Spiker, Tieman, Saalfrank, and Shimer or Roth will comprise the first five, with the rest of the boys pressing them for a starting position.

Rifle Club Makes Plans For Coming Meetings

The Junior Rifle Club held the qualifying round for the bi-weekly targets of November 29 on Tuesday, November 22. At this meeting were discussed the approaching match with the Girls' Rifle Club and the father-son potluck which is to be held sometime in December.

Robert Jameison was the high scorer in the qualification round for the bi-weekly match. Following are those who qualified and their scores: Robert Jameison, 94; Fred Pugh, 89; Robert Buschman, 89; Howard Stillwell, 87; William Bond, 85; Thomas Young, 85; Dick Trot, 85; Phillip Schwartz, 83; Norman Karboch, 82; and Byron Plumley, 81.

Supply Of Basketball Pins Is Replenished

Having received a new supply of the basketball pins in room 16, they can be obtained from Eleanor Vesey or Miss Rowena Harvey. The original supply, one gross, was sold in one week.

The pins are composed of a gold basketball with a green S on it and a pair of basketball shoes having a gold finish attached. They may be obtained in room 16 after school any night.

Story Contest Will Be Held By Psi Iota Xi

Sorority Will Again Sponsor Competition For Senior Girls; Rules Are Posted

Delta Gamma Chapter of Psi Iota Xi will sponsor again this year the short story contest for graduating senior girls, either 12B or 12A girls. South Side has had several local winners in this contest. In 1936 Jo Anne Smith won the first prize while in 1937 Elinor White, Peggy Kilpatrick and Ruth Phipps won the local prizes. In 1938 Betty Garton and Gwendolyn Everson won local prizes. Then Betty won also the province prize of $25.

This contest is a state project which was undertaken by the Psi Iota Xi sorority several years ago because of its interest in literary achievements. The contest has three parts, namely, a local contest which is open to every graduating senior girl in Fort Wayne; a province contest in which there will be stories that represent the twenty-three chapters in the northern province, and the state contest in which there will be just three competitive stories: one from the northern province, one from the southern province, and one from central province.

The prizes for the contest are as follows: Local, first prize, $5; second prize, $3; third prize, $2. The province prize is $25 and the state prize is $50. It is possible for the writer of one story to earn $80 with that story if in addition to the local prize, the province and state prizes are won also.

The rules of the contest are as follows:

1. An original short story not to exceed 5,000 words.
2. Manuscripts are to be type-written and must bear no names or distinguishing marks.
3. Both envelopes must be in the hands of the local chapter's short story chairman by February 1. The large envelopes shall be given to judges while the envelopes containing names and titles of story remain in the hands of the chairman until decisions are made.
4. The judges are to be three persons, not members of the sorority. The names of the judges are to be withheld until the contest is over.
5. The local prize winners are to be announced February 15. Any girl who wishes to enter should see Mrs. Howard B. Carson in room 36.

Home Room Prepares Basket Without Help

Ruth Ann Stiegler, president; Bill Weber, chairman; and Miss Eleanor Smeltzly, adviser of the Home Room Club of room 10, prepared a Thanksgiving basket without help of any other organization.

This basket was made up and delivered by the persons in home room 10 with the help of Miss Smeltzly. Every year this room forms a club which has committees for all work such as a Thanksgiving basket. The club elects officers regularly and is engaged in many worthwhile activities.

The basket made up this year contained a complete dinner consisting of chicken, bread, butter, milk, flour, pickles, lettuce, potatoes, sweet potatoes, cabbage, canned coffee and tea, sugar, beans, peas, fruit, fresh fruit, jelly, mince pie, fruit cake, pop corn, and candy.

Kenneth Simmers and Miss Smeltzly delivered the basket. The home room decided on this arrangement, because they wanted to do everything personally without the help of other organizations.

Miss Emma Kiefer Is First Pencil Purchaser

Miss Emma Kiefer had the honor of buying the first two pencils in the Hi-Y pencil campaign. After two weeks the Hi-Y pencil campaign has proven very successful, but there are still some pencils to be sold. Andy Bremer, chairman of the pencil committee, has announced that pencils will be sold in Room 2 after school each night.

The South Side Hi-Y Club has decided to join the National Organization. This Hi-Y is connected with the Y.M.C.A. throughout the world. Those who have signed up to join this organization are Aubrey Kellogg, Morton Nahrwald, Maurice Lehman, Jack Bostick, Herb Damer, Bob MacKay, Bill Schultz, John Magley, Dick Buchholz, Max Wagner, Clayton Jensen, Murray Squires, Andy Bremer, and Roger Neff.

Good Speeches Listed

Mrs. Dorothy Reike's first semester public speaking classes have just finished giving their five minute speeches. The students who gave the best speeches are as follows: Helen Banks, Dick Buchholz, Janice Dyer, Jean Gumpfer, Eleanor Vesey, Kitty Clinard, Betty Daniels, Margaret Null, Ruth Hower, Richard Dyke, Bruce Klotz, Betty Neeb, Margery Rapp, William Schuler, Eugene Tipples, Alex Azar, and Morton Nahrwald.

The pupils who gave the best orations in Mrs. Dorothy Reike's second semester public speaking classes are as follows: Marian Owens, Charles, Will, James Murphy, and Mary Lynn Harvill.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

A recognition day was held in room S for the winners of the Freshman-Sophomore Speech Contest, and also the boys that are out for football. The safety program which was presented over the radio system on Friday was given by four of the members of room S. The students have been given talks on preparing for the future by Betty Cowan, Kathryn Guild, John Gumpfer, Roger McVay and Dorothy Gildea. Their subjects were personality, being ready for the future, engineering, branches of engineering and our big job, respectively.

Miss Miller's Government 1 classes are now studying the National, State and local judicial departments.

In Miss Smeltzly's period 7 General History 1 class, the following persons received A or A— on a map of ancient Italy: Robert Allen, Mary Bowlby, Richard Bussing, Faye Gumpfer, Harold Haberstroh, Helen Harlan, Janet Holtmeyer, Douglas Kizar, Joe Loos and Geneva Martin.

Reba Copock and Frances Nash made the highest grade on a recent Latin test in Mrs. Welty's seventh period Latin class.

Last week Frances Van Buskirk had charge of some songs which the students in Miss Demaree's English 7 class sang.

Miss Dochtermann's and Miss Hutto's home rooms went together on a Thanksgiving basket. The rooms collected enough food to last the family a week.

On a recent test given by Mr. Cook on verbals to his English 2, periods 1 and 4 classes Joan Cartwright and Carol Whittem turned in perfect papers. Others who ranked high are: Joan Cox, Betty Cowan, Kathryn Guild, Mildred Holmes, Jim Barrett, Olive Miller, Marjorie Wigbel, Tom Deal, Phyllis Rolf and Gloria Stanley.

Miss Smith's and Miss Dean's gym classes will wind up the volleyball season next week with a test. Basketball will start the first of December.

In Miss Miller's Home Nursing class, the girls have been studying the symptoms and care of the common home illnesses, such as typhoid fever, tuberculosis, pneumonia, diabetes and anemia. Later the students will prepare diets for the correction of these diseases.

Robert Allen, Ruth Ann Archer, Rudolph Wuttke, Betty Baumgartner and Bernadine Buttler planned a Thanksgiving Day program for their home room, 64.

Helen Savage gave a report on the Elizabethan theater in Miss Demaree's English class which is now studying the Merchant of Venice.

In Mr. Moss' General History period 4 class Marjorie McMahon gave a report on Pepin The Short, and Phyllis Lauer reported on Charles Martel.

Chinese Theme Is Carried Out At Meeting; Miss Harriet L. Bowe Speaks To Members.

So-Si-Y held its last meeting in the form of a Chinese Tea and had as its guests the members of U.S.A. The meeting was opened by singing which was led by Mildred Brett with Ruth Bade at the piano. Miss Harriet L. Bowe, activity chairman at the Y.W.C.A., and Dixie Lee Hanna were in charge of the devotions.

The members and the guests sang "There Is No East Or West," and then Miss Bowe told of hearing the talk by Madam Chiang Kai Chek at a meeting last winter. She read a prayer which was given at that time, and then everyone sang the last two verses of that song.

Mary Ellen Heddon gave the introduction to the movie "China's Gifts To The World" and Ruth Ellison explained it as it was run. Phyllis Fackler gave a talk on paper and Ruth Ellison gave one on porcelain. Margaret Wiles talked on silk, and Frieda Schubert said a few things on tea. Mary Ellen Heddon gave "In Praise of Tea". Refreshments of tea and Chinese cookies were served.

Ruth Ellison was in charge of the meeting and those on her committee were Mary Ellen Heddon, Phyllis Fackler, Margaret Wiles, Betty Kinley, Phyllis Kaiser, Dixie Lee Hanna, Frieda Schubert, and Zola Prill.

Stauffer, Billie Jeanne Stover and Alice Witte.

In Miss Oppelt's Latin 4, period 6 class, Audrey Smith gave an interesting report on Recreational Activities of the Romans. The report included vivid descriptions of their various types of athletic meets. This report was the first of several to be given this term concerning the private life of the Romans.

Miss Van Gorder's sixth period occupation class recently dramatized "How to Make an Interview."

The following students have qualified for awards in Miss Covall's typing 2 classes: Arlie Ayres, who wrote 41.2 words per minute with 100 per cent accuracy; Eleanor Wittmer, 40.8 words per minute with 91 per cent accuracy; and Marian Owens, 44 words per minute with 93 per cent accuracy.

Evelyn Decker arranged the home room work in Miss Mary Crowe's home room last week.

Miss Pocock's English 3, period 4 class recently had a test on the use of nouns. Those who made A or A— are: Virgild Johnson, Anna Louise Johnson, Esther Schuler and Richard Steury. In the period 6 class were: Mildred Druhot, James Gerig, Jay Davis, Howard Tyndall and Charles Jordan.

Kenneth Place made the highest grade on a test over sentence unity and coherence in Miss Pocock's English 8 class.

The Thanksgiving basket committee in the home room in the library was: Velda Oppenlander, Marcile Passe and Imogene Wright. They seem to have been very successful, for two baskets full of food were gathered.

On a recent test over Milton's poems, in Mr. Makey's English 8 class, Velma Connatt made 95.

Various Girls Speak At Tea For Mothers

At the Junior Mothers' Tea held during American Education Week, girls from several different classes of the Home Economics department told about the work of those classes. The mistress of ceremonies was Frieda Schubert. Clothing was discussed by Maryon Dush, Audrey Hall, and Pauline Otting; the girls who talked on clothing wore clothes made by themselves. Marjorie McNabb talked on food; Donna Lou Foutz discussed Home Management; and Jane Wells discussed Home Nursing and Child Care.

Several garments were modeled. They were a woolen dress made in Clothing 1, a taffeta formal made in Clothing 2, and a winter hat, coat, and muff made in Clothing 3. At the close of the program Lois Gumpfer, the president of the Home Economics Club, Wo-Ho-Ma, told about the club's activities.

Radio Star Honors South Side Teacher With Driving Merit

Because of the Gold Star that will soon appear on the windshield of Miss Amanda Hemmer's car, everyone will know that she is a courteous driver. Bob Wilson announced Miss Hemmer's name over his "Gold Star Finals" program on Friday, November 18, as being the most courteous driver his scouts had seen that day.

"I got a thrill," Miss Hemmer said, "when I heard that my name was read over the radio. I didn't hear the program, but I wish I had. Some of my students told me about it the next day."

"Maybe," she went on, "they don't send out the awards until the end of the month because I have not, as yet, received mine, but you can be sure that I will be proud to display my award on the windshield of my car."

When asked about this program, Bob Wilson said that he started mentioning courteous drivers' names early last spring. Most people think this is a good program, because it stimulates drivers' interest in being courteous to other drivers and also to pedestrians.

This program is a local feature heard over WGL every day except Sunday at 6:45 p. m.

Company Compliments Ad

Part of a letter received by The South Side Times from the L. I. Griffin Company read as follows:

"We received your issue of The South Side Times of October 20, 1938, and we wish to express our entire satisfaction on the excellent make-up of our advertisement."

The ad was a forty-inch ad in the construction issue of The Times.

Campaign Starts Family, Neighbor, Relative Periods

Various Days Will Be Held
In Social Science Drive
To Obtain Subscriptions

High Score Room
To Receive Party

Official Closing Date Is To Be On Monday; Mr. L. C.
Ward Speaks At Meeting

Family Day, Relative Day and Neighbor Day, part of the Social Science's magazine drive in order to secure funds for the visual education departments, will be held today, Friday, and Saturday by members of the entire school. The leading home room will be taken to a theatre party, sponsored by Curtis Publishing Company in the near future.

Each day during the closing hours of the campaign, every member of South Side is expected to secure at least one subscription from each source, and thus swell each home room's goal.

The official closing date of the contest, formerly announced as tomorrow but postponed until Monday, will have no bearing on the outcome of the contest as all money will have been turned in to home room majors or team generals on Monday.

At a meeting held in room 114 last Tuesday evening, Mr. L. C. Ward of the Curtis Publishing Company was presented to the students, and told them of details for the new plan. Carl Goebel, senior, told of additional features of the plan which will enable students to secure prizes at the earliest possible time.

The Floy Floys were announced as leading the Floygies when the results of Tuesday morning's tabulation were recorded. Leading members of the home rooms, leading captains, majors and teams will be announced in next week's Times.

Mr. Wilbur Wilson, one of the faculty advisors of the group, and also sponsor of the visual education department, stressed the importance of the last days of the drive, saying that it was then that majors and captains should truly urge students to bring in subscriptions.

After the campaign officially closes, credits which students have earned will be tabulated, and gifts will be sent to South Side in time before the holiday season closes, that some students may give them as Christmas presents.

The Crowell list of magazines was added to those of the Curtis publications that students have a larger range of magazines to offer subscribers. The individual magazines and their prices were announced to students over the radio system early this week that they may have had an additional opportunity to contact possible prospects. Additional pamphlets were distributed among home rooms that members may have a time to look over additional prizes which are now offered.

Archer Radio Players
Will Give Napoleon

The third in the series of the "Interviews with the Past," entitled "Napoleon" will be presented by the South Side Radio Players. This program will be presented over the Fort Wayne School of the Air. Bruce Bradbury will take the part of Napoleon; Ted, Kenneth Warren; fun-loving Jack, Tom Gallmeyer; Betty, a sophisticated lady, Margaret Gross; Doris, Emaly Remmel.

In the coming skit which will be presented on Thursday, December 15, Bill Gernand will take the part of George Washington. Becky Abbott will be the announcer. The cast will be the same as that for the three preceding plays.

"Queen Elizabeth" which was presented last Thursday had as its cast the same characters as the preceding one except that of William Shakespeare. Helen Wiehe portrayed the noble character of Queen Elizabeth.

The series "Interviews with the Past" will continue every Thursday night until Christmas under the direction of Miss Gretchen Smith.

Marionette Dancers
Plan Christmas Party

Plans for a Christmas party to be held December 16 were made at the meeting of the Marionette Club last Thursday in the workshop. Nadine Mueller appointed the following committees: Lillian Sherbondy, general chairman; decorations, Betty Bolman and Jim Strawbridge; refreshments, Mildred Berry, Donna Dennis and Wilma Carrier; entertainment, Betty Showalter, Dick Green, Jeanne Hench and Max Spencer, and clean-up, Marcia Allen, Virginia Hill and Ralph Ransome.

After the business meeting a skit was presented by a group under the direction of Lillian Sherbondy. The skit was a school room comedy portraying some of the members of the club. Betty Showalter acted as Miss Dorothy Magley; Donna Dennis, Royal Steiner; Wilma Carrier, Janice Dyer; Mildred Berry, Nadine Mueller; Calvin Shultz, Mr. R. Nelson Snider and Lillian Sherbondy, Max Spencer. Work on the new puppets was continued.

Speakers Have Substitute

Miss Virginia Kincaid substituted for Mrs. Herbert Riecke last Friday. Mrs. Riecke was attending the speech conference at Purdue University.

Miss Kincaid is a former Archer. She graduated from South Side in 1934 and received her teacher's training at Earlham College.

Oscar Eggers, president of the class of '38, is general chairman of the committee for the first Alumni Dance to be held in Room 170 on December 29.

Artists Will Sell
Christmas Paper

Wrapping For Gifts Will Go
On Sale Monday; Design Shows South Side Features

South Side's art department will hold its ninth annual Christmas wrapping paper sale this week. The price for this paper is three sheets for a dime. There was less paper printed this year than ever before so you are advised to buy your paper early as there will be no second printing. The paper can be obtained in rooms 77 and 61 or in the front hall after school.

The paper will really be South Side paper this year. The design includes all new features of the building, a few of the achievements of South Side in 1938, with greetings and best wishes for the New Year.

All the students in both rooms of the art department were given the opportunity to submit a unit for the paper. The selection was then made by Miss Erma Doeherman and Miss Blanche Hutto. The design was worked out in a surface pattern by overlapping these units. The master sheet was then transferred to the linoleum block. The cutting was done by Dave Howell, Basil Thompson, and Jack Ridings.

Special Aids Are Given To Students
In Visual Education;
Many Pupils Work In Group

Through the assistance of the Visual Education Department, South Side students are offered the advantage of visual instruction in various courses and in extra-curricular activities. The department has proved to be invaluable to the school.

The Visual Education office secures films and slides, operates them properly, and returns them for any branch of the school. Organizations desiring an order of slides and films must pay the rental fee and postage; the mailing is attended to by the department.

One of the largest problems of the department is that of securing sufficient funds to cover the cost of equipment. Since the origin of the department, it has secured equipment amounting to approximately one thousand dollars. Social Science Club, the originator of the department, has been very beneficial to the group. For several years, this club has sponsored a magazine campaign to help furnish necessary apparatus.

The Visual Education Department is under the supervision of Mr. W. C. Wilson. Operators include Mark Hall, chairman, Andy Bremer, George Finkhousen, Bob Alt, Winfield Buchan, Wayne Hambrick, and Clarence Freeman. The office is under the management of Phyllis Frisinger, Helen Faux, and Phyllis Branning.

Christmas Is Theme Of Next German Meet

The German Club's annual Christmas party will be held in the Voohees Room, Wednesday, December 21. A game called Musical Chair will be played for which a prize will be given.

There will be a ten cent gift exchange. All gifts will be put in a basket. Santa Claus will pass the basket and each person will be given a gift. The Christmas songs that will be sung at the party are O Tannenbaum (O Christmas Tree), Stille Nacht (Silent Night), and O Du Froehliche (O Thou Joyful). An attendance prize will also be given. The admission is ten cents and a gift for the exchange.

Seniors Are To Pay
Cap And Gown Fees

Full or part payments on caps and gowns may be made now by seniors to Miss Dorothy Alderdice. Price for rental is two dollars.

Club Congress Plans Dance After Net Tilts

Inter-Club Members Sponsor Affairs; Will Also Handle Holiday Baskets

Many Committees
Picked By Group

Some Students Will Work
On Christmas Baskets; Organizations Decorate.

Honor of giving the first post-basketball game dance, which will be held December 17, has been bestowed on Inter-Club Congress. Plans in progress are in the hands of various committees. Committee for chaperones, Eleanor Vesey, chairman, Morton Nahrwald, and Betty Daniels; for smaller details, Don Hensch, chairman, Gloria Staley, Dorothy Amstutz, and Carl Goebel; for decorations, Carl Hall, chairman, Lavona Spore, Wilma Carrier, and Clayton Jensen; for publicity, Eleanor Vesey, chairman, Doris Williams, and Betty Daniels.

The price of tickets will be twenty-five cents. The affair will last until 11:30.

The Inter-Club Congress drive for Thanksgiving baskets went over so well that it has been decided to maintain those same committees to work on Christmas baskets. They are as follows: bulletin committee, Doris Williams, chairman, Betty Daniels, and Dick Buchholz; packing the baskets, Dick Buchholz, chairman, Roger McVay, Evelyn Kruse, and Clayton Jensen; collecting material for the baskets from the home rooms, Max Gabel, chairman, Dick Weaver, Carl Goebel, Dick Hebermehl, and Don Hensch; delivery of the baskets, Carl Goebel, chairman, Gloria Staley, Velda Oppenlander, Kenny Warren, and Morton Nahrwald; and the committee for assigning baskets and addresses, Evelyn Kruse, chairman, Dorothy Amstutz, and Patty Lyman. It was decided to deliver as many baskets as possible Friday afternoon, December 23. All baskets left over will be delivered the following morning.

Room 26 and the Greeley Room are going to be decorated with the money contributed by the clubs. Plans are in progress to have them decorated by December 10. The committee on decorations is as follows: Velda Oppenlander, chairman, Jean Fortriede, Ronald McVay, Allen Muller, Geneva Martin, and Don Pens.

Three E's To Go

Reports On Derivatives, Contrasts Between English And American Terms To Be Given

Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Three E's will hold a meeting at Dick Garton's home at 4425 Beaver Avenue. A report will be given on interesting derivatives and one will be given on the contrast between English and American terms for the same things.

The lesson for the evening will show the increasing influence that the classics had on English literature; this will be shown by the study of literary selections from the ninth to fourteenth and sixteenth century English literature. A game will be played on the native versus Anglo-Saxon forms.

Annette Snoke acted as hostess at the last meeting on November 19. The members studied another lesson in Anglo-Saxon literature and a very lesson, and played two word games.

Miss Kiefer is planning to entertain the members at her home December 28. This meeting will be in the form of the annual Christmas party.

Public Speaking Group Attends Confab At Purdue University, Lasting Jolly Two Day Period

It is usually ascertained that the best place to begin is at the beginning, so--

Let's turn back the pages of current history to 8:15 o'clock last Friday morning, December 2. At approximately this time forty-seven speech students and Mrs. Dorothy Benner Riecke departed in nine automobiles for Purdue University to attend the ninth annual high school debate conference, leaving behind them a very envious South Side student body.

Everyone rolled merrily along (it is supposed) until--

At the time when most of the Archers were in their third period classes there was a very unfortunate occurrence near Peru. A tire blew out on Mrs. Riecke's Chevrolet. Due to the helping hands of its passengers, June and Joyce McAlister, Dorothy Foelinger, June Enoch, and Kitty Clinard, twelve accommodating gentlemen of South Side, a mechanic, the sympathy of several cars full of Redskins and the guidance of Mrs. Riecke after an interval of approximately half an hour, they were again on their way.

Fate, not satisfied with being the cause of one blow-out (might as well blame it onto fate as anything else), likewise had a grudge against Fred King. Consequently five hungry people trooped into the Union Building at Purdue much later than they had expected.

In spite of not being off to a good start, everyone arrived before or shortly after noon; and in high spirited anticipation of the coming events made up for lost time and lost breakfasts. Having been registered and given their credentials, each made his way to his designated lodging.

At 2:15 o'clock the main floor of

Trio, Quartette Will Furnish Music; J. Dyer, E. J. Reed
Head Committees For Affair

As has been the custom for several years, Mrs. R. L. Feagles will be the guest speaker at Philo's annual Christmas party to be held Monday, December 12 at 3:45 o'clock in the Greeley Room. The trio, composed of Ruth Dauner, cello; Ruth Bade, piano; and Loretta Rinearsen, violin, will play while refreshments are being served. The quartette, directed by Frances VanBuskirk, will also sing several Christmas songs. Virginia Fleming will accompany.

Decorations are being arranged by Janice Dyer and the following committee: Margery Rapp, Helen Banks, Alice Pope, Hertha Hoffman, Jean Gumpfer, Marjorie Dyer, Audrey Hall, Betty Marquardt, Betty Daniels, Miriam Jackson, Katherine Beckman, Lois Rea, Helen Wiehe, Betty Neeb, and Service Etaler.

The refreshment committee consists of Ella Jo Reed, chairman, Carolyn Keel, and Marian Miller. Since the refreshments are to be supplied by club members, girls should sign up to bring either candy, cookies, nuts, or money as soon as possible.

This year the club is planning to fill a Christmas basket with toys and clothing for some needy family. Members should also sign up for this worthy project. They may bring either toys, clothing, or money. Betty Daniels has charge of the basket and is selecting a committee to aid her.

South Siders Design
Class Room Mural
For Miss L. Osborne

Have you been in to see the mural on the wall in Miss Lucy Osborne's class room? This mural was designed by Miss Blanche Hutto's fourth period art class. Jeanne Shinnick, Betty Horstmeier, Bud Hayner, Eugene Stair, Lois Briggs, Marie Lillich, and Bernia Morgan all worked in trying to make a success in painting it on the wall.

The mural represents a book shelf with the characters standing against the books. Above the mural is the quotation, "A good book is the best of friends the same today and forever."

Everyone is invited to see it. The opinion of Miss Osborne's pupils do not vary much.

Carol Westendorf: I think it makes the room more attractive.

Jack Rogers: It's okay.

Betty Wyss: I think it looks grand or swell or something.

John Potter: It's nice, isn't it?

Lois Decker and Irene Franke: I think the mural is pretty.

Floyd Stephens: It passes inspection.

Leonora Moyer: It's very beautifully colored.

Maxine Goers: It's very charming and stuff.

Miss Osborne: It adds a splash of color.

Margaret Gross, Caroline
Lichtenberg Score; Bruce
Bradbury Awarded Third

Robert Safer with "Beyond the Last Mile" and Helen Wiehe with "Eyes" tied for first place in Wranglers' Club first dramatic declamation, December 5. The judge was Miss Lucy Osborne.

There was a tie, also, for second place. They were Margaret Gross, "The Lord's Prayer," and Caroline Lichtenberg, "Jean Marie." Bruce Bradbury placed third with "The Bishop's Candlesticks."

Other contestants were: Kolman Gross, "Quite So"; Sally Moorehead, "Mary Stuart," and Bill Reithmiller, "The Informer."

Richard Gerig entertained with several selections on the piano after the fourth speaker.

In regard to the contest Miss Osborne said, "It was a splendid contest. I have never known a judge to be up against a situation in which it was so difficult to make a decision. Every selection was well done."

Alma Korte Plans

Bruce Klotz, Bill Reithmiller, Aleda Randol, Musicians Are On Entertainment Program

The Service Club potluck was held Tuesday, December 6, in the cafeteria. Alma Korte was in charge of this event and Mr. A. Verne Flint, advisor of the Service Club, aided her.

After the potluck the members enjoyed many selections which were arranged by the program committee. Featured on the program was a skit presented by Bruce Klotz and Bill Reithmiller. Aleda Randol contributed to the program by giving a tap dance and an accordion selection. A piano duet was played by Velma Lehman and Ruth Bade. Peggy Zirkel led the students in community singing as Velma Lehman accompanied them.

The beginning and ending feature of the program was Clell Boerger and his "All Girls' Novelists." The Novelists and the instruments they played are as follows: Velma Connert, cello; Kathryn Boerger, piano; Audrey Jeffries, clarinet; Thelma Pfeiffer, cornet; Elaine Boerger, violin; Phyllis Stein, saxophone; and Betty Elbersen, violin.

The menu consisted of meat loaf, baked beans, potato salad, sandwiches, jello, pickles, olives, cake and fruit. Students helping on the food committee were Dorothy Hall, Ruth Kaiser, Marjorie Jackson, Emilou Allendorph, Eileen Hoffman, Kathleen Ramer, Velda Oppenlander, Evelyn Kruse and Dorothy Bloemker.

The program committee consisted of Kathryn Boerger, Vera Berring, Ruth Bade, Andy Bremer, Phyllis Frisinger, William Newhard, Janice Dyer, Velma Lehman, Betty Rose, Peggy Zirkel and Phyllis Branning.

Girls that assisted in writing the invitations are as follows: Vera Berring, Marjorie Jackson, Eileen Hoffman, Edna Voltz, Alma Korte, and Dixie Lee Hanna.

Meterites To Feature
Theme Of Christmas

The next meeting of Meterites, to be held December 13, will be in the form of a Christmas party.

Faye Gumpfer is chairman of the party. The girls on her committee will give talks on the ways Christmas is celebrated in other lands. Margie McMahon will read a Christmas poem. Gloria Kramer will do a Spanish dance.

The remainder of the program will be devoted to Christmas music. The members of the club will sing several Christmas carols. There will be three solos, "Silent Night," sung in German by Helen Savage, "O Come All Ye Faithful," in Latin sung by Carol Whittier, and a French carol sung by Gloria Staley.

Teen Age Students
Easily Acted Upon
By Tubercle Germ

Boys and girls in their teens and young adults have been pointed out by medical authorities as being first in line to be seized by tuberculosis. We often consider it absurd when it is even suggested that high school students, vigorous and vital, are the chief victims of tuberculosis. That is where the mistake is made.

It is when the body is young and strong that bodily energy is usually spent most freely. Is it not reasonable to believe then that adolescents who are not particularly interested in eating enough nourishing foods, who work and play too long and too hard, and who rest too little are the ones who are apt to have bodies which are unready to deal successfully with the germs of tuberculosis.

There are means of curing tuberculosis, but why wait until then? By living the sort of life that will keep the body at its best there is no reason to even consider the possibility of becoming tubercular. You may have tubercle bacillus in your body, and yet not develop the disease if you have good bodily resistance.

Health rules compiled by the National Tuberculosis Association for healthful living are as follows: 1. Get at least eight hours of sleep each night, with windows open. 2. Spend some time each day in exercise out of doors. 3. Eat a variety of nourishing foods. 4. Avoid overwork, late hours, and all excesses which weaken the body. 5. Keep cheerful. 6. Try to get a doctor or a clinic once a year for a thorough physical examination.

The second requirement is to take all reasonable precautions to prevent tubercle bacillus from entering the body. Tuberculosis doesn't just happen. It is passed from person to person. Important rules to follow are as listed: 1. Always wash the hands with warm water and soap before eating and preparing food. 2. Use pasteurized milk from a reliable dairy. 3. Avoid, as much as possible, contact with those who cough and spit carelessly. Be especially careful to keep children away from such people.

Two Organizations To Hold Affair At Bell's Rink;
Favors To Be Given Out

Admission Cost Is Twenty-Five Cents

Skaters' Bus Will Leave At 7:15, 7:30; Committees
Help With Many Details

Girls' Rifle and French Clubs' annual skate will again be held at Bell's Rink. This skate will begin at 8 p. m. tomorrow night.

Tickets may be purchased for twenty-five cents from any member of the Girls' Rifle or French Club or in rooms 90 and 92. Favors will be given to skaters that arrive soon after 8 o'clock. As they proved to be in demand at previous French and Rifle skates, the practice was continued this year.

Miss Olive Perkins, adviser of French Club, and Miss Rosemary DeLancey, adviser of Girls' Rifle, will act as chaperones at this event.

There will be a skaters' bus at the school between 7:15 and 7:30 o'clock so that it can come back to school if a second trip is necessary. Students are urged to be on time as the bus will not wait very long. A fee of ten cents will be charged for the transportation.

"The French Club does not collect dues from its members," stated Miss Perkins, "so we are sponsoring this skate in cooperation with the Rifle Club to raise money to pay for our Totem picture, French Club pins, and awards which will be given on Recognition Day."

Annette Snoke, president of French Club, appointed the following students to act on the ticket committee: Jeanette Warren, chairman; Elaine Bernstein, and Marcia Allen.

Committees from the Girls' Rifle Club were chosen a few weeks ago and have been assisting the French Club in the plans for this skate. The general arrangements committee consists of Delores Ulrich, chairman, Ruth Hoover, and Betty Thiele. Marian Feichter is chairman of the Rifle Club's ticket committee. Assisting her are Jane Merchant and Marcia Allen. Betty Marquardt, chairman; Audrey Hall, and Imogene Fabian were appointed on the attendance prize committee. This committee will take charge of the distributing of favors at the rink.

Ten girls shot targets at the semi-monthly meeting of the Rifle Club last week which will be counted as their bi-weekly score. The girls and the scores they made are as follows: Marian Feichter, 94; Marge Price, 90; Jane Merchant, 88; Mildred Trout, 87; Imogene Fabian, 83; Marcia Allen, 81; Dorothy Feinker, 73; Audrey Hall, 73; and Delores Ulrich, 45.

Quill, Scroll Members For Past
Two Years To Be Guests Of 1500 Club At Next Potluck

South Side's Quill and Scroll members for the past two years and journalism students from North Side's Northern and Central's Spotlight will be guests of the 1500 Club which will hold a potluck Monday evening, December 19, in the cafeteria and new Greeley room. Janice Dyer is in charge of the program committee; Beverly Griffith, clean-up; Betty Daniels, arrangements; and Julia Ann Smith, food.

Assisting Janice is Bob Robinson, Peg Bacon, Jeanette Warren, Sam Bacon, Winfield Buchanan and Dick Aronhalt who have organized the program, the theme of which is "Editorials." Speakers and their topics are as follows: Jeanette Warren, Senior Synopsis; Betty Neeb, humorous feature; Sam Bacon, News Vues; Bruce Bradbury, Kelly Koed-Kut-Ups; Doris Williams, Etiquette as it can be applied to 1500 Club members; and Dick Aronhalt, Wee Sketches of Our Big People.

Julia Ann Smith, food committee chairman, and her helpers, Joan Hess, Martha Jane Krausopf, Eleanor Vesey and Jean Fortriede are in charge of arranging a menu. Instead of bringing food, thirty-five cents may be paid to the food chairman by December 15. Members should sign up now in The Times room.

Two other committees are clean-up committee, Beverly Griffith, chairman, Maurine Selbert, Dorothy Bloemker, Ed Reeves, Joel Salom and Emilou Allendorph; and arrangement committee, Betty Daniels, chairman, Lora Lee Montgomery, Kenneth Warren and Virginia Gogelien.

Janice Dyer has called a very important meeting of the program committee to meet Friday immediately after school in The Times room. Also Betty Neeb, Doris Williams, Bruce Bradbury, Kenneth Warren and Max Spencer are urged to be present.

Gifts Offered By Totem
In Christmas Card Form

Totem subscriptions in the form of Christmas gifts are being offered by the 1939 yearbook staff. Such gifts will be made as Christmas cards, and may be purchased by parents or friends. Gift subscriptions are offered for $2.00.

All senior pictures, numbering 410, have been taken, and proofs returned to the studio. Underclassmen pictures will be taken immediately following Christmas vacation.

You Better Watch Out Santa Claus Knows All Sees All And Hears All

There's a lilt to John Q. Public's walk, there's music in the air, mysterious "things" fill the closets, locked rooms buzz with secrets, and delightful miracles are being concocted in kitchens! In case you haven't guessed—Christmas is coming! Songs appropriate to the season are rapidly gaining in popularity. Just stroll up to the music counter in any ten cent store (the best place to buy a Christmas gift for that "silly-little-pest-I-met-last-summer who will probably get me something"), and you will, probably hear numerous requests for a catchy little tune called "Don't Wait Till The Night Before Christmas To Be Good".

Since Fort Wayne recently witnessed the arrival of jolly old Santa Claus, the town's younger set (that means us) should take the song to heart. Remember, Santa sees all, hears all, and knows all. Don't park chewing gum in drinking fountains, don't throw waste paper in the halls, don't carve up your desks, and above all don't talk behind teacher's back.

If you really want to be very good, try studying harder and coming through your final exams with flying colors. This should make everybody happy, including Santa, and that's what counts. Finally, do your Christmas shopping early.

Time Draws Near For Choosing Life's Work

Have you ever thought of what you intend to do when you are graduated from this institution? Because if you have, it is a very good thing. You will spend most of your life from now on earning a living.

Some of you probably are planning to get a position in the near future. Some of you may be working in a drugstore, a filling station, in a grocery, or some other business establishment. Most of the rest of the students in South Side intend to go to college in preparation for their life work.

The success of your life after your graduation from high school, depends mostly on what you decide now. Of course all of you may not succeed because there is so much competition in this modern world. However, a reasonable majority should be successful. Now is the time to be deciding what you intend to do as your life work. Whether you want to follow a profession, a business, a trade or an art, now is the time to decide which of these you want to work at.

You prepare home work for the following day. So, why don't you start to prepare now for something that you will probably work at during most of your normal life. If you want to be a lawyer arrange your course so that you can get the best of your high school education. Then you must go to school again, to college. After this perhaps a couple more years may be spent in studying the intricacies of law. Then you will be ready, really to go to work. So, for your own good, decide on your life's work now!

A Janitor's Theme Song

"A tisket, a tasket, throw all your trash in the waste paper basket" should be the theme song of many a school. Why? Because who wants their school house to look like a junk heap? On top of that, if you want to be proud of our school, it will have to be kept clean. Any school that does not keep a clean building will immediately make a bad impression on any visitor. If there is one thing worse than a sloppy, careless person, it is a whole school of them. There is no lower specimen of humanity than a sloppy, careless person. Another side of the question is that of the poor janitor who suffers from the neglect of others. Why does he suffer? Because the students think he doesn't have any feelings and that it doesn't matter to him whether he picks up some hundred pieces of paper or two or three. Let us hope that your theme song from now on will be "a tisket, a tasket, throw all your trash in the waste paper basket".

Let's wish success to our basketball team. Have your name put in The Times for the small fee of 5 cents.

Did you give to the Community Chest or Red Cross this year? It's still not too late.

Buy a Hi-Y pencil and write out the success of our team.

Next Wednesday is payday for us students. Get it?

Don't Be Scared Of Public Speech Class; Join And Have Fun

All of the up and coming speakers who are engaged in that well known subject of public speaking taught by that fun-loving teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Rieke, are in agreement that more fun is to be had in this class than any other.

You students who have never taken public speaking don't know what you have missed. Perhaps you would get a little nervous, and perhaps have a funny feeling in the very pit of your stomach, and a lump which makes you want to clear your throat come in the back of your mouth, but after all the fun and information obtained from this class is really worth your hours of serious preparation.

Charming Substitute
Talking of fun, the other day one of our eminent football heroes was very much interested in the substitute which the classes were to have. After asking a few questions, Mrs. Rieke said she had told the sub that this well-known pigskin tosser, who, by the way, is the president of his public speaking class, would be her right hand man. Of course no names are mentioned, but this certain person's face became the color of his hair. He's a hard one to guess, isn't he?

Before the Junior Banquet the secretary of the fifth period class in his daily reports gave several Post Scriptums saying, "Come to the junior banquet and see those famous playwrights do their stuff". Also some notations were given as to who was selling tickets to the affair.

Several pupils gave clever impromptu involving other students in the class. Mrs. Rieke gave several household duties which the future Mrs. Reithmiller should not expect of her husband.

Were They Guilty?

Expression when reading is the main topic at present in the classes. The teacher gave several illustrations and during one which was on the romantic side, she said that if anyone laughed she was sure that they were engaged in a similar business. Several girlish giggles were heard through the room.

At a recent party Doris Williams gave a humorous speech concerning her joining the girls' chorus—not the ones that sing either.

Such little bits add to the already interesting public speaking classes. You students who don't think you would like public speaking because you would get scared should really be told of the value and enjoyment gained from being a member of such a class.

Senior Synopsis

By R. U.
Graduating

Well, kindly people, are you ready, willing, and stable to hear or, better still, read all about the inviting Archers, those upperclass deluxers. We have managed to gather together many choice bits of news reels and now we intend to expound explicitly to all of you columnists with the sincere hope that you are an ardent believer of the old and somewhat modified adage, "Hearing is believing."

We've heard some plenty good ones already, but we vote this one the best bet of the week. Anyhow the story goes that a pilgrim was late getting home because of "injun" trouble. . . And Bill Siples feels that his alibis are good.

Among late but timely notes we find that it seemed mighty kinda funny but goshawfully nice having some of our ex-upperclassmen home for the past good holidays. They could all be found nearly anywhere where dancin' and common place fun was in the making. Many of our own intelligent, and anything but insignificant seniors, were found greatly rejoiced and highly happy over the arrival of certain kee-ollege bred folk. Some of the more active couples seen at the regal outings were Mary Michels and Bill Malone (isn't it nice), Mary Melching and George Gorman (what fun), Mary Lampton and Dave Overholt (another score), Kitty Clindard and Max Irmischer (as ever), Jean Russ and Jim Phelps (the final chapter), Joe Bex and last year's honor fend, Helen Cox (these have lived), and super smoothie couple, Lois Rea and George Kempf (enter one past due sigh).

It seems a pity that the seniors, at least, can't stay put in South Side's rendezvous of books. (library some say). Yet, and shamefully we admit it, many of our 12B's (bothersome) students are hurled bodily and sole from out the book-mook. What's the matter, fellows, can't you study when you sit at tables. Tsk, tsk.

You must have been a beautiful baby, Max Spencer. Anyhow, we have been told from authority par excellence that you were the hearty recipient of scores of blue ribbons when a very young child. We also have been informed that until a later (much?) age, the Totem boss was not compelled to don a hat, because of the long crop of curls which made its flowing way down his back. . . the final loss was due to sheerer luck—of the barber.

May we recognize outstanding and incidentally swing-hating Betty Daniels. Unselfishness in her work has made her one of our most outstanding seniors. Keenness, intelligence, and sparkling personality makes her a super gal of stupendous superiority.

In response to the surrounding yawns we bring to a close these borings and make a tired departure, hoping these sketches will live long after us.

Things To Come

Packards, Horses, Rayons Are Archer Hopes From Santa

"I want Santa Claus to bring me most anything" is the theme of many Archers. Dorothy Karnap would gladly accept a fur coat, mink preferred, but anything will do, and maybe a car to rattle around in. Lilas Patton wants only a car if it would please be a Packard. I think Dorothy Hall would really have something if Santa would bring her a very much wanted class ring. I hope you get it, Dorothy.

Our prim Pat Kelley would be satisfied with just Jack Bateman. Now, would you, Pat? Kenneth Place would like to have a radio. Phyllis Lansborough wants a new recording machine. Charles Wehmeyer wants a rifle, and John Welles wants a candid camera. Joan Korte, if Santa brings what you want, I'll try your technique. Wouldn't it be wonderful to be twins? Joyce McAlister wants a riding habit. Junie wants a horse. Well, that's being practical.

Rosie Jones wants Santa to bring her a wrist watch and a great big tinted picture. She didn't say who, but I wager that there is a man involved. Believe it or not, but we still have a practical gal, Marcia Allen, who wants ice skates, corduroys, and dresses for Christmas. My, my, one person who doesn't want the impossible. Charlotte Kern still wants a dog. Will someone please tell Santa? I hope Santa has enough watches to go around. Julia Pressler wants one too. Joan Gunter just wants a satin formal and a velvet wrap. Little Marian (Plug) Owens would like to have a satin formal too. Roy Ellingwood would like to have ice skates; he got an electric train last year. Marilyn Burns is begging for shoe ice skates. Say, ice skates are really getting to be quite the craze. Carl (lovely-to-look-at) Goebel isn't lazy but he wants someone to do his home-work.

Janita Wolford would like to have a snow suit so that she won't get cold coming to school. Janice Cross wants a sled. You two girls should get together. Billy Knoll wants an electric razor. I don't know what he would use it for (except to shave a peach, and they are out of season). Beth Ellen Chadwick would appreciate a new formal. What gal wouldn't? Bill Siples wants so little. Just a brunette. Santa could satisfy Richard Gentis with Plug Owens. Well, well, Newell Beatty wants a doll. Goo! Goo! Bob Hawkins wants a tricycle. (I think these boys are kidding me.) Izzie Weinraub wants a car.

Chuck Bolman would like to find a pretty girl in his stocking. Fred Peters prefers a good girl friend. Never satisfied! Really students, all in all, I think any one of you would be satisfied and immensely pleased with just one gift that would actually be a surprise to you. Merry Christmas!

Neel can be seen quite frequently in The Times room cutting the rug with Lukie.

If you, too, like swing music, and want a true friend who isn't too quiet and who loves to have a good time, meet up with Betty "Squeeb" Neel, one of the sweetest of the swell seniors.

I want to thank each and every one of you for contributing with such generosity to the good old cause of the mail box. Whew! Am I ever glad I've got that over.

Anyway, here is a choice bit of good old dirt, Herman Ankenbruck, better known as "Casanova", has finally succeeded in winning the heart of fair Jane Abbot. He has been trying consistently to convince Jane that he was her one and only. After a heavy persuasion Jane finally broke down and now they are going steady.

Some person is of the opinion that P. McKay is deserting Marjorie Lou Wickes in favor of a certain Virginia Sites. As far as I can see, (and I'm not near-sighted) Phil and Marg are hittin' it off as swell as ever. Whatever this possible side flirtation is, is yet to be discovered.

Alice Sweet and Bob Dahman are happier than ever since they had a little tiff. Bob was lost after he and Alice made the break and Alice went around in a fog. Deciding that it was really love after all, they patched it all up. . . An' they are now going steady.

Telephone conversation:
"Hello, honey, that you?"
"Yes, this is me—what's this?"
"This is Cynthia—listen, Jane, I have to write something for an English assignment and I can't think of a thing to say. Could you shed any light on my problem?"
"Gee, honey, I haven't any light to shed on anyone else's problems. I got problems of my own. I just bought a green shirt today and I can't decide how to wear it."

"If it's very cold tomorrow you might wear your brown skirt and checked jacket with it. Marjorie wore hers that way the other day with the neck of the shirt open down a little ways and the collar on top of the jacket collar."

"That would look nice. I don't think those barrel sweaters we wore last year will be out of style now, do you?"

"No, I don't. You might wear any other kind of a sweater, too, that hasn't a collar on it. I've seen girls with the cutest combinations of colors when they wore sweaters and blouses together."

"Talk about color combinations, didn't Kathryn look absolutely darling with that rust skirt and bolero over her pea green shirt?"

"Um huh. Martha wore a green shirt today that looked swell with her red hair. She certainly followed South Side's colors, didn't she?"

"I didn't see her. What did she have on the shirt?"

"Oh, she just had a white silk tie. She told me that it used to be a long shawl but now she just puts it around her neck and ties it in a big bow. It looked pretty cute, too. Then, too, if you're ambitious you might embroider a lot of signatures on it. Might help you to remember how to spell some of your friends' names."

"I think this winter the knot of the tie will be worn in front more than in back though."

"I'm beginning to think that I made a good buy when I got my shirt. Wearing it so many different ways will make it seem like different shirts. I think I'll wear it like—Oh, dear, someone wants this line."

"Well, I'll see you tomorrow, goodbye, honey. Gosh, now what will I write for that English assignment?"

Pro and Con

A subject of vital interest to every student is that pressing problem of home work. Every night, or at least four nights out of five, all the teachers are hit with the same brainstorm of giving their classes home work. Well, if you happen to have four teachers who have the same idea, the effect on the brain is terrific. Thus arises the question, "Should we have home work?" Immediately, two thousand vocal cords shout No! With equal violence, seventy pedagogues echo Yes! . . . Mr. Snider calmly says he won't commit himself, while we say let's review both sides of the case.

PRO
When a question such as this one comes up, it seems rather preposterous to even discuss it. Students are positive there should be no home work. That's because they are on the receiving end. And we might venture to say that there is one time all boys and girls believe in the proverb, "It is better to give than to receive." On the other hand, teachers are just as confident that home work should be given; in fact, they would be at a loss if they couldn't give home work. A lot of things can be said in favor of it. For one thing, having to do studying outside of class hours, allows the teachers to conduct discussion sessions during class period, which without a doubt is one of the best ways of clearing up matters not easily understood by students. In discussions, you get the opinions of approximately thirty students besides your own ideas. It gives you all a chance to see how others take a subject and just what they got out of it that you did not. Then there is the important angle that it teaches you good habits of study. . . how to budget your time. It is, of course, imperative for everyone to learn early in life how to use time to the best advantage, and having to do home work is good practice. While we're still in the good graces of students, let's direct our attention to the other side.

CON
Volumes and volumes of literature have been written on the glories of having a hobby, the intrigue of building airplanes, and the mysteries of the literary world! Well, how are we going to know all these joys when night after night and twice on weekends, we are tied up in Chaucer, troubled by that elusive unknown quantity x, or trying to parley-vo in French? After listening to Bing Crosby or Kay Kyser and studying a couple of hours each night, it's usually time to betake one's self to one's boudoir.

After all, developing outside interests is very important, comparable to learning the three R's. It becomes an impossibility to pursue one's outside hobbies if home work is piled on every night. Some get around this home work obstacle by letting it slide. . . a simple but destructive way. He gains nothing by this and loses out in every way.

We are not advocating no home work, so don't get the wrong impression, but we do think some plan should be worked out so that every bit of home work can be done in school hours. The present plan of study periods is not satisfactory because every one does not have study periods. It can be done. Some Chicago schools have done it. What Is Your Opinion?

Practice Makes Perfect Is Best Bet Against Becoming A wallflower

About the most fun any of us have is to go to a dance and have a good time. And about the worst sort of misery in the world is to go to a dance and get stuck and have a perfectly horrible time. Once you get labelled as a failure on the dance floor, you might just as well stay home evenings. In fact, you might better. For once the young men around town see you plodding drearily around the dance floor with the same grim man all evening, you'll be permanently labelled "wallflower".

Once you've gotten that reputation, you're sunk. Even your best man friends will manage not to see you at a dance. In a way, you can't blame them. For the cut-in system being what it is (AWFUL), a man can ruin his whole evening by one dance with a wallflower.

So if you want to have fun at the dances, you'd better polish up your technique before you start. There are a good many angles involved in being a wow on the dance floor. First and foremost, of course, you must be a good dancer. And remember you must be a good dancer before you start to go to the big dances. The Senior Prom is no place to be practicing your slide-step-together-slide. The only way possible to become a good dancer is to have loads and loads of practice.

Perhaps you can frankly tell some tried-and-true beau that you need to practice dancing. Then let him give you a little instructions in the privacy of your home where he won't be embarrassed by your falling all over his feet. One clever high-school girl decided when she was about fifteen, that it was about time she learned to become a good dancer. So every date that came to her house, she made him dance with her for fifteen minutes before they went to the movies or settled down to talk. The boys were all agreeable to fifteen minutes of it—and she caught on so fast that they delighted in teaching her rumbas, tangos, and fancy shag steps. Soon she became somewhat of a "jitter bug". And the first thing this girl knew she was being showered with invitations and plenty of partners.

There are lots of other ways of practicing. For instance, if you are really quite a beginner, you may want to go to some near-by dancing school and take a course in ballroom dancing. That's grand fun as well as instructive and you meet a lot of new acquaintances there. Many a prom-trotter tries out new steps with her girl friends. So another way to learn to dance well and be able to follow lots of different people is to dance with all your girl friends. It saves you from making mistakes on the dance floor. Contrary to the general supposition, it does not hurt a girl's following to lead a girl once in a while, but of course she should not lead all of the time. A little leading will teach her some sympathy with a man's point of view.

For one thing she'll learn how a man feels when he suddenly finds a clinging vine clamped around his neck—the sort of girl who leans hard, takes a strangle hold around his neck, and then lets him pull her around the floor.

A girl who is a good dancer holds herself fairly straight but relaxed and keeps her weight on her own two feet. That takes poise and balance and this is acquired by dancing by yourself. So if you have an evening without a date, don't sit home moping and wishing the phone would ring; turn on the radio and dance a few solos!

The etiquette of the dance is another important thing every girl should think about. Watch your dancing's p's and q's! When someone cuts in on you, don't be so relieved that you practically fall into the new partner's arms without another glance toward the last one. When the break comes, or the end of the dance, and your partner says, "Thank you", you should answer, "I enjoyed it very much!" If there isn't time to say anything at least give him a smile and make him think you enjoyed it and that smile—a lovely, personal smile—should seem to say, "I've loved it!" It really does wonders.

Girls who wonder what to say while dancing are really getting gray haired over nothing. The chances are, you really don't have to say anything, in fact there are boys who consider it annoying to talk while they are dancing. Ten to one they need quietness to count, one-two-three-one-two-three, etc, can't you just hear them? If your partner ventures a remark about the orchestra, how lovely you look, how divinely you dance, or any old subject—then you can assume that he does want to talk, and answer him; but let him start the conversation.

Probably the most trying situation that can happen on a dance floor is to get stuck. The only thing to do is take it cheerfully and think, "Oh well, it happens to everyone sometime". Don't get panicky and just go on dancing with the same man all evening or say coyly, "Oh dear, you're stuck with me." He knows it. You can retire to the ladies room, tell him to leave you with a few of your friends, or get a sudden headache and go home. It is far better to leave a dance than to stay there and have your beau waving dollar bills or making faces behind your back. Don't you think so?

Intramural Teams Play Ten Games

Lightweights Play One Contest, Middleweights Four, Heavies Five; High Scores Featured.

Ten games were played in the intramural loop last week. Only one game was played in the lightweight division, but it was quite a game. The F.O.B.'s completely swamped the Apes 68 to 0. This was one of the highest scores ever run up in intramural play. Tom Brower dumped in twenty-six points for the winners.

In the middleweight division four games were played. The Cubs walked over the Blue Smokes 10 to 4, and the Pineapples swamped the Bulldogs 26 to 4. In the feature game of the division, the Kelly Klads won a double overtime from the Zippers, 23 to 21. Lentz scored ten points for the victors, and Bob Simmons twelve for the losers. In the last game the highly touted Hoosier Pot Shots bowed to a tough Flasher middleweight five, 5 to 4. The game was close and the Flashers put up a great battle in winning. Duiser scored four points for the winner.

Heavies Take All
The heavyweight games were all loosely played and were in most cases run-aways.

The Black Hawks defeated the Thrillers 24 to 3. Bob Gettys scored ten points for the victors, Davis tallied the only points for the losers. In a closer game the Latins beat the Laxers 15 to 10. Stobaugh, scoring six points, led the victors and D. U. Pook scored a like number for the Laxers. The Devils swamped the Dubs, 13 to 5. Baals and Stump were outstanding for the winners. The Swishers ran over the Sure Shots 31 to 9. Bogner scored ten points for the victors. The S. O. M. A. C.'s, runners last year to the champion Thugs, decisively beat the Riots 11 to 2. Al Lichtenberg looked good for the winners, and Dannecker and Feistkorn stood out for the losers.

Lettermen Group Stage Dance Fete

Freddy Lenz's Musicians Supply Music For Annual Shindig; Attendance Prizes Are Given.

About a hundred couples attended the annual Lettermen's Dance held last Saturday in room 170 from 9 to 11:30 o'clock. The dance was in celebration of the opening of the 1939 basketball season, the first game of which was won by the Archers at Kendallville.

Music for the dance was presented by a former Archer letterman, Freddy Lenz. Freddy and some of his musicians are graduates of South Side. Attendance prizes were presented to Joe Loe, Marjorie Quackenbush, Roger Neff and others. The prizes were given towards the end of the evening's dancing.

No special theme was made for the dance, celebration of the beginning of the net season being enough to cause all patrons of the dance to be in a jovial mood.

Dear G. A. A. Gazette,
Attention Fellow G. A. A.'ers!!
It seems our prominent senior vice-president, Betty Showalter, has been keeping a secret from us about her nick-name. Ask her about it girls, and don't be surprised if she doesn't tell you.

—Some One That Knows.

We are sorry that Frieda Schubert hurt her knee and could not play volleyball Friday night. The team missed her and is hoping she will be able to play next week.

Who is that senior G. A. A.'er that wears that pretty red suit every Friday night??? She says she dazzles the other team so that they can't play well; and so her team wins. Her name might be Velma Connett.

Don't forget to sign up for the swimming meet to be held Saturday, December 10 at the Y. W. C. A. It's a good way to earn points, girls.

There are still some girls who haven't signed up for the Lettergirls' Potluck. No one wants to miss this; so please sign your "John Henry" on the dotted line and come.

Some girls were able to get a few skating points last week-end. They were really on their toes to know the ice was frozen. They are that much ahead of the rest of us.

We wonder if Coach Bill Moss could find his bloomers the other night. He said he would play volleyball as soon as "he went in and got into his bloomers", but he didn't return. We wish he would explain some time.

Badminton is coming along real well, lately. There are twelve leaders who teach the other girls how to play, and forty-one players. It is a lot of fun, girls, so come on out and play with us.

Archer Lettergirls Will Stage Event

Annual Play Day Will Be Held By Girl Athletes; Central, North Side Will Be Guests

Tomorrow evening the Lettergirls of South Side will be hostesses at the annual Play Day to the Lettergirls of North Side and Central High Schools. Activities will begin at 3:30 o'clock with various games, including shuffleboard, ping pong, volleyball, basketball, ring tennis, and badminton. Social dancing will be enjoyed.

Girls will be divided into groups named in accordance with the Christmas season. After the games, a potluck will be featured followed by more fun. Each group of Lettergirls has planned a stunt which they will present. The nature of these stunts is quite a secret. The entertainment will end at 7:30 o'clock.

The committees that have planned for the Play Day are as follows: food, Evelyn Kruse, Jane Rison, Marcella Brackmann, Dorothy Lou Braun, and Brackmann; decorations, Betty Showalter and Donna Dennis; door, Hazel Perry, Betty Showalter, Margery Price, Audrey Hall, Geneva Martin, and Thomsie Hall; games, Betty Bolyard, assisted by the student leaders; stunts, Frieda Schubert, Marjorie Stratton, Marjorie Schelpier, and Velma Connett; name cards, Gwendolyn Roberts and Dorothy Bloemker; equipment, Jeanne Smith and Nancy Valton.

Those Lettergirls from South Side who have signed are Velma Lehman, Hazel Perry, Gwen Roberts, Frieda Schubert, Evelyn Kruse, Eltheda Koch, Marcella Brackmann, Dorothy Lou Braun, Marjorie Schelpier, Dorothy Bloemker, Betty Showalter, Donna Dennis, Marjorie Stratton, Nancy Valton, Dorothy Ringenberg, and Beth Ellen Chadwick.

Thanksgiving Morn Becomes Birthday Of Athletic Aspirant

On Thanksgiving day of 1921, a very happy event occurred to make the day one of particular significance to Mr. and Mrs. William Carrier of 3324 Euclid Avenue, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Wilma, a nice Thanksgiving name, was on Thanksgiving day of 1938 a senior B in South Side.

Entering from James H. Smart, Wilma is now spending her time in as well as out of school on the Commercial course. It is fortunate for her that the state law requires every student to take a course in government, for after due consideration, Wilma chooses this as her favorite subject. When asked to name her favorite teacher as well, she says that she likes every one of them but favors Mary Crowe just a little more than any other.

To go back to California next summer, it being her only chance before engaging in an occupation, to see all the movie stars that she missed last summer, Ned Sparks and Joan Davis in particular, is Wilma's ambition. She would like to get a position and have her life end like all happy fairy stories—"and they lived happily ever after!"

Has Sense of Humor
The fact that she has a very outstanding sense of humor is evident in her choice of radio programs—namely, Jack Benny and Good News of 1939. She is also partial to Lux Radio Theatre and Kay Kayser.

Wilma's selection of movie stars is none other than that prominent couple of Hollywood fame, Bob Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck. She wouldn't miss a movie in which Mickey Rooney was appearing either, by the way.

Some one must have been bothering Wilma recently by calling her on the telephone and refusing to admit his identity. Whoever it may be, here's a warning if she finds out who it is—this particular trick is her pet peeve. Her most embarrassing moment seemed to occur on a certain scavenger hunt, but she flatly refuses to give any information other than it was something most drastic. It must have been worth seeing.

On the subject of eating, it was not difficult to discover that her favorite foods are hamburgers, sundaes, and coca cola. A very wise choice as far as good food is concerned, we'd say.

Has Appendicitis Attack
Wilma has her numerals, of course, and would have had her letter before this if it hadn't been for an unfortunate attack of appendicitis that landed her in the hospital and kept her out of most of the sports last year. However, she has been working hard this season, and she hopes to get her letter by June at least. Before her streak of bad luck, Wilma participated in hockey, speedball, basketball, tumbling (very good too), and volleyball. She chooses basketball as her favorite sport because of the amount of action afforded in every single game. Her opinion of G. A. A. as a whole is that "it's swell, and I advise every freshman to be sure to make it one of her early selections, as far as school clubs are concerned."

Other clubs in which she is outstanding are Marionette, Times, Totem, and 1500. She expresses the hope that South Side will go to state this year and she is planning to attend every game possible. Of course, as we would expect, her favorite colors are green and white.

Volleyball Games Near Completion

G.A.A. Senior Team Wins From Sophomore Is In Tough Clash, Junior 3 Is Victor Over 1.

The upperclassman G. A. A. volleyball season which is nearing completion, found many girls out Friday night to bring victory to their teams. Up to this time, sophomores 1 and the senior team each had 3 wins to their credit, and hadn't played each other. So the game between these two promised some tough competition, and turned out to be the outstanding game of the evening.

On the north court at 3:30 o'clock, these two met in an exciting game which gave the winning lead to Hazel Perry's senior team by the score of 26-16. Jean Smith's sophomore team played hard and fast until the finish. Those seniors who contributed very much for their team are Margery Price, Gwen Roberts, Donna Dennis, and Betty Showalter. The high point scorers of the losing team were the captain, Jean Smith, Justice Coudret, and Mary Alice Dunten.

At 3:30 o'clock on the south court, Marjorie Morrison's junior 3 team defeated Hertha Hoffman's junior 1 team by the score of 12-7. Two tough looking lads on this Cat squad who you want to watch are Reynolds and Taylor. Both boys are dead shots when it comes to scoring field goals. However, speaking about tough middleweights, another squad that looks like they're going to give their opponents a run for their money is the Flashers who, having lost their first game, immediately had a joyous comeback by winning their second game.

The high point man on the Flasher squad was John Davenport. In the lightweight division the tough team will be the Fobs with Triple Threat Tom Brower. The Fobs won their first game by a double lead over the Tigers, 16-8, with Tom Brower scoring six of their points. Another determined lightweight team is the Loopers who, having won their first game, are determined to win them all. The first victim of the Loopers was the Apples, defeated by a small margin of 10-8. The high point man on the Loopers was Tom Young, who scored four points. We can assure all you intramural followers that when the Loopers and the Fobs get together for a playoff you're going to see a mighty wild game with plenty of thrills, chills, and action.

Also at 4 o'clock on the south court an exciting and close game was played between sophomore 2 and 3. Sophomore 3 team, captained by Elaine Ferguson won over Betty Thiele's sophomore 2 team by the score of 27-25. The high point scorers for the winning team were Marilyn Wolf and Helen Fry, and on the losing team, Lois Campbell.

Intramurally Speaking

I suppose everyone is happy about the whole thing when they recall the playing which our team did at Kendallville last week. Since that game was our first game of the season, the results of that contest will determine in a way the success of our team this year. As the age old proverb goes, a good start always helps to push one forward toward a good finish. If this proverb is true at all it looks as if our crack basketball team is headed toward another state crown for the year 1939.

Even though varsity basketball gives us all a thrill, we do have lots of fun in intramural basketball too. In the heavyweight division it looks like the Rug-Cutters are going to be a mighty tough team to beat this year with the help of that crack intramural star, Milo Chasey, who received the honor of scoring eleven of their fifteen points in the Rug-Cutters' first match with the B.B.D.'s.

In the middleweight division the Cats looked mighty tough when they rounced the Boys, defeating them by the grand score of 12-7. Two tough looking lads on this Cat squad who you want to watch are Reynolds and Taylor. Both boys are dead shots when it comes to scoring field goals. However, speaking about tough middleweights, another squad that looks like they're going to give their opponents a run for their money is the Flashers who, having lost their first game, immediately had a joyous comeback by winning their second game.

G.A.A. Will Stage Swimming Meet

Annual Fete To Be Held On December 10 At Y.W.C.A.; Girls Should Sign In Gym Office

The G.A.A. annual swimming meet will be held Saturday, December 10, at the Y.W.C.A. All entrants must sign up in the gym office for at least three events and may not enter any more than five.

The possible events for participation are in two divisions, time and form. Under time are the 40 yard free style, 40 yard back, 40 yard breast, and 100 yard free. Form events include 40 yard crawl, 40 yard plain back, 40 yard side, and 40 yard breast. Diving and swimming under water contests for distance will also be held.

Everyone must have had a medical examination from a special physician at the Y.W.C.A.

So far, the following girls have signed up: Jean Ewing, Dorothy Cooper, Mary Alice Dunten, Justice Coudret, Frieda Schubert, Betty Marquardt, and Marilyn Condes.

Points will be awarded on the same system that is used in track meets. One hundred points will be awarded to the girls who receive five meet points; 75 points for winning three or more meet points; 50 G.A.A. points for obtaining one meet point and 25 points for all who enter but do not place.

In the lightweight division the tough team will be the Fobs with Triple Threat Tom Brower. The Fobs won their first game by a double lead over the Tigers, 16-8, with Tom Brower scoring six of their points. Another determined lightweight team is the Loopers who, having won their first game, are determined to win them all. Freshman Teams 1, 2 Win Volleyball Games

In the fourth set of games of the freshmen volleyball tournament, the following teams won: Betty Hargan's team 2 and Martha Scheele's team 1. In the first game team 1 defeated team 4 by the score of 39-31. Helping with the scoring for the winners were Clara Makey and Mary Scheele. The scoring for the losers was done by Myrtle Ernst and Betty Bligh.

The second game was won by team 2 from team 3 by the score of 57-17. Most of the scoring for the winning team was done by Lenora Moyer, Betty Hargan, Sylvia Sholty, and Dorothy Snively. Scoring the majority of the 17 points for the losers were Gloria Orr and Peggy Berning. The umpires for the games were Frances Nash and Justice Coudret. The scorer was Eva Jean Wylie.

Kelly Klads Will Engage Two Teams During Week-End

Squad To Play Connersville, Bluffton Fives

Friday, Saturday Evenings
Archers Will Be On Road;
Face Strong Opponents.

Green Is Favored To Be Victorious

Possibility Great For Wells
County Netters To Upset
South Siders In Fray.

South Side's state championship basketball team will sink deeper into its season's schedule this week end. On Friday night the Green will travel to Bluffton seeking their second win of the year. This game will be followed by a South Side-Connersville clash in the Connersville gym on the following night.

The Green and White, fresh from their 46-35 victory over Kendallville, should win in their game with Bluffton in an easy fashion. However, it will no doubt be a struggle when the Archers encounter Connersville. Bluffton's Tigers are better than average this year and do stand an outside chance of pulling that ole' upset out of the bag. Coach Friddle will probably take quite a large squad to the Wells County seat to give the reserves some valuable experience. Last year the Archers defeated the Tigers by a 30-20 score. Since that time, however, Archer fans saw the Tigers in action in last season's regional tournament.

Archers Tackle Connersville

Saturday night the Archers will play at Connersville and stand to suffer their first loss of the season. The Green, however, will be favored to come out on top and if everything goes well in the meantime, should win their third straight game. Connersville recently showed their strength as they beat a supposedly tough Greencastle team by 13 points. This game will be the first major test of the strength of the state champs.

True to pre-season predictions the Archers were an offensive ball club in their debut last week against Kendallville. Defensively weak, however, the Archer defense was tapped for 35 points. Coach Friddle will work the squad on defense exclusively in preparation for the games this week end.

Bolyard Leads Scoring

Offensively, however, the state champs were right at home in their appointed state crown. Led by Bob Bolyard, who scored 14 points, the Archers' victory was never in doubt. Bolyard led the team to a score of six field goals and 13 points. The best performance on the offense in the opinions of many was made by Carl Hall. Carl has not lost his shooting eye and when he pushed through four fielders from well out on the court a distinct groan could be heard.

Many Archer fans intend to take in the Bluffton game Friday which will no doubt attract a capacity crowd. Coach Friddle will in all probability start Bolyard and Hall at forwards; Glass at center; Beery and Hire at guards.

North Side, Irish Race For Crown

Redskins, Purple Still Remain
In City Crown Competition;
Both Teams Are Undeclared.

North Side and Central Catholic still remain in the race for the city crown. Central Catholic remaining undefeated in a 48-26 clash with Peru. In a very close ball game the Redskins of North Side succeeded in defeating the Central Tigers 32-26 last Friday night in the first city series clash of the season. The game turned into the kind of a battle usually seen when two Fort Wayne teams lock horns.

Teams Show Improvement

In the closing minutes of the game Central was leading by the score of 25-26. However, Young and Erwin brought their team from behind, Young scoring 5 points and Erwin 2. Young, Erwin, and Cowan proved to be the spark plug of the team, scoring nineteen points between them. Both teams showed decided improvement in the brand of ball played.

The score was tied at the end of the first quarter at seven points. Central took the lead during the second quarter and was ahead at the end of the half by the score of 14-11. However, the lead changed again at the end of the third quarter North Side was again in the lead 23-22. In a rally started by Young and kept sparked on by Cowan and Erwin the Redskins drew ahead and managed to hang on until the final gun went off. Central put up a gallant fight against a slightly favored team. Kulesza was the leader of the Tigers, playing an outstanding game and scoring six points for the Centralites.

Irish Defeat Peru
Stanzak led the Irish of Central Catholic to their third straight win, drubbing Peru 48-26.

Jim Boedeker followed close on Stanzak's heels with eleven points for the Irish.

The Purple presented an air-tight defense which the Peru team had much difficulty in penetrating. Scoring consistently Stanzak kept the game pretty much broken up with his under the basket shots. The purple were in the lead all of the way and were never in danger of being headed.

By this win Central Catholic has definitely established itself as one of the up and coming teams of the city.

Kitzmiller Coaches Reserve Basketball Squads This Year

Harold "Toothless" Kitzmiller, star member of our last year's state champs, is now serving in the capacity of reserve basketball coach. Kitz also helps Burl Friddle coach the varsity squad by giving the boys a few points that he learned during last year's basketball season.

While Harold was active in sports here, he was outstanding in football, basketball, and track. Last year's champs undoubtedly would not have won the state title if it wasn't for Kitz, who made points when they counted most. For example, he made four points in the game with Muncie last year after they had tied the score with but one and one-half minutes to the end of the game.

When he was asked about the reserves he is coaching, he replied, "The boys are still green; but with a few more games, they should develop into one of the best reserve teams in the state."

Kitz, who is modest and seldom talks about himself, was given honorable mention on the All-City Football team of 1937. He was one of the fastest men in the low hurdles here and was placed on the second string All-City Basketball team last year.

Harold's two ambitions are, first, to go to Purdue where he is going to take up the coaching profession, and second, to be as successful a coach as our own Burl Friddle.

Who knows? Maybe Kitz will be turning out champion basketball teams for his dear old Alma Mater.

Sportlights

Back in the football spotlight, after a year's lapse, the middle west placed five men on the Associated Press All-America first team while the east placed two, the southwest two, and the south and west each one. Two of last year's All-Americans, Marshall Goldberg of Pittsburgh and Jerome Holland of Cornell, are on the first team again this year. This year's team is made up of Jerome Holland, Cornell, and Roland Young, Oklahoma, ends; Joe Beiner, Notre Dame, and Al Wolf, Santa Clara, tackles; Ralph Heikinen, Michigan, and Ed Bock, Iowa State, guards; Ki Aldrich, Texas Christian, center; Davey O'Brien, Texas Christian, quarterback; Parker Hall, Mississippi, and John Pingie, Michigan State, halfbacks; and Marshall Goldberg, Pittsburgh, full-back.

Of the three major undefeated football teams that saw action in the final week of the regular season, two kept their records intact. These two were Tennessee and Oklahoma, who will meet in the annual Orange Bowl game January 2. The other of the three, Notre Dame, was beaten by Southern California 13-0 at the end of one of the most successful seasons for the Irish since the days of Rockne.

So football's annual parade has passed, all except the usual post-season games which will bring together Southern California and Duke in the Rose Bowl, Texas Christian and Carnegie Tech in the Sugar Bowl, Texas Tech and Villanova in the Cotton Bowl, and, as we said, Tennessee and Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

The finalists of last year's state basketball tournament both turned in impressive victories as they launched their 1938 campaigns. South Side, the defending champs, opened with a smashing 36-35 victory over Kendallville, which is considered one of the strong teams of the northeastern part of the state, and the Hammond Wildcats crushed Horace Mann of Gary 34-18, in a western division battle. Both South Side and Hammond showed a need for polish on defense but looked mighty good.

It looks as though the Archers are going to have a tough game next Saturday when they meet a surprising Connersville quintet who last week upset a favored Greencastle team 39-22.

Green Netters Defeat Comets In First Game

Archers Chalk Up Win Over
Kendallville In First Net
Game; Score Is 46-35.

A powerful net five from South Side turned on the heat last Friday night to overpower a game but out-classed Kendallville squad. The Archers were impressive in their first start on their tough 1938-39 schedule. The state champs were strictly an offensive ball team rolling up a total of 46 points while allowing the Comets to gather 35.

Archer fans were given additional hope for the season's success when Carl Hall, returning to the Green and White lineup after a year's absence, looked as good as ever, dumping in four field goals with that same uncanny accuracy with which he won the city scoring race of two seasons ago. Jim Glass played the most consistent game for the Archers, working fine with Hall and scoring 13 points.

Archers Take Lead

The Archers grabbed an early lead as the game opened and from that point were never headed. Carl Hall dumped in the opening fielder, and Jim Glass added a foul throw. The Archer offense functioned smoothly throughout the period, and the Green held a 13-10 lead at the end of the first quarter. Continuing to play championship ball the Archers at halftime had increased their lead to 25-16. Bob Bolyard, who hit five free throws in the first half, sparked the second half attack hitting four fielders. Three times the flashy Archer forward stole the oval from a bewildered Comet and dribbled the length of the floor to score.

The Kendallville offense was led and practically monopolized by Bud Smith, whose nine fielders and one foul toss captured for him individual scoring honors for the evening. Smith scored his fielders off of all three Archers who guarded him, Bolyard, Beery, and Hall. The Archers did a fine job of holding Misselhorn, high scoring Comet forward who last year was recipient of N. E. I. C. individual scoring honors.

Subs Look Good

The game as a whole was a rather rough affair with each team losing two men by fouls. Because of this, three Archer subs saw action and incidentally gave a fine account of themselves. LeRoy Cook, fresh from the gridiron, got six points and also looked good on defense. The others, Ralph Hamilton, brother of the one and only Dale Hamilton, and Bob Hines, whose big brother is no one else than Johnny Hines, performed well in their first roles as varsity material.

Inaccuracy at the foul line was a major reason for Kendallville's defeat. The Comets took a total of 21 free throws to score only 7. Meanwhile, the Archers were canning 12 out of their 22 attempts. Each team was charged with 15 personal fouls. Glass and Hire of the Archers and Hornett of the Comets, leaving the game in the final period.

Louis A. Briner Is Popular Originator Of Intramural Work

One of the best known persons in this school is Mr. Louis Briner, physical education instructor of South Side. He teaches more people, boys to be sure, than does any other person a year.

Louie, as he is called by most of his friends, and he has plenty, is a native Hoosier for the simple reason that he wanted to be. (Incidentally he was born in Garrett, Indiana.) He also attended the state university at Bloomington, and it was there that his idea to become a physical education instructor did bloom indeed, for in his second year, yes, he got that far, he decided on what he wanted to be after graduation. And he got that far too.

He became a member of South Side's faculty in the days before the depression, 1928. A year later he started the present intramural program that is so popular with students. As proof of the worth of this extra-curricular activity you have only to look at the many boys signed up for the various sports, basketball, handball, wrestling, and others.

But, back to college we go, because Louie was a guard on Indiana's varsity football team. He also plans to go back there to do more work sometime. Maybe you think he knows enough already, but Louie says that people should always try to get ahead of their present position.

He does no coaching of any subject, except in conjunction with the regular intramural program. However, he does engage in refereeing quite extensively. This last football season Louie handled ten football contests, and he expects to handle nearly thirty basketball games. This work enables him to keep up to the minute on rule changes and new methods of play, which he in turn hands to his intramural proteges.

Mr. Briner estimated that he has had around 11,000 boys in his gym classes during his ten years at South Side, and let me tell you that very few teachers ever have that many students over such a small period of years.

All in all, it will be with sincere regret that this school will celebrate the departure of Louie, but there's plenty of time to think of that.

Week End Marks Several Ball Tilts

Tigers To Meet Eagles, Comets;
Redskins To Engage Decatur,
Peru Five; C. C., Portland.

Basketball fans of Fort Wayne will have only two chances this week-end to see the Summit City quintets in action.

Central will engage Columbia City next Friday night at the latter's gym. The victory hungry Tigers will seek their first victory of the season and should have little trouble with the Eagles. The following night, however, the Tigers run into plenty of trouble in the form of a strong Kendallville five. This game should be a thriller with the Comets probably coming out on top. This tilt is an N. E. I. C. game and counts in the standings.

North Side, riding the crest of a three game winning streak, should make it four in a row against Decatur tomorrow night at Decatur. The contest counts in the N. E. I. C. for the Jackets, but it does not count for the Redskins. Saturday night will find the Peru Tigers appearing at the Redskin gym for a game with North Side. The Tigers have a scrappy ball club and they will give North Side a battle.

Central Catholic will also play Saturday night when they take on Portland at the Central gymnasium. The Irish with a very strong quintet this season should get by Portland with plenty to spare.

Besides the South Side games, the only other game to be played over the week end is Concordia High School's game with St. Joseph High School at the latter's gym. The Cadets will run into trouble Saturday night and they will have to be at their best to turn in a win.

Bob Jameison Scores In Junior Bi-Weeklies

The Junior Rifle team shot a total score of 432 in the bi-weekly targets of November 29. Following are the names and the scores of the first five: Bob Jameison 91, Bob Buchman 89, Fred Pugh 88, Howard Stillwell 84, and Byron Plumbley 80. The scores and the names of the second five are William Bond 75, Dick Trott 74, Thomas Young 72, Norman Karboch 71, and Phillip Schwartz 57.

Monday, December 5, the Junior Rifle Club was represented by a team of eight members. The team consisted of Bob Jameison, Fred Pugh, Bob Buchman, Howard Stillwell, Byron Plumbley, Bob Showalter, Calvin Rose, and John Craig. This team met at the Armory at 7 o'clock and shot a match in competition with another junior rifle team.

P. T. A. Hears Senior Group In Discussion

Direct Force Against Late Hours After Social Dance Reach No Decision As Yet

"What is going to be done about students staying out until two or three o'clock in the morning?" was the question which parents and teachers were trying to answer at the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association held Monday, December 5, in room 114.

This discussion was started by seven seniors discussing the problems of the average high school student. Miss Martha Pittenger led the panel discussion by asking the students to express their opinions on several questions. The question which the parents discussed afterwards was students staying out too late. A motion was made to do something about it, but no one was anxious to attempt it alone. A letter was read by the secretary, Mrs. Arthur W. Parry, which was received from Rev. Paul Krauss urging that something be done to stop dances from starting at a late hour and students' arriving home at a late hour.

Mr. A. Verne Flint said that it was an individual affair and the students should come to an agreement with their parents upon an hour that they should be home. Mr. R. Nelson Snider said that no parent would take his child home in the middle of a dance and embarrass him in front of his friends.

Mrs. John Bostick, president, stated that this issue was before the group last year, and then she saw several orchestra leaders, finding that they did not desire the hour intermission between twelve and one o'clock. The leaders said that they would rather play straight through. The parents and students likewise did not desire this intermission.

The motion to do something about ending late hours was passed unopposed.

Mr. Snider then made a motion that a committee be appointed. The motion was carried and volunteers signed to help on the committee to see business men of this city and ask their aid in getting restaurants and other places to start the dances at an earlier hour.

The students who spoke on this subject expressed the opinion that they would rather have the dances start earlier and end earlier. Others thought that some parents were to blame, also themselves. They felt that the parents should be an example to their children.

Other questions discussed were "How much should a boy spend on a girl?" "What is a good time?" "What kind of friends should you choose?" "How can we co-operate with our family?" "What do you think about choosing a vocation?" and "What responsibility should a student have?"

Max Spencer divided the expenses he would spend on a girl into two divisions: The theater party and the formal dance, putting forth the cost of each.

Jon Bex defined a good time as a time indulged in purity that will not be regretted later. "When our parents were young, they had a good time entertaining themselves, and now the students go to the theater and are entertained instead of entertaining the many new games."

It was generally agreed that friends should be liked by everyone and they should be someone that you would be proud to be seen with in public.

It was stated that our families are not getting as much attention as they should and the gap between the parents and the children is growing wider. To remedy this, a hobby was suggested for the members of the family, or a theater party, or the whole family going to a party together, or even staying home together and spending an evening playing one of the many new games.

Phyllis Geller said that responsibility in the home of the student should be light.

Doctor Werner W. Duemling gave a talk following the singing of the Glee Club at the beginning of the discussion. Doctor Duemling told of the tuberculosis test to be given soon to the students. He said that the parents would be asked permission to give the tests.

Public Speaking Group Attends morn; one had to meet his hosts or hostesses and talk over the days' events, dormitory sleeping quarters made the latter a convenience and a pleasure.

Ambitious members of the expedition rose several hours later, scrambled over the Union Building for breakfast, and proceeded to take another pleasant campus tour in the rain. But this time it was possible to see the inside of the building, and a very interesting, but damp morning, was passed by all who had joined the tour.

A round table discussion, to which attendance was optional, was held at 10:30 o'clock following the tour. A forum of Archers in the lounge of the Union Building at about 10:30 o'clock bombarded Holden Rupnow and Kenny Carbaugh, formerly of South Side, now of Purdue, with questions. The meeting was adjourned when Mr. Carbaugh "went to war," and Mr. Rupnow, accompanied by several South Siders, went to bowl.

Lunch and home! But you should have seen our yellow ribbon badge that we wore... Jim Murphy on the morning campus tour with rain dripping off his water-soaked hat onto his nose... Fred King on Friday night when he preferred hitting a streetcar to a truck (no damage done)... the look of consternation on the faces of the girls in the girls' dorm when Dorothy Rohrbach revealed that she had recently been exposed to the mumps... Carl Goebel when he got stuck in the mud on the way home.

The end of two perfect days in spite of the rain!!!!

Two Lead Solicitors

The ad solicitors were headed last week by John Bostick and Martha Jane Krauskopf, who tied for twenty inches each. Jessie Freeman was next with thirteen and was closely followed by Shirley Rubin who had ten. June Enoch obtained five, Wayne Hambrook four, and Erma Jackson two.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

Mr. Chappell's period 4 class is completing tracings of house plans and making blue prints. When the blue prints are finished, detail drawings of different units in the house will be made.

In Miss Osborne's English 3 classes the best grades in a recent test were made by Clifford Gunn, Justine Coudret, Jane Cocks, Max Stobaugh, Paul Ream, Frances Gross, Arthur Longworth, Louise Buesking, Robert Kite, Howard Schmidt, Dorothy Perry, and Mary Brandyberry.

In Mr. Furst's home room, two committees for Christmas activities have been chosen. The officers for the Christmas program are Don Meyer, chairman with Harold Martin and Paul Keil to help; and for the Christmas basket, LaVerne Nolan, chairman. Alice Jean Light and Lois Likins will assist her.

Mr. Mill's introduction to business classes are learning to record buying and selling transactions. His advance classes are studying banking.

In a recent test in Mr. Heine's biology 1 class, period 7, Dorothy Bessip, Sally Hobbs, P. Schwartz, Richard Markowitz, Ruth Hageman, and Patricia Burns made the highest grades.

Ruth Ellison, Velma Lehman, and Donna Lou Foutz compose a committee working on plans for a program for Miss Emma Kiefer's third period senior English class. The plan is to select famous English and American poems that have been set to music and then have the class sing them, with musical accompaniment. The idea grew out of the reading of Ben Johnson's "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

Mary Bowlby, June Flaig, Marjorie Gerding, Frank DuWalt, Laverne Michelfelder, and Hilda Schubert received A on a final test over the Merchant of Venice, which was given by Miss Demaree.

Miss VanGorder's home room sent a present to Edman Bauer, who has been out of school because of an emergency operation for appendicitis. The gift was a book.

In Mr. Clyde Pierce's U. S. history 2 classes, the students are conducting a very intensive study of the Far West.

The students in Miss Peck's English 6, period 1 class have finished their reports on drama. The minimum of required outside reading was twelve one-act plays. Those who doubled this amount were: Jean Forbride, 27; Bruce Bradbury, 39; John Schlatter, 29; while Emilou Allendorph, Fritz Lohman, Joan Gunter, and Ronald McVay had 26.

Home room 32 has lost three of its members. Howard Schremser plans to join the navy, Sadonna Neith was married, and Mary Sapp left because of ill health.

Miss Pocock's English 3 classes have begun introducing Essays.

Thirty Pupils Show Interest In Allied Youth Organization

Mr. W. Roy Breg, executive of Allied Youth, aroused much interest by his talk over the public address system last Thursday morning. Approximately thirty students went to Room 114 after school to learn more about forming an organization to lead a drive against young people indulging in alcoholic beverages.

Asset of Club Explained

Mr. Breg explained that the purpose of such an organization is to let young people gain facts through their own investigation and see how many young people ruin their lives. Such an organization is a real asset to the modern youth. Some students join such a club, because they come from a home where alcoholic beverages are served; and they see that there is a better way to live.

To organize such a club a committee must be selected to circulate a petition for charter. After this circulation, if there are enough pupils interested, the club may be organized. A yearly dues is collected and in return the members receive a monthly magazine, "The Allied Youth." Many of these high school organizations exist all over the United States. One high school organizes such a club and encourages other schools to do likewise.

The Woman's Club has already stated that this organization, if formed, is welcome to use their headquarters to hold affairs. The club would have outside branches for young people who have graduated from high school.

Reasons for Drinking

Mr. Breg in his speech over the public address system, gave many interesting and startling facts concerning the great problem of young students and their indulging in alcohol. The chief reasons for youthful drinking is to keep up with the crowd. Most young people drink because they are influenced by other young people who drink. When enough of the young people who set the pace find period 2 class, Mildred Hanke and Fay Gumpner made the highest grades on a recent test, making 96 and 95 respectively.

An achievement test was given in all of Mr. Furst's law classes. The following students received 95 or above: Virginia Selby, 98; Maxine Hudson, Lavon Schnepf, Virginia Sites, Caroline Schueler, 97; Lois Jarvis, 96; Robert Simon, Shirley Side, and Virgil Guebard, 95.

In Mr. Paul Sidel's general mathematics 1 classes, the students are working on the construction of perpendiculars, bisecting lines, and bisecting angles.

Mr. Clyde Pierce's occupations classes are getting ready to write their career books. They will study their specific occupation very thoroughly. Mr. Pierce is going to try to have the students study this more thoroughly than ever before.

The students of Miss Osborne's English classes who have completed their outside reading for this semester are Doris Bercot, Fred Bill, Jane Cocks, Justine Coudret, Wayne Ludwig, Frances Nash, Paul Ream, Morris Sprinkle, Harold Hallenberg, Betty Mann, Louise Buesking.

Jack Bush, one of Miss Magley's former English students, has moved to West Lafayette, where he is now attending school.

In Miss Dean's home room last week, Shirley Rubin conducted an interesting contest called "What's My Name?"

The following pupils in Miss Rinehart's English 4, period 7 class made A on a test over the first part of Clive: Violet Steinbauer, Martha Jean Thomas, Marjorie Sheldon, Ed Meyer, and Josephine Frosh.

The pupils in Mrs. Carson's Latin 4, period 2 class have finished Book I of Julius Caesar and are writing interesting summaries of the War with the Helvetians.

In Miss Pocock's English 3 class, Bob Dahman gave a report on Tennyson as a poet. Kenneth Simmons on other great writers of the Victorian period, and Kenneth Place on Idylls as a form of literature.

The classes of Mr. Moss have been giving special reports on the early kings of the Middle Ages.

In a recent test given by Miss Osborne to her English 1 class the following pupils received grades above 90: Gladys Geaves, Leonora Mayer, Margaret Kienzie, Hene Franke, Betty Doehla, Janet Whetsel, and Carol Westendorf.

Mr. Gould's Botany 1 classes are trying an experiment in the Botany laboratory, demonstrating soilless plant culture.

On Friday, December 2, Miss Virginia Kincaide, '34, substituted for Mrs. Dorothy Rieke. Miss Kincaide was graduated from Earlham College and is licensed to teach public speaking.

On a test which Miss DeLancey recently gave to the students in her English 7 classes, the following made 90 or above: Eileen Byer, Margaret Holt, John Anderson, Wilma Carrier, Imogene Fabian, Ora Marlowe, Laura Reed, Mary Lou Sanders, Earl Werner, and Helen Wiehe.

The X division of Miss Demaree's English 7 classes are now studying Macbeth.

Miss Smeltz announced that the So-Si-Y Club has prepared two suitcases for two girls in Spain. This is a part of the club's World Friendship project.

Archer Champions Demonstrate Rules At Net Pep Session

"Rah! Rah! South Side!" These and many other rousing cheers opened our first basketball pep session. After the first big opening cheer, which included the school song, Allison Arnold gave a hearty invitation to the students to attend the Lettermen's dance.

Then came the big moment. Mr. Burl Friddle and the 1938 State Basketball Champs came out on our floor! The applause and cheers were deafening. The students went wild over the sight of the state heroes. After the noise had died down, Mr. Friddle explained some of the new basketball rules. The team members, first and second, had a game among themselves to demonstrate the rules. This sham battle caused great excitement among the students. They yelled and clapped as though the team were battling in the state finals. Need we say, the first team won?

Although we lost many of our good players, the team is still powerful. For we have James Glass, Don Hire, Bob Bolyard, Carl Hall, and Don Beery.

Some of the rules follow: the ball cannot be held more than three seconds on the foul line, players cannot pass the ball from one court to another and back to the former court after he has gone over the line, no substitution can be made immediately after a basket has been made, when a player takes the ball out of bounds the other players must stay six feet away. From now on, people will probably be scolding the referee for cheating when the real mixup lies in the change of rules.

After this thrilling game, there were more cheers. If the team did not lose its natural modesty (?) it was not our fault.

More cheers! Our throats were dry, our hands were wet, but still we cheered on and on. "Fifteen for the team!" the cheer leaders cried. "Gazella!" we yelled as the last glorious yell died, our dear old school song was played again. It was a grand send-off for a grand team! The team must have been proud to think all that cheering was for them, and them alone.

Two Boys Get Credit At Airplane Meeting

Henry Velfok is credited for having an airplane aloft the longest period of time it was announced at the last meeting of the Airplane Club. Roger Hady is credited for bringing the greatest variety of models to the meetings.

The boys receive points by attending the meetings and for constructing airplanes. Extra points are given for neat workmanship in the construction and painting of the models. They may also receive points for flying their models. The points are awarded according to the length of time the airplane stays aloft.

Two hundred points are required to receive a letter. The letter is six inches in length. In the middle of the letter is a gold emblem with a woven letter "A." It is white with a green border.

U. S. A. Will Choose Club Heads At Meet

Initiation and election of officers will be the main part of the U. S. A.'s meeting this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Greeley Room.

All the girls who have entered the club at the beginning of the semester are the ones who will be initiated. The officers for next semester will be chosen from the girls who have been there at least two semesters.

Helen Fry will be in charge of the entertainment.

A. L. Noffinger Talks On Driver Education

Mr. A. L. Noffinger was the speaker over the loud speaker system last Monday. Mr. Noffinger is the Educational Consul for the American Automobile Association and is well-known in the field of safety education.

The speaker's subject was "Driver Education and Training" and had to do with the training to be given young drivers at the time when they are willing to learn the art of driving.

It is expected that more speakers on this same subject will be heard in the near future.

Examination Cards Should Be Returned

Students should return the physical examination cards as soon as possible whether they are filled in or not. These cards which were given out to the student body last Monday are to be filled out by the student's family physician and returned to the home room teacher.

This examination is not compulsory but it is for the best interest of the students. In former years the school doctor made the examinations but with a student body as large as ours, it is impossible for one doctor thoroughly to examine every student.

Enjoyment Is Found In Eating, Being Entertained As Romans By Students At Latin Banquet

By Gwen DeWees

If Augustus Caesar could have left his grave and visited the Greeley Room at 6 o'clock last Thursday evening, he would have felt perfectly at home; for this was the date of the Latin Club banquet. According to Roman custom, the feast was opened with an Invocation to the Gods. The Invocation, which was given by Gwen DeWees, corresponds to our present-day Grace before meals. The Gustus or appetizer was then served by slaves garbed in tunics in pastel shades. This course consisted of sardines, lettuce, deviled eggs, and salted wafers. Since the meal was eaten with the fingers, finger bowls and towels were passed at the end of the course by slaves.

"Do As Romans Do" Next came the Prima Mensa or first course, consisting of hamburgers, ground pork sandwiches, raw carrots and cauliflower, radishes, and pickled beets. The Secunda Mensa or second course was composed of sweet rolls, apples, and salted nuts. Both of these courses were also followed by the passing of the finger bowls.

The meal proper was closed with a drinking bout (an old Roman custom). Joan Cox and Gwen DeWees threw the dice to see who should preside as the Mistress of the Drinking. As the latter threw the highest number, she received the title. Before the members drank their wine (it was really grape-juice), they were given wreaths for their heads.

Roman Play Presented

The program also was representative of the kind of entertainment enjoyed by the Romans. As the flute was one of the favorite instruments of the Romans, Albert Verweire played a flute solo. A play about Augustus Caesar, called "In Caesar's Garden" was presented by Betty Daniels, William Newhard, Bruce Bradbury, and Roger McVay. Joyce Clever, Eileen Eidner, Avel Bridges, and Jane Engleking gave a Roman Water Carriers Dance. Group singing was directed by Mr. Earl Sterner. Besides teaching the old Roman song, "Gaudamus Igitur," Mr. Sterner also led some well-known English songs, which had been translated into Latin.

The food committee was headed by Rosella Koehler. With the aid of Mrs. Carson and Mrs. Welty, Rosella planned the entire menu. She also had the nerve-racking job of directing the ten slaves. Congratulations, Rosie! Her committee or slaves were Dorothy Gildea, Gene Lou Harges, Phyllis Lauer, Ione Jean Pratt, Marjorie Wright, Joan Cartwright, Joan Cox, Reba Coppock, June Flaig, and Fay Gumpner. These girls deserve a lot of credit for their co-operation.

Math Club Forwards Plans For Christmas

Junior Math Club discussed plans for the Christmas party to be held December 20 at their regular meeting last Tuesday. Those on the program committee for this feature event are Dorothy Hestip, Margaret Heine, Lee Smith, Mary Ann Florence, and Clifford Springer. Entertainment will be planned by Joan Squires, Clifford Springer, and Etheldrea Behling. After the business meeting Clifford Springer presented trick problems called Mathematical Wrinkles. Gwen-dolyn Kitzmiller directed a very amusing guessing game.

Home Room Aid
Will Be Required

Food Will Be Delivered On Friday, December 23, Under Committee Direction

Inter-Club Congress is again undertaking to bring Christmas cheer to some less fortunate families this year by means of the Christmas baskets.
The congress is conducting the drive in much the same way it did for the Thanksgiving baskets. Every home room is asked to co-operate by promising to fit out a complete basket—perishables and all. Home rooms are to collect their own money and buy their own butter, eggs and poultry, in contrast to the arrangement last year whereby congress took care of those particulars.

Each home room is requested to know if it is going to give a basket and the number of persons it can adequately provide for. The members of the name and address committee,
Evelyn Kruse, Dorothy Amstutz and Patty Lyman, will come to the home rooms to pick up this information.

Baskets will be delivered Friday afternoon, December 23, under the direction of the committee on delivery,
Carl Goebel, Gloria Staley, Velda Op-penlander, Kenneth Warren and Morton Nahrwald. Other committees include packing of the baskets, chairman, Bill Riethmiller, Roger McVay, Clayton Jensen, and Evelyn Kruse; mittee are Margaret Heine, Pauline Schoenherr, Clifford Springer, Dorothy Hespil and Mary Ann Florence.

A Christmas game in the form of a Christmas quiz will be planned by Margaret Heine and Mary Ann Florence. Other games will be planned by Pauline Schoenherr and Dorothy Hespil.

Christmas carols will be sung to the accompaniment of Margaret
Heine and Joan Squires. Etheldreda
Behling will play her accordion. Refreshments will consist of ice cream.
There will not be a gift exchange.

Youthful Substitute Enjoys Teaching English Here; Holds A. B. Degree Of Indiana U.

By Dorothy Gore

What's new in the faces of South Side's pedagogues? Well, one answer could be Miss Elizabeth Kelly's substitute. Her name?
Miss Marjorie Michaelis!

Miss Michaelis could easily be taken for just one of the Archers. She graduated this past
June from Indiana University.

When asked what she thought of South Side and its students, she said,
"I like South Side very much. The students as a whole are attentive and are eager to learn." Teaching five classes of English a day seems quite a bit different from teaching one hour class a day. Miss Michaelis said that while she was a student at Indiana, she had to teach a class a day there in Bloomington. She said, "I found this teaching very interesting. I enjoy teaching here at South Side, and I would like very much to teach high school all of the time."

Miss Michaelis has her Bachelor of Science and Education degrees and has her license to teach English, Social Science, and German. She desires to go back to school during the coming summer and study for her Master's degree.

She was graduated from St. Catharine's in 1934 and earned an Indiana University the following term.

Miss Michaelis has been substituting in this city since September, mainly teaching classes at Central High School.

Miss Elizabeth Kelley has been absent from school since November 15, because of illness. She is not expected to return to teaching this semester.
Miss Michaelis will substitute until she returns.

"I think that The South Side Times is an excellent school paper and that it contains so much information which is vitally important to every student.
I haven't been here long enough to know very much about our extra-curricular activities, although I believe that all of our clubs and school activities are very well organized."

Swimming heads her list of likes;
the radio rates a close second; cats are her main dislikes.

Pep Session To Be Tomorrow Morning

A pep session will be held tomorrow after the home room period. A short skit will be presented. Last year's yell leaders,
Dalton McAlister, Paul McConnell, Oscar Eggers, and Dick Kowalski, will lead part of the yells.

Inter-Clubbers Will Be Host For First Hop

Representative Group Is In Charge Of Post-Game To Be Held On December 17

Tickets Will Cost

Will Stage Affair In Room
170 At 9 P. M.; Former Archer To Play For Fete

Inter-Club Congress will be host at the first post-basketball game dance to be held December 17, after South Side Kelly Klads' clash with Vincentes. Miss Kiefer wishes to impress upon the members of the student body that it is not to be a formal dance and that sport clothes are in order.

This dance, which is the first in a series of four post-basketball game dances, will begin in room 170 after the game and continue till 11:30. Goy Jones' orchestra will play throughout the dance. Goy is a former South Side student and was a prominent player of the drums in the band.

One rule about these dances, set forth in a recent bulletin by Mr.
Snider, states that a minimum amount of money should be spent by the club giving the dance. Consequently, the committee on decorations, Carl Hall, Lavonia Spore, Wilma Carrier, and Clayton Jensen, are planning generally to have simple decorations of spruce boughs and red candles.

Betty Daniels, Morton Nahrwald and Eleanor Vesey, members of the committee for getting chaperones, have got the following parents to come: Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hall,
Mr. and Mrs. David Vesey, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Riethmiller and Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Nahrwald.

Don Hensch, Gloria Staley, Dorothy Amstutz and Carl Goebel, members of the committee for minor details, have charge of tickets and ticket sales. Tickets can be procured at the door only and are twenty-five cents per person. All the proceeds of this dance and of all others are to go to a fund for furnishing and for buying equipment for the club rooms.

Annual German Party Will Be December 21

The German Club's annual Christmas party will be held in the Voorhes
Room next Wednesday. A game called Musical Chairs will be played for which a prize will be given.

There will be a ten-cent gift exchange. All gifts will be placed in a container. As Santa Claus goes around with the container, each person will receive a gift.

The Christmas songs that will be sung in German at the party are "O Tannebaum" (O Christmas Tree),
"Stille Nacht" (Silent Night), and
"O Du Froehliche" (O Thou Joyful).

A gingerbread house will be given for the attendance prize. The admission is ten cents and a gift for the exchange. Those who plan to attend the party are asked to sign up in room 144.

Rooms In New Addition
Contain Separate Units

The rooms in the new addition have a different heating system. In each room there is a radiator, which operates at night. The unit heaters keep the room at a correct temperature.
The heat is turned on in the morning and is turned off in the evening. A motor runs a fan which circulates air.
If the rooms get too hot, a draft from the outside automatically opens and draws the cold air in from the outside.

'Tis The Sweetest Story Ever Told

"And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Augustus Caesar, that all the world should be taxed. And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.
And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the City of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the City of David, which is called Bethlehem. And so it was, that while they were there the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her first born Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone around about them; and they were sore afraid.

"And the angel said unto them,
"Fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all peoples. For unto you is born this day in the City of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.
And this shall be a sign unto you;
ye shall find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger."

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward man."

"And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another,

"Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us." And they came with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the Babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this Child. And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds. But Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart.

"And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen as it was told unto them."—St. Luke,
Chapter 11, 1-21.

Disaster Aid Is Organized At South Side

With Filling Out Of Cards
Today Archers Will Be
First In School Relief

This morning, during the home room period, each student will be asked to fill out a card to be filed at the Red Cross chapter headquarters.
On this card is listed twenty-six types of work which are important in efficient Red Cross disaster relief. Each student will be asked to check the two, first and second choice, for which he feels that he is best qualified.

Such things as typing, doing messenger service, operating amateur radios and entertaining children are listed.
Each particular work fits in with the functioning of one of the subcommittees of the Fort Wayne chapter of Red Cross. These committees are survey, rescue, medical aid, shelter, food, clothing, transportation, communication, registration, information, fund raising and public information.

Recent Red Cross experience over a period of ten years shows an average of eighty-two disasters a year in which it has been necessary to extend Red Cross aid. The records indicate that these disasters happen all over the country. No state or section is immune. Since the Red Cross is the chief source of relief during disaster, every Red Cross chapter should

Artist Of Assembly

Miss Emalyn Rimmel

Emalyn Rimmel, sophomore, will be the featured vocalist at the December music assembly which will be held next Tuesday. The assembly will be the music department's part of South Side's Christmas celebration.

Solicitors Obtain Names
Of Net Squad Boosters

There have been several persons obtaining names for basketball boosters. All those who wish to have their names in this section may pay a nickel to any booster solicitor or at the advertising desk in room 16. The names of those who have paid will be published next week.

Foreign Pupils To Be Guests Of Latin Club

Members Of Language Department Gather For Sing
With Theme Of Christmas

Members of the foreign language department have been invited to join Latin Club at their annual Christmas party today at 3:30 in Room 26.
The main part of the program will be devoted to the singing of Christmas carols. The Latin students will sing "Adeste Fidelis" or "O Come
All Ye Faithful," "Silens Nox" or "Silent Night," and other carols. A Latin version of "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town" will also be sung.

German students will sing "O Tannebaum" or "O Christmas Tree" and "Die Heilige Nacht" or "Silent Night." June Flaig will play several songs on the harp. She will play
"Pavane" by Wachs, "The Dance of the Blessed Spirits" from Orpheus by C. W. von Gluck, and "Country Dance" by Beethoven.

Singing will be led by Mr. Earl Sternor.

Laura Grazier, a member of Latin Club, will tell about the Saturnalia which was the Roman festival most like our Christmas; and Richard Garton, a member of the German department, will talk on Christmas customs in Germany.

education was not fooling. The board had warned our parents time and again that if something were not done financially, the schools would close."

Junior Editor Agrees
These are the facts and the situation as reported by Herbert Williamson, editor of the Lincoln Log. "Last year the Dayton Board of Education decided to go on a pay as you go basis. They decided to put an end to running the schools by borrowing funds with no assurance of our ability to produce enough money to keep the schools running; this man was believed to be a friend of the young people, The Times said.

Marvin Burick, editor of The Stiv-ers News, answers, "We are now back in school after a vacation of three weeks. Had it not been for the public pressure put on the Dayton board, we would have been out three more weeks. But the citizens of Dayton were not interested in particulars.
Debts amounting to thousands of dollars made no difference; all they cared about was getting the students back to their geometry and English.

"If the schools had not been closed, the teachers would have had to work without pay. Well, were this the first time that the teachers of Dayton had been asked to work without pay, the situation would have been different.
But they had been asked to do this too many times. It was time to show the citizens of Dayton that the board of education was not fooling. The board had warned our parents time and again that if something were not done financially, the schools would close."

Affair To Be Staged Tuesday Morning; Mr. Jack Wainwright To Conduct Fete

Program Includes Community Sing

Miss Rimmel, Sophomore,
Will Be Soloist; String
Trio To Give Selections

Mr. Jack Wainwright, head of the music department, will direct the December music assembly which will be held in the gymnasium next Tuesday.
This assembly will be on the subject of Christmas.

One of the things everyone will enjoy will be the community singing.
Everyone from the youngest to the oldest in the group will be asked to contribute his singing talent to the rendition of several Christmas carols.
The carols that will be sung and are familiar to all are as follows: "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing!," "Joy to the World," and "Jingle Bells." A few other well-known Christmas songs may be added to the list.

Besides singing by Emalyn Rimmel,
the chorus and the Girls' Glee Club will sing "The Hallelujah Chorus" and the chorus will sing "God Is My Guide."

The trio, which consists of three of South Side's musicians, will play several Christmas numbers. In the trio are Ruth Dauner, Ruth Bade and Loretta Rinearson. They will play
"Santa Claus Is Coming to Town" and a "Christmas Medley," consisting of many carols. One of the carols in the medley is "Silent Night."

Mr. Wainwright, because he has been absent for a short time, has not decided what the band or the orchestra will play.

December 21 Is Date
For Music Yule Fete

South Side's music department will again present a Christmas party, in room 170 next Wednesday in the evening. All students who are in the department are invited to attend.
Tickets will probably be on sale for ten cents.

Joan Earl, chairman, will meet with her committee and plan the entertainment. Her committee will consist of William Blake and Ruth Bade. Refreshments will be served.

Colorful Christmas Paper Embodies New Improvements Made To Archer's Domain

If you are looking for something in which to wrap your Christmas presents, you will be attracted by the gaiety of the Christmas wrapping paper which the art classes are selling this year. This year the paper is more attractive than ever before.

The paper, dedicated to the improvements around South Side, is in brilliant green and white. The colors are not only those of South Side but those of the Yule season.

The creation of the wrapping paper this year is very interesting. Every student in two rooms, 77 and 61, in the art department was asked to design a small block. The design was to be of the new features in the new building. After these blocks were completed, Miss Erma Dochterman and Miss Blanche Hutto selected the ones which would fit into an attractive pattern. The various blocks were overlapped and filled in to give rhythm and proper distribution of color. This finished sheet was then traced onto a linoleum block and then one of the most important processes began, the cutting.

Students Cut Paper
Miss Dochterman stated that the cutting, done by Dave Howell and Basil Thompson, assisted by Jack Ridings and Eloise McKee, was done especially well.

After this process of cutting, the block was taken to the School Press and the paper was printed on the new Miehle press. The paper this year is a better grade than that used in former years.

If you look closely you will see that clocks, steps, designed floors, loud speakers and new press, the Greeley Room stage, a basketball with State Champs printed on it, microphone, basketball players, the new office rooms, motion picture machine, the school itself are included in the design.

The ordinary Christmas symbols are not used but the words "Greetings, Merry Christmas, and Happy
New Year," appear on the paper.

Paper Is Tradition
The making of this Christmas paper has become a tradition here in South Side. It started in 1930 by Miss Erma Dochterman and it has been sold every year since.

failures of this semester.

Chewing Gum Stealers And Pencil Borrowers Get In Archers' Hair

Our purpose today, whether you like it or not, is to inform the students of South Side of the many really beastly things they do. One of the worst crimes committed is by persons who act as kibitzers for typers. Using a typewriter is hard enough for most of us, and even harder for some more, yet there are some persons, we'll leave names out of this, who actually make this strenuous work tougher.

When typing we try, and this is only our idea, to get away from it all. By this we mean that we go back into our portable shell and wear a scowl to keep so-called friends away from us. The reason for this is that every time we begin to type some one comes up and spouts a bright saying, and WE, because our mind is easily side-tracked, automatically type the words of the wise-cracker into our copy.

Another person on our platform for lynching is the person who takes the chewing gum from our seats in the study hall (and elsewhere, too). A theory has been advanced that maybe these people left some gum at these places also, and they want their own property back. But our gum is always gone, and so we have come to the conclusion that some one is chiseling; but WHO, we ask, who?

Other odd ones in the school are the students who are in such a genial mood when they ask us for the loan of a piece of paper, and promise to bring it back. If we were to get technical, we could argue that we hardly expect to get the same piece of paper back; but, oh well, let's not go into technicalities. These people almost never return any piece of paper, so we kick in with another nickel to the druggist for writing materials.

Yet, what gets us most is the one and only person who borrows our eraser for a short time and then uses up the entire eraser before handing it back. Pencils also are very often lost through the loan-out method. And it comes to us at this time that we, too, have just a heck of a time borrowing those little hunks of lead.

So, South Siders, remember that you should consider other people besides yourselves.

Dust Off Basketball Manners

Since the first home basketball game is just around the corner, loyal fans had better get their school spirit out of hock and dust it off for a busy season. From reports that have drifted back of the games that have been played so far, cough drops, "gargle grease," and a nerve tonic will probably be a decided asset on the morning after December 17. But our school song does say, "for you we'll gladly die"; so what's a sore throat or a nervous breakdown?

Now that that's off our chests and our iron-clad constitutions are all set for the opening of the big parade through State, the only remaining preparation is to brush up on Emily Post. Yes, we said Emily Post, and we feel all right, too. For next Saturday night, South Side will act as host to Vincennes. The main quality of a good host is his ability to make people feel at home. Surely Vincennes fans will not feel much at home if we carry on like a pack of wild hyenas. Of course we expect to support our team and fairly make the rafters ring with our yells, but we can do this without making our opponents feel like lowly worms. South Side's rooting section has just as much of a fight ahead of them as any member of the team. However, the fans will wage a moral battle against poor sportsmanship.

There has been poor response to the Christmas Seal campaign of this year. See that you are not one of these guilty persons; pay for YOUR Christmas Seals NOW.

"Merrily We Roll Along," especially at our skating parties, which is only one of the amusing events sponsored by our school clubs.

Much credit should be given to our Booster organization which is solely responsible for all decorations seen hanging at the games.

And then there was the student quickie who said it was so cold out that the hands on the clock were chapped!

Ardently Archers Anticipate Athletic Aspirants—especially on our basketball team!

Don't fail to boost your State Champs, Archers; pay your nickles now!

Who was it that said, "Bull fighters get a kick out of their work!"

Senior Synopsis

By R. U.
Graduating

Slingslams and having them slung right back at us, we return to you again hoping you kindly folk will permit us to once more partake in upperclass delving. Maybe perhaps this column isn't what a senior space filler is cracked up to be, nevertheless, we proceed with a bit of desire and a spark of anxiety hoping that it will please you happily.

Amidst a Hail of Leather Weather we find the basketball relay under way for another year. Putting all their balls in one basket, and incidentally rarely missing, come the State Champs, the hardwood classicers, sturdy, stalwarts. Seniors seen doing double dribbles with a basketball are Bob Bolyard, John Chidester, Ralph Hamilton, Don Beery, and Carl Hall. So far it's been nice work, fellows, and you CAN get it.

Since Being in High School, especially when you can do many outstandingly pleasant things. Archer public speakers traveled to Purdue University recently where they were fortunate enough to hear some excellent debates. I hear ya talkin'. All the trip takers were glad of co-education at Lafayette; and, as a result, many South Siders now are scribing epistles to appreciative recipients at Purdue. (Love in the bud).

Among Some Summer Statistics we find that during our vacation months they wouldn't let spring trackster, Allison Arnold, on the local baseball team because he was out of breath. —Anyhow we thought it was a good opportunity for a pun, putrid though it now seems.

This Week's Honors go to one blonde blessing, Helen Banks. One of our top-notch workers, this flaming journalist finds time to partake in almost all of South Side's outside activities. Versatile, charming and a patient friend to all, we give you this ardent Archer. (This is only figurative, fellows, for "Casanova" Neff has most of her time pretty well taken up.) S'too bad, boys, but you always have your studies.

Interesting Interrogations—

We wonder why
1. Mark Hall shudders at the approach of any feminine creation?
2. Adelheid Scheele and Mary Michels can never check their laughter? (Perpetual emotion?)
3. Bob Bolyard can't stay out of columns?

4. Laura Jane Reed and Dickie-Bird Garton don't get together. P. S. They should? P. P. S. They do.

5. They permit this drivel to be printed? (Cut?)

An Etherial Epic recently heard over the air ways was this prologue to a nervous breakdown. As follows: "Bob-white could never SWING it because his house did not have a front porch."

Debt Takes a Holiday now, especially when practically all past-due publication notes have been straightened out. We thank you all, trust-worthy students. Some mite (Tote-mite some say) passed along the good word not to forget your yearbook payments. Is this commercializing the art of journalism? Hmmm!

Row Row Tow Your Boat, Dottie, dear. This hint to the wise is for none other than Mrs. Rohrbach's little quickie girl. As the story goes, Dorothy had a date with a Purdue killer-diller. Taxi fare was above his means and due to poor facilities Dottie and her Romeo-of-the-campus biggies missed their street car, thus having to strut their well-known stuff in the rain. Water couple!

Did'Ja Also Hear About This Add Libbed Winner, the one about the poor woman who tried toboggan with an ice skater.

And now, patient readers, we must part from each and every one of you. (Enter the slamming of a door). Exit! For as one horn said to the other "I must blow!"

Six Years Of High School? What Will Be Thought Of Next?

Seniors! How would you like to go to South Side another two years? Well, this is just what the New York State Board of Regents has recommended as a part of a plan to make drastic changes in New York's public school system. The idea back of this two years extension of high school is that many boys and girls who otherwise might be unemployed, walking the streets, and perhaps get into trouble, will be in school gaining more sense and at the same time using their time to good advantage. It is thought that through this plan, the schools will be able to turn out better citizens.

This might be a very good plan, at least the idea upon which it is based is a good one, but it is going to be a lot of bother, making these changes. For instance, what are you going to call the 13B, 13A, 14B, and 14A? We are sure seniors would resent it if there was a grade higher than theirs let alone two. And think of freshmen having to be freshmen for three semesters. They probably wouldn't know the difference, but sophomores and juniors might object. Their intellect, so we are told, is on a little higher plane than freshmen. We have not been able to verify the truth of this statement as yet, but perhaps a little more intensive research will bring some light on the subject. Also, this increase in years would necessitate a change in the age of a student before quitting school. Well, the more you think about the subject, the more things you can find that would have to be changed. Personally, we'll let New York have 6 years of schooling and good citizens. We'll take 4 years of schooling and good citizens.

Happy Days Are Here

Wee Sketches Of Our Big People

By Jeanette Warren

Ladies and gentlemen (no pun intended), what could be more appropriate than to introduce to you the eccentricities and quirks of the president of the senior class, who was, by the way of establishing a record, also president of his sophomore class? Besides executivizing (made it up all by myself, he finds time to act as sergeant-at-arms of the Social Science Club and be entertainment chairman of Math-Science Club. Then, too he is an active member (I'd ought to say something here) and president of the Original (because, he points out, there has of late been a tendency for others to adopt the idea) Procrastinators Club, of which two other members are Ed Reeves and Bob Shimmel.

There are two spectacular things about our president's appearance. They are, as described by a friend (?), he is always messy, plain ordinary brown hair, and in striking contrast, his flashing white teeth when he smiles (they're really heart-thumps-inducers, huh, P. G.?). His favorite subject is chemistry because "it's got something that gets you" (interpret for yourself). He doesn't have any particular love for blondes (of course not!), or for little brothers (whose little brother?). His favorite food is "chow mein or something like that" (he was very indefinite except on one subject). His favorite color is "Red", in fact he has a strange malady which often causes him to see "Red" (or bronze—he insisted on being technical!) His favorite movie star is "Dopey" of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

He is ambitious to become a butcher, and he intends to study for this profession at one of the following three universities: Michigan, Northwestern, or Indiana (I neglected to say that butcher is interpreted as meaning cutter-upper, or surgeon). When questioned as to what particular phase of this work he intends to take up, he replied that at the present time he thought the greatest need was for brain surgeons (I'm still wondering).

P. S. We knew you could take it, Schmidt, so pardon the razzing. Everyone agrees that you're one swell person. That goes for you, too, Phil; you deserve a pat on the back after this.

Your reporter finally found time between saying "No" to subscribers and buying Christmas presents to dish out a little dirt. In my opinion Christmas is the most romantic time of the year (that is, besides spring, summer and the fall). Anyhow, all you students are in a dither over the holiday dances and parties. (I hope.)

A few of the new couples to be seen at various dances will be: Jane Nathan and Bob Bolyard... Lorraine Iba plus Harold Kitzmiller... Rena Bennett tagging along with Howy Rodenback, Betty Redding and Juan Rodriguez, Billie Lou Beaver and Pete Meyer... (A mighty potent new romance.)

Helen Bolingh fell in love with Paul Jones with her heart and soul. Some fun! Boys... take heed! Several heemen have been hounding me for dope about Rita Murchland as to whether she is still going "steady" or whether she is now foot-loose and fancy-free... the answer is definitely NO! So go to it, fellas! But certain C. C. boys have got the edge on you.

At the recent Purdue Conference Al Litchenberg was seen stepping out with Ruth Hassen, a Centralite. Al said he had sworn off all classes of females when Florence Oransky left town, but that just goes to show how quick a pretty face turns an admiring head...

Maurice (McTavish) Lehman has been giving his steady the run-around in favor of a cute gal from Concordia. (A gal from Concordia?) It sounds fishy!

Best People? Very Few Are Entitled To Praised Compliment

Best people? Have you heard the statement, "There is one of the best persons whom I have ever known." Well, perhaps you have said this very same thing about many of your companions. However, from now on consider the qualities that make up the best people before handing out such compliments.

To many it means the idle rich... members of fashionable country clubs, sons and daughters of those who came to this country and made and passed on money to their heirs.

Is He A Best? We know a man in our neighborhood who never misses a Sunday church service. He sits quietly in his pew, looking neither to the right nor to the left. He follows the minister's prayers, and he lowers his head to receive his blessing. Then he walks out of the church, head up high, determination on his face, a smile on his lips. However, the rest of the week he drives his workers with an iron hand. There must be no hint of companionship in his offices; he pays the least possible amount of salary and expects the greatest of efficiency. His wife trembles at his coming... it is his will or no will. He is counted among "our best people" because he gives his annual gift to the church and to the charities, and his name heads many civic enterprises.

A Mother's Love Best people? Another person who illustrates my problem very well, is a young mother, beautiful to look at, pleasant to meet, intelligent, full of life and fun, loves to dance, and is an excellent cook. Besides being a mother, she has an outside job, and goes to work every day of her life, then comes home and fixes a meal for herself and her children; spends the evening doing for her dear ones the homely chores that most women hate. Although she is a good mother, she still takes time to have guests at least once a week.

Best people? Well... our best people are those who are too proud to be beaten by circumstances; too wise to be unhappy because of conditions that get other people down; too decent to let others suffer because of them; too respectable to hobnob with the so-called best people who spoil a day by wasting it; folks who help others to help themselves.

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Those are "our best people".

Pro and Con

Ever since Tuesday's revelations, we have all been self-conscious, un-conscious, grade conscious and sort of dazed too... wondering why so much importance is attached to those seemingly insignificant letters of the alphabet, U and S, seeing that they don't stand for the United States; which immediately calls to mind, final grades in the disguise of C's, D's, and F's. Should this kind of grades be given or should South Side adopt the system used by Harrison Hill and some other schools... that of giving constructive criticism on cards and using checks and pluses; thereby doing away with actual, specific grades. Well let's review the question.

PRO The present grading system of giving A's, B's, and C's and putting them in certain classifications according to their value, tells you only specific value of the work you are doing. If you are doing F work, that is all that's on your card (which is usually enough) and you are not told what the trouble is... whether it is in recitation, written work, or in the way of studying. If you are doing good work, that is all it states, i.e., Percy Ellinsworth Vanswiler is doing A work in chemistry... no questions asked. Now the new system goes into minute detail... answering about ten questions about each subject and giving suggestions for better work for that individual.

Perhaps a teacher takes a liking to a certain student and because of this close acquaintance wants to repay the student in some way. Perhaps a slight boost put on to that student's average will give him a good grade. Perhaps while such a situation as this exists, another hard working student receives the same grade as the student with the boosted grade. The natural outcome is simply this: The hard working student sees that a student who doesn't half try receives the same grade as he does; and he perhaps thinks that all of his hard work was fruitless. Well, enough for the Pro side, and let's see what the other side has to offer in the way of grades.

CON Let us follow up a student under this new plan of grades. Let us say that a student receives a check. He is not certain exactly where he stands. It is true that a check up telling where the student has failed is filled out but the student doesn't know whether he is doing A+, A, or A- work. Taking an example of a student under the present day system of grading, this pupil knows exactly where he stands. If he receives an A- he will work hard toward a set goal, to raise the grade to an A.

At present we have a system by which a student can compete with his fellow classmates to place himself in the upper third of his graduating class. The determination of the upper third would be very difficult if a system of plus and checks were used. Under the present system each grade has a definite per cent to back it up. This makes the task of determining the upper third much easier.

Would it be possible for a teacher in high school with very large classes to know each pupil's needs and to know each pupil individually? Under the proposed system a teacher would have to know each student individually or the teacher would not be able to tell exactly where that pupil should improve. Many times here at school a teacher will know a student by face only and hasn't the slightest knowledge of that pupil's name. If such a case exists how could a teacher possibly know exactly where a pupil fails to do his best?

A student will work as hard to get good grades as a worker will labor to receive good wages. If a student's pay for hard work is taken away, what will he have to work for? A mere plus!

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Jam Session of The Jitterbug

Come all my children and you shall hear of the midnight ride of, yes, stupid, Paul Revere... It's really not the ride of the revered Mr. Revere, but the happenings and doings of those most intimately involved in what goes on around here.

If you have time, some day ask Billy Knoll who shaves him... and when... the latter information should prove very entertaining. Because although we do admit that Billy does shave, we can only say that it is a very rare occasion and is celebrated at the Knoll mansion with as much pomp as a birthday, the whole family turns out to watch this blessed event.

Under the sacred portals of our Alma Mater we have that very rare specimen of the masculine species, a glamour boy! When we say glamour, we mean glamour plus! It fairly radiates from the halo which surrounds this unusual find... This boy it seems, does not cherish a liking for the members of the feminine sex, a thing which makes the various members of this superior sex (ha, ha,) swoon right and left when this second Clark Gable smiles... He really does smile, and he has a beautiful, if rather rare smile... That unknowing object of so many affections is our own Mark Hall... Girls really don't bite, Mark. They are just trying to kid you.

Now for a little gutter tripe... Look up the word tripe sometime. You'll be surprised at its meaning... We think that... has finally been overcome by the charms of charming (repetition, but not objectional) Lois Likens. His name must remain a mystery, but he might be called "Big Stoop"... Who was it that Carl Goebel took home after the North Side game? It couldn't be a certain Ellen, could it? Why keep it so quiet, Carl?

And so comes to an end that which started out to be a tale of U. S. History, but which turns out to be much more important than that.

Archer Bob MacKay Is Determined To Be Great Chess Champion

Another chess champion is in the making. Robert MacKay is one of those victims of the chess craze.

At the age of thirteen years, in the year 1935, in Tulsa, Oklahoma, after observing pictures and information about chess in a new set of encyclopedias, he developed a strong interest in the game. After looking everywhere for a chess set, his father gave him a set; but, as all little boys do, he broke it.

His uncle then gave him a set. It was fairly expensive and made in France. It was of a composition material, called pirolexin. The chess men were white and red.

When he moved to Elizabeth, New Jersey, with his family, he joined a chess club at school. Their sponsor was their English teacher, who was the chess champion of Union County, New Jersey.

After moving to Fort Wayne, he tried to organize a chess club and found several boys who were interested; but they could find no sponsor.

Bob's object in playing chess is for the enjoyment he receives. By playing chess, he believes he learns to think better and that he can learn something new every time he plays the game.

Some time Bob hopes to play the game scientifically and be able to look ahead and know every move of the game.

How About Taking Insurance Policy To Insure Passing?

Many articles concerning education in general have appeared in many current magazines. If you have not been fortunate enough to read them, you will be interested to know that Mr. Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, has aroused interest in a new plan of education. This new plan consists of combining the last two years of high school with the first two years of college. To do this successfully, technical and vocational students would have to be taught in special schools and only those students who are fully interested in furthering their educations would be sent on to universities. Such a system would eliminate the disinterested college students who are not only a bother but who annoy hard-working students.

Along the line of oddities in college life, another article told of the following. Some college students take out an insurance policy which gives the students a tip on the course and its exams. If a student who has the insurance fails to make a passing grade on an exam, the company must pay a fee to the college.

A Bit Of Wit Is Stimulating

Gather round King Kats and Jitter Bugs and lend me your ears for a spell. Are you by any chance one of the group whom I recently heard to be running out of wit? If you are, here are a few items that might help you out a bit. Of course, there is such a thing as being entirely too witty; but on the other hand no one enjoys conversing with a dull conversationalist. From the dictionary there are numerous words that can be made into amusing sayings, such as the following examples:

Cider—He was mad because he couldn't sit be cider.

Veto—The Yanks beat the Cubs—vetoid you so.

Document—Patient to the doctor: Document to take the pills first; didn't you?

License—A person who tells big fibs, has good license. Did you think they were any good or maybe you don't catch on? Now I have some supposedly prize cracks, but I will appoint you as judge.

"He's as uncertain as the borders of Czechoslovakia."

"It won't be long now," said the lawn mower as it cut the grass.

And here is a touch of poetry:

One bright morning in the middle of the night,
Two dead boys got up to fight,
Back to back, they faced each other,
Drew their knives and shot each other.

A deaf policeman heard the noise, and Came and killed the two dead boys!!

Now here are some very appropriate songs dedicated to important persons, places and things.

Japan—"Small fry."

Hitler—"I gotta pocketful of dreams."

League of Nations—"Bewildered."

Russia—"A tisket, a tasket. Who can find another casket?"

Benes (ex-prez of Czech land)—"You can't take that away from me." (Oh, yeah?)

Last but not least are a few European notes:

Political situation in Germany—going, going, gone.

Italian anthem—"Rome sweet Rome."

Scene in Russia—"Hurry up." "Quit Russian me."

"Well then, quit Stalin."

Hitler took Austria, then parts of Czechoslovakia, now he's not Hungary anymore...

Adolph opened the window to let the fresh Aryan, because it Swastika...

Orations Test For Wranglers To Be Monday

Thirteen Contests To Be Held During Day; Thirty-three Wranglers Entered.

Classes Will Be In Own Divisions

Medals To Be Given To Fifteen Champions In Soph, Junior, Senior Divisions.

Next Monday will see the selection of the winners of Wranglers' 1938 Oratorical Contest under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Rieke. Thirty-three Wranglers' members have entered the event. This year for the first time sophomores, juniors, and seniors will compete in separate contests.

They will be divided into thirteen groups who will compete among themselves for first, second, and third places. Thirteen separate contests will be held throughout the day, one each period except the fourth.

Contests will be held in room 190 and in the Greeley room. Mrs. Rieke's public speaking classes and several English and history classes will be the audiences for these contests.

To Award Medals This year three medals will be awarded, one to each final champion in the sophomore, junior, and senior divisions.

First place sophomore winners will compete during the sixth period, and first, second, and third place winners will be announced.

First place junior and senior winners throughout the day will compete at Wranglers' meeting after school, and two final champions will be proclaimed. Second and third places for both junior and senior contests will also be awarded.

All entrants are being coached by Mrs. Rieke. Special appointments have been made for every participant.

Last night in room 190 they drew for the group in which they would compete first.

These students will represent South Side in inter-scholastic competition throughout the year.

Entrants Are Listed Entrants and their declamations are as follows:

Elaine Bernstein, "Youth and World Peace"; Charles Will, "My Account With the Unknown Soldier"; June McAllister, "The World Is One"; Sally Moorhead, "The Big Parade"; Bob Safer, "The Big Parade"; Leonard Weinraub, "Ropes"; Jeanne Gumpfer, "The Light That Is Darkness"; Harold Martin, "College For Crooks"; Bill Stebbel, "Erishing With The Sword"; Ed Meyer, "Shoot To Kill"; Dorothy Gore, "Cross Patch"; Sam Bacon, "Believe It Or Not"; John Bonsib, "Crisis In Character"; Tom Gallmeyer, "Breaking Down Barriers"; Don Meyer, "Assassin Of Youth"; Wilma Lagenman, "American Ideal"; Imogene Wright, "The Unfinished World"; Bob Robinson, "The Supreme Menace"; Eleanor Vesey, "Assassin Of Youth"; Jeannette Warren, "A Nation Out of Balance".

More Are Given

Albert Schaaf, "My Brother's Keeper"; Dick Fishering, "Ropes"; Richard Buchholz, "Willard Wilson"; Janice Dyer, "Flight From Baghdad"; Joyce McAllister, "I Am Innocent Of This Blood"; Bill Newhard, "Defense Of John E. Cook"; Dick Shorter, "The Crisis of 1938"; James Murphy, "Living Democracy"; Bruce Bradbury, "Appeal For Dreyfus"; Margaret Niblick, "Propaganda—Weapon of Peace"; Helen Wiehe, "State! Keep Your Lawyer"; and William Gernand, "Meaning of Americanism".

Eleanor Monesmith, first place winner in the upperclass division last year, reached the fourth round in the finals of the national meet last year along with Dalton McAllister, who had won the previous year. No other contestants from Indiana in any other event went as far.

UP AND DOWN OUR INCLINES

All but eight of Miss Emma Kiefer's English pupils have completed their outside reading for the term.

On a piece of sight reading from Latin into English, taken from the "War with Aristas", the following students in Miss Oppelt's Latin 4, period 6 class, made 90 or above: Betty Elbersson, Margaret Kutsch, Safford McMyler, Ed Meyer, Harold Martin, and Marcelle Driftmeyer.

Mr. Makey's English 8 class, having finished the "Life of Samuel Johnson", is beginning Browning. Joe Bex made the highest grade, 100, on the test over the "Life of Samuel Johnson".

Mr. Makey's English 2 classes are studying the forms of nouns and pronouns.

Miss Magley's English 1 classes have given oral themes. They have discussed such things as topics of current interest and historical places they have visited.

In Mr. Earl Sterner's Latin 2 classes the following students made a grade of 100 in writing the principal parts and meaning of thirty verbs: Delores Bodenhorn, Betty Ann Bohn, JoAnn Cartwright, JoAnn Cox, Dorothy Gilder, Bob Holzworth, Nancy McKay, Marjorie McNabb, Gloria Spanley, Carol Whitner, Alene Loeser, and Norman Fortress.

Miss Magley's seventh period English 8 class acted out the play, "The King's English".

In Miss Osborne's English 3, period 3 class, the following made a grade above 95 over a test on Shakespeare's Mid - Summer Night's Dream: Robert Foraker, Norman Haley, Harold Hallenberg, Dick Yergens, and Harold Schmidt.

All girls' gym classes are working on basketball technique.

In Miss DeLancey's second period English 7 class, Edward Beuty and Margaret Hart made above 90 in a test on Idylls of the King.

In a literature test given by Miss Osborne to her English 1 class, the following received above 90: Mary Ellen Barrett, Dick Brandt, Mary Brinker, Celeste Freistroffer and Joan Smith.

The favorite poem of Miss Emma Kiefer's English 2 classes seems to be Poe's "The Raven". A class read is "A Ballad of John Silver" by Masefield.

Jean Ewing was the only student in Miss Oppelt's Latin 4, period 2 class, who made 90 or above on a written lesson on infinitives and sight reading last Thursday. Jean made a grade of 94.

Miss Olive Perkins' first period French 3 class has finished its work on prepositions. On the final test, the highest grades were made by Margaret Null, Annette Snoko, and Lois Rea.

Helen Dicke, Maynard Richardson, Betty Kammeyer, and Robert Gerbers wrote especially good papers to show the proper punctuation of a series in Miss DeLancey's period 7 class.

The pupils in Mr. Chappell's senior home room 44, are giving a series of talks on occupations and professions. The first talk was given by Gene Trout. The topic he discussed was, A Graduate with a Grubstake, which showed the future opportunities that a young man has in farming.

Jack Bush, a pupil in Miss Thorne's home room, has moved to Lafayette, Indiana.

In Miss McClosky's English 3 classes, those making above 90 on a recent Ancient Mariner test were: Janet Holtmeyer, Romaine Rediger, Ivan Truman, Caroline Lichtenburg, Carol Lyman, Phyllis Lauer, Ruth Dauner, Irene Meyer, Gertrude Merkle, Jeanne Smith, Robert Allen, Bernadine Bender, Mary Alice Duntun, Faye Gumpfer, Louis Hallenstein, Richard Hamilton, Elizabeth Kelson, Marcelle Kimmell, Richard Nahrwald, and Fred Schwihr.

In Mr. Heine's biology 2 class, periods 2 and 5, the students are studying about worms. Some of the worms are tape worms, trichina (pork worms), hook worms, elephantiasis, and vinegar eels.

In Miss Grace Welty's Latin class, Romaine Rediger made 100 and Bernadine Bender, Irene Franke, Harold Grubers, Evelyn Talbot, and Martha Scheube made from 95 to 100.

On the final test in Miss Pocock's English 3 classes over The Merchant of Venice, the following made A or A-: Betty Koehler, Mildred Hankes, Gloria Stanley, and Lois Gumpfer.

In Mr. Moss' general history classes, Philip Mueller gave a report on Wat Tyler, and Francis Nash gave one on William the Conqueror.

Since several of the students in Miss Pocock's English 8 class have given reports on Idylls of the King, Phyllis Lansborough reported on the sources of Idylls of the King, Nancy Grant gave a report on the time and order of the composition of the Idylls, and Carl Stumph reported on the Allegory upon which the Idylls are based.

The following students qualified for the Honor Roll in Miss Covault's typing class: Mary Jane Kelly, who wrote 52 words per minute with 94% accuracy; Lillian Patton, who wrote 50 words per minute with 90% accuracy; Doris Reinking, wrote 40 words per minute with 91% accuracy; and Dorothy Ringenberg wrote 45 words per minute with 93% accuracy.

Mrs. Carson's third and sixth period Latin 1 classes are reading the story of a dying father who gave valuable advice to his sons by means of an object lesson with sticks of wood.

Kathryn Beckman entertained the members of home room 98 Wednesday of last week by singing "My Reverie", "Music Maestro, Please", and "Mother Nature's Lullaby". She was accompanied on the accordion by Rosella Foutz.

Mr. Makey's English 4 classes are ready to study poetry.

Yuletide Paper To Be On Sale By Art Classes

Theme Of Paper Is New South Side; Choose Best Designs By Art Students.

Art classes are again selling Christmas wrapping paper. The sale of the paper started Monday and will continue until the present supply of paper is exhausted.

This wrapping paper was designed by all of the art classes of both Miss Erma Dochterman and Miss Blanche Hutto. All of the students in these classes created different designs and the best were chosen and put together.

The paper is selling for ten cents for a roll of three sheets. The paper this year is of a better grade than in previous years.

Dave Howell and Basil Thompson of Miss Hutto's classes did almost all of the cutting of the pattern for the paper. Jack Hiding and Eloise McKee assisted in the cutting work.

This year the paper is in brilliant green with a white background. The green was chosen since the wrapping paper is dedicated to the new South Side with all its improvements.

It may be bought in Rooms 77 and 81, in the front hall after school, or before school in the morning.

The paper is sixteen inches by twenty inches.

All students are urged to buy their early since there will be no second printing of the paper.

In Mr. Earl Sterner's Latin 2 classes the following students received 95 or above in a six weeks' test: James Barrett, JoAnn Cartwright, JoAnn Cox, Virginia Menze, Jack Snyder, Carol Whittem, Ionejean Tracht, Violet Reiter, Roger McVay, John Gumpfer, and Norman Fortress.

Miss Dean's dancing classes are doing barwork and also learning an Irish dance.

George Keller, Joe Reichert, and Clarence Elliot are lettering large wooden signs for the Athletic department which will be used at the games.

Maxine Goers, Elaine Boerger, and John Potter of Miss Lucy Osborne's seventh period class helped her decorate a Christmas tree in her room after school Tuesday.

In a recent test given by Mr. Hull to his Physics 2 class, period 7, Bruce Bradbury, Paul Gruss, Walt Howard, and Bob Peters made above 90. Eugene Tigges made 100 and Dick Warner made above 90 in the period 2 class.

In a recent test given by Mr. Null to his period 1 class on "Launcelet and Elaine", Rafilda Laudadio made an A and five others made the next highest grade of B+.

Are In Charge Of Sale Of Christmas Paper

Miss Erma Dochterman

Miss Blanche Hutto

Miss Erma Dochterman and Miss Blanche Hutto are supervising the sale of the Christmas wrapping paper this week. The paper may be purchased in the front hall at a cost of three sheets for ten cents.

U. S. A. Members Conduct Initiation

H. Fry, L. Greiner Supervise; Girl Reserves Code Is Explained; Musicales Presented.

Miss Martha Pittenger was present at the initiation of the girls of the U. S. A. Club, which was held in the Greeley Room on Thursday, December 8, at 3:30 p. m.

Helen Fry was chairman of the initiation. The president, LaVerne Griener, welcomed the girls into the inner circle of the club. The Girl Reserve code was explained by Marilyn Soudes, Louise Haugk, Betty Mann, Alice Volmerding, Helen Lisius, Jean Sheets, Rozanna Weston, Marjorie Voltz, Jane Cox, Ionejean Tracht, Eileen Horman, and Marilyn Sappington.

Ionejean Tracht was chairman of the entertainment. Betty Nichols played "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem", and "We Three Kings of Orient Are" on her violin. Eleanor Munzinger sang "The Glow Worm" and "Indian Love Call", accompanied by Ionejean Tracht at the piano. Irene Franke and Thelma Draper played the following selections on their piano-accordions: "Silent Night", "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town", and "Jingle Bells".

Sophomore Visits College

Helen Ellenwood, sophomore, visited her brother, Jim Ellenwood, '38, at Indiana University, the week-end of the Indiana-Iowa football game. She was a house guest at the Alpha Omicron Sorority House.

Story Recounter Returns To Philo

Mrs. Ralph L. Feagles Tells Same Story She Told Philo Members Five Years Ago.

Mrs. R. L. Feagles was the guest of honor at Philo's annual Christmas party held Monday afternoon at 3:45 in the Greeley Room. As this made the fifth consecutive year that she had spoken at a Philo Christmas party, she chose to tell the same story she told five years ago, "David's First Christmas Star".

The Philo quartet under the direction of Frances VanBuskirk sang, "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem" and "Silent Night". The quartet is composed of Eleanor Vesey, Margaret Null, Frances VanBuskirk, Miriam Jackson, Katherine Beckman, Jean Gumpfer, and Jane Engleking. Two harp selections were given by June Flaig, after which the trio, consisting of Ruth Bade, piano, Loretta Rinearson, violin; and Ruth Dauner, cello, played several Christmas carols.

Tea, Christmas cookies, and candy were served. The refreshment committee was made up of Ella Jo Reed, chairman, Carolyn Keel, and Marilyn Miller.

Little red garbed men on skis were given as favors. These were made by the following decoration committee, Janice Dyer, chairman, Marjorie Rapp, Helen Banks, Alice Pope, Hertha Hoffman, Jean Gumpfer, Marjorie Dyer, Audrey Hall, Betty Marquardt, Betty Daniels, Miriam Jackson, Katherine Beckman, Lois Rea, Helen Wiehe, Betty Neeb, and Bernice Etzler.

During the business meeting the club decided to have a two page Totem picture this year. Betty Daniels, who has charge of the Christmas basket, also announced the following girls as special chairmen: Kitty Clined, Rebecca Abbett, Virginia Fleming, Dorothy Gore, and Anna Anderson.

Green Squad Will Play In Hammond Holiday Tourney

State Tourney Finalists May Continue Feud

Basketball Fans Hopeful Wildcats, South Siders May Battle Once Again.

Hot Dogs, Alices Also Are Entered

Two Calumet High Schools Will Also Play To Bring Total Contestants To Six.

A meeting of South Side's Archers and the Hammond Wildcats, the two teams which last March proved themselves the best in Indiana, is the hope of all Indiana high school net fans when the powerful state champs from South Side take to the hardwood in the Holiday Invitational tourney at Hammond December 29, and 30. The clash of course is based on the assumption that the Archers and the Wildcats survive the tough competition which will be offered by the other tourney entrants. The clash will take place in the final game or not at all, as South Side and Hammond are pitted in different brackets of tournament play.

All Indiana will focus attention on the possible clash of last year's state finalists. Each is favored to reach the finals, as apparently neither the Archers nor the Wildcats have lost any of the power and ability which this spring carried them to the finals of the state tournament.

Tourney Is Attraction
The tourney will be the outstanding attraction of mid-season basketball in Indiana as well as the number one holiday tourney. Teams from Frankfort, Vincennes, and the two other Hammond schools, Tech and Clark, will provide the competition for the Archers and the Wildcats. The meet will be held in Hammond's new community gym, which has a seating capacity of 6,000. A capacity crowd is expected to witness the tourney, which will open Thursday night, December 29, when Hammond meets Hammond Tech, and Frankfort takes on Hammond Clark. Friday afternoon the entertainment provided will consist of two semi-final engagements and a consolation tilt between the losers of Thursday's games. The championship game, which will take place Friday night, will be preceded by a game between the losers of the semi-final games.

Upset Is Possibility
Although South Side and Hammond High are favored to enter the finals on Friday night, Frankfort and Vincennes will have plenty of the best in competition and an upset is more than a possibility. Frankfort's Hot Dogs, coached by Everett Case, represent the hot North Central conference and are widely known and respected for their basketball prowess. Vincennes is one of the south's best and has more than an outside chance to come out on top. Hammond Tech and Hammond Clark have not shown the power displayed by the other entrants, but nevertheless will play an important part in the outcome of the tourney.

The draw for the tourney follows:
Thursday Night, December 29:
Game 1, 7:30—Hammond vs. Hammond Tech.
Game 2, 8:30—Frankfort vs. Hammond Clark.
Friday Afternoon, December 30:
2:00—Vincennes vs. winner game 1.
3:00—South Side vs. winner game 2.
4:00—Loser game 1 vs. loser game 2.
Friday Night, December 30:
7:30—Loser game 3 vs. loser game 4.
8:30—Winner game 3 vs. winner game 4.

Archers Are Happy Carl Hall Is Back To Strengthen Team

When three men were graduated from the first five of South Side's varsity, they left a serious gap in the lineup of the team that is expected to defend the State Basketball Championship for the Archers. Three men from a basketball five is a serious blow to any team. However, at this crisis Carl Hall appears to step into the shoes of Dale Hamilton, who incidentally was one of the greatest netters in the school's history. He seems to fill them pretty well.

Carl is strictly a local product, having been born and raised in Fort Wayne. With two years of varsity experience behind him, he enters his third and last year as a veteran forward on the Archer squad. Always a good shot, he has made fourteen points so far this season. He was forced to miss the entire '37-'38 season because of illness, and Coach Fiddle is breaking him in easily, playing him for only a short time in each game. Carl hopes to be in the peak of condition by tournament time.

Although basketball occupies most of his time right now, he still has time to like nearly all sports. He admires basketball although he really holds no grudge against blondes.

Carl's ambition is to enter the sports field after he is through college. His first step in accomplishing this will be to go to Franklin and play ball with his former teammates, Hamilton, Frazell, and Belot. However, if this plan fails, he doesn't know exactly what he will do.

His chief ambition right now is to help South Side go just as far as possible in this year's competition. Carl will have a tough time living up to the reputation that he has built up for himself as a basketball player; however, many in South Side think that he will surpass it. South Side supporters feel much more comfortable knowing that Carl will be holding down one position on the Archer squad.

Intramurally Speaking

Intramural wrestling, which opened November 30, is now going strong. With Mr. Bill Moss as the wrestling instructor, many of our Archer muscle men have been inspired by his remarkable success in the wrestling world, for you all know that Mr. Moss was the champion wrestler in college.

Bill has many boys out for this sport, but one of the outstanding men are Kaye Swain, Jack Ridings, Joe Loos, Byron McCammon, Bud Brudi, James Fathree, Bob Burkenbeul, Harry Mayer, Verlin Lahman. This particular sport is expected to last between two and three months, so if any of you boys would like to sign up by all means see Mr. Moss as soon as possible. If you'd like to participate in wrestling at all and if deep down in your heart you have a certain year toward wrestling, don't fail to come out because you think it's too rough. The real wrestler isn't the one who is the toughest guy on earth but he is the one who uses his head the most.

So don't delay in signing up, because you've got everything to win and nothing to lose. You've got a swell instructor who will really teach you something about the sport and you've got plenty of competition. So here's to your success in wrestling.

In the basketball world this week there were approximately nineteen intramural games played. We will not go through all of these games, but instead we will mention some of the outstanding games in the three divisions of the tournament.

The most outstanding game of the lightweight division, but probably not the most interesting, was the contest (and rather a one sided affair at that) between the Pops and the Apes. The Pops had the gigantic score of 68 with the Apes way behind with a score of 0. Of course the Pops' high point man was Triple Threat Tom Brower, who scored 26 of their points.

In the middleweight division the outstanding game of the week was the contest between Flashers and the Pot Shots. The score in this game was a little more exciting than the previous one. The score being 5-4, in favor of the Flashers. In last week's Intramurally Speaking I would like to correct a little error which I made concerning the Flashers. We had stated that the Flashers had lost their first game. This was a mistake because the Flashers are the proud winners of both of their contests. Pardon us for the mistake, Flashers.

What we think was the most outstanding game in the heavyweight division last week was the conflict between the Black Hacks and the Devils, resulting in a Black Hack victory of 6-5. The Black Hacks look like a mighty tough squad and a squad which you want to watch closely. However, you must remember that the Devils were defeated by only one point, so they aren't to be forgotten either. In closing, we want to wish success to all you boys who play this week.

All City Teams Are Victorious In Last Games

Central Catholic, Redskins Remain Undefeated; Central Tigers Lick Comets

Central Catholic and North Side remain undefeated, each having subdued the first five teams on their schedules. Central's Tigers, although they have been defeated this season, succeeded in turning back a Kendallville five last Saturday night by a margin of four points.

Central Catholic indeed seems to be wearing the royal purple of basketball success thus far this year. Paced by Bitler and Stanzak, who together accounted for twenty-four of the forty-seven points scored by the Purple, the Irish snatched the game from Portland Panthers, who were able to score only thirty points. The Panthers hung tightly to the Irish during the first half, the half-time score being fifteen to twelve. However, after the half, Central Catholic let loose and dumped in baskets steadily.

Leads Scoring Race
Ed Stanzak, big center of the Purple, dropped in ten more points to add to his lead in the city scoring competition.

North Side also came through with a victory Saturday night, outscoring the Tigers of Peru, 43-28. The Redskins got away to a slow start, scoring only nine points in the first quarter and six in the second. However, they allowed the Tigers only five points during the first quarter and none during the second. Hieber accounted for six of the points recorded during the first half. The North-Siders showed real power during the third quarter, putting to a 25-8 lead before the Peru five was able to score again. Before the third period closed, Peru had scored eight points to the North-Siders' five, making the score read 30 to 16 in favor of Fort Wayne. The fourth period was fairly even—North Side chalking up 13 points to 12 for the Tigers.

Points Evenly Divided
The scoring was evenly divided among the Redskins, Heiber leading with ten, and Erwin, Russell and Leakey each with eight. D. Horn led the Peru five with 17 markers.

Henry Kulesa was the major factor in upsetting pre-game dope last Saturday by dumping in 25 tallies for the Central Tigers to defeat Kendallville by the slim margin of 38-34.

Leading all the way Central was never greatly troubled until late in the last quarter when Smith, who also dumped in his share of the points for Kendallville, scored five baskets in a row from the field to bring Kendallville within four points of the Tigers. Central has definitely raised its prestige by beating what is considered to be one of the toughest teams of the state.

The students in Mr. Clyde Pierce's home room 82 are beginning to study parliamentary law procedure.

DR. KENT L. SEAMAN

Eye, Ear, Nose & Throat Specialist Returns to Ft. Wayne

During the past three years Dr. Seaman has been in Los Angeles, California. While there he qualified for and received an appointment on the staff of the Los Angeles County General Hospital, serving regular duty in the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Department.

During this opportunity for intensive study and treatment of eye, ear infections and deafness, NEW AND EFFECTIVE METHODS FOR IMPROVING THE HEARING WERE DEVELOPED.

IN MOST CASES HEARING CAN BE IMPROVED BY THIS NEW METHOD

It is difficult for a child with impaired hearing to get an education—no one wants to employ a deaf man or woman. Earache and discharging ears mean beginning deafness and treatment of known effectiveness should begin at once.

Pickard's Stratosphere Study Can Be Aided By Jim Glass

James Elwin Glass, alias Saggy, Shorty, Big Stoop, Empire State, Shadow Proof, String Bean, High Pockets, etc. No this isn't a criminal, far from it; for James Elwin Glass is one person whom we of South Side depend upon for the success of our basketball team. There is no need in going into detail telling you about the achievements of Jim, for you all know Jim is that tall creature who drops the ball in the basket every time he gets hold of it (or at least, almost, every time).

Jim was one of the mainstays of our championship basketball squad last year and we're all sure he's going to be the same again this year. He is one of the best, if not the best, center that South Side's basketball team has ever had. You all have seen the marvelous feats which Jim commits every time he tips the pill. He first jumps into the far-away stratosphere reaching for the prized ball, then he tips the ball still higher while his anxious teammates await below for the ball to descend from its heavenly realm. Yes, indeed, Jim is one of the greatest lads South Side has ever acquired and one person whom we of South Side will always "look up to."

Jim's History

So much for Jim's "high-reaching feats"; let us now go into Jim's private life. James Elwin Glass first came into our midst on the date of August 10, 1919. James Elwin was born in Ossian; however, before long they moved to Fort Wayne where Jim acquired a preliminary education in Harrison Hill.

Jim has been a fairly tall youth all his life. While in grade school, Jim used to thrill all the students by walking down the hall with his hand touching the ceiling. When Jim was in grade school, he of course played basketball on the Harrison Hill squad; and during the entire time which Jim played on this grade school team, the team received top honors.

Now that Jim has grown up to be a tall, dark, and handsome man, he has developed his opinion toward various things. Jim's favorite subject is none other than history. He states that he is very much interested in history and enjoys it immensely. Jim agrees with many others of us as to his dislike, which is short assemblies.

Central To Meet Irish Tomorrow

Redskins To Clash With Garrett Friday, Elkhart Saturday; Games Promise To Be Close.

Headlining one of the most attractive cards of the basketball schedule in Fort Wayne this year will be the Central-Catholic game to tomorrow night at the North Side gymnasium. Besides the South Side game Friday night with Auburn, North Side will meet Elkhart at the latter's gym. The following night will find Kokomo at Central and North Side at Garrett.

Central will be in for trouble when they meet Central Catholic tomorrow night. The Irish have been pointing to this game for a long time and believe that they have the stuff to beat Central. However, the Tigers are just as determined and the game appears to be a toss up. The following night Central will meet one of the strongest teams in the state in the form of the Kokomo Wildcats. Last year the Kats were barely able to nose out Central by a score of 28-26. Led by the six-foot ten Chet Gabriel, Kokomo will probably have too much power and height for Central to cope with.

North Side will get a real workout over the week-end when they meet two strong teams, Garrett and Elkhart. Last year the Redskins easily whipped Garrett by a 42-21 count, but they will find the Railroaders harder to handle this year. Saturday night North Side travels to Elkhart for a game. This game should turn out to be a good match and the Nulfmen will have to be on their toes to come out on top. However, North Side should remain unbeaten in both contests.

Green To Meet Auburn Tomorrow, Vincennes Saturday

Alices To Be First Net Foe In Home Game

Are Said To Be Toughest Opposition To Date To Try To Upset Champs.

Champs On Toes For Local Crowd

Spectators Will Be Treated To Red-Hot Offense And Newly-Patterned Defense

South Side's state champs will open their home basketball schedule in the Archer gym Saturday night. The Green will be confronted with the toughest opposition to date in the defense of their state crown. Vincennes will put forth their bid to become the first net squad to upset the undefeated state champs. The Alices of Vincennes represent the best in southern Indiana basketball and will be completely new to the Archers, as this is the first season they have appeared on a South Side schedule.

Archers Have Advantage
The Archers are blessed with the definite advantage of playing on their home floor before a familiar crowd and consequently are favored to come out on the long end of a very close score. Coach Friddle has pointed out his Archer charges for the home debut, and as a result the Archers should be in top form. Having drilled hard and long on defense throughout the preceding week, the Green gave a fine account of themselves in last week's games. They held Bluffton and Connersville to 18 and 21 points respectively.

Bolyard Responsible
Offensively the Archers have had things pretty much their own way this season, being able to score almost at will or at least when points were badly needed. The smooth playing of the Archer captain, Bob Bolyard, has been largely responsible for the clicking of the Archer attack. Don Hire has developed rapidly and gave a fine account of himself in both the Bluffton and Connersville games. Coach Friddle has substituted frequently in all Archer contests to date. Ralph Hamilton, Bob Hines, and LeRoy Cook have seen plenty of action in games this season and have given a fine account of themselves. Against the Alices, Coach Friddle will probably start Bolyard and Hall at forwards, Glass at center, Beery and Hire at guards. As the game is the first of the ten-game home schedule of the Green and White, a capacity crowd will no doubt be on hand to witness the game.

Play Day Lauded By G.A.A. Members Of Three Schools

Play Day, a newly established annual event for lettergirls, was held last Friday in the gym where the usual reporter was roving around and stopping girls between games to ask their opinion of the whole affair in general.

The gym instructor from Central, Miss Meribah Ingham, stated, "It's a grand idea—we have been looking forward to it all week." Miss Margaret Spiegel, North Side's instructor, also gave her opinion, "All of the girls enjoyed it very much, and it's nice to be back in the portals of South Side even for a short time."

Present at Play Day were North Side's and Central's presidents of G. A. A., Sis Arnold, Central, said, "I think it's fun and I think all the schools should continue it." Ginny Steele, North Side, stated, "It helps to promote friendliness and sportsmanship among the different girls of the various schools."

Other opinions are as follows:

South Side
Nancy Valiton—I think that Play Day is a swell idea. Girls from different schools get acquainted and it helps to break down any bad feeling which may exist between South Side and Central.

North Side
Vi Winebrenner—I think Play Day is a very good thing to have. The girls from different schools are able to get together and make new friends. Lillian Watkins—I think Play Day should be continued. It promotes friendliness and sportsmanship among the high school girls.

Fondah Shook, sports editor of The Northern—I look forward to G.A.A. Play Day every year with great anticipation. Many friends with Central and South Side girls (although they are our enemies) are acquainted with each other. Sportsmanship is the finest quality gained through girls' athletics.

Mary Ellen Welby—Play Day is a good method for girls who are interested in sports to get acquainted with girls from the other schools who have the same interests.

Marilynn Baughman—It's swell!

Leora Belle Anderson—It's loads of fun. You meet lots of new kids!

Eileen Aughinbaugh—Helps support friendliness among girls.

Mary Carlenord—You asked for it. It is the one time for girls to meet different girls from different schools. I hope it will be continued.

Dolly Didier—I think it's loads of fun and I hope they keep on having them.

Gwen Parrish—I think—I think—oh, well, I had a swell time.

Central
Leslie Chamberlain—I think it is very interesting and we should continue having it.

Olympia Derloshon—I like it because I believe it creates a more friendly spirit between the three schools.

Betty Mathews—I think it's loads of fun and should be continued.

Mary Winkler—It's the first time I have been to one and I haven't had so much fun since Hector had pups.

Annie Bibbo—It's all right so far, but boy, am I hungry!

We Again Expect Them To Hold All Honors

Above are the Archers, the 1938-39 State Basketball Champions. They are as follows, from left to right: First row, Cook, Roth, Tieman, Hamilton, and Chedester; second row, Shimer, Hire, Bolyard, Hall, and Beery; standing, Hines, Saalfrank, Spiker, Glass, Braden, and Saalfrank.

Bluffton Reserves Defeat South Side

Win By 2 Points; Rahe Tiehman Scores 5 Points; Dale Fuhrman, Roy Englehart Score 4.

The South Side reserves lost a heartbreaker to a strong Bluffton five last Friday night by a score of 16-14. The Archers opened up with a burst of power in the first quarter when they led by a score of 8 to 5. After a few minutes of the second quarter the Bluffton five regained the lead and were never headed from this point on.

Leading the Archer seconds in scoring was Rahe Tiehman, who tallied five points, and Roy Englehart and Dale Fuhrman with four points each.

Game Ragged Affair
The game was a ragged affair with little scoring being done after the first quarter. Both teams fouled often and missed many easy shots and handled the ball carelessly.

Three new faces were in the Archer lineup for the first time this year, these boys showed a steady influence upon their teammates. These basketball stars of South Side are Roy Englehart, Dale Fuhrman, and Jack Hornberger.

Englehart and Fuhrman scored four points each and played a fair game on defense. Jack Hornberger, though not scoring, was the main cog in the Archers' defense. On offense, Hornberger was passing the ball well and gave the ball to his team mates when they were open to help give them easy shots.

"Chick" Shimer, a freshman, entered the game; and, in less than thirteen seconds, he had two fouls that were unintentional called against him.

During this week Coach Kitzmiller will point out the reasons why the reserves lost and will tell them what they should have done. Through Kitzmiller's able coaching, the reserves will undoubtedly have a tougher squad on the floor for their coming game.

Graduates Of Room 4 To Meet December 27

Graduates of '37 who were in Miss VanGorder's home room have organized an alumni association of their home room consisting of thirty-two members. They meet twice a year, once during the summer and again at Christmas time. Their next meeting will be December 27.

Last summer Phyllis Borgman entertained twenty-two of the thirty-two members at her cottage in Rome City where they had an all-day picnic.

Dick Ake is the president of the association and his assistants are Louise Closs, Jean Aronhalt, Dorothy Alderidge, and John Bex.

Wrestling Squad Has Thirty-Two Members

Bill Moss, the wrestling instructor who was the Big Ten wrestling champ for four years, is showing the tricks of the trade to thirty-two boys out for this sport. More will report in the near future.

Those who have signed up are John Davenport, Don Mason, Byron McCann, James Worman, Bill Steup, Robert Ault, Jack Ridings, Joe Loos, James Hurst, Werlin Lahman, George Winkler, Harry Meyer, Richard Shinn, Eugene Arnett, Robert Stock, Wayne Turley, Robert Berkenbeul, Russel Dixon, Leon Lahman, Jack Kemp, Kenneth Wollman, Jim Patheer, Richard Steury, Ernest Dent, Howard Bolyard, Bud Brudi, Wayne Swain, Melvin Volz, Eugene Nahrwald, Lee Pierce, Allen Smith, and Charles Cranlick.

After Mr. Moss demonstrates different holds, the boys are paired off and allowed to try out what Bill showed them. Mr. Moss wants all boys who were out for football to come out for wrestling.

Auburn Team Will Be Next Southern Foe

Scene Of Clash Will Be On Red Devil's Home Floor; South Siders May Attend.

Green Favored To Be Winner

Friddle Shifting Players; Lineup To Be Hall, Hire, Bolyard, Glass, Beery.

"Four in a row" will be the cry of all Archer fans as the State Champs travel to Auburn tomorrow night to seek their fourth straight net victory. The Archers, boasting victories over Kendallville, Bluffton, and Connersville, are expected to have little trouble in defeating the Red Devils.

Auburn, however, has the distinct advantage of playing on their home floor and will use it to their best ability. The Red Devils' gym has a small playing floor which will handicap the Archers to a great extent.

Promises To Be Real Fight

The Archers have been very successful in past meetings with the Red Devils. Last year's game, however, was a close battle with the Green and White finally coming out on top, 29 to 26. This year's Auburn outfit, although their record is not especially impressive, promises to give the Archers a real fight, no matter what the outcome may be.

Coach Friddle's boys really "came through" on defense last week end, much to the delight of Archer fans and also Coach Friddle. The Green put forth an impregnable defense against Bluffton and Connersville, winning by scores of 34-18 and 27-21, respectively. If the Archers can maintain this fine defensive play and keep up their flashy offensive work, they should have little trouble with Auburn or any other team for that matter.

Bolyard Leads Archers

Bob Bolyard used his experience to the best advantage and consequently led the Green in both week-end engagements. Especially noticeable and gratifying, however, was the fine playing of Don Hire, who is really coming along.

The entire varsity will see action in the Auburn game if Coach Friddle continues his policy of substituting freely throughout the game. The starting lineup for the Archers will no doubt be Bolyard and Hall at forwards, Glass at center, and Beery and Hire at guards. Cook, Hines, Hamilton, and Chedester also stand to see action.

As this is the first appearance of the State Champs in Auburn since capturing the state title, a capacity crowd is expected to witness the game. South Siders who wish to attend this game may secure tickets at the office.

Frosh Volleyball Tournery Is Over

Betty Hargan's Team Is Winner Of Contests; Rose Stemen, Mae Scheele Tie For Second.

The freshman G. A. A. volleyball tournament ended last Monday evening with Betty Hargan's team capturing first place by winning every game they played this season.

The girls on the winning team are Constance Bender, Elaine Boerger, Bertha Coudret, Audrey Evans, Betty Hargan, Jean Junk, Melrose Lyman, Mary Menze, Lenora Moyer, Sylvia Sholtz, Patricia Smith, Dorothy Snively, Rosemary Spore, Vasilka Stephens, Mae Vanderford, Jeanet Whetsel, Delores Winebrenner, and June Whalen.

Mae Scheele's team and Rose Stemen's team 4 tied for second place. Peggy Berning's team took third place.

The scores for the games Monday were 38-27 in favor of Martha Scheele's team. Peggy Berning was captain of the losing team. Justine Coudret refereed this game and Eva Jean Wylie kept score. On the south court the champion team of the tournament under Betty Hargan defeated Rose Stemen's team in an exciting game. The score was 39-37. Scorer and referee for this game were Jeanne Smith and Frances Nash.

Varsity Rifle Team In Lead In County

Is One Of Two Teams To Qualify For Final Competition To Be Held During Next Week.

South Side's varsity rifle team is now in seventh place in warm-up competition of Class B teams. Leading the six Allen county teams, the Archers have accumulated a total of 490 points. South Side and Arcola are the only two teams qualified to remain in the B division. Elmhurst, nearly across the line, needs just one point to score 481 and tie Arcola.

Some of the sharp shooters responsible for the high score of the Archers are Hornberger, Ridings, Kimble, Goble, Gentis and Hageman, who is also president of the Rifle Club.

The winners, although the contest is only a warm-up match, are to be rewarded with trophies and medals. The contest will be determined next week. Probably 175 teams are competing.

The national contest will start January 21 and twelve weeks of competition will follow. The present contest is merely to determine the strength of the individual clubs.

The state winner of the contest of January 21 will represent the state in national competition.

I-M Basketball Game Scores Result Close

Twenty Tilts Are Played In One Week; Feature Four Good Games In Routine

In the third week of intramural basketball play, twenty games were played. Close games featured the play in each weight division.

There were four really good games played. The Tigers eked out a win over the Killer-Dillers, 11-10. Surley led the victory with six points, while Dave Rea scored a like number for the losers.

The Hoosier Pot-Shots defeated the Oranges 12-10. Strawbridge tallied four for the winners, and Hayner six for the losers. The Greyhounds trounced the Tigers 10-5. D. Taylor got four for the winners, while Headford gathered five for the losers. The Swishers had a hard time in downing the B.E.D.s 13-11. O'Brien led the Swishers with six points.

Some of the other good games were: Rug Cutters 12, Dubs 9; Cubs 10, Apples 6; Netters 5, Hot-Shots 1; Laxers 9, Riots 1; Musketeers 14, Lemons 1; Sissies 13, Skunks 10; Zippers 18, Bulldogs 1; Black Hacks 6, Devils 5; Apples 5, Boys 4. The All-Foos turned in the highest score of the week in trouncing the Netters, 30-4.

Pass English Examinations

Two of South Side's graduates, Max W. Welby and Frederick Meyer, are among the 346 students who have passed the Indiana University English proficiency examination.

It is required of the students who are working toward a bachelor's degree in the school of medicine or the college of arts and sciences to demonstrate their ability to write correct, clear and forceful English by passing a proficiency examination in their junior or senior year.

Green Defeats Connersville, Bluffton Teams

Jim Glass, Bob Bolyard Led Victory Over Tigers 34-18; Take Spartans 27-21.

South Side's championship-bound Green Archers made it three straight in games won for the season over the week-end. Last Friday the Kelly Klads turned back a heretofore undefeated Bluffton quintet by a score of 34-18. The following night the Friddelemen trounced a highly-touted Connersville five 27-21.

Big Jim Glass and bouncing Bobby Bolyard led the South Siders to a victory over Bluffton. However, they received plenty of support from Don Hire, who hit three goals from the floor and added three more from the foul line for a total of nine points. The Archers ran up a lead of 13-1 in the first quarter and continued to flash a championship brand of ball to lead at the half time 23-6. Any doubts as to the strength of the Archer defense were dispersed when they held the Tigers to exactly two field goals during the first half.

The greatest disappointment of the week! We don't have any news concerning Mr. Bill Moss. Could it be that he is keeping in the dark, since he has been publicized in this column so often. We certainly hope we haven't hurt his feelings any, for if he wants to participate in the dancing club or volleyball games, well, this is a free country. Perhaps it was Mrs. Moss. This will be the last of our teasing, anyway. We bet you hope so.

The freshmen are really showing some ability in volleyball. Some of the freshmen that are really showing their stuff are Clara Makey, Bety Hargan, Marilyn Loomis, Peggy Greaney, Joan Druhot, Rose Steman, and Marita Scheele. Watch out for them next year, upperclassmen, for they're promising some tough competition.

Here's a good one about Adelheid Scheele that happened at the last up-perclassmen volleyball game. It seems that she was standing in the first row at the end, waiting patiently for the ball to be hit to her. Now she had been standing there for a long time and the ball just didn't come her way. Margery Price, who was standing in the middle row, was rather worried about the score, and since Adelheid was so near to the scorer, she asked her what the score was. Immediately Scheele turned her head and attention to the scorer, and at the same time a ball came over the net and hit her square on the head. Have no fear, it didn't knock her out, but it did leave a very bewildered and disappointed Adelheid.

Scrappy Showalter, better known as Brilliant Bunny Betty (because she's so shy and because of her amazing strategy on the playing court) has finally succumbed to the charms of the opposite sex. (Traitor!) Marvin Schleiger was her lucky escort at a certain recent party.

As it was several years ago, "Scheele" is again a familiar name on the hardwood. Martha May, freshman, and Adelheid, senior, are upholding the tradition established by their alumnae sisters, Dolly and Dorothy. They joyfully participate in every sporting event.

At this time, we should like to present our annual tribute of three cashew nuts to the G. A. A.'er of the week, Jeanne Smith. We, along with the fifty million Frenchmen, think that Jeanne is a little cutie as well as an outstanding athlete. This little bronzed blonde is a thoroughbred on the tennis court, and an able captain of her volleyball team. We imagine that she is a "whiz" at ping pong (our favorite of the more active sports) too. A typical, clean-cut, American girl as well as a typical South Side champion (Rah, Rah, Fridde and team) is this diminutive sophomore whom we this week crown with the title, "Queen of the Courts".

Congratulations are in order for one Betty Hargin and her freshmen "buddies". It seems that these young ladies really know their way around or at least over the net, for they are still undefeated in the underclass volleyball tournament. We predict some tough competition next year for the present upperclassmen if these budding athletes continue the work they have so brilliantly begun.

Orlida Braun does not believe in waiting for basketball season to open before putting them through the hoop. She started making baskets during a volleyball game the other day with a remarkable serve.

During the third quarter the Archer offense bogged down enough to let the Tigers stage a rally that carried them within twelve points of the champs, who led by a score of 25-13. But South Side got going again and the game ended with the Archers on the long end of a 34-18 count.

Each team lost a man of fouls with South Side losing Hall and Bluffton losing Wiley.

The only Tiger player able to penetrate the Archer defense more than once was Tonner, veteran forward of Bluffton. He tied Bolyard for scoring honors with 10 points.

Defeat Connersville
The following evening South Side rode on to their third successive win by defeating a strong Connersville five 27-21.

With Bob Bolyard again being high for the Friddelemen, the Archers were in complete control of the game at all times. The Spartans never threatened until the second quarter when they drew within three points of the State Champs 13-10. But the Archers turned on the steam and were leading at half-time 16-10. The Spartans never threatened again and were behind 25-15 at the three-quarter mark.

Bolyard was high for the Champs with 10 points while Pressler starred for Connersville also with 10 points.

FORT WAYNE ENGRAVING COMPANY

120 West Superior Street

South Side's Archers have shown a lot of promise for a great season as they snowed under their first three opponents this season. Victories over Kendallville, Bluffton, and Connersville have left the Archers in the undefeated class and have established them as a definite threat when tournament time rolls around next March.

In their three games to date the Archers have averaged 35.67 points per game as compared with their opponents' 24.67. This gives the Green an 11-point average margin over their three opponents.

Since the opening game with Kendallville, the Green have given special labor toward the development of an impregnable defense and have shown great improvement. In their game with Connersville, the toughest Archer foe to bite the dust thus far, the Archers had complete control of the game at all times, and held the outfit which rang up a 13 point victory over Green-castle to 21 tallies.

South Side has not been the only Fort Wayne team to remain undefeated this year. Both North Side and the Irish of Central Catholic have turned in five wins out of five starts. Probably the most surprising of these two teams are those fighting Irish. The boys from C. C. seem to be headed for a great season this year and would like nothing better than to knock off a couple of the city teams, especially South Side. They have won long to wait, for next Friday night the Purple will take up their city series campaign with the Central Tigers.

Central has not hung up an especially brilliant early season record, having won only two games as yet. It must be remembered, however, that Central is at top form when a city game is in sight. The Irish, on the other hand

Times Advisers To Announce Press Group

Miss Rowena Harvey To Name Scribes To Quill, Scroll At 1500 Potluck.

Mid-term Quill and Scroll members from South Side will be announced by Miss Rowena Harvey, publications adviser, at 1500 Club's annual Christmas potluck to be held Monday night in the cafeteria from 6 to 9 o'clock.

Members of South Side's Quill and Scroll Society for the last two years, members of North Side's Legend and Northerner, and Central's Caldron and Spotlight staffs will be honored guests at the 1500 Club's Christmas potluck. Janice Dyer, program chairman, is in charge of the evening's entertainment.

North Side's representatives include Ellen Kattell, Shelly Wagner, Jean Scott, Arthur Crayton, Philip Olofson, and Kate Gerig, while Central's delegation is composed of Elda Mertz, Burdella Peltz, Jeanne Patrick, and Charles Rothschild.

This will be the first time that a large number of former 1500 Club members have been allowed to attend such potlucks after they have been graduated from South Side.

"Editorials" will provide the theme for the potluck, and the program will be based on the regular editorials appearing each week in The Times. Members of the program committee and their topics are as follows: Wee Sketches of Big People, Dick Aronhalt; a humorous editorial, Betty Neeb; Jam Session of the Jitterbug, Jeannette Warren; News-Vues, Sam Bacon; Kelly Koed-Kut Ups, Bruce Bradbury; and an etiquette lesson by Doris Williams. Other members of the program committee are Peggy Bacon, Winfield Buchanan, and Bob Robinson.

In charge of arrangements is Betty Daniels. Assisting her are Lora Lee Montgomery, Kenneth Warren, and Virginia Goegein. Acting Beverly Griffith, cleanup chairman, are Maurice Seibert, Dorothy Bloemker, Ed Reeves, Joel Salom, and Emilou Allen-dorph.

Joan Hess, Martha Jane Krauskopf, Eleanor Vesey, and Jean Portrie will aid Julia Ann Smith, who is in charge of the food committee.

Snow! Snow! Snow! Nearly Unanimous Chant Of Archers

Christmas is coming and with it snow will probably come. We suppose you Archers would like to know the opinions of some of your friends on the question of whether or not we should have snow on Christmas and why we should. We are not responsible for the consequences of this interview. The following Archers replied as follows when asked the question:

Carl Goebel: It should snow for Christmas as the snow should have green specks in it for South Side.

Lois Briggs: Sure we should have snow for Christmas, because it gives everyone a good Christmas spirit.

Marilyn Burns: I think we should have snow for Christmas because you can have a lot of fun with snow.

Gwen Roberts: It gives a Christmas to everyone. So I think we should have snow.

Bob Hawkins: We should have blue snow for Christmas because I like blue.

Elaine Ferguson: We should have snow so Santa Claus can come in his sleigh.

Jeanne Hench: Certainly! It does not seem like Christmas without snow.

Don Wolford: By all means. It would be tough sledding if there wasn't any snow.

Art Bear: I can do without it if Phil Hayner is there.

Betty Baumgartner: Christmas is not complete without snow.

Joan Hoy: We should have snow so Santa can come with his reindeer.

Alyce Lake: We should have snow so we can go ice-skating.

Mae Vanderford: Snow makes a more favorable Christmas.

Marilyn Annweiler: It wouldn't be Christmas without snow.

Stu Welborn: I don't want snow, because I might get cold feet.

Check Service To Be Put On By Hi-Y Group

Basketball Fans Will Be Accommodated by New Convenience for Home Games

Archer basketball fans will have an opportunity to have their wraps checked at the basketball games this season. The service this year will be sponsored and operated by the Hi-Y Club of South Side. Signs will be conveniently placed to show the way to the check room.

The entire Hi-Y Club will cooperate in giving this service to the fans. Each member will have an opportunity to work in the check room. The check room will open at the same time that the doors will be opened and will close shortly after the game ends. It will not remain open for after-game dances.

There will be no charge for this service to the fans, but no objections will be made to gratuities. Aubrey Kellogg, chairman of the publicity committee, will make the signs for the check room.

The four boys who will work in the check room next Saturday are Dick Olcott, Max Magner, Dick Aronhalt, and Dick Buchholz.

To Initiate Members

Ten new members will be initiated into the Hi-Y Club tonight at the Y. M. C. A. They are Max Mitchell, Dick Garton, John Magley, Bob MacKay, Bill Schultz, Billy Kinsey, Bill Riethmiller, Ronald McVay, Frank Devlin, and Bob Devlin. The club officers will be in charge of the initiation. Dick Buchholz, president, Maurice Lehman, vice-president, Roger Neff, secretary, and Jack Bostick, treasurer will read the induction ceremony which is the "First Degree Ritual." Morton Nahrwald will act as guide and Andy Bremer will operate the electric Hi-Y sign.

An important business meeting, which will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock, will precede the initiation.

At the last meeting a new program committee was appointed. Maurice Lehman was made chairman of this committee and is assisted by John Magley.
